In presenting his interesting subject a brief history of the four young Hebrew captives was given and the circumstances by which Daniel was called upon to act as the interpreter of the King's dream. The significance of the image and its parts were then discussed. As a whole it represented the world powers, who have successively struggled for aggrandizement. The hand of gold represented the magnificent Kingdom of Babylon, the breast and arms of silver, the Medo-Persian Kingdom; the belly and thigh of brass, the Grecian Empire; while the feet of iron and clay represented the great Roman Kingdom. The destruction of the image by the stone demonstrated that the earthly kingdoms must give place to the kingdom of Christ. The Stone was Christ, and he is frequently called such in the New Testament. Like the stone, Christ's kingdom, is not made with hands; it had a small beginning, and like it, too, has become a mountain. There is no room for doubt as to the ultimate triumph of Christ's kingdom, for Christ shall reign, and the triumphs of His kingdom are not dependent upon the achievements of men's hands but upon the power of God. Its progress is not marked by the horrors of war, but by the correction of evil, the amelioration of society, and the spread of righteousness and peace. This kingdom shall stand forever, for no physical power can annihilate love.

Morning..

Anthem, "How Long wilt Thou Forget Me, O Lord?"..... ... ...Pfleuger
Recitative, Mr. Davis.
Contralto solo, Mrs. Pearce.
Solo, "Just for To-day"... ... ...Abbott
Miss Belleghem.
Offertory solo "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross"..... ....
Mr. Keough.

Evening.

Anthem, "The Radiant Morn".Woodward
Quartette, "Nearer My God to Thee"... Chopin
Mrs. Keough and Mrs. Pearse.
Messrs. Davis and Keough.
Offertory solo, "Fear Not, Ye O Israel"
Mrs. Keough.

One is at a loss to describe the singing—customary terms seem to convey so little to those not skilled in music. The solo parts were given with precision and expression, and the chorus singing was strong and accurate. The evening quartette and solo were beautiful numbers, but artistic as they were, one forgot the singer and heard only the song. An intense spirit of worship thrilled every noteand a listener unconsciously sighed with regret as he realized that the music had ceased.

ALL SAINT'S CHURCH.

At All Saints church yesterday evening, Rev. J. Cooper Robinson, a returned missionary from Japan, gave an interesting discourse on his work in that country. The preacher remarked that God's work is our work, and the world is the field for every Christian worker. The first great missionary was Jesus Christ, for He left his home in order that the word of God might be preached throughout the world. If it had not been for foreign missionaries, said Mr. Robinson, we might to-day be worshipping idols. Contrary to the opinion of some, foreign missions are not a mistake, for the great business of the church is to preach the gospel throughout the world. The preacher said that Christians had not been asked to convert the whole world. In his opinion he did not believe that the world would be converted but they were commanded to preach the Gospel throughout the world.

The preacher then entered into details of his work in Japan. He said that although the Japanese were the most polite people in the world yet they worshipped idols. This work of preaching the Gospel throughout the world is the work of every Christian—not just the missionary societies. All of us cannot go, but those of us who remain can materially assist in the work by supporting the missionaries.

During the offertory the choir sang "Break forth into Joy," Mr. Legg taking the solo.

In the morning the Rector, Rev. W. L. Armitage, preached the first of a series of sermons on the place of prayer in the Christian's Life."

GEORGE STREET METHODIST.

The services at George street church yesterday were all well attended, the pastor, Rev. J. P. Wilson occupying the pulpit morning and evening. At the morning service the choir sang the anthems "I am He that Liveth," and "How Long Wilt Thou Forget me O, Lord," Mr. Mulligan taking the baritone solo in the latter. The evening anthem was, "I Will Pray the Father," while the offertory selection was the solo and chorus, "While the Days are Going By,' by Miss Parnell and the choir.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.

The services yesterday, which were well attended, were conducted by the Rector. The musical portion of the services were very satisfactory. At the morning service the well sung anthem was "Send forth Thy Light." In the evening the offertory anthem was "Gloria in Excelsis Deo." The exacting soprano solo was taken in good voice and with excellent effect by Miss Ruth Dawson, and the incidental duets were well sung — soprano and alto, by Miss Dawson and Mrs. Seward, and soprano and tenor, by Miss Dawson and Mr. Alf. Kingscote.

A Bit of Scotland in Canada.

At a point 145 miles north of Toronto on the Grand Trunk Railway System is reached one of the most magnificent districts in the Highlands of Ontario known as the Lake of Bays District. The region comprises a series of connected lakes, over which large steamers are navigated. What greatly adds to the Lake of Bays value as a health-giving and sportsman's resort is the unmatched purity of the air one breathes upon its heights. The visitor forgets his ills under its reviving influence in less than a week, and sees life's problems in a smoother light, enjoying the good things in this life which Nature and Providence have prepared for him. Its bracing morning breeze which rivals the celebrated atmosphere of Pike's Peak, Col., impart new lung power and fresh vitality.

CUBA AS SEEN BY CANADIAN EYES.

Mr. F. C. Tate, Optician Tells of What he saw There.

The Climate. Condition of the People and Leading Industries.

(By F. C. Tate.)

Leaving New York with the thermometer registering around zero, we gradually sail into summer waters and in three days enter the harbour of Havana, Cuba, where the climate is like summer all the year round. Upon entering the harbour one is impressed by the beautiful appearance of the city. The strange architecture of the houses combined with their various colours of red, green, yellow, blue and white, all with red tile roofs, is especially striking. The contrasts are so great that the city looks like a stage setting. Then on the other side towering high above is old Moro Castle and Cabannas Fort. Getting still farther into the harbour we pass close to the wreck of the battleship Maine, the rigging and gun turrets of which appear above the water. The Cuban Government have given the contract for the raising of this notable wreck. The steamer anchors in the harbour about half a mile from the wharf. We then take a small steamboat to the landing. Here we are met by interpreters from from the hotels. We find the latter much beyond our expectations. The service is excellent and the cooking good and rates moderate. The butter, milk and meats cannot compare with those in Canada, but all market vegetables and one or two fruits are always in season, which makes up to a great extent for the lack of the heavier foods.

A TRIP TO MATANZAS

by rail is an interesting day's journey. This is one of Cuba's oldest cities on the sea shore. The Great Yumari Valley, and the old pirate caves of Bella-Mar, being points of great interest.

From here we go to Puerto Principe, the headquarters of Sir William Van Horne's Railway. A trip over this line to the east of the island, a distance of about four hundred miles, to Santiago de Cuba, shows the work and enterprise of that great Canadian. Along this route we see a great many Canadian and American colonies, numbering about ten. They are experiencing some of the hardships of the early Canadian colonists but they have the advantage of not having the hard winters to contend with, and they are generally very well contented with their lot. The people in these sections impress one as being very prosperous. There is work for everyone, either in the mines, on the railways or farms. The farmers are a happy lot. They grow all kinds of produce for the northern markets, such as tobacco, sugar cane, oranges, pineapples and other native fruits. All seem to have money, and are in easy and prosperous circumstances. At Nipe Bay, one of the branch terminals, they are building what will be one of the largest sugar mills in the world. It will have a capacity of five thousand tons per day. Another company of Americans are laying out a large tract to plant sea island cotton. The consist chiefly of baseball and another ball game called "Jai-Alai," the latter being an exciting game and creating about the same interest as our hockey. The people of Cuuba spend a great deal of time in physical culture, every club having a gymnasium.

The country has been perfectly free from yellow fever for a year, and by care in sanitation they hope to keep it so. Speaking again of what one sees growing in Cuba, almost everything in the vegetable and fruit kind will grow there, with the exception of appleas and peaches. Apples cost ten cents each in Havana. There are at least seven varieties of fruit grown in Cuba which do not get into Canada. Pineappleas, tobacco, cotton and sugar are the principal crops of the country. These products are shipped from Cuba to all parts of the world.

Shooting and fishing are good in Cuba, there being an abundance of quail, deer and fish.

A very odd sight is the milk man, who drives a drove of mules along the street, and milks them in front of the customer's door. All milk otherwise delivered is salted to keep it. The roads in Cuba are exceedingly fine and well kept. For a distance of 32 miles out of Havana in two directions there are macadamized roads, with shade trees, planted at regular intervals, and men are employed whose only duty it is to keep the weeds hoed off and the trees trimmed.

After spending a great deal of time fishing, shooting, etc., we finally prepare to sail again for New York, and thence to Peterborough, to which town we are glad to return to again to mingle once more with those who speak and understand our own language and practice Canadian customs.

An Imperial Endowment Policy

Is the contract par excellence. While it embraces the life assurance feature its strongest point is the excellent return made to the assured himself at the expiration of the endowment period.

To indicate the many valuable features of this contract, take the case of a policy for $5,000 issued on the life of a man aged 30, with an Accumulative Surplus Period of 20 years:—

The premium would be $247.00 per annum for 20 years only, or $128.00 half-yearly.

The Company guarantees to pay to the beneficiary $5,000 in the event of the death of the assured during the 20 years.

At the end of the 20 years, the assured, being then alive, receives the entire cash value of his policy, consisting of—

The face value of the policy...$5,000

Total cash value $6,695

(Being a return of $1.35 for every $1.00 paid, and in addition, the protection of $5,000 life assurance for 20 years.)

TO FIGHT IN CHINA.

Russians Occupies Newchwang in Strong Force.

JAPANESE ADVICE TO CHINA.

Russians Ready to Begin Shooting—Extensive Warlike Preparations in Progress—Forts at Mouths of the Liao River Garrisoned by 14,000 Troops—London's View of Present Complications.

Pekin, May 9.—The Russians, it is announced, have re-occupied Newchwang with a large force, and also have put garrisons in the forts at the mouth of the Liao River. They are further reported to be making extensive warlike preparations.

The news of Russian activity, which comes from a most trustworthy source at Newchwang, adds that on their return to Newchwang the Russian troops brought with them several large guns. A large force has been ordered to re-occupy Tienchwangtai. The Russians have 14,000 troops between the mouth of the Liao River and Port Arthur.

The Russians are reported to be constructing forts on the hills near Liaoyung, commanding the road between there and the Yalu River, and they have arranged a large quantity of provisions delivered at Newchwang. A despatch from an official at Newchwang says indications point strongly to these active preparations being intended to forefend operations against the Russians in Manchuria.

Never Evactuated Newchwang.

London, May 9.—The announcement from Pekin that the Russians have "re-occupied" Newchwang must not be understood as implying that they ever fully evacuated the place. The news is taken here to mean that the town has been re-occupied by the force the withdrawal of which was announced in April, when the Russians said that all the troops except the men necessary for the police guard had been removed.

Japanese Advice to China.

Tokio, May 9.—In the name of Prince Koyone, President of the House of Peers, the Nationalists have telegraphed to Yuan Shih Kai, Viceroy of Pechili, and Chang Chih Tung, Viceroy of Nankin, advising the immediate opening of Manchuria and the granting of a concession for the Wiju-Newchwang Railroad to an Anglo-Japanese-American syndicate.

SULTAN SEEKING A WAY.

The Porte's Note Difficulty With Bulgaria May Be Settled.

London, May 9.—The Sofia correspondent of The Times says: The difficulties regarding the tenor and contents of the Turkish note are likely to be arranged to the satisfaction of both parties, the Sultan appearing disinclined to provoke a controversy.

Wholesale arrests of Bulgarians are reported in all parts of European Turkey, and all the Bulgarian schools in western Macedonia have been closed, and their teachers have been arrested.

French Ships For Salonica.

Toulon, May 9.—Following the receipt by Admiral Pottier of cipher orders, the French flagship Admiral Pothuau and the armored cruiser Latouche-Treville sailed for Salonica early yesterday.

Panic at Monastir.

Constantinople, May 9.—The attempt made Wednesday by a band of Bulgarians to blow up a powder magazine at Monastir caused a panic in that town. The attacking party, which was surprised by Turkish troops, ultimately fled, after a number of men had been killed or wounded.

Albanians Banished.

Berlin, May 9.—A despatch received from Constantinople announces that the Turkish troops have occupied Ipek, Albania, the headquarters of the Sultan's reform commission, which was the seat of hostile Albanians, without opposition. The twenty-two Albanian chiefs, leaders of the opposition to the reforms, who were recently arrested at Prisrend, Albania, have been banished to Mosul, Asiatic Turkey.

WALKED LIKE AN OLD MAN.

Joseph Hamel Suffered Long Before he Used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Had Lost all his Energy and was Discouraged—The Great Kidney Remedy Cured Him Completely.

Nicolet, Que., May 10.—(Special).—Of the many people in this neighbourhood who have been brought back to health and strength through the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills few are in a better position to give the public the benefit of their experience than Joseph Hamel. He knows both sides of the question—the suffering and the relief.

"I suffered from Kidney Disease for three or four years," says Mr. Hamel. "For two years I would take two or three days off work a week if was continually sick and forced to walk like an old man; I lost all my energy and became discouraged.

"After trying a lot of medicines that only gave relief for a while I was fortunate enough to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. After using three boxes I was completely cured."

Mr. Hamel is enthusiastic in his praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills and there is not the slightest doubt of the correctness of his statement as dozens of people can testify to his illness and cure.

Conspiracy Case Enlarged.

Montreal, May 9.—The preliminary enquiry into the charges of conspiracy against Morris Dacharack, William Blaikley and David Levy of Toronto was fixed for yesterday morning and adjourned until next Tuesday.

FAMOUS HYMNS.

Interesting Facts About the Authorship of Church Music—Many Hymns Greatly Changed From the Original.

Everyone, perhaps, has his or her favorite hymn. Yet few know its author and under what circumstances it was compose. Take the Christmas hymns, for example, "Hark! the Herald Angels Sing," when originally published by Charles Wesley in 1739, began, "Hark, How All the Welkin Rings. "Christians, Awake!" was composed by John Byrom, in 1745, as a carol for his little daughter Dolly, "for her and for no one else." In the original the manuscript is headed "Christmas Day for Dolly." It was first published in 1746, in Harrop's Manchester Mercury, and was set to music by the organist of the Manchester parish church, Mr. John Wainwright. "While Shepherds Watched," another carol, was written by Nahum Tate 200 years ago.

Abide With Me.

The popular "Abide With Me," was written by the Rev. H. E. Lyte, in 1847, at Brixham. He had become so ill that he was ordered to Nice. On the Sunday evening prior to his leaving he walked by the seashore alone for half an hour after he had spoken to his congregation for the last time. When the sun had set he went back to his study, and an hour later the hymn was finished. Dr. Monk composed its beautiful setting in an inspired ten minutes. Canon Ellerton's popular "Saviour, Again to Thy Dear Name," was composed so recently as 1886, but has since then been translated into nearly every language and dialect.

Rock of Ages.

"Rock of Ages"—probably the most popular hymn in the English language—was written by Toplady when caught in a thunderstorm near Blagdon in the Mendips. As the London went down in the Bay of Biscay in 1866 the doomed passengers sang this hymn. It was once translated into Hindustani by an enthusiastic native convert, and his rendering, literally translated, read thus:

Very old stone, split for my benefit,
Let me absent myself under one of your fragments.

Many stories are told of the hymns of Isaac Watts. It is said that he wrote "Not all the Blood of Beasts," after a visit to Smithfield Market, while the charming hymn "There is a Land of Pure Delight" was suggested by the view of Southampton water as seen from the Isle of Wight. He is believed to have written 500 hymns; many are mediocre; a few will last as long as the English language.

One of Wesley's First.

"Jesus, Lover of My Soul" was suggested to Charles Wesley by a seabird flying to him for protection during a storm. It was one of the earliest that he wrote. A good story is told of Keble and Dr. Neale, both writers of hymns:

Dr. Neale was invited by Mr. Keble and the Bishop of Salisbury to assist them with their new hymnal, and for this purpose he paid a visit to Hinslay parsonage. On one occasion Mr. Keble having to go to another room to find some papers was detained a short time. On his return Dr. Neale said, "Why, Keble, I thought you told me that the 'Christian Year' was entirely original?" "Yes," he answered, "it certainly is." "Then how comes this?" and Dr. Neale placed before him the Latin of one of Keble's hymns. Keble confessed himself utterly confounded. He protested that he had never seen the original. After a few minutes of quiet enjoyment Neale relieved him by owning that he had just turned it into Latin during his absence.

Hymn for Brides.

The now popular wedding hymn "O Perfect Love" was written in 1883 by Mrs. Dorothy Gurney, for her sister's marriage, to be sang to the tune "O Strength and Stay." Sir Joseph Barnby set it to music for the wedding of Princess Louise of Wales. Canon Ellerton's "O Father, All-Creating," was composed at the request of the late Duke of Westminster for the marriage of his daughter to the Marquis of Ormonde in 1876. "From Greenland's Icy Mountains" was written by Heber in twenty minutes in 1819, and the only correction he made was to substitute "heathen" in the second verse for "savage."

A most interesting chapter is that on children's hymns. Charles Wesley wrote the best known of all, "Gentle Jesus, Meek and Mild," in 1740. It has been said that he wrote it for his own children, but this is a mistake, for he did not marry until some years afterward. "There is a Happy Land" was written by Mr. Andrew Young in 1838, at Rothesay, to go with a tune which he had heard a little girl playing.

Juvenile Hymns.

"There's a Friend for Little Children" was written by Mr. Midlane at Newport, Isle of Wight, near the house where Thomas Binney composed his verses beginning "Eternal Light! Eternal Light!" The charming child's hymn, "Now the Day is Over," was written in 1865 by the Rev. S. Baring-Gould, author of "Onward, Christian Soldiers." The magnificent "Eternal Father, Strong to Save," was composed by Mr. William Whiting.

One of the most curious stories in this admirable volume relates to the hymn beginning "O Happy Day That Fixed My Choice." This was once sung at the confirmation of one of the royal children by the late Queen's desire. The next day a leading London paper announced that the hymn had been specially written for the occasion by Tennyson, with a scathing criticism that if the Poet Laureate could do no better it was time objection was raised to his receiving national pay. It was really written by Dr. Doddridge, who died in 1751.—London Telegraph.

DEATH OF NOTED REBEL.

Port Victoria, Seychelles Islands, May 9.—Mwanga, the former King of Uganda, is dead. His death was caused by the rupture of an aneurism.

King Mwanga, a son of the celebrated King Mutesa, left Uganda secretly on July 6, 1897, to organize a rising at Buddu against the Government of the British protectorate, but the King's forces were defeated July 20 of the same year by the troops commanded by the British deputy commissioner, Major Ternan, and Mwanga escaped to German territory and surrendered to the Germans, who eventually turned him over to the British. The King was then exiled to the Seychelles Islands. Mwanga's infant son, Daudi Chua, afterwards was proclaimed King (or Kabaka) of Uganda, with a native council of regency.

20 Years of Itching Piles.

Mr. Alex. McLaughlin, Bowmanville, Ont., writes that for twenty years he suffered terribly from itching piles. Seven years ago he asked a druggist for the best cure for piles and was told to use Dr. Chase's Ointment. He continued this treatment until entirely cured and as he has never had any return of his old trouble considers his cure permanent and remarkable and remarkable on account of the length of time he suffered.

FORTUNES FOR TWO.

A former Baltimorean who was a close friend of a Philadelphia physician whose specialty was kidney diseases relates the following as the method by which Russell Sage paid the doctor a bill:

The physician was on a visit to a friend in New York. Mr. Sage was very ill at his home from a diseased kidney. Hearing that the Philadelphia doctor was in New York, Mr. Sage requested him to call. The doctor did so, and within ten days Mr. Sage was a well man. A check, signed by Mr. Sage, with the amount left blank, was handed the doctor, who declined it, stating that he could not break his inviolable rule of confining his practice strictly to office work. When he visited people who were too poor or physically unable to get to his office he never accepted pay for his services.

During his visits to Mr. Sage's home the doctor was accompanied by his daughter, a winsome miss of ten years. About a month after the occurrence the doctor's little daughter received a telegram from a Wall street broker which read: "By order of Mr. Russell Sage, I have bought for your account —— shares of —— stock." As soon as the doctor read the dispatch he hurried to a Philadelphia friend, who was a broker, and ordered him to buy —— shares of the stock mentioned for his (the doctor's) account. The stock fluctuated, and when it was selling at a price which would pay a good profit the broker advised the doctor to sell, but the doctor did not take the advice. Later a dispatch came from the New York broker to the little girl. It read: "Have sold for your account —— shares of —— stock." The doctor immediately unloaded his holdings. These transactions were repeated several times and not only made the doctor a small fortune, but won for him a reputation as a shrewd financier. A final telegram came from New York for the little girl: "Have closed out your holdings and mail you a check for —— thousands." The doctor unloaded and dropped out of the stock market as suddenly as he had entered it, much to the mystification of his broker and friends, who had heard of his successes, but never knew whether to attribute them to a "Henrietta" luck or to careful study of the stock dealt in.

A Mystery.

"What are they, ma?" he asked.

"Bones," she replied.

"Whose?" continued the little fellow.

"Mine," she answered.

He regarded her a minute in amazement and then asked solemnly, "How did you get 'em out?"

Bismarck as a Court Officer.

It was while a student at Berlin or a little later that Bismarck served for a few months as court officer. An oft told story of that time will bear repetition here: A witness annoyed Bismarck so much that at last he lost all patience and threatened to throw the man out. Then the judge interfered.

"The court will itself attend to all the throwing out that is done here," said the magistrate, and the taking of testimony proceeded. Later the witness again became obstreperous. Bismarck jumped up in a rage, but, bethinking himself in time, turned his indignation into a humorous channel.

"Sir," he yelled, "if you don't behave yourself I shall have his honor the judge throw you out of this courtroom with his own hands!"

Almond and biscuit shades are very popular with the all black hat, and white is having its usual run of popularity.

The new rich claret tone is not so much seen as was predicted, yet a few well known leaders of society look wonderfully well in this shade. It had, of course, to be well carried out and only looks its best in costly fabrics.

cloth and panne of this shade, with falls of deep coffee lace and a lining of cream satin.

Waistbands bought ready made are admirably arranged to keep the waist short in the back and long in the front, a generally becoming line. It is better to buy these belts ready made than to attempt them at home, as they have to be carefully boned.

The woman of slight figure who does not wear much of a corset needs a smart and becoming belt.

The Twinging Pains of Rheumatism

And Sciatica, Distressing Headaches and Dizzy Spells, Made Life Wretched—Doctors and Medicines Availed Nothing but Cure Came With the use of

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

Instead of giving you reasons why Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills should cure you, we prefer to quote from the experience of the cured ones. This case of Mr. Haines was unusually serious because it was of twenty years' standing, and had resisted the efforts of two physicians and all sorts of treatment. It is merely another illustration of how Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills reach the seat of disease and cure when other means fail.

Mr. William Haines, farmer, of Thorold Township, near Port Robinson, Welland County, Ont., states: "I have been subject to severe and distressing headaches since boyhood, and in later life this became complicated with rheumatism and sciatica, and altogether my life was made miserable. The headaches were accompanied with dizziness and vomiting, and I was for days and often weeks unfit for anything. As the trouble advanced I became reduced in flesh, and was wrecked in health and spirits.

"After undergoing treatment by two doctors and trying many domestic remedies and patent medicines, I almost gave up in despair, as none of these did me any good.

"Fortunately I began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, thinking that if I were only benefitted it would be a wonder. However, I persisted in using these pills until the time came when the bad symptoms of nearly twenty years' standing disappeared. I had gained nicely in flesh, and began once more to enjoy life. For this great change all the credit is due to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and I shall never cease to recommend them whenever the opportunity offers."

A Golden Heart

BY BERTHA M. CLAY

The question was asked without any special reason; but she saw a dark flush pass swiftly over his face, and a gleam almost of anger darkened his eyes.

"No," he answered frankly. "I called at Beaulieu. It was an old promise made, but I am sorry to say, almost forgotten by me, that I would make my first call there on my return to England; and having been reminded of my promise, I was compelled to keep it."

There was an almost imperceptible change in Lady Rhysworth's manner. At the mention of Beaulieu all that Lola had said of Sir Karl returned to her mind. She had called him "mine;" and the fact that he had gone first to Beaulieu seemed to give her the right.

He felt rather then saw the change. Her sweet face grew paler, and she quietly withdrew her other hand from his clasp.

"You did well to keep your promise," she said, calmly. "I have the greatest horror of a broken promise."

"Dolores," he said—"I may call you so?—you gave me permission when I was leaving you, and you must award me the same privilege in the first happiness of my return—there have been misunderstandings enough between us; there shall be no more. I did not intend, when I first saw you, to speak of myself, but it must be so. Do you remember what took place between us when I went away?"

"Yes," she replied.

"I have not changed," he said. "Since I left you, I have never given a thought to any other woman; and, if you had never been free, I should, for love of you, have gone unmarried to my grave."

"I know," he cried eagerly. "Do not think that I would paine you. Do not suppose that I would presume on the kindness you have shown me. I would not, Do not, speak to you in this fashion but that I see so plainly there will be nothing but mistakes unless we understand each other. Believe me, I have had no other love but you, and never shall have. It may be an unhappy love—I cannot tell, but it will be the only one of my life. I went away because I could not bear to see you the wife of another man. I have come back, knowing that you were free, to tell you that I will try my best to win you; but not yet—not yet, Dolores! I have too much respect for this;" and he too touched the black crepe gently. "I shall be near you to befriend you; but I will not obtrude my love on you until I have paid all the respect that even you could desire me to pay to the memory of your husband. I say this," he went on, "at an inopportune time; but I speak because I am afraid of misunderstandings. You are not angry with me, Dolores?"

"No. Why should I be?" she replied. "Since you have spoken frankly to me, I will do the same to you. Are you sure that in saying this you know your own mind?"

"In what way?" he asked, wonderingly.

"I do not wish to speak of myself or of—love," answered Lady Rhysworth. "I want you to be sure that you know your own mind. You imagine that you like me better than any one else; are you certain of it?"

"Quite," she answered earnestly. "I could not be more certain. I know my own heart if any one ever did, and have suffered most grievously from the knowledge. I understand it perfectly, Dolores. Would to Heaven I had understood it years ago! You think that I have hesitated between you and Lola de Ferras? I will tell you the plain truth. When you were both comparative strangers to me, I did hesitate as to which was the more beautiful of the two, and which I liked the best—even as you, knowing two men of a different type, might wonder which you preferred; but, when I came to know my own heart and understood myself, I found that I loved you with the love that comes only once in a lifetime. Before I had time to tell you so, however, I heard that you were engaged to Lord Rhysworth; then it was too late. Dolores, let there be no mistakes; no more playing at cross-purposes. Believe me, I love no other woman but you."

The time was not far distant when every word of this interview was to come back to her with the sharpest pain, when she remembered how earnestly each word was spoken; how the very ring of truth and sincerity was in his voice.

"I know," he said, "of whom you are thinking. It is Lola de Ferras. You believe that I am hesitating between you, my beautiful queen, and her. Lola is nothing to me but a pleasant friend."

Lady Rhysworth thought of the emphasis Lola had laid on the word "mine," and felt puzzled.

"I am almost ashamed to speak as I do," he continued, "but in such a case as this there is nothing like frankness; even that friendship was more of her seeking than my giving. She is very beautiful and accomplished; she is clever beyond the generality of women; I have spent some pleasant hours with her; but she is the very last person in the world I should fall in love with or marry. Now promise me, Dolores, that there shall never, during the whole course of our lives, be any misunderstanding between us concerning Lola."

She promised; and in after years she remembered that promise in an agony of grief that was inexpressible.

"It is true I went to Beaulieu last evening," he said; "but my heart was with you all the time, Dolores, I have promised, out of respect to your dead husband and your own sorrow, not to intrude my love on you. I have waited fifteen months before I would return at all. I will wait three months longer before I try to persuade you to share your life with me. I will leave the future entirely in your hands. If you wish me to wait one year or two, I will do so to please you; but promise me that during that time I may come over to see or to write to you. My exile has been hard enough, and it was the harder because it seemed to be without hope. And now," he added, in a lighter tone, "let me see your little girl. I have brought some wonderful dolls for her."

CHAPTER XV.

What first drew Lola's attention to the fact that something unusual was passing was the significant smile on Lady Fielden's face when Sir Karl's name was mentioned. Her ladyship had given a dinner-party, limited in number, in honor of his return, and during the after-dinner chat some of the matrons present remarked how well he looked, and that it was to be hoped he would settle down now. Lola, listening, blushed and looked conscious; but there was a strange smile on Lady Fielden's face, as though she knew something, but would not speak.

"I do hope," said Mrs. Marabout, one of the most noted match-makers in the neighborhood, "that Sir Karl will marry from his own county."

And again Lola watched the quiet smile that spread over the face of her hostess as in a quiet voice, she answered—

"I do not think there can be any doubt of it. I speak from my own observation."

"I wonder if she means me?" thought Lola. "She must mean me; there cannot possibly be any one else."

She wondered if Lady Fielden would say anything to her, and she did her best to ingratiate herself with her hostess. But, although Sir Karl's name was frequently mentioned, no one seemed to think it had the least interest for her. It was evident that Lady Fielden must have had some one in her thoughts; and Lola reflected long and earnestly on the subject. It could not be Dolores; that was utterly impossible. She scouted the idea: fate could have nothing in store for her one half so cruel. But her eyes were suddenly opened; for Lady Fielden, speaking in a low tone to Mrs. Marabout, said—

There was the usual raising of eyes and uplifting of hands; but the words went like a sword through Lola's heart. It was of Dolores then that Lady Fielden was speaking, and the shadow that had hung over her life was deepening instead of passing away.

Lady Rhysworth had received an invitation to the dinner but had declined it. She did not care to go into society at present. Lola had been anxious that she should go: she was desirous that Dolores should put away the last remnants of mourning. She longed to see the old times of festivity back at Deeping Hurst. Now she felt thankful that Lady Rhysworth was not there. She would be able to speak to Sir Karl without interruption, and find out for herself how matters stood.

But Sir Karl was not in the mood for talking; some of the young people had proposed a dance, and he was one of the first to join in it. He chose Miss Fielden for his first partner: and then, seeing Lola's dark eyes following him reproachfully, he asked her to join him. But during the dance there was no opportunity for conversation. When it was over, and Lola, flushed with excitement and looking most lovely, stood fanning herself, she said to him—

"Have you been to Deeping Hurst and seen Lady Rhysworth yet, Sir Karl?"

"I have been there three times, and have been fortunate enough to see her each time," he replied.

A sudden terror seized her. But she would attach no importance to his words; she felt that if she did she should despair or die.

"Did you see the little one?" she asked presently—"Kathleen? What a lovely child she is! But what sad eyes she has! Did you notice the pathetic expression of her eyes?"

"Yes, and tried to dispel it by giving her some wonderful dolls," he answered.

"Had you thought so much of her as to bring toys purposely for her?" inquired Lola.

"Certainly I had; why not? I have thought of the little one continually since she was born."

The flush deepened. With the bitterness of death in her heart, but a careless smile on her lips, she said—"That is because you thought so much of the little one's mother, I suppose."

"That is the precise reason," he answered. "That was a shrewd guess of yours."

Some one interrupted them then; but Lola had made up her mind as to what she would do. She could not say to him. "Tell me at once whether you are really in love with Dolores, or not." She would have given much for courage to do so. She had said just as much as she dared—as it was prudent for her to say to him. She had resolved upon a plan of action.

Before this, when she had felt that she wanted a change, Dolores had pressed her to remain a week at Deeping Hurst; she would so manage that Dolores should repeat the invitation, and, once there, she could see for herself if there was any truth in this rumor.

The next morning she went over to Deeping Hurst and complained to Dolores of languor and weakness.

Lady Rhysworth interrupted her.

"Then by all means come, Lola," she said, earnestly. "Stay, now that you are here. You do not look well. Send one of the grooms with a note to madame, and let him bring what you require back with him."

"You are very kind," answered Lola, with a smile; but her heart smote her for entering that hospitable house as a spy upon its mistress. Then she kissed the fair face, wondering a little at the increased beauty and brightness of it. Was it Sir Karl that had brought that delicate flush there and that radiant expression?

She could not let the matter rest. When she had sent off her note and was sitting with Lady Rhysworth in the morning-room, she said:

"Sir Karl was at Lady Fielden's dinner-party last evening. It was given in honor of his return. I am sorry you were not there. It was very enjoyable. Sir Karl told me that he had been to see you several times—three times, I think he said."

"He seems to be very fond of your little one. That surprised me; I should hardly have imagined him to be a man fond of children. I suppose it is because Kathleen belongs to you."

"Most likely," was the laughing answer.

Lady Rhysworth's heart was at rest now. What Sir Karl had told her had reassured her. No matter what Lola said or what impression she tried to convey to her, nothing would destroy her faith in Sir Karl again.

"I should not be surprised," she added, "at his riding over this morning. He spoke of it; but I am not sure if he decided to do so or not."

It would have been amusing, had it not been so pitiful, to see how often Lola made some pretext for going to her room, now to fasten an amber rose in her hair, now to put one in the bodice of her morning-dress.

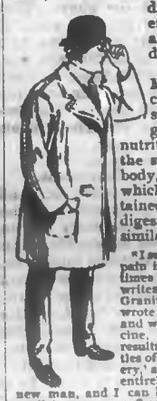
A Total Eclipse.

Any man can produce a total eclipse of the sun, so far as he himself is concerned, by holding a dollar close to his eye. The total eclipse of health is often produced in much the same way, by letting the dollar shut out from view all other things and interests.

A great many people pay for wealth with health and admit at last that they have made a poor bargain. In the chase of the dollar people are too eager to take time to eat regularly or choose proper food, the stomach becomes disordered or diseased, the food eaten ceases to nourish, and physical breakdown comes.



Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition and so enables the strengthening of the body, in the only way by which strength can be obtained, by food properly digested and perfectly assimilated.

"I suffered for four years with pain in my stomach so that at times I couldn't work nor eat," writes Mr. Frank Smith, of Granite, Chaffee Co., Colo. "I wrote to you about my sickness and was told to use your medicine, which I did with good results. I only used four bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and must say that I am entirely cured, and feel like a new man, and I can highly recommend your medicine to any sufferer."

When I arose in the morning I would feel a little better, but as soon as I started to work my heart would start fluttering, my head would become dizzy, faint weak spells would come over me and it seemed as if black objects were floating before my eyes. NEW HATS AND FRILLS.

White Silk and Satin Shapes—The New Capes.

Many of the new hats are of the picture order, but have flat crowns, and are trimmed tolerably low with an osprey or aigret in front.

The new shapes are shown in silk or satin incrusted with ivory motifs or ecru lace and bound with velvet. Two large choux of satin or two feather pompons are usually placed in front, but feathers droop on the sides of some and large velvet lilies or orchids are wreathed on others.

There are some figures to whom the new capes or pelerines are becoming, but for the average woman they are in nowise desirable, as they add to the width and detract from the height. Lace will be much used on spring gowns, and the newest motifs and applique designs show a combination of guipure passementerie and embroidery, or chine or pompadour medallions sometimes take the place of the embroidery.

Very smart arrangements of jet intermingled with black chiffon characterize the black lace gowns. Pretty fichus of black chiffon are trimmed with narrow black velvet bows, and these have tiny paste buckles in the center of each bow.

Nun's veiling is a material very much in fashion just now, especially in the paler shades.

What Holds the Novel.

Frank Norris, author of "The Octopus" and "The Pit," was a most virile writer and a man of decided opinions. He was wont to say of the great factors in molding public opinion that "the pulpit speaks but once a week, the press is read with lightning haste and the morning news is waste paper by noon; but the novel goes in the home to stay."

This opinion was aired by Mr. Norris in the lobby of a hotel in a small town in Illinois. Among those present was a country editor, who was prompted to remark that the novelist's views reminded him of his dog Wolf. Wolf persisted in running away from home, killing chickens and annoying children in the community. At last a method was adopted by which the dog was confined to his own homestead.

"Chained him, eh?" was the thought voiced by several of the company.

"Yes, sir," declared the editor. "And if your modern novel goes into the home to stay let Wolf remind you that it's on account of the binding."

New York, May 11th, 11.50 a. m. — There is a rumor that gold shipment may be made by to-morrow's steamer to Paris. Rates are at the gold point and there is a small profit now to be figured out as gold bills can be sold at the current quotations and Paris exchange at London covered simultaneously at the present rate. Demand sterling here 482.05 to 10. Paris exchange on London is 25 francs, 17 1-2 centimes.

M. & M.

There is some buying of September wheat around 70 1-4.

From what we hear we believe there will be some gold shipments to-morrow. Two houses figuring on shipping and it is believed that over a million may go out. Net earnings on U.S. steel for March $9,912,000. This is 413,000 greater than the estimate. Earnings for April have not yet been ascertained nor will the officer make any estimate of them but people well posted believe that they will be over $12,000,000.

M. & M.

Messrs. W. F. Dever & Co., Stock Brokers, Toronto, write as follows:—

Liverpool wheat unchanged. Corn quiet.

Harrison taking all A.C.P. offered.

Chicago.—Government report probably show condition several points lower than one month ago and there is no doubt an immense short interest is in September wheat.

Geo. Phillips the corn king says "I feel that the country's very prosperous condition warrants 80c wheat and I am firmly of the opinion on that every one who invests in September wheat around 70c need never take a loss.

May 11th.—N.Y., R.I. no official announcement of the Rock Island deal has yet been made. From the facts as they are permitted to percolate through unofficial channels it would appear that no new issue of its common stock is necessary to pay for Frisco com. stock as R.I. has in its treasury nearly $27,000,000 of com., being the balance of the 90 millions authorized. Special stress is placed on the statement that the R.I. com. which will be given in part payment for Frisco com. will be pooled and is therefore not likely to come upon the market for some time.

New York, May 11th.—The foregoing reports from the winter wheat section last week to the effect that the recent cold spell had done comparatively little damage did much to reassure Wall Street and the prospects are good for a large if not a record breaking crop of wheat this year. There was a time and not so long ago when the public was inclined to believe as Jay Gould did that iron was the barometer of trade, and as the condition of that industrial varied shaped their own affairs accordingly; in more recent years, however, sentiment in this regard has changed considerably, and while to a certain extent iron trade conditions are recognized as mirroring the status of commerce the crops are now looked upon as the actual foundation of the prosperity of the United States.

The bank statement on Saturday shattered some of Wall Street's hopes and as on pretty much all former occasions of late it was the item of loans that was the principal cause of the trouble. It had been almost the general belief that chiefly on account of the extremely dull condition of the stock market during last week, loans would reflect a contraction on almost a moderate expansion. In this however the financial and speculative community reconed without the foreign exchange operations of the week which partly because of American subscriptions to the new transvaal loan more particularly on account of the repayments by local bankers of maturing indebtedness to Germany.

BLANCHE AGAIN.

Young Lady Named Roial Caused a Sensation.

Toronto Globe.

There was much alarm among the passengers on a Yonge street car about two o'clock yesterday afternoon, over the statement of Blanche Roial, a young friendless woman, who declared she had poisoned herself. The girl drew from her pocket a bottle half-full of laudanum, and then fell over in a faint on the floor. The car was stopped and the young woman was carried into Snider's arcade drug store by Policemen Scott, Kenny and Detective Davis. From there she was taken in the ambulance to the Emergency Hospital, where the usual treatment in the case of poisoning was administered. After working with her for half an hour the doctors came to the conclusion that she was suffering from hysteria. The girl was detained over night, and will be handed over to the care of Mrs. Bellamy, of 639 Queen street east.

SCRATCH TOURNAMENT.

The final in the above tournament was played on Saturday afternoon between Mr. Miles Hamilton and Mr. J. Laurence. The first part of the game was very closely contested, and very good golf was played, Mr. Laurence doing the round in 39, and Mr. Hamilton only a few points behind. In the second round Mr. Laurence gradually pulled ahead, eventually leading his opponent 4 up and 3 to play. The prize therefore falls to Mr. Laurence. It might be mentioned that Mr. Laurence has not been defeated during the competition.

LAWN BOWLING.

The following extract, which it is thought will be of interest to all lawn bowlers, is taken from the Toronto News:

There is both health and humanization in bowling, health in the outdoor exercise, and humanization in the congenial companionship which it affords. For many men the close confinement and the hard business application of the winter months physical weariness and mental irritability. We freshen again with the tonic of the spring air, and renew our youth with the growth of spring verdure, the blossoming of the flowers and the radiant dressing of the fields for the time of summer. But if we would receive the healing of nature we must seek her presence and seek her with a serene temper and a careless mind. If we but walk out into the fields in deliberate pursuit of exercise we are likely to go with our minds full of the cares and worries of business. If we but pass along the shaded streets in the usual routine of life we never get far from our daily concerns, and never quite escape from the serious problems of living. But on the Bowling Green, in the clear air and under the open skies, all our cares and worries take flight. We forget the down town office, the account at the bank, the condition of the stock market, and all the other grave and insistent obligations which mortals must meet and carry, and give our whole mind and heart to the bowls and the jack.

We could not do otherwise if we would. While the sport gives a serene contentment, it yet makes an imperative demand upon its votaries, and forbids all serious and vexing things to obtrude. Lord Houghton, in one of his poems, speaks of the men of old as blending their souls' sublimest needs with tasks of every day, and as going about their gravest deeds like noble boys at play. It is in some such spirit as this that a bowler pursues his cherished spot, and he is blessed in the thought that his playtime on the green may extend to three score years and ten, and beyond.

It is true that the restless and the noisy element of his kind gibe at his game as slow and gentle, but he minds not at all. A good many bowlers have both girth and weight, and hence in their eyes the qualities which are made its reproach, are really its virtues. They know that on the green they get health, and friends, serenity of mind and length of days, and what else has life worth the living? Hence they will be found on the green as of yore, eager as ever to lie beside the jack, exultant in a bowl well played, a shot well made, a guard well placed, modest in victory, serene in defeat, careless sometimes of their dignity, even boisterous now and then, and regardless of the golfer who passes by on the other side with just a suggestion of superiority in his air and tread.

Thrift.

Every man who saves money is called mean and stingy by the loafers on the street corners and pointed out with reproach by the men who idle away their time. In order to get ahead a man must save, must spend less than he makes, and, above all things, he must work. Don't be ashamed of having any one say that you are "close." Attend to your own business, and you are all right. The men who criticise the thrifty really pay them a big compliment. It is the tribute sloth pays industry.

Idle Talks.

Industry is the foundation of everything worthy, yet there are a great many idle people. An idle man or woman is a bad advertisement for any community. Investigation will reveal that it is the idle people who engage in bad scrapes.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS.

They Are Quite Willing That Their Sisters-in-Law and Their Aunts Should Represent Royalty.

King Edward's three daughters seem to be devoid of personal ambition, and to be quite willing that their sister-in-law and their aunts Helena, Louise and Beatrice should represent royalty in their stead. So far from profiting by the rise in rank which their father's accession gained them, the Duchess of Fife and her sisters prefer to stay away from functions where they would precede Queen Victoria's daughters; so it is not often that these illustrious ladies meet in full state array. One Parliament opening and the Coronation have seemed about enough for them.

Respecting rumors which now and then circulate as to the title of Princess Royal being assumed by the Duchess of Fife, and the young Ladies Duff becoming Highnesses, the fact remains that King Edward has reigned more than two years without bestowing extra dignities on his eldest daughter and Fife grandchildren. It is well known that the royal duchess prefers a simple, quiet life and is indifferent to the advantages of her high birth.

As to her daughters, though they might well have been entitled princesses had their original place in the successional list been maintained, it is hardly worth while to disturb the existing order of things at this time of day, when their uncle George can count his four sons and one daughter, all standing nearer the throne than the Lady Alexandra Duff, who was once described as a possible Queen of England.

It is scarcely likely that the Duke of Fife's daughters will make royal matches, and in all probability they will become British peeresses, and have a far more pleasant life then if they turned into German princesses, and had to follow a foreign spouse to his own country.—Modern Society.

Pleased the Monkeys.

An amusing story is told of Lady Barker's first dinner party at Simla, India. Desirous of having a pretty table, Lady Barker had herself expended much care in decorating it. She had just received from Europe certain dainty china figures and ornamental dishes, and had arranged a tempting show of sweetmeats, flowers, and fruit. When dressing time came Lady Barker charged her servants to be on the watch and take care of everything; but something of interest occurred outside and every servant left the room, quite forgetting to close an open window.

Before this window was a big tree on which sat several monkeys, which had watched the preparations for dinner with much interest.

A half hour later the hostess appeared, ready to receive her guests. Just to be sure that everything was right, she gave a glance into the dining-room. There she beheld a busy company of monkeys hard at work, grinning and jabbering, their cheeks and arms crammed with expensive sweetmeats, while the table presented a scene of frightful devastation—broken glass and china, fair linen soiled, everything tossed about in hopeless confusion. From this wreck she had to turn aside and welcome her guests with as much ease of manner as possible. Dinner, of course, had to be deferred until order could be restored.—London Chronicle.

Real Robinson Crusoe.

Robinson Crusoe himself never really existed, but the author of the book, Daniel Defoe, got the idea for his story from the experiences of a Scottish sailor named Alexander Selkirk, who lived from about 1676 to 1726.

The sailor having quarreled with his captain was left on the island of Juan Fernandez, off the coast of Chile, in the year 1704, with only his gun and ammunition and a few other necessary articles. There he lived for over four years, subsisting on game, and making his own clothes out of the skins of goats.

He was afterward rescued and became an officer in the British navy.

Defoe located his Robinson Crusoe's island off the eastern coast of South America in the tropics, and he made up many new experiences for his hero that had never happened to Selkirk.

But people on the Island of Juan Fernandez seem to think that Robinson Crusoe actually lived there, and they show visitors "Crusoe's Cave," "Crusoe's Beach," where the raft landed, and "Crusoe's Lookout," from which he spied the cannibals.

Mr. Bax-Ironside.

Mr. Bax-Ironside, who was received with unusual cordiality by President Castro on assuming his new post as British Minister at Caracas, has had a wide experience for the twenty years he has been in the diplomatic service. He has held various positions in Copenhagen, Stockholm, Constantinople, Vienna, Teheran, Pekin and Washington, and for a time had charge of the Legation in Central America, in which he had to deal with the whole group of Spanish-American republics along the isthmus. This term in Guatemala brought him knowledge that should be of great value to him now in Caracas. The Chronicle thinks, and as he has been sent there under special conditions, President Castro may find it advisable to walk warily in his sight.

A Coiffure That Failed.

Several smart English women recently made an attempt to revive the long curls hanging on the shoulders, which date from the days when Queen Alexandra—then "the sea King's daughter"—made her state entry into London. Lady Warwick, Lady Essex, and Lady Dudley adopted this mode, and appeared at the coronation with long curls nestling on their necks. But even the beauty of these ladies had not sufficed to launch a coiffure of the sentimental '60s.

The Vultures.

The question is mooted whether the vulture knows of its quarry by sight or smell. How does it communicate the news of a feast to its fellows? A tiger had been killed.

Colonel Ramsay ordered the carcass of the skinned tiger to be dragged out from under the thick mango trees into the open. Taking out his watch, he asked us to make a guess as to how long the vultures would take to clean the flesh off the bones. Some one said half an hour. As there was not a vulture in sight, this seemed even betting, but Colonel Ramsay gave them ten minutes, which proved to be correct. There was one vulture at first seen soaring round and round very high up in the cloudless sky. He closed his wings and dropped on to the carcass with a swoop. In two minutes the sky was full of vultures, all concentrating from every side on the spot, and arriving with all the impetus their drop from a great height gave them as fast as it takes to tell the story. Then there commenced a frightful scene of literal carnage, every one tearing with sharp, hooked bill at the entrails first, then at the flesh, all fighting for room to get a piece and tumbling over one another with frantic haste.—"The Forests of Upper India and Their Inhabitants," by T. W. Webber.

Short and Long Courtships.

Young ladies in Russia are not at all averse to long engagements and use all sorts of artifices to stave off the wedding day as long as possible, while in Siam, where old maids are unknown, as all girls marry, the recognized length of an engagement is one month. If an engaged man in the Argentine Republic dallies beyond a reasonable time in leading his fiancee to the altar, he is heavily fined, and if a resident of the republic should fail to marry he is taxed until he reaches the age of eighty. In no country in the world are courtships so abnormally long as in Bohemia, where engagements commonly last from fifteen to twenty years. In fact, there recently died at the age of ninety-nine an old man who had been courting for seventy-five years and who was married on his deathbed.

THE DOMINION REDISTRIBUTION.

The Basis Arrived at by the Parliamentary Committee.

THE UNIT PRINCIPLE HOLDS.

Algoma Gains Two Members, and Kent, Brant and Toronto One Each—No Changes of Counties in Quebec—In Nova Scotia Victoria Disappears, and in New Brunswick Albert.

Ottawa, May 12.—The committee for the redistribution of the constituencies had their first real plunge into the subject yesterday morning. The readjustment of the Ontario seats was under discussion, and from the best information obtainable it was determined to proceed on the following lines:— The unit of population is to be 25,000. All counties under that unit and up to a unit and a half are entitled to one member. Counties over a unit and a half and up to two units and a half are to be given two members. Counties over two and a half units will be accorded three members. The total representation of Ontario will be eight-six members. Under the redistribution two new members must be given to new Ontario, and the addition of the suburban population to Toronto will mean another member for that city. Including the six which the Province must lose by its failure to increase in the necessary proportion of population, this makes nine members to some of old Ontario's representation. Proceeding on the lines laid down by the committee, the numerical representation of the constituencies of Ontario would be as follows:

The Changes Inevitable.

Five members—Toronto.

Four members—Middlesex, including London.

Three members—Simcoe, York, Grey, Algoma, Wentworth (including Hamilton), Huron, Carleton (including Ottawa), Leeds and Grenville, Durham and Northumberland.

Two members—Essex, Kent, Elgin, Lambton, Bruce, Wellington, Perth, Lenark, Renfrew, Frontenac (including Kingston), Hastings, Peterboro', Waterloo, Oxford, Brant, Ontario.

Ridings That Disappear.

The ridings of Bothwell, Brockville, Cardwell and West Ontario disappear. Dufferin takes the place of Cardwell, and Lennox and Addington are united. Muskoka and Parry Sound become separate constituencies. Algoma gains two new members, and Kent, Toronto and Brant one each. On the other hand, the ridings of Norfolk, Middlesex, Bruce, Wellington, Hastings, Durham (with Northumberland), lose one each.

With respect to the other Provinces, there will be no change of counties in Quebec, but all the parochial and township alterations made at the last gerrymander are remedied and original county limits re-established.

In Nova Scotia Victoria will be merged in Cape Breton, and Pictou is to lose a member. In Prince Edward Island representation will be in accordance with county limits. In New Brunswick Albert will be merged into King's. The western constituencies have apparently not yet been drawn up.

THE COMMONS.

After a Short Session the House Adjourned Out of Respect to the Late Mr. Justice Mills.

Ottawa, May 12.—The House sat only until 6 o'clock yesterday, adjourning out of respect to the memory of Justice Mills, and to allow members to attend his funeral.

Good progress was made with general business on the order paper. Sir Wilfrid, replying to Mr. Morin, said that, before accepting the Ross rifle, the Government submitted it to experts.

Mr. Grant moved for the papers relating to lowering or regulating of the waters of Lake Simcoe or Lake Couchiching, explaining that lands in Townships of Mara, Rama and Morrison were damaged by floods, occasioned by overflow from these lakes. Col. Hughes did not want any measure for lowering the lakes, which would interfere with the Trent Valley Canal.

Mr. Sutherland thought the matter was under Provincial control, but would enquire into it carefully.

Mr. Brock's bill for the prevention of cruelty to animals was held over while the promoter consults with the Department of Justice.

Mr. Demers moved the second reading of the bill to indemnify those who suffer damage by fire from railways. This bill arises out of the case of Roy v. C.P.R. Roy had his property destroyed by fire kindled by sparks from a C.P.R. engine. He sued for damages, and was successful in all the Quebec courts, but was defeated on appeal to the Privy Council. The civil law of Quebec is supposed to be specially favorable to claimants of this kind, and Mr. Demers wants the law applied to the whole Dominion, so that railways would be liable for damages in all cases.

The Minister of Justice doubted whether the civil law of Quebec was so sweeping, but suggested that the matter be referred to the Railway Committee, which was done.

Mr. Putter, in moving the second reading of a bill to extend the principle of conciliation to labor troubles, expressed the opinion that workingmen were in many cases actual sufferers from prosperity of the country, as prices of living increased faster than wages, and workmen were often obliged to strike in order to rise to their former level of purchasing power.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier moved the adjournment of the House out of respect to Mr. Justice Mills, and Mr. Borden seconded the motion. No speeches were made, but both leaders referred briefly to the prominent and honorable position occupied by Mr. Mills.

LATE HON. DAVID MILLS.

"More Conscientious and Upright Judge the Country Never Had"—Services at Late Jurist's Ottawa House.

Ottawa, May 12.—The death of Mr. Justice Mills was recalled three times yesterday. In the morning, Chief Justice Taschereau made an address, which in its fine and discriminating praise and felicitous language reminded the listeners of the best speeches of Laurier. Its chief interest of course lay in its appreciation of Mills as a judge. A more conscientious and upright judge the country never had, he said.

Service was conducted at the house at 8 o'clock last evening, by Rev. A. A. Cameron, after which the body was conveyed to the Union Station, for transportation to Ridgetown. The Government car "Montreal," was placed at the service of Mrs. Mills for the purpose. At Toronto the Grand Trunk Railway took charge of the body, and from London it was transported on the Michigan Central to Ridgetown. From there the final journey to the cemetery will be made by road on Wednesday morning. Rev. Mr. Walker will conduct the burial service at the grave side. A floral wreath from the judges of the Supreme Court stood at the head of the coffin, and at the foot reposed a floral anchor, sent by the Press Gallery.

In the House of Commons it was generally expected that Laurier and Borden would make addresses of some length, but at some point the arrangements miscarried. It was apparently intended that routine business should be carried on until about half an hour before 6 o'clock, but when 6 o'clock came, there was only time for the briefest possible reference to the man who had played so large a part in public affairs for a third of a century.

At 8 o'clock last night there was a gathering at the house on Concession street. The choir of the church sang one of Mr. Mills' favorite hymns, "I am Kneeling at the Threshold." Mr. Cameron, in his address, referred to Mr. Mills' conscientious discharge of duty, to his sincere Christianity and his careful study of the Scriptures.

The pall-bearers were: Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Chief Justice Taschereau, Hon. William Paterson, Charles Fitzpatrick, Mr. Justice Sedgwick and Sheriff Sweetland.

Nearly all the ministers were present, with Speaker Power of the Senate and Speaker Brodeur of the Commons. After the service, the coffin was conveyed to train for the West.

Many messages were received yesterday.

Miss Mills, daughter of the deceased judge, was on her way to Mexico, but was intercepted at Chicago by a telegram announcing her father's death. She arrived here yesterday. The other children are Mr. David Mills, Port Arthur; Mr. Blake Mills, barrister, Ridgetown; Mrs. Fraser of Mapimi, Mexico, and Mrs. Watts of Chihuahua, Mexico.

Fully 500 were present at the funeral, including a large representation of the members of the House of Commons, Senate, Supreme Court judges, and officials, leading members and officials of the First Baptist Church, of which deceased was a member, and many other prominent citizens of Ottawa, and the members of the press gallery.

THE STRIKE SETTLED.

Montreal, May 12.—The strike of longshoremen, which has been in operation at the port of Montreal since the opening of navigation, and which was having disastrous results on the business interests of the country, was favorably settled yesterday, and to-day the port will again be the scene of its usual activity. The strike has been ended on lines which Sir William Mulock tried to arrange during his visit to Montreal last Friday. Before returning to Ottawa the Minister of Labor declared that the shipping men had it in their power to end the strike by allowing the men to wear union buttons and agreeing to the abolition of the labor bureau, and that in refusing to do this they were assuming a grave responsibility. The militia were relieved from duty on the wharves yesterday afternoon, and were thanked by Col. Gordon, C.O., for their efficient service during the strike.

To Sir Thomas Shaughnessy belongs in a great measure the credit of finally bringing the strike to an end. Mr. Robert Bickerdike and Mr. Prefontaine also did good service.

Train Service Much Limited.

Melbourne, Victoria, May 12.—The train service, owing to the railroad strike, is most limited, and the business is hampered. The sailings of the Country and Ch[illegible] have been postponed, [illegible] principal timber yards are closed.

London Cigar Makers Strike.

London, Ont., May 12.—Yesterday morning the local Cigar Makers' Union went out on strike, that is those members of it who are employed in factories where the employers refused to pay the scale of prices included in the fixed scale which has been introduced. Over 100 hands and five factories are affected.

1,000 Bridge Men Strike.

Chicago, May 12.—One thousand men employed at the Lessig Bridge and Iron Works, a branch of the American Bridge Company, struck yesterday for recognition of the union. Two hundred electrical workers in eight concerns also struck for increased wages.

HIS OPINION OF CANADA.

Andrew Carnegie Thinks the Dominion Has No Future Except as Part of the United States.

Montreal, May 12.—(Star cable.)—London, May 11.—Andrew Carnegie pours vitriol upon Canada in an interview with The Ironmongers' Journal in connection with the presidency of the Iron and Steel Institute. When asked whether Canada, grown populous by immigration, spiritually British, but materially American, might not bring about a union of England with America, Carnegie replied: "Certainly not. Canada has no future except as a part of the States. Her native population increases more slowly than that of Scotland. She only added 636,000 to her population in ten years, and of these 440,000 came from abroad. Canada, standing alone, can never become a great industrial nation. The steel industry is a figment and Cape Breton a mirage. Nothing there need ever trouble the United States. In no conceivable circumstances can your colonies ever have a population approaching that of the States, and your colonial Empire, what is it but politicians' catchword.

A well known Anglo-Canadian after reading the interview exclaimed: "Don't fancy Canadians will accept another cent of this man's money."

Pioneer Canadian Editor Dead.

PAYING MATERIAL FROM GARBAGE.

English Cities Also Make Artificial Stone From Crematory Clinkers.

ONE CITY SELLS OYSTERS.

Another has an Hotel at its Market—Features of Municipal Socialism

Washington, May 9.—Jas. Boyle, consul at Liverpool, reports as follows on "Municipal Socialism in Great Britain:"

Several towns such as Doncaster, Chester and Lincoln, are the owners of race courses, from which they derive a considerable income—sufficient in the case of the first-named town, to enable the corporation to do away with the borough rate; but probably if other towns were to attempt to follow their example, the result would be disastrous.

FROM HEALTH RESORTS.

Health and pleasure resorts may and do profitably invest money in schemes which will attract the visitor and pleasure seeker. Thus, the corporation of Bath owns the hot springs, nearly all the cold springs, the famous Roman baths and the pump rooms, and has recently extended the grand pump room with a Roman promenade at a cost of $150,000; Bournemouth owns the winter gardens and golf links, and provides an excellent orchestra of more than local fame; Harrogate draws a large revenue as proprietor of the Royal baths, and springs, the winter garden and theatre, and the royal spa concert rooms and gardens; Leamington owns its celebrated baths and pump room, which are patronised by thousands who frequent this charming town every year; Southport draws about $17,500 a year from pleasure boats on the lakes in the marine parks, and considerable receipts from such amusements on the beach as a switchback railway, bicycle railways, tobogganing and the "aerial flight," and Brighton is the owner of the royal pavilion and the local aquarium.

SEWAGE FARM REVENUE.

Many towns engage in farming in connection with their sewage farms, with profitable results. Nottingham has a large sewage farm some miles out of the town which yields from the annual sale of live stock about $30,000, and from butter and milk about $12,500. Wolverhampton draws an income of about $32,500 yearly from its sewage farm, which practically covers the expense of its maintenance; and Birmingham sells from its sewage farm stock, wool, crops and milk to the value of over $125,000 a year.

The corporation of Colchester owns the famous Colne oyster fishery, from which some 3,000,000 oysters are taken every season to delight the palates of epicures. Bradford has an hotel in connection with the public market, under the direct control of the corporation, and Plymouth owns the Royal Hotel and the adjoining theatre.

Birkenhead, in Cheshire, opposite Liverpool on the Mersey River, is the owner of the ferry rights over the Mersey to Liverpool, and maintains a fleet of ten steamers, the profits from which relieve the rates to the extent of about $50,000 annually.

York owns the Foss Canal and also a fleet of steam tugs for the towage of vessels between Hull and York. Manchester is the principal shareholder in the Manchester ship canal, having invested $25,000,000 in that great undertaking.

CREMATORIES PRODUCE PAVEMENTS

The corporation of Bradford has erected a "conditioning house" for the testing of wool, yarn and cloth, fitted up with the best machinery for the testing of woollen goods, the income from which is more than sufficient to meet the expenditure; a plant has been laid down for the manufacture of paving slabs from the clinker produced by the furnaces of the refuse destructors, which mixed with cement and faced with granite clippings, forms an excellent material for this purpose; and a large quantity of valuable fish manure is made from fish refuse received at the depot.

Liverpool, like Bradford, makes an artificial stone from the clinker produced by the furnaces of the destructors, which is being used in the construction of model dwellings for the working classes. Leicester also utilizes its clinker in the manufacture of paving slabs, and maintains three sewage farms, which yield an income of about $110,000 annually.

PROFITS IN MARKETS.

No fewer than 228 towns own public market places and halls within their boundaries, producing an aggregate annual income of $2,700,000 and a net profit in relief of taxes of $418,910. Liverpool's markets bring in an average yearly income of $160,095, and, when all outgoings have been paid, there remains a sum of $72,860 to be applied in aid of the taxpayer's burdens. Manchester owns 15 markets, which contribute an annual average sum of $75,000 in aid of rates. The ratepayers of Nottingham, Leicester, and Blackburn benefit in each town to the extent of $20,000 annually from their market places, while the markets of Norwich yield $15,850, of Derby $13,730, of Oldham $13,045, of Warrington $12,000, of Bolton $11,815, of Wolverhampton $10,995, and of Swansea $10,110 toward the rates, not to mention many others below $10,100.

STREET RAILWAYS.

Regarding street railways, we may take Liverpool as a type of many others. In 1897, the last year of the old company's management, the number of passengers carried was 38,409,084, the receipts to $2,341,915, and the mileage was 6,013,162 miles. In 1901, under the management of the corporation, the passengers had increased to 101,108,710, the receipts to $2,341,915, and the mileage to 10,970,063. After providing for interest, sinking fund, depreciation, and all working expenses, the sum of $88,035 was transferred in aid of the rates for the year 1901. In the following year the sum thus transferred was $125,825. The Leeds tramways, which were taken over by the City Council in 1884, have for the last four years contributed an annual average sum of $204,380 in relief of rates, and the Hull tramways yield about $115,000 annually for the same purpose. The net annual profits earned by the tramways owned by corporations, and available for relief of taxation, are considerably over $500,000, and are increasing with great rapidity.

IN ELECTRICITY.

The supply of electricity is a department of municipal enterprise which, in some towns, owing to many costly experiments, has not yet reached a paying stage, but in others a considerable profit is being made. Liverpool last year was able to make a contribution to the general rate of $60,145 from this department; and Manchester showed a net profit for the year ending March 31, 1902, of $38,175. Eight other English towns make an annual net profit, after paying interest and sinking fund, of over $5,000—namely, Leeds, $18,365; Nottingham, $18,125; Sheffield, $16,255; Bolton, $10,330; Southport, $7,730; Leicester, $7,090; Lancaster, $5,215; and Chester, $5,085. These examples would seem to show that, except where special and temporary circumstances exist, it is quite possible to make this department of municipal enterprise as profitable as any other.

WATER AND GAS.

One hundred and ninety-three towns have their own water supply, yielding an annual average net profit of $450,640. This does not seem a large return on a capital of $250,000; but it should be stated that the gross yearly profits are over $10,000,000, out of which an average sum of $7,600,820 is paid as interest on borrowed capital and $1,975,990 toward repayment of principal, both of which sums would go to swell the dividends of joint stock companies if the supplies were in their hands. To obtain a higher rate of profit on the water supply would necessitate a curtailment of the quantity supplied, which obviously would not be conducive to the health and cleanliness of the inhabitants.

Gas is a much more profitable commodity than water, as the 99 towns that own gas works make an average net profit yearly of $1,974,125 in all. The rates of these towns are thus relieved to a very considerable extent, the Manchester gas works contributing no less than $250,000 to this object; Salford, $121,625; Nottingham, $120,900; Birmingham, $114,065; Leicester, $108,725; and Bolton, $104,660.

Malt Breakfast Food

Is the Most Delicate, Delicious and Nutritious of Cereal Foods.

One trial of Malt Breakfast Food will make it your first and permanent morning dish, and you will relish it as fully as the tens of thousands who are now using it. Malt Breakfast Food is not insipid or flat. It is a delicate, delicious and concentrated food, popular with the nobility and those in humbler circumstances; is a food that bestows a vigorous health and clear brain. Malt Breakfast Food is named as an economical cereal; one package will produce as many meals as three packages of the common fad foods. Do not accept any other brand of cereal food when you ask for Malt Breakfast Food. All progressive grocers sell it.

PEAT MAY BECOME ONTARIO'S FUEL.

It can be Supplied now Equal to Anthracite at $4.50 per Ton.

The Bureau of Mines has issued a bulletin on peat fuel, prepared under the direction of Mr. T. W. Gibson, director, and Mr. W. H. H. Carter. The bulletin says: "It will be surprising if the citizens of Ontario are not soon given their choice between compressed peat fuel and coal instead of, at present, being confined entirely to the latter."

The data upon which this prediction is made includes an estimate that peat briquettes can be made here at an actual cost of $1 a ton, and have actually been sold for two successive seasons at $3 a ton. The heat value of peat is placed at two-thirds that of coal, so that peat at $3 a ton is equivalent to anthracite coal at $4.50 a ton.

The bulletin refers to the difficulties that the experimenters have had to contend with, and reports that many of them have vanished, adding that the question now seems to be how to produce the best possible fuel at the least possible cost, rather than how to produce a good fuel at a fairly low cost.

Peat bogs are too numerous in old Ontario to be enumerated, while in New Ontario, for a radius of 50 miles around James' Bay, the bulletin says, there are thousands of square miles of peat muskeg, which will in time probably play an important part in the economic development of the Province.

Anthracite coal	$4,406,231
Bituminous	5,357,373
Wood	4,350,000
Total	$14,113,604

TO WALK 1,000 MILES IN TWENTY DAYS.

The vegetarian pedestrian, Mr. George H. Allen, who is now living at the Socialist colony at Whiteway, about eight miles from Stroud, is about to undertake the feat of walking 1,000 miles in twenty days.

When a London Express representative visited the colony yesterday to inquire into Allen's mode of training and diet, he found that the vegetarian walker had gone to Leicester on a visit to his wife and two children and that a letter received at the colony that morning, stated that, as a result of getting his right hand jammed in a door at Birmingham, he would probably lose one of two injured fingers. This, however, will not deter him from proceeding with his training.

The colonists readily gave all information respecting Allen's mode of life. Although the morning was raw and cold they walked bareheaded, and clad only in shirt and trousers, across their plot of ground, merrily chatting of the advantages of their primitive style of life. All appeared in robust health, and quite happy in this isolated spot on the Cotswolds.

Allen is about thirty-five years of age, 5 feet 5 inches in height and weighs ten stone. He joined the colony last August and in November began to erect a wooden house on the land. This is now nearing completion, and Allen inteds to bring his family there shortly.

He proposed at first to walk from Land's End to John O'Groat's, as part of his 1,000 miles course, but he has now decided to take a route that will enable him to visit all the large centres of population, where he will lecture each evening on the advantages of a simpler method of living.

He is a vigourous man, and contends that his primitive habits at the colony have strengthened his constitution. He has gained considerably in muscle since his residence at Whiteway.

Allen is generally astir at six o'clock in the morning, and spends until ten o'clock in digging on the land. He then takes a simple meal, consisting of bread—made either by himself or by a friend named Sinclair, who lives with him—with butter made from peanuts. He often drinks only water, but occasionally this is varied by the use of coffee or cocoa.

He resumes the digging until four or five o'clock in the afternoon, when he partakes of his second and last meal for the day. This consists solely of garden produce, such as peas, parsnips, carrots, etc., with water to drink.

Often he sits up writing until two o'clock in the morning, but this never causes him to vary his early rising for work on the land.

GREATLY ALARMED.

By a Persistent Cough, but Permanently Cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Mr. H. P. Burbage, a student at law in Greenville, S. C., has been troubled for four or five years with a continuous cough, which he says "greatly alarmed me, causing me to fear that I was in the first stages of consumption." Mr. Burbage, having seen Chamberlain's Cough Remedy advertised, concluded to try it. "I soon felt a remarkable change and after using two bottles of the 25 cent kind was permanently cured. Sold by all druggists.

BASS AND TROUT.

Black bass are being exposed for sale in some of the fish stores of Toronto at the present time, although the season for taking these fish does not open until June 15th. Dealers in fish ought to know what kind of fish they are handling, and they ought to know the law. If they do not know it they should be brought to book in such a way that they will not forget it. The black bass is a drawing card in Ontario causing thousands of dollars to be spent in out of the way places each summer by tourists from far and near who need a rest and love a bit of good fishing. It is therefore extremely bad business to allow black bass to be caught out of season, for by such poaching they are prevented from hatching their young.

Speckled trout are also exposed for sale in large numbers, which is lawful at present, although one wonders where they all come from, considering the restrictions put upon the number an an angler may legally catch in one day. No doubt many of them come from private trout preserves. However there are trout on sale that are no bigger than sardines, and those who cultivate fish in trout ponds are not likely to allow such baby trout to be slaughtered, so that they probably come from public streams which are being "fished dry." It is a pity that brooks should be robbed of these tiny speckled fellows.

DR. PITCHER'S Backache-Kidney TABLETS

CHOCOLATE COATED - SMALL & EASY TO TAKE

MOST of women's ailments, such as backaches, sideaches, headaches, worn, weary, depressed feelings, are the result of the failure of the kidneys to properly purify the blood. Dr. Pitcher's Tablets aid the kidneys in their work of blood purifying—banish every pain and ache—make women rejoice in health and strength restored.

Mrs. A. Charron, Lighthouse Street, Goderich, Ont., relates her experience: For some time I suffered with a good deal of backache and kidney trouble, and with a severe headache which continued to grow worse. I heard of the many cures Dr. Pitcher's Backache-Kidney Tablets were making, and determined to try them. They acted splendidly, stopping the backache and headache and curing the kidney complaint.

The price of the Tablets is 50c. a bottle, or 3 for $1.25, at druggists or by mail. THE DR. ZINA PITCHER CO., Toronto.

THE ONTARIO HOUSE

Members Did a Good Day's Work in the Assembly.

ON VOTING BY MACHINERY.

Mr. Taylor's County Councils Bill Read a Second Time — Not a Government Measure, But the Premier Expresses His Personal Approval of Its Provisions—Ministers Answer Questions by Members.

Toronto, May 12.—The Legislature met at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

A number of private bills were read a first time, and Mr. Gross introduced a bill respecting volunteer fire companies and fire insurance companies.

These bills were read a second time: To amend the Assessment Act, Mr. Preston (Brant); to amend the act passed, entitled "an Act to amend the Statute Law (Whitney); to amend the Municipal Act (St. John).

Mr. Pettypiece moved the second reading of his bill to provide for voting by machinery.

Mr. Whitney took general objection to the machine style of voting. He said that difficulty would be met with in the event of voting having to be suspended through a breakdown of the machine, but had no objection to the system being given a trial, if the vote was taken in the regular way at the same time.

The bill was read a second time and sent to the committee.

Mr. Taylor (North Middlesex) moved the second reading of his bill to amend the municipal act. Mr. Taylor's bill aims to give township councils the option of returning to the old style of constituting the County Councils with the reeves of the various municipalities, a majority of the township councils being in a position to effect the change. An important clause provides that in expenditures of $5,000 and over the voting power of the reeves shall be gauged by the assessment of the various municipalities. Mr. Taylor strongly urged the bill, and expressed the opinion that the present system was not satisfactory.

A number of members on both sides of the House expressed their views.

The Premier Approves.

Mr. Ross said it was not a Government bill, and, although theoretically the Government was responsible for all legislation, still we were very democratic. For himself, he liked the bill very much. The option which the bill proposed would meet the public opinion of some counties as against the present system.

Mr. Whitney said the bill, establishing the present system six years ago, had not a single defender outside the House.

The bill was read a second time and sent to a committee.

Replying to Dr. Nesbitt, Premier Ross said the departments pay all revenue into the Treasury Department, which deposits funds in the following banks: Commerce, Ontario, Toronto, Standard, Sovereign, Imperial, Traders', Metropolitan, Hamilton, Union, Royal and Ottawa. Three per cent. is allowed on special deposits, but no interest is allowed on current accounts.

Mr. Dryden, replying to Mr. Carnegie, said the duties of the Advisory Board of the Agriculture College were to advise and assist the Minister in the management of the college and farm. The board held two meetings within the last five years, and the remuneration was $4 a day and traveling expenses.

Mr. Foy secured an order for a return of copies of correspondence relating to an agreement between the Government and the Toronto and Niagara Power Company since Jan. 1, 1902.

The House went into Committee on Mr. Pattullo's bill to incorporate the Fenbro Railway Company, and Mr. Taylor's bill respecting the London, Parkhill and Grand Bend Electric Railway.

KILLED ON THE TRACK.

Flyer Runs Down Young Donald Bothwell at Lancaster.

Lancaster, May 12.—Donald Bothwell was killed by the Chicago flyer at the station yesterday morning. He was riding between the tracks a few yards west of the station. He and a companion, Brown Lea, both students of Queen's University, came here from Kingston Saturday intending to canvas the Township of Lancaster and Charlottenburg with stereopticon views. They separated in the village, each to take the course suited to his canvas. Bothwell's district evidently was to be Charlottenburg, and as the railroad afforded good wheeling for about a mile of his journey he started westward on the track, riding between the rails, when he was overtaken by the limited. A strong wind from the west was blowing at the time, and Bothwell evidently did not realize how near the train was. His friends have been communicated with, his home being in Perth.

Donald C. Bothwell had just completed his first year in Arts at Queen's and was well known here. He was nephew of Rev. D. G. McPhail, formerly of Picton, now of Frank, N.W.T.

MR. A. H. DYMOND DEAD.

Was For 20 Years Principal of the Institute For the Blind.

Brantford, May 12.—After a brief illness Mr. A. H. Dymond expired yesterday. For 20 years he had been the principal of the Institute for the Blind. Death was the result of pneumonia. The deceased was an Englishman by birth, his parents living at Croydon, Surrey, where he was born August 21, 1827. Early in life he was engaged in mercantile pursuits, which he relinquished to advocate the abolition of the death punishment, with which movement he was long identified, lecturing throughout Great Britain and writing many pamphlets. In 1857 he joined The Morning Star, a London, England, daily, and later became its manager. He was closely identified with the emancipation party in England during the American Civil war.

Mr. Dymond came to Canada in October, 1869, and from that time until 1878 was an editorial writer on The Globe. In consequence of his exceptional power as a public speaker, he contested successfully North York in the Liberal interests at the general elections of 1874. During his term in the House of Commons he took an active part in the debates and assisted materially in the adoption of the temperance measure known as the Scott Act. He leaves the following family: A. M. Dymond, law clerk of the Legislative Assembly; Frank Dymond of the Toronto General Trusts Corporation; Rev. Ernest Dymond, Port Hope; Dr. Bertha Dymond, Toronto; Miss Nellie Dymond, Brantford. The body will be brought to Toronto for burial.

The Marvellous Power of the Compound Astonishes all who use it.

In removing such diseases as rheumatism and neuralgia from the system in spring time, Paine's Celery Compound commences its good work by purifying the blood, regulating the nervous system and creating a natural appetite. Rheumatism and neuralgia are common results of sluggish and poisoned blood, and unhealthy action of the kidneys and liver. Pathologists agree that the morbid principle in the blood is uric acid, which acts upon the joints and muscles, causing pain and suffering. Neuralgia is inflammation or other morbid condition of some portion of the nervous system. Neither disease remains long in the system when the sufferer uses Paine's Celery Compound. If the reader of this is suffering the torments of either disease, let him simply try one bottle of Paine's Celery Compound and carefully note the results. Mr. J. Y. Hemming, London, Ont., says:—

"I suffered for years with inflammatory rheumatism which baffled the skill of medical men. I had every form of treatment known to specialists, and visited mineral springs, but obtained only temporary relief. Almost giving up in despair, I was asked to try Paine's Celery Compound, and I thank God such a blessing was brought to my notice. The use of three bottles of the great remedy gave me relief from pain and I slept better. Ten bottles worked for me a complete cure. I have no hesitation in recommending Paine's Celery Compound to all rheumatic sufferers; it cures surely and permanently."

Mrs. P. N. Mather, Vancouver, B. C., a cured woman says:—

"Neuralgia in the head and face made life a misery for me for five years. The doctors said I would never get rid of it. I had heard so much about Paine's Celery Compound that I determined to give it a trial. After the use of four bottles I am a cured woman and have not been troubled with the disease for five months. I owe my present good health, comfort and happiness to Paine's Celery Compound, and advise all neuralgic victims to use it. It is the best medicine in the world."

THE LUMBER PILES.

Ottawa Council Considering the Fire Situation.

THE LOSSES AND INSURANCE.

The People Insisting That the Lumber Piles Must Be Removed—The Question of Relief—No Appeal to Be Made For Outside Assistance—The Council's Grant—Firebug Suspect Remanded.

Ottawa, May 12.—Now that the fire is over, Ottawa is counting the cost, figuring on relief and bent on getting lumber piles outside the city limits. The cost is 200 buildings burned, 850 persons homeless, 14,000,000 feet of lumber burned, $600,000 gone up in smoke, insurance companies hit to the extent of $350,000, to aid, the city will give $50 to every family that lost its household goods or property, and will ask for public subscriptions to a relief fund, and no outside aid will be requested.

The City Council last night was well attended by Aldermen and citizens. The battle cry was, "Booth must get his lumber piles outside the city limits." One Alderman moved that J. F. Booth be given thirty days in which to get his lumber pile on Ottawa street outside the city limits. Twenty of the ratepayers had waited on him, and demanded immediate action.

A mass meeting will be held on Friday night to discuss the whole question. The people are in earnest, and it is evident that Mr. Booth and other lumbermen, whose lumber covers in all 123 acres of the city, have been given notice to quit. But there will be difficulty in getting them to move out.

The public sentiment expressed on the street is that Ottawa does not desire the story to go out that the fire has been a disastrous one. The citizens are anxious to minimize the loss. If the truth was told, it might be stated that Ottawa was "fire crazy."

In the Police Court yesterday morning, with Ald. Rosenthal presiding as Magistrate, White was charged with being "drunk on the public street," and with a show of resentment he pleaded not guilty. His voice expressed indignation. Chief Powell asked for a remand for a week and got it. The charge of drunkenness is only a blind—a necessary evil of the workings of the police system. Within a week the police hope to have discovered sufficient evidence to prove White guilty of setting the first fire, and of being in a conspiracy that led to the second.

The agents of the various insurance companies gave out the following statement of the losses last night: The Home Insurance Company, $5,000; Law, Union and Crown, $7,000; Connecticut, $8,000; Manchester, $5,000; Anglo-American, $37,000; Union, $10,000; Guardian, $55,000; London Assurance, $27,000; Ottawa, $35,000; London and Lancashire, $10,000; Queen's, $15,000; British American, $12,000; Norwich Union, $9,000; Phoenix, Brooklyn, $6,000; Royal $10,000; Sun, $11,000; National, $600; Atlas, $30,000; Perth Mutual, $6,000; Phoenix, London, $1,000; Northern, $2,200; Etna Insurance Company, $11,000; Hartford, $11,000; Scottish Union, $7,500; Northern, $8,900; Queen City, $1,600; Fire Insurance Exchange, $2,000; total, $312,200.

This list will be augmented, but not to any great extent. A conservative estimate is that the insurance companies lost $350,000 by the fire.

The city council got together early to-day to discuss measures of immediate relief. They resolved: That $50 be granted to each family, spinster, widow, whose property was destroyed in yesterday's conflagration, and that the amount be final so far as this Council is concerned." It was decided that it was not necessary to appeal for aid to outside cities. Application will be made to the Ontario Legislature for power to expend $10,000 in relief.

Newspapers and banks have been asked to open subscription lists for ten days.

THE ROYAL COMMISSION.

Mr. Gamey Expected to Take Stand—Will End This Week.

Toronto, May 12.—To-day sees the beginning of the end in the matter of the Royal Commission into the Gamey charges. It is not unlikely that D. A. Jones of Beeton will be the first witness to go on the stand. He has been called at the request of the Commissioners to explain portions of his letter to Mr. Gamey during last August.

Mr. Gamey arrived in the city from Gore Bay yesterday morning, and he will take the stand perhaps to-morrow again to give rebuttal evidence. A number of Manitoulin men will also give their evidence. The argument on each side will consume the best part of a day. Following the custom, Mr. Blake will speak first, and then have an opportunity to reply after Mr. Johnston concludes.

At all events this week will see the whole matter finally in the hands of the Commissioners for decision.

Leanes Cross Appeal.

Toronto, May 12.—The cross petition against M. S. Madole, the defeated candidate in Lennox, in May, 1902, will formally be dismissed to-day, the petition against Mr. Carscallen, the sitting member, having failed.

CHINA'S BACK UP.

No Further Discussion With American Commissioners on Article 12.

Shanghai, May 12.—The Chinese treaty revision commissioners have received from the Chinese Foreign Office instructions to decline further discussion with the American commission on article 12, of the proposed new treaty, which refers to the opening of points in Manchuria to foreign trade.

Do not Take Pills.

Constipation is caused by a lack of water in the system. Most cathartic pills cause a further depletion and make a bad matter worse. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are more mild and gentle in their action and leave the bowels in a natural condition. Their use is not followed by constipation. They also improve the appetite, cleanse and invigorate the stomach and give you a relish for your food. Price 25 cents; all druggists.

He Wrote Books.

An English novelist tells an experience of a literary friend who went to the country in order to take a house on a farm. He saw the farmer and conducted the preliminary negotiations with perfect satisfaction to both sides. Presently he asked, "Would you like some references?" "No, no," said the farmer genially. "You are a gentleman. I can see straightforwardness written across your face. Don't bother about the references. I expect you want to get back to your business in the city." The friend mentioned that he had no business in the city. "Oh, then," said the farmer, "I suppose you have business outside the city." "No," he replied. "I am an author." "What!" cried the farmer. "Not an author that writes books?" Yes, he admitted that he had written books. A look of doubt crept over the honest farmer's face. "Well, well," he said, "to turn back to the business we were talking about, I think, after all, mister, I'll have to trouble you for a couple of them references."

ILLUSTRATED JAPAN AN INTERESTING LECTURE.

Rev. J. Cooper Robinson Addresses a Large Audience in All Saints.'

A lecture on Japan of unusual excellence was delivered in the All Saint's church last evening by Rev. J. Cooper Robinson, to a large and well pleased audience. During the course of his remarks the lecturer illustrated his subject with sixty limelight views, showing pictures of the Imperial Family, Idols of the Shintoists', Priests, Temples, the main cities and the missionary workers of the Church of England. At the same time describing the happy relationship which exists between the Imperial Family and the people, and the influences which have brought Japan within the life of the present Mikado to one of the foremost controllers of affairs in the far East. In reference to his own work, and that of the mission work of the Church of England, it had been successful beyond his most sanguine expectations, and he foresaw a not far distant time in the future when the church would be self-supporting in that country. The pressing need, however, is workers, in the interests of which the speaker made an urgent appeal.

PETERBOROUGH RESIDENT PASSES PEACEFULLY AWAY.

Death of Mrs. John Williamson Occurred This Afternoon.

It is with deep regret that the Examiner has to record the death of Mrs. John Williamson, which occurred at 1.30 o'clock this afternoon at the ripe old age of 70 years. She has been ailing for two or three months. The cause of her death was stomach trouble.

The deceased, whose maiden name was Jessie Tully, was a daughter of the late Robert Tully of Smith, and has lived in Peterborough for several years. She is the wife of Mr. John Williamson, of No. 216 Water street, and leaves a family of five children who will greatly deplore her death. They are Mrs. A. Cunningham of Norwood, Miss Agnes Williamson, of town, Mr. R. G. Williamson, of town, Mr. David Williamson of Norwood, and Mrs. William Davidson, of Otonabee.

The deceased was a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, and was of a quiet and retiring disposition. She will be greatly missed by a large circle of friends.

The funeral will take place on Thursday at 2 o'clock from the family residence, 516 Water street, to the Little Lake Cemetery, where the interment will take place.

BARNARDO CHILDREN IN PETERBOROUGH.

130 New Arrivals Came Yesterday Morning.

About 130 Barnardo Home children arrived yesterday morning on the C. P. R. They were, for the most part, girls, and were under the care of Mrs. Owen, and were immediately marched up to "Hazel Brae," the local Home of the Barnardo Institute. Although some were over 12 years of age, most of the children were under that age. Homes have already been obtained for the older children, that is to say for all those who are able to do a little house work.

It is said that there are homes awaiting almost any number of children over twelve years of age.

A PAINFUL ACCIDENT

To an Ashburnham Man Yesterday.

ST. ANDREW'S ANNIVERSARY SUCCESSFULLY CONCLUDED

The Entire Series of Services Very Gratifying.

The Ladies' Aid Society's Successful Concert.

For nearly three-score and ten years St. Andrew's has been celebrating anniversaries; and of all these the sixty-eighth, observed on Sunday and Monday night deserves, by general consent, to take rank with the most successful of the series.

The services on Sunday were gratifyingly successful. The special sermons were of a high order of didactic value, scholarly, eloquent and devotional in spirit, while the special music was most satisfactory. One of the most pleasing features of the occasion was the hearty co-operation of the congregation with the minister and church officials, in making the services worthy of the event. The crowning success was the semi-secular conclusion, the concert given in the school room under the auspices and management of the Ladies' Aid Society.

Choir ...."Come With Me."
Duet, "Don Munio Legend" Dudley Buck
Mr. J. P. Keough and Alice Killin-Keough.
Solo, (accompanied by Mrs. Morrow,) Miss Bryce.
Solo, "Will o' the Wisp",..... ....
Mr. J. P. Keough.
Greetings ... Rev. W. J. Jolliffe, B.C.L.
Violin, "Intermezzo" ... ... Mascagni
Mr. Gilbert Markle.
Solo, "Titania," Aria from Mignon, Thomas
Alice Killin-Keough.
Piano solo, "Old Black Joe," ....
Mrs. Mowat.
Solo, "Beautiful Land on High,"..... .....
Jas. Potter Keough.
Violin, "Bolero," ... .Edward German
Mr. Gilbert Markle.
Greetings...Rev. D. McTavish, M.A., D.Sc.
Solo, "Verdure Clad," from Creation..... Hadyn
Pianists, Miss Mabel Harrison and Miss Maud L. Brown.

Rev. Mr. Jolliffe's address was a pleasant fraternal contribution, signalizing the spirit of kind brethren dwelling together in unity. Miss Bryce, of Keene, a pupil of Mrs. W. J. Morrow, by whom her accompaniment was played, gave a vocal solo in effective style. Mr. Gilbert Markle contributed two well performed violin solos — the pathetically beautiful intermezzo from Mascagni's opera, Cavalleria Rusticana, and a sparkling bolero. The pianists Miss Mabel Harrison and Miss Maud L. Brown, were excellent.

The Titania aria from "Mignon," by Thomas, was given in Italian, as that language is especially adapted to the florid style of composition of which this aria is a conspicuous example. The difficult runs and trills seemed to be well adapted to the artist's high flexible voice. Her second number, "With Verdure Clad," from Haydn's "Creatica"—fitting well with the season of expanding leaves, was sung with a fine appreciation of its spirit. A duet, "The Legend of Don Munio," borrowed from one of Washington Irving's sketches, is a musical setting of a Spanish legend of Canadian times, was well sung by Mr. and Mrs. Killin-Keough. Mr. Keough sang an Irish folk lore song, "Will o' the Wisp," and a pretty sacred selection, "There's a Beautiful Home on High."

The concert throughout was most entertaining and was a fitting conclusion to an unusually successful anniversary service.

THE DOG POISONER AGAIN IN EVIDENCE.

A Local Epidemic of Canine Mortality From Poison.

Gilmour street has again resumed the annual activity in the matter of dog destruction by poison. Within the past week no fewer than three favourite dogs have been subjected to the attention of some local canine Caesar or Lucretia Borgia. On Saturday Mrs. Wallis lost by poison a fine thoroughbred and valuable fox terrier, and this morning the beautiful little toy terrier of Mr. Yokome, known as "Tippo," was found in articulo mortis, and only the prompt application of antidotes saved life. This little fellow is never off the premises except in charge, and is never abroad at night. Owners of valuable or valued dogs — there's a distinction — will have to provide muzzles if they wish to save their canine favourites from the snare of the poisoner, though that would be hard lines this hot weather.

A VALUABLE DOG

Died Yesterday From Being Accidentally Poisoned.

Dog fanciers will be grieved to hear that "Nosegay Sunflower," the valuable prize Scotch terrier of Dr. H. King, died yesterday from the effects of poison which the dog accidentally took.

This valuable animal has won prizes at the following places: Pan-American, Toronto Industrial, Madison Square Gardens, New York, Los Angeles, Cal., and Philadelphia. It is also Dr. King's boast that all these prizes were "firsts," and that his estimate of the dog's value was $100.

How the World Assimilates Improvements.

How quickly the world assimilates new improvements which in many instances radically affect the habits of living of a large proportion of the public has been often demonstrated. Electric lights, telephones and trolley cars were all introduced to popular use within the memory of the present generation. Yet, whoever stops to wonder at an electric light, who marvels at the "no pullee—no pushee" street car and who gives the telephone more than a passing thought—save to register a kick at unsatisfactory service. And the bicycle came in, was a nine days wonder and then settled into the rut of a commonplace utility. And thoughtless people said the "fad had died out." No, it merely became an everyday necessity. It excites no more comment than electric lights or telephones or trolley cars. Being more personal than any other modern utility, it is less talked about than the public utilities, for the same reason that people do not frequently discuss their shoes or clothes or hats. Yet the bicycle is now almost as much a part of the daily life of the public and a personal necessity to thousands, as is their clothing or shoes or hats.

SUGAR FACTORY TO BE BEGUN TO-MORROW.

Blue Prints for Foundations Arrived Yesterday.

The blue prints for the foundations of the sugar factory, arrived in town yesterday morning, and Mr. Bartlett is busy to-day staking out where the excavations are to begin to-morrow.

The seeders and cultivators also reached town on Monday morning, the former are kept busy sowing the seed. They were purchased from the Gale Manufacturing Company, of Albion, Mich.

Teams and men are wanted immediately at the factory grounds. Applicants will please apply to Mr. F. Bartlett, superintendent of construction.

The company has now more than fifty stockholders in Peterborough, and the probabilities are that most of the stock for sale will be taken by our own citizens.

Berlin citizens purchased $125,000 of stock in their sugar company in one week. With such a spirit of enterprise it is not to be wondered at that Berlin is taking a leading rank as an industrial centre.

EXPLANATORY.

In yesterday's issue an article, copied from the Ottawa Journal, headed "Strikes and Prosperity," was, by an oversight of the printer, not credited to that journal, to which an apology is due. Every newspaper should get credit for articles it originates, for the double reason that it is the fair thing to receive, and that the quoting newspaper does not always subscribe to the sentiments of the article quoted, printing it often merely as a matter of interest to its readers.

PETERBOROUGH'S MODERN STORE.

In the Front Rank of Housefurnishers.

It is always the case that some particular firm stands out prominently as a peer in their district. This is the position of this store exactly in regard to Housefurnishings. Ours is not the only store trading in Carpets, Oilcloths, Curtains, Window Shades, Draperies, etc., but here it is that these things are found at their best at all times—in quality and quantity, assortment and distinctiveness—yes, and price. No one department of our business has more painstaking care than our Carpet Stock; and the fruit of our care is at your service. The immense floor space devoted to this department is stocked from end to end with goods noted for their magnificence—new patterns, harmonious colourings, immense variety and close figured prices. In all our long business history never did these conditions hold so strongly as they do to-day. We have anticipated shoppers' wants, and invite every one—the people of Peterborough, and the crowds who come from the surrounding district to do their shopping here, to visit this peer of Housefurnishing stores.

FIRST IN CARPETS

There is no doubting our supremacy in Carpets. Five minutes' observation of the wonderful range of Carpets on our second floor supplies indisputable evidence. It is a remarkable gathering of floor coverings from the most noted of the world's manufacturers. Years of experience and closest study of the tastes of the best shoppers, which our trade furnishes as no other does, enable us to present an array of Carpet stock that has no near parallel in any house in this district.

FIRST IN CURTAINS

This season has been a busy one in our Curtain Section, and buyers have broken into many of the lines. Those that are left are splendid values, but limited in number. We have made the price for may that will be sure to defy all competitors. Come and see them.

THE CHEMONG PARK ASSOCIATION

Held a Meeting Last Evening in the Town Council Chamber.

A meeting of the Chemong Park Association was held last evening in the Town Council Chamber, at which Mr. W. R. Hartshorne presided.

Considerable business was transacted, during which committees were appointed to look after the improvements which it had been decided should be made.

During the course of the discussion the subject of making some provision for summer sports came up, but nothing definite was decided upon. After some further business the meeting adjourned.

At the present time four of the cottages are occupied, the occupants of three of these being W. R. Hartshorne, A. Belcher and Miss Glover.

DEAN RIGBY APPOINTED.

New Headmaster for Trinity College School.

The Globe has the following, which will be of local interest:

A special meeting of the corporation and governing body of Trinity College School, Port Hope, was held yesterday to consider the resignation of Rev. H. Symonds, as principal, to accept the position of vicar of Christ church Cathedral, Montreal, left vacant by the death of Rev. F. J. Steen. Dr. Symonds hesitated to leave the School, but felt that his abilities lay in the direction of pulpit rather than scholastic work. The corporation with much reluctance accepted the resignation, at the same time expressing much appreciation of the work of Dr. Symonds.

Rev. Oswald Rigby, Dean of Trinity University, was appointed to succeed and will enter upon his duties on July 15th. Dean Rigby was born at Runcorn, Eng., in 1859, and educated at Liverpool College and at St. John's College, Cambridge, M. A., and theological honours, second-class. Ordained priest in 1882, he served as curate of St. Giles, Cambridge, till 1887, and of St. John's, Torquay, till 1891, being at the same time headmaster of St. John's School, Torquay. In that year he was appointed professor of history and Dean of the faculty of arts of Trinity University. He was President of the Cambridge Union Society in 1882, and a university extension lecturer for a time. In 1899 he married Miss Ellen Patteson, Lady Principal of St. Hilda's College.

A LITTLE GIRL WAS RUN OVER.

About five o'clock on Saturday afternoon, little Jean Anderson was run over by Oke's delivery rig. The little girl was playing on the road in front of her home, 105 McDonel street when she was knocked over by the rig, the wheel passing over her right leg, breaking the thigh bone. The child's mother saw the impending danger and called to her little one to come back, but the warning was unfortunately too late. Drs Halliday and Eastwood were called and immediately set the broken limb.

NO. 4 COMPANY ON SOCIAL PARADE.

A Fairly Large Turn out of Men.

Speeches by Prominent Officers—A Very Enjoyable Evening—The Toasts.

There was a fairly large attendance of the men at No. 4 Company's at home, which was held last night in the Crown Hotel. It was a most pleasant affair, and the men, one and all, enjoyed it immensely. Such entertainments as these, in which the officers and men come into contact, appeal strongly to the latter. The following officers were present:—Lt.-Col. J. W. Miller, Rev. J. C. Davidson, Chaplain, Captains Housell and Lieuts. J. Hamilton and Smith, Col.-Sergt. Best, Sergts. Collins, Watson and Hall, Corporals Lee and Thompson.

The evening was commenced with a number of humorous graphophone selections. Shortly after the arrival of Lieut.-Col. Miller, Lieut. Hamilton proposed the toast of the "Army and Navy," to which the commanding officer replied.

In doing this Col. Miller expressed his pleasure at being present with the company, which, he remarked, was composed of a superb lot of men. He thoroughly believed in a company holding a social evening, as, he said, it promoted friendliness among the officers, non-commissioned officers and men. Speaking of the regiment the Colonel remarked that it had an excellent name at headquarters, a name of which he, as commanding officer, was exceedingly proud. Speaking of the present drill shed, Col. Miller said that he did not think the day far distant when the Regiment would be able to boast being equipped with modern conveniences. The speaker remarked that the wars of '66, and the recent trouble in South Africa proved that the young men of Canada had real military zeal.

In conclusion he exhorted the men to do all in their power to make the regiment the very best in Ontario.

A few more graphophone selections raised shouts of laughter, after which Captain Housell asked the Chaplain, Rev. J. C. Davidson, to address the Company. The Chaplain, after expressing his pleasure at being present, remarked on the excellence which the Company had attained in past years. He spoke very favourably on the tone of the 57th Regiment of to-day, compared to some years back. After complimenting men generally on having such an excellent and efficient commanding officer he said it was upon them that the true responsibility rested. In conclusion he added that with such officers as the Company had, it was sure to become one of the best, if not the best, in the battalion.

A recitation by Col. Miller, entitled "Britain Wakes," evoked continued applause. This was a military poem, written at the time of the Fashoda incident and was excellently delivered.

The toast of "The Officers," proposed by Col.-Sergt. Best, was heartily drunk. In response, the captain made an excellent oration. On behalf of the officers he said that it was indeed a great honour for them to be toasted as they had been. He regretted that all had not put in an appearance, but said that he, personally, would be satisfied if the men would bring up all the recruits they could lay their hands upon, to drill this evening, and concluded by urging the men to turn out on Saturday afternoons to rifle practise.

The last toast of the evening was that of "The King," which was drunk amid the somewhat uncertain strains of the National Anthem, after which the Company gradually dismissed.

FLOATING FOREST WEALTH IN LOCAL COUNTIES.

The past winter in the north country was a busy one as the cut in the forest was large. Mr. John Pearson, Government Wood Ranger, returned from Haliburton and Gooderham points on Saturday, and in an interview with our representative Mr. Pearson said that he cannot remember the time when the out was so large, or when there was so much activity in the lumber business up north. Every mill is running full blast, but despite that it is almost impossible for some of the mills to keep up with the demand.

Mr. Geo. Martin, of Fenelon Falls, has 5,500 long cedar poles at Drag Lake, above Haliburton, and Messrs. Craig & Austin, of Kinmount, have a drive of 60,000 logs at Loon Lake, which will be brought to their mills at Kinmount to be manufactured into lumber and shingles.

The Mossom Boyd Co., of Bobcaygeon, have 40,000 logs coming down the Burnt River above Furnace Falls, and the Kinmount Cooperage Co. have 7,000 elm logs in the same river. Mr. S. G. Parkin, town, has a drive of 20,000 pieces on the same stream, which will be brought to Lindsay.

The Rathbun Co. have three drives coming down the Burnt River. One comprising 40,000 logs is in charge of Mr. Maurice Dineen, and another comprising 75,000 large pine logs, is at Wilberforce. The third is at Black Lake, a tributary of the Burnt River, and comprises 7,000 pieces. This firm also has a couple of large drives coming down the Gull River waters.

Mr. John Carew, of the Lindsay Mills, has a drive of 15,000 logs, and the Haliburton Lumber Co., one of 12,000 near the above points.

Franklin Austin and Milloy & Co., of Haliburton, have drives of 10,000 and 12,000 respectively at Drag Lake. The latter firm manufacturers nail kegs and barrels, and their mills are running day and night.

In addition to these Mr. J. J. Hunter, Gooderham, and others, have taken out considerable material.—Lindsay Post.

AMBITIOUS BAKERS UNDER INSTRUCTION.

College Course of Four Peterborough Bakers and Confectioners.

At the end of last month two days of Technical Instruction was given at the Toronto Technical School. There were about one hundred bakers and confectioners in attendance. Among those under instruction and anxious to learn the advanced methods in their art were four Peterborough bakers and confectioners. And the current number of the "Baker and Confectioner" give them the honour of reproducing their pictures in a special group. These gentlemen are Mr. T. H. Hooper and his assistant Mr. H. Tremain, Mr. N. Lush, of N. Lush & Sons, and Mr. Wm. Stock.

The action of the Ontario Government in promoting these classes, which will be repeated from time to time, is much appreciated by progressive bakers. For thousands of years the world has been eating bread and there are bakers who have been making bread all their lives who do not know why certain processes produce certain results. They work "by rule of thumb"—do certain things because they were taught to do them. Now bakers are waking up and anxious to know why they do things. Baking involves the application of chemical action and can be as scientifically performed as any other industry. The baker who understands the chemical laws governing the action of yeasts and other ferments is working with his eyes open; is working intelligently and will achieve better results. The Peterborough bakers are to be commended for their enterprise.

BATTLE OF WATERLOO.

How the Rothschilds Were Apprised of the Great Event.

The London Daily Graphic of April 6 says: In presiding at the annual dinner of the Newspaper Press Fund on Saturday, Mr. Leopold de Rothschild told the true version of the famous story of the way in which the first news of the battle of Waterloo reached London. He said the tradition with regard to the news of the battle of Waterlop coming to his grandfather had been circulated in various forms. The fact was that the news came thrgugh the medium of a small Dutch newspaper. The news was published in a single line—"Great victory of the English at Amsterdam." His grandfather, who was the owner of some ships, told his captains that whenever they went anywhere they were always to bring him the latest newspapers. One of these trusted captains arrived with a paper announcing the great victory. His grandfather, who believed as they all did now in the accuracy of all newspapers—(laughter)—immediately took the news to the Treasury, and gave the information to Lord Liverpool. He did not tell him how he knew it, and his news was scouted because the intelligence had arrived of the defeat of the English troops on the previous day. Mr. de Rothschild also stated that during the siege of Paris the famous house in New Court used to receive news by pigeon-post, and they knew a fortnight beforehand when Paris was about to capitulate, and were able to send the first provisions into the town.

Mr. Zangwill's Wit.

"Majuba was lost on the playing fields of Lord's."

"Oh, of course, he doesn't bother as much as Tolly, who looks as if he had been poured into his clothes."

"Wagner is the greatest man of the century. He alone has been able to change London's dinner hour."

"Love is blind. Marriage is never blind."

"A man ought to know the size of his family; mother in heaven! I never thought mine was half so large."

"How delicious to have an emotion which you feel will last forever and which you know won't."

"God made the woman and money the lady."

"She was not bad-hearted; she simply could not afford anything but luxuries."

"And to be disliked even by those she disliked, Eileen disliked."

"There are three reasons why men of genius have long hair. One is that they forget it is growing. The second is that they like it. The third is that it comes cheaper; they wear it long for the same reason that they wear their hats long. Owing to this peculiarity of genius, you may get quite a reputation for lack of two-pence. * * *"—From The Grey Wig, by Israel Zangwill.

British Drink Bill.

In preparing the British national drink bill of 1902 Dr. Dawson Burns has subjected to an independent examination the divergent data adopted by the late Mr. Hoyle and by the Inland Revenue Department. To assist this investigation returns of the retail price of various kinds of spirits were obtained from nineteen of the largest towns in the United Kingdom. The general result has been to raise by about one-seventh the expenditure reported in former annual drink bills. According to these revised data, the national expenditure on intoxicating liquors in 1902 amounted to £179,499,817, a decrease of about two millions and a quarter, compared with 1901, when the expenditure on the same data was £181,738,245. The expenditure in 1902 gives an average of £4 5s. 6½d. per head, equal to £21 7s. 9½d. for every family of five persons. Dr. Burns points out that this annual expenditure on strong drink is much in excess of the expenditure either for all Government purposes, or for all rents of houses and farms, or for all religious, educational, and philanthropic objects combined, or for the purchase of more than one kind of food and clothing considered to be articles of prime necessity.—S. B. H. in New York Commercial.

U.S. Cattle Tainted.

Washington, May 12.—The Director of the State Department has notified the Department of Agriculture that the foot and mouth disease has again broken out in a herd located at Framingham, Mass. He said he had contemplated lifting the quarantine altogether from New England in a fortnight, but that action must now be postponed indefinitely.

THE FUTURE OF IRELAND.

Mr. Stead pays a great tribute to Mr. Wyndham, the chief secretary for Ireland, to whose devotion and genius Ireland will owe its success in land reforms. Mr. Wyndham, according to Stead's description of him is a remarkable man. He is scholarly, calm, friendly, felicitous in language and persistent in labour. Best of all he is in love with his work, whatever it is for the time being.

The essential point, says Mr. Steadd is that Mr. Wyndham is now baptized with the spirit of the Irish revival. He believes in Ireland, he loves the Irish people. To his quick and sympathetic nature the witty and mercurial Celt is much more sympathetic than the more stodgy Englishman. Ireland, like the fair damsel in Spencer's poem has a singular fascination for the Sir Calidores and Sir Artegalds who stray within range of the magic of her charms. Sir Arthur Balfour has never cared, and does not now care, for anything so much as for Ireland and the Irish. And as it was with the master so it is with his secretary. The new land bill is but the first of the great measures of reconstruction and reconciliation by which the great grand-son of Sir E. Fitzgerald hopes to realize and more than realize, the generous aspirations of his ancestors. After the land question comes education, and after that again, the vital question of the industrial revolution which will make Ireland the great entrepot of the world's commerce.

Mr. Stead comments upon Mr. Wyndham's marvellous success in advancing legislation. His compliment is not misplaced. Mr. Wyndham, one of the youngest members of the party, is already one of its pillars. He was under secretary for war during the South African campaign, and he

MR. MAURICE O'BRIEN'S YOUNG CLYDESDALE.

A Horse With a Family History—Has Weight and Substance.

Mr. Maurice O'Brien of Louro, has recently purchased another young Clydesdale stallion, "McQueen's Model," whose pedigree and prize ring record proves him to be a horse worthy the attention of breeders of fancy stock. Bred by the veteran stockman, Mr. John W. Cowie, of Markham, he has a family history surpassed by none. True to his ancestors, he has the clean flat bone, the action, weight and substance of a horse of superior quality. He is sired by McQueen, 3,513, by McGregor, 1,487, by Darneley, 222. His dam is Fanny Redmond, 2,530, by Brown James, 731; by Lennox Love, 3,766. McQueen's Model prize ring record is almost a continuation of his illustrious ancestors'. Below is a partial list. First, as a foal in Toronto, in 1900; 1st in a family of five colts, sired by one horse; three firsts at Markham, including sweepstakes in 1900; 1st at Woodbridge, in 1901; 2nd at Toronto, in a class of eighteen entries; two firsts and sweepstakes 1902, at Markham, and 1st in two year old class at Whitby Model Fair.

This grand young horse will be much appreciated, especially by those who are interested in improving their stock. It is rarely indeed that this community can boast of a horse of such choice breeding and individual merit.

Auto-Expanding

The foot spreads when borne upon! It contracts again when lifted!

A new shoe, which fits the foot neatly when off the ground, must therefore pinch it when stood upon, till it is stretched to the maximum width of foot.

A shoe which has thus been stretched, till comfortable across the ball when stood upon, must be too loose when the foot is lifted.

The RESILIA is the only shoe which expands at the ball when the foot does, and contracts again when lifted.

It becomes a size larger inside when the foot sinks down into the resilient centresole, the rebounding of which takes up the leather slack again when foot is lifted.

It is thus as easy as an old shoe the first moment it is worn, requires no "breaking in," and retains its shape because the leather is never overstretched.

An Imperial Endowment Policy

Is the contract par excellence. While it embraces the life assurance feature its strongest point is the excellent return made to the assured himself at the expiration of the endowment period.

To indicate the many valuable features of this contract, take the case of a policy for $5,000 issued on the life of a man aged 30, with an Accumulative Surplus Period of 20 years:—

The premium would be $247.00 per annum for 20 years only, or $128.00 half-yearly.

The Company guarantees to pay to the beneficiary $5,000 in the event of the death of the assured during the 20 years.

At the end of the 20 years, the assured, being then alive, receives the entire cash value of his policy, consisting of—

The face value of the policy...$5,000

Total cash value $6,695

(Being a return of $1.35 for every $1.00 paid, and in addition, the protection of $5,000 life assurance for 20 years.)

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Firmer—Trading Short, With Better Prices at Montreal.

London, May 11.—Live cattle firmer, at 11¾c to 12¾c per lb., for American steers, dressed weight; Canadian steers, 11c to 12¼c per lb.; refrigerator beef, 8c to 9½c per lb. Sheep, 14c to 15c, dressed weight.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

Montreal, May 11.—There were about 420 head of butchers' cattle, 500 calves and 150 sheep and lambs offered for sale at the East End Abattoir to-day. The butchers were out strong, but trading was slow, as the prices of good cattle were fully ¼c per pound higher than on last week's market, and common stock were also dearer than usual. Prime beeves sold at from 5c to 5¼c per pound, and they were not of extra quality. Medium cattle sold at from 4¾c to 4¾c, and the common stock from 2½c to 3½c per pound. Calves sold from $1 to $10 each, or from 3½c to 5c per pound. Sheep sold at from 3½c to 4½c per pound. Lambs sold at $2.50 to $4.50 each, and an extra lamb brought $6. Fat hogs sold at from $6.40 to $6.65 per hundred pounds, weighed off cars.

For a Certainty I am Cured.

Mr. Jas. Trenseman, 536 Adelaide street, London, writes that for two years he was laid up with kidney disease and urinary troubles. He became dropsical and his legs would swell so that he could hardly walk around. He never used any medicine that did him so much good as Dr. Chase's Kidney Live Pills, and knows for a certainty that this treatment cured him. One pill a dose; 25c. a box.

ONE of CUPID'S WAYS

By Sarah Lindsay Coleman

Copyright, 1902, by McClure's Newspaper Syndicate

The car that went to Overlook park was crowded; it usually was when there was a promise of a fine sunset.

Brooks gazed steadily from the window on the unpicturesque side of the car. Even when the passengers crowded to the other side to look into the valley far below them and at the mountains—mountains piled on top of mountains—he sat motionless.

As the Country club was passed he showed some interest.

It was Miss Hilderbrand's afternoon to pour tea there. Six months before, when Miss Hilderbrand had poured tea, Brooks sat on the clubhouse steps. The laughter of gay voices had drifted through the open windows to him. The club members seemed very gay. Brooks was a club member, but he was not gay.

An illness had sent him to the resort town to recuperate. Most of the hotel people belonged to the club, and he had joined. It seemed to him a good way to get rid of the time that hung so heavily on his hands.

But he didn't care for golf, he couldn't dance, he knew so little of the new books and the old pictures, the thousand and one things they talked about. He was an alien. Looking up, he saw Miss Hilderbrand on the step above him.

Miss Hilderbrand was the leader of the fashionables that ran the Country club. Her clothes were imitated, her speeches repeated.

Brooks had wondered that so reserved a woman could be as popular. He had noticed that the charm of distinction was in her high bred face, and then thought no more about her. Women were not much in his line either.

Miss Hilderbrand had smiled down on him and said that she wanted him to come in and drink tea with her. And when she smiled the question of her popularity was settled.

After that day Brooks became a real member of the club. The women left younger men to talk to him; the men slapped him on the back, invited him to drinks and voted him a fine old chap.

He began to enjoy the life and the new spirit of friendliness that pervaded the atmosphere. There was no more talk of leaving this circle of bright, pretty women and jolly fellows.

Brooks realized that he owed the change to Miss Hilderbrand. Once he asked her why she had taken him up, and she replied that she was sorry for lonely things.

Six months had made a new man of Brooks, and still he lingered.

People had come and gone, as they do at resort hotels, but Miss Hilderbrand had not gone.

The afternoon had again come for her to pour tea for the club members, but she had sent her excuses.

Johnston, a friend and fellow citizen of hers, said that she had gone on the mountain to be alone and get a grip on herself; that a telegram had brought her bad news.

The car climbed slowly.

Brooks hadn't the slightest idea what the trouble was nor what assistance he could render. There was but one desire in his honest heart, and that was to help her. How he would do it hadn't been revealed, but, with his usual directness, he had followed her to find out.

On the mountain top the band played, and gay groups of people moved in every direction.

Brooks came upon Miss Hilderbrand, solitary in the midst of the crowd. The glow of the sunset was on her, and as he came up she smiled unsteadily.

"I'm sorry you've heard it. I leave tomorrow. I hoped it would not be found out, but of course everybody will know."

"I'm not everybody," said Brooks stoutly. "I came because I want to comfort lonely things. What can I do?"

Miss Hilderbrand's glance went over Brooks' stout figure and came back to his clear eyes. The two faces were in sharp contrast—in his the rugged strength of a more simple civilization; in the girl's the suggestion of extreme culture.

"I'm glad you came," she said quite simply. "I'll like to remember it when I've become a dressmaker. That's what I've been up here deciding—what to do with myself now that the money's swept away. Dressmaking is my only real talent, and," with another attempt at a smile, "I'm thought to be such an accomplished young woman."

"But there's McAdoo." Brooks spoke that name with difficulty. Among the men there was one he detested, and it was Miss Hilderbrand's fiance. "Haven't you taken him into your arrangements?"

"He hasn't taken me into his arrangements," she said.

Brooks stared at her as though he had lost his senses.

"I've been jilted." She looked across the valleys filling with mist and not at Brooks.

"Habits are hard to break." She spoke to herself as much as to him. "It had gone on so long it was a habit. If we had cared for each other, we would have been married long ago."

She turned to Brooks. "But it hurts one's pride to be thrown overboard on the day one loses the money," she said. "I'm depressed at the dressmaking, too," she apologized.

"How'd a companion do?" asked Brooks cautiously.

"Not at all," said the girl. "I've a mean temper."

"The old person has the disposition of a cherub."

"I can't read and I sing abominably."

"'Twouldn't be required."

"What would?"

"Whatever pleased you."

"But," half petulantly, "I don't like old ladies."

"This is an old gentleman."

"Oh, yes it would! It's eminently respectable." Brooks got to his feet and began speaking rapidly.

"Look here," he said, "I know you don't care for me, but you are the finest girl I ever saw. I'm too old to learn all love's little tricks, but you won't expect much foolishness. I never had time for it when I was a youngster, and I can't promise much as a lover, but I can make your life easier and leave you a respectable pile of money at my death."

"And what would you gain?" Miss Hilderbrand asked the question when the silence had become audible. She had paled perceptibly.

"The right to make you happy," said Brooks.

The girl was silent. Her critical eyes saw Brooks, who was neither young nor handsome, at his best.

"Don't you think I wouldn't gain anything?" said the man. The silence was making him anxious.

"But you couldn't love me," plaintively. "You think love nonsense, and women need it."

Brooks got possession of a hand not far away. "I could learn," he protested ardently.

"And everybody would say I married you for your money."

Miss Hilderbrand drew her hand away.

"I couldn't consider it," she said. A certain mischief that was new to her was in her averted face. "I've just been jilted, and I would be so lonely while you were learning."

Brooks slipped his arm about her. They were away from the people, and, anyway, it didn't matter. He turned her face to meet his eager one.

"I don't have to learn. It's come to me. You shan't say 'No!' Why, I love you like—like fury!" His voice thrilled with his earnestness.

The girl laughed contentedly.

"You are a nice old gentleman," she said, "even if you are forty. I haven't been asked about it, and I guess I shouldn't say so, but I'm awfully fond of you."

New Imposition.

Harris—Walters has been looking pretty sad since his daughter got married, hasn't he?

Correll—Yes. You see, he had no sooner got his daughter off his hands than he found he would have to put her husband on his feet.—Town and Country.

Taken at His Word.

He (after marriage)—What! You have no fortune? You said over and over again that you were afraid some one would marry you for your money.

She—Yes; and you said over and over again that you would be happy with me if I hadn't a cent. Well, I haven't a cent.

Sour Stomach —Bad Breath.

The body depends on the bowels to carry off all waste and poisonous matters from the system—it is Nature's drainage. If the bowels don't perform their functions properly and become clogged up, the system gradually absorbs this poison. It is this which causes sick headache, biliousness, sour stomach, bad breath, inactive liver, lack of energy, heartburn, etc.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt will cure you by clearing away the obstruction and thoroughly cleansing the bowels. This brings healthy action to all the organs of the body and rids the system of the cause of illness.

In this way Abbey's Effervescent Salt permanently cures. A teaspoonful in half a glass of tepid water every morning.

Dr. Agnew's Cure

for the Heart is guaranteed to give relief in thirty minutes, and in a short period so strengthen and restore the heart to perfect action that the entire body feels rejuvenated. An ideal remedy for Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Neuralgia, Hot Flashes, Sick Headache, Mental Despondency and all other ailments resulting from impoverished nerves through lack of blood. The Rev. Father Lord Sr., of Montreal, Canada, says: "I had been a sufferer for 20 years with organic heart disease, and used a number of remedies, both in France and America, but could not even obtain temporary relief. I tried Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart, and was indeed surprised at the immediate relief I obtained. I am firmly convinced that there is no case of heart disease that it will not cure."

Humiliating, Disfiguring Eruptions?

If so, use Dr. Agnew's Ointment. No better remedy to restore the skin to a healthful condition. Not a grease, but a pure medicinal salve that cures like magic. Once you use it, you will use no other. 35 cents. No. 96

STEADY ATMOSPHERE.

A Prime Requisite For the Study of Planet Surfaces.

Astronomical science is divided naturally into two parts, that pertaining to the stellar universe and that pertaining to our own immediate family of planets. The latter are the only bodies in the heavens of which we are aware that at all resemble our earth, and they are all, comparatively speaking, our near neighbors and have, therefore, a much more personal and popular interest than the stellar universe at large. The study of their relative motions was virtually completed during the last century, so that at the present time the astronomy of the planets is confined chiefly to a study of their dimensions and surface conditions.

For this study there is one paramount requisite, and that is a steady atmosphere. With a good atmosphere important results may be obtained even with a small telescope of only five or six inches diameter; but without such an atmosphere the very largest telescope will be of no avail. This is not the case in other departments of astronomy; for many kinds of observations on the stellar universe the quality of the atmosphere is of little account, provided only that it is cloudless and transparent; but for the planetary and lunar astronomy a steady atmosphere is the fundamental requisite. To understand what is meant by a steady atmosphere we have only to look at some object across a hot stove or along the line of a railroad track upon a summer day. There is a shimmer in the air, a wavering motion, with which we are all more or less familiar. This wavering is always present in our atmosphere, although we usually cannot see it; but when we magnify the image of a planet in a telescope 1,000 times we magnify the atmospheric tremors in the same proportion, and they are then not only conspicuous, but they interfere very seriously with our observations.

In some parts of the world the atmosphere is much more steady than in others, and it is evidently a matter of the highest importance for the astronomer interested in planetary research to find where these places are situated. To illustrate the importance of this matter I may say that situated in one of these favored spots I saw night after night with a five inch and even with a four inch lens planetary markings and details that I have never seen even with the largest telescope in Cambridge.—W. H. Pickering in Century.

A Marble Slab.

A writer in London Nature describes a white marble slab 2 inches thick and 35 by 70 inches, which is supported on stone posts and sags in the middle three inches out of level. It furnishes evidence that marble is in reality a fluid of enormous viscosity. This has some bearing on the question of the frigidity of the rocks composing the crust of the earth and the gradual adjustment of the earth's contour under gravity. The slab was placed in its present position in 1853.

Reason In Lowly Brains.

Bees know the time of day. Experimenters who feed them at a certain time each day find that they make no mistake in the hour.

The pigeons of St. Mark's, Venice, can tell tourists, who feed them as a matter of duty, from natives who do not. How? By their loitering? By their red guidebooks?

American horses driven without "blinders" are said to be less liable to fright than English horses which are made to wear them.

Pneumonia More Fatal Than Smallpox.

Statistics Show a Rapid Increase of Deaths from Pneumonia — Prevention and Cure Found in

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

Ten times as many people die of pneumonia as of smallpox and yet the fear of smallpox is so great that many people almost forget that there is such a disease as pneumonia.

Health authorities are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars to stamp out smallpox and ignore the conditions that cause pneumonia. Damp, unventilated houses, dirty alleys and streets, stagnant pools of water, insufficient food and clothing—all these things cause pneumonia.

Any one who is in a weak and run down condition and contracts a cold is liable to have pneumonia, and, therefore, the object of every person should be to keep their health at high water mark by the use of such a blood builder and nerve restorative as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Should you find yourself the victim of a cold that has fastened itself on the bronchial tubes causing difficult breathing, pain in the chest or lungs when coughing or other indications of approaching pneumonia, there is no preparation that will help you so promptly as Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

No offhand prescription from a doctor, hastily written and hastily compounded in a drug store, can be compared to this great treatment which has so firmly established itself in the homes of this land.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is mother's favourite remedy for croup, bronchitis, whooping cough, coughs and colds, and is wonderfully effective in relieving and curing asthma. Twenty-five cents a bottle, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. 9

Doan's Kidney Pills

Cured After Other Remedies Had Failed.

These Wonderful Kidney Pills will Cure the Most Obstinate Cases of Kidney Trouble if Only Given a Fair Trial and Used According to Directions.

Read what Mrs. Geo. H. Alward, Whites Point, N.B., has to say about them: "This is to certify that I have used Doan's Kidney Pills for pain in the back and kidney trouble and I do most gratefully recommend them to any person suffering in this way. I was so bad with kidney trouble that I could not get around the house. My feet and ankles were so swollen and painful that I could get no rest day or night. I tried several remedies but could get no relief whatever until a friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I soon perceived a decided change for the better and had only taken two boxes when I was able to do my housework again, and three boxes made a complete cure."

A Golden Heart

BY BERTHA M. CLAY

Sir Karl did come; and he looked anything but pleased at seeing Miss de Ferras there. He was not embarrassed, for he knew of nothing that need embarrass him. He had always acted in a straightforward manner, and it was not his fault if other people were different.

At last he became annoyed. He said to himself that she must be trying to vex him. He had come over to talk to Dolores, and he could hardly get a word with her. From something Lola had said, he learned that she was to be Lady Rhysworth's guest for a week, and he resolved that he would run up to London and stay there that week. He would find no pleasure in visiting Deeping Hurst while Lola was there. He could not talk at his ease to its mistress; besides which, he could not endure, in the presence of Dolores, the air of confidential intimacy that Lola assumed toward him.

"I am going up to London to-morrow, and shall be absent for a week," he remarked.

The face of one lady darkened, and that of the other brightened. Lola was vexed that her scheme was baffled, while Dolores had not felt very comfortable, and did not care to have the interview repeated in Lola's presence. She saw now how matters stood between them. It was Lola who cared for Sir Karl, and not Sir Karl for her.

"You are going to London," she said; "will you write to me from there as you did from Paris?"

He felt rather than saw the sweet, moist eyes of Dolores, fixed full upon him; and he answered gently—

"No; I am afraid I shall have no time for writing. Is there anything I can do for you?"

"No. If you will not write, you shall not do anything else. Lady Rhysworth, do you not think it very unkind of him? He wrote to me from France and Italy, yet will not have time to send one line from London."

"Sir Karl could never be unkind to you or anyone else," replied Dolores; and her eyes rested in sweetest trust on his face.

"You have a far higher opinion of him than I have," said Lola.

"A week's absence differs from the long absence of years," said Lady Rhysworth. "It may be just possible that in one week he would have nothing to say."

"Can I not see you for one moment, Dolores?" whispered Sir Karl.

"It is not possible," she answered. "I cannot leave my guest."

He muttered something which made Dolores smile; she was afraid that it was a strong expletive. But the expression of his face amused her most. It was just that of an impetuous, impatient, schoolboy. Lola looked up quickly.

"Have you any business or secrets to discuss?" she said. "Am I de trop?"

"Certainly not," replied Dolores. "I do not believe Sir Karl could keep a secret, even if he had one. A pleasant journey to London, Sir Karl," she added, "and a safe return."

Lola went up to him, and said in a low tone—

"Be sure to write to me if you do find time."

"I feel sure that I shall not have time," he replied; with which ungracious words he made her adieu.

* * * * *

The three months which Sir Karl had said he would wait were ended, and he had once more laid his heart at the feet of Dolores. This time there were no reproaches, no regrets. With her arms round his neck, her flower-like face near his own, she told him the truth—how well she had loved him and him alone—told him the whole story of her engagement and the cause of it, and how her heart through all had been his.

But gall was mingled with her cup of happiness, for in the background Dolores saw in her mind's eye the stately form of Lola de Ferras, looking like an avenging angel, with deadly hate and revenge stamped on her handsome features.

CHAPTER XVI.

Sir Karl wanted Dolores to marry him at Christmas. He told her that her period of mourning had been long enough to satisfy the most scrupulous and exacting. He urged, pleaded; he even brought down little Kathleen and told her to ask "mamma" to be kind to him. At Christmas Lord Rhysworth was coming to take possession of Deeping Hurst. If she would but say "Yes," he would at once commence making the necessary preparations at Scarsdale, and, if she did not care to have their engagement announced, it should be kept a profound secret until two or three weeks before the wedding took place. There was no resisting his pleading, especially when he raised little Kathleen in his arms and told her not to cease kissing "mamma" until she had said "Yes."

"You love me, Kathleen, do you not?" he cried.

"Your own little daughter gives you to me, Dolores. You must not be cruel. It is not as though I had only just learned to love you. Remember my years of faithful, hopeless love. Say 'Yes.'"

She was whispering something to him with her arms round his neck and her beautiful face hidden on his breast.

"What is it you are saying?" he cried, in utter astonishment. "You are what, Dolores? Say the words again. You are frightened because of Lola? My darling, what nonsense! Even should she take umbrage at my marriage, which she has no right to do, why should she be angry with you? What could she do to you? Dolores, you are a fanciful, nervous woman, I believe! What could she do to you?"

"I cannot tell why I am afraid of her; but I do know that, as I am sitting here quite happy with you, the thought of her frightens me. When I look forward to the time when I shall be with you, the thought of Lola darkens it."

"How strange!" he murmured.

"It is not so strange," said Lady Rhysworth in a voice full of emotion. "Do not think me wanting in delicacy if I say that I am quite sure that she loves you." Her sweet face flushed hotly as though she had been confessing some great transgression of her own.

"The more I think of it," she continued, "the more I am sure that I am right. While you were away from home she had many offers of marriage, all of the kind that the world calls good, but she would not accept any of them. I remember how people wondered. I am sure now that it was for your sake, Karl. She was quite a different girl when she heard that you were coming home. Whether she had any suspicion that you cared for me I cannot tell; but she has always spoken of you to me as though you belonged to her."

"You did not believe it?" he said, quickly.

"No, I did not because you had told me the truth about it; but I am very sorry for her, and I am frightened."

You need not fear," he replied.

But he could not help owning to himself that the situation was awkward. He ought not to feel angry with any one for showing him great affection, but he wished with all his heart that Lola was married and safely away. He could not bear to see his darling's face clouded even by this shadow.

"You must cheer up, Dolores. All will be well," he said, "there is no cause for fear. As for deferring our wedding for that, it would be utter nonsense. Our marriage will at once put an end to all unpleasantness. Say Christmas, like a darling, and forget Lola."

"Did you ever, when you first became acquainted with her, flirt with her without any thought of love?" she asked.

"No; I pledge you my word that I never did. Before I loved you and every thought of my heart was concentrated on you, I was perhaps given to admiring every pretty girl I saw. I could not help it," acknowledged the handsome young fellow, blushing for his weakness; "and I may have admired her. But I was on my guard, Dolores, from the first moment I saw that she was kind enough to take any interest in me. I have never misled her in any respect—neither by word or look. You believe me, do you not?"

"Yes, implicitly. I see no motive for deception. If you had wished to marry her, you could have done so. My faith and trust in you are perfect, Karl."

In the troubled after time, those words, "My faith and trust in you are perfect, Karl," came to her again and again; they pierced her heart with their memories and stood before her in letters of fire.

"You must see for yourself, Dolores," he continued, "that our wedding will put a stop at once to all this kind of thing. Now look at me with your sweetest smile. Say 'Yes,' and let me have the infinite happiness of beginning to prepare Scarsdale for you."

She whispered the word; and, if ever any man felt grateful to Heaven, felt his heart thrill with happiness, it was Sir Karl Allanmore.

The secret of her engagement was well kept for a time. The redecoration and refurnishing of Scarsdale excited no surprise. It had long wanted doing, and it seemed only natural that Sir Karl should embellish his mansion on his return, and after so long an absence. But the news got wind at length through the indiscretion of the old Squire. He was so delighted that his beautiful Dolores was to be so happy at last. Speaking of her one day to an intimate friend of hers, he said that she had carried off the two best prizes in the neighborhood. This remark awakened the visitor's curiosity, further inquiries were made, and then the whole affair came to light. Certainly Sir Karl was in love with his daughter.

It happened that Madame de Ferras had driven over to make a call on Mrs. Marabout; and when she entered the drawing-room of that lady, the news was being discussed. Lady Fielden was present. She was kind of heart as a rule, and seldom said ill-natured things; but even she had waxed indignant at the information that Lady Rhysworth was to marry Sir Karl. She had two daughters of her own, and she felt it rather hard that Dolores should have carried off the two most eligible men in the neighborhood. Lord Rhysworth she had not grudged her. It was a good match for the girl who had no mother to help her in the most important event in her life—getting married. But it was hardly possible to feel so well disposed when Sir Karl who would have made so excellent a husband for one of her own daughters, was taken captive by the same fair hands.

All the pleasure of her visit was over for madame, she took no further interest in the gossip that was going on around. Pale and troubled, she rose to go home.

When she had departed, Lady Fielden said, laughing—

"Mademoiselle Lola will be vexed at the news. I have always fancied she had a liking for Sir Karl."

Madame drove home, her heart filled with grief for her daughter.

"I would rather have to tell her anything than this," she said to herself. "If she love him, as I fear she does, it will almost kill her."

When Lola saw her mother's face, she knew that something terrible had happened. She sprung to meet her, crying:

"What is the matter, mamma? Why do you look so sad?"

But madame was afraid to tell her.

"I am tired, my dear. It is a fatiguing drive, and the weather is very warm and oppressive."

"My dearest mamma, it is not the weather that makes you look so unhappy. Have you had bad news from France?"

"No. I am not quite sure, Lola, whether I have heard bad news or not; you must decide. When Sir Karl called here first on his return to England, and I saw how delighted you were at his coming, I fancied that there was something between you, that it might have been for his sake you had sent so many of your lovers away, and that you liked him. Was I right, Lola?"

"Quite right, mamma. I should have said nothing about it unless you had spoken first. But the real truth is—why should I disguise it?—that I love him with my whole heart."

She did not blush or avert her face; she showed none of the sweet, natural shame that a girl feels when she speaks first to her mother of her love affairs. The beautiful face had grown perfectly white.

"I feared so," said madame. "I have heard something about him which I hope and pray may not be true."

"What is it?" asked Lola, eagerly.

She went up to her mother, laid her hands upon her shoulders, and looked straight into her face.

"Tell me what it is. I can bear anything but suspense. Is he ill? If so, I will go to him. No one has more right than I have."

"It is not that," replied madame; "it is something quite different. He is well and happy—too happy, if all I hear be true. He is supposed," faltered madame—"remember Lola, that not one word may be true—he is supposed to be on the point of marriage."

Madame never forgot the [illegible] stricken, despairing look that [illegible] over her daughter's face, which [illegible] ed all in one moment to take [illegible] youth and beauty from it. Lola did not speak, but from the white, set lips came a long, low, lingering cry.

"It may not be true," continued madame, falling back on the only comfort she could give. "Things are so often exaggerated. Lady Fielden was the first to mention it; she said that Sir Karl Allanmore was to marry Lady Rhysworth in two or three weeks' time, that it was for his bride the Hall had been re-decorated!"

She says: "I wish to add my testimony to the many others who have spoken so highly as to the unfailing virtues of Burdock Blood Bitters. I was all run down, had no appetite, lost all ambition, could not sleep much and had terrible headache and backache, and my food did not digest properly. I saw B B B. advertised, so concluded to give it a trial, thinking if it did no good it could do no harm. But after using one bottle I began to feel better, and by the time I had used three bottles I was feeling like a new person. I am so glad there is such a remedy provided for suffering humanity, and cannot praise it enough for I think there is no medicine like it on the market."

It seems hard to believe that during all the long ages which passed between the dawn of civilization and the Christian era the Romans and Greeks should have been ignorant of the most familiar pet of our homes, the common cat. Yet no fact seems established more clearly than this. Hahn in his "Wanderings of Plants and Animals" insisted upon it, and it has since been established by the united efforts of scholars and zoologists. We know now that our domestic favorite—with its winning, coy ways, uneasy when removed from man's society and yet never completely trusting it, with its mysterious old world air—was unknown to the chief nations of antiquity till after the Christian era.

It was the patient and gifted nation of the Nile valley that built the hall of columns at Karnak and that reared such colossal statues as that of Rameses II. at Memphis, not to speak of the pyramids, that first tamed the cat. Hereditary antipathy as deep as that which reigns between the feline race and mankind does not die out in a generation. Countless years and many dynasties must have passed ere the wildest members of creation became the most faithful servants of mankind. In Egypt we know that cats were regarded with veneration and embalmed and buried after their death.—London Academy.

Nine out of every ten men have been guilty of transgression against nature in their youth. Nature never excuses, no matter how young, thoughtless or ignorant he may be. The punishment and suffering corresponds with the crime. The only escape from its ruinous results is proper scientific treatment to counteract its effects. The DRAINS, either by nightly losses, or secretly through the urine, must be stopped—the NERVES must be built up and invigorated, the blood must be purified, the SEXUAL ORGANS must be vitalized and developed, the BRAIN must be nourished. Our New Method Treatment provides all these requirements. Under its influence the brain becomes active; the blood purified so that all pimples, blotches and ulcers disappear; the nerves become strong as steel, so that nervousness, bashfulness and despondency disappear; the eyes become bright, the face full and clear, energy returns to the body, and the moral, physical and sexual systems are invigorated; all drains cease—no more vital waste from the system. The various organs become natural and manly. We invite all the afflicted to call and consult us confidentially and free of charge. Cures Guaranteed or no Pay. A Thing of the Past.

The town crier is a thing of the past, but medical methods as old and as obsolete as the town crier are still practiced in many a country town. Women suffering from womanly diseases shrink from the offensive examinations, indelicate questionings, and obnoxious local treatments, still in vogue with some local practitioners. Any sick woman is invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free, and so avoid methods which are offensive to her modesty. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is peculiarly and particularly a medicine for the cure of womanly diseases. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

"You have my heart-felt thanks for the kind advice you sent me" writes Mrs. Florence Archer, of Eason, Macon Co., Tenn. "Words fail to express what I endured for about eight years with female trouble. The awful pain that I had to endure each month, no tongue can express. These bearing-down pains, backache, headache, distress in my stomach and sore in my breast, cramp in limbs—they have all left me and health has taken the place of these distressing troubles. What caused them to leave? It was the best medicine on earth—Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. In one week's time I began to feel better. After taking six bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' and using the local treatment you advised I felt like a new woman."

New York, May 11th, 3.45 p. m. — There was an improvement in general market sentiment to-day owing to general belief that the Government will come to relief of money market by buying a large block of bonds. Secretary Shaw was here to-day canvassing general situation, and is led to the impression that his visit was more of a personal nature and in connection with Custom House business, but the idea prevailed in banking circles and in Wall Street that he came for purpose of seeing what was necessary to ease up present stringency and dissipate the prevailing pessimistic feeling at the instance of the president.

Generally assumed he would not only finally decide to anticipate balance of interest due April 1st on Government bonds but would later announce a proposition to buy in large blocks of the same. It was pointed out by bankers that according to law one per cent. of the Government debt should be retired each fiscal year for sinking fund. This would be equal to retirement of about 56,000,000 bonds per annum and as Government has only retired so far about 10,000,000 there would be a good chance now of the Government offering to purchase 40,000,000 which would be ample to relieve present stringency. Of course it is doubtful that any such large amount as this would be turned over to treasury unless fair prices were offered for them. Most traders were inclined to anticipate sentimental influence and general effect of such development and general disposition from the commencement of business was to cover shorts and take long side for a turn. In addition to their buying, London took about 50,000 on balance and there was considerable rebuying by pools and covering of shorts. The technical speculative position of market is greatly improved but until there is some actual and very elaborate arrangement made to give relief to recent strained money situation we do not look for any stability to the market. We see no reason to turn up the bull side.

MARKET NOTES.

The falling off in business on the Toronto Exchange has lessened the estimation in which seats were held a few months ago. The nominal figure for a seat is thought to be $20,000, but it is asserted that a buyer could be accommodated at a good reduction from this price.

C.P.R. is showing a little heaviness to-day, and the general impression is that the stock will sell lower. The prospect of new stock is not the bull feature, as it was last spring, and it is not unlikely that it may act in the opposite direction this time.

The immediate future of the stock market suggests moderate fluctuations. Good securities are a purchase upon all sharp declines, but moderate profits will have to be accepted until signs of greater activity are in sight. There is rather less profit of stringent money than a month ago, partly because refunding operations are adding to the supply of money and the withdrawl of several important trust companies from the Clearing House arrangement will considerably lessen reserve requirements. Speculation also tends to strengthen the bank reserves, still the great improvement need be expected until the crops, money and labour prospects are cheaper than at present. These three are the ruling factors.

A Bit of Scotland in Canada.

At a point 145 miles north of Toronto on the Grand Trunk Railway system is reached one of the most magnificent districts in the Highlands of Ontario known as the Lake of Bays District. The region comprises a series of connected lakes, over which large steamers are navigated. What greatly adds to the Lake of Bays name as a health-giving and sportsman's resort is the unmatched purity of the air one breathes upon its heights. The visitor forgets his ills under its reviving influence in less than a week, and sees life's problems in a smoother light, enjoying the good things in this life which Nature and Providence have prepared for him. Its bracing morning breeze which rivals the celebrated atmosphere of Pike's Peak, Col., impart new lung power and fresh vitality.

After the match the town team entertained the visitors at a dinner, which was served in the Club House, after which speeches were made by Messrs. J. D. Flavelle, Campbell, Paddon, Barr and Hopkins.

The visiting team returned on the 9 o'clock train.

LACROSSE.

There will be a line up of both Senior and II T.A.S. teams on Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock sharp.

The II T.A.S. team will elect a captain this evening.

A Montreal despatch says:—"The Shamrock and National Lacrosse Clubs may resign from the National Amateur Lacrosse Union if the league at its special meeting, to be held in the Windsor Hotel on May 16, fails to uphold these clubs in their endeavour to rectify matters as they now stand as regards the signing of players and like features of much importance to the game.

"During the past week a close meeting of certain officials connected with the Shamrock and National Clubs was held, when the present situation, in so far as the N.A.L.U. is concerned, was discussed from a local point of view. The decision arrived at was as given above. If these clubs resign from the league, their teams will arrange a series of home-and-home matches, to be played at intervals during the season.

"Montreal has taken the star players of both teams."

"Larry" Tracey who figured on the local T.A.S. team last season, will be with the Toronto Tecumsehs this summer.

Eugene McNichol, also of last year's T.A.S. team, has thrown in his lot this year with Bracebridge.

Orillia has corralled Hagmer, whose domicile last year was at Cahawa.

The Athletics had a good practice last night. Several players being out for the first time. Jack Bowes was in uniform and gives every appearance of a first-class man. In future the team will practice on the Oval, commencing Wednesday night. Arrangements are being made to hold a concert at an early date, and the team will likely play away from home on the 25th.

FOOTBALL.

The first league match of the season will take place on the Nicholls oval at three o'clock on Saturday, when Bethany will play the Y.M.C.A. team in a Midland League match.

A meeting of the executive of the Y.M.C.A. Football Team will be held to-morrow evening at eight o'clock.

The Quakers played their first game on Saturday with the Aylmers, defeating their team by a score of 1—0. Mr. Ben Simpson refereed in a very satisfactory manner. The Quakers lined up as follows:—

Goal, T. Grant.
Backs, M. Guerin, W. Copp.

Grant in goal for the Quakers, played a good game and made some pretty stops. The Quakers will practice on the Riverside Park, on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, and on Saturday afternoons until further notice.

CANOEING.

The Lindsay Post says:

Mr. T. W. Greer, secretary of the Sturgeon Point Regatta Committee, received a letter on Saturday from the secretary of the Toronto Canoe Club, stating that the members are looking forward to the visit to the Point on Saturday, July 11th, and are very anxious to meet crews from Barrie, Peterborough, Orillia and Lindsay, in the war canoe races. He further states that Mayor Urquhart and other leading Toronto citizens will likely attend the regatta.

BASEBALL.

A meeting of the junior baseball teams of the town is called for at 8 o'clock to-morrow night in the Y. M.C.A. for the purpose of organizing a junior league. The players must not be over eighteen years of age.

* * * *

A very interesting and amusing game was played in the west end of the town yesterday between "The Rip Tear, Don't Care" girls' team and the Young Ponies, a boys club. The boys were ungallant enough to win the game by a score of 17 to 15.

FAMOUS OLD WARSHIP "ANSON" SUNK IN 1805.

Was one of Rodney's Ships and Later was Under Nelson's Command.

An interesting find has just been made among the wreckage of the famous frigate Anson, which after a submersion of ninety-five years was discovered last October on the Eastern shore of Mount's Bay, Cornwall. Captain Anderson of the steamer Greencastle, belonging to the West of England Salvage Company, who purchased the wreck from the admiralty, was directing the salving operations. Almost the first piece of wreckage to come up was a gun 10 feet 6 inches long, with several round shot attached.

A Relic of Nelson's Navy.

The Anson is a relic of the navy of Nelson's day. She is a line-of-battle ship, she was launched in 1782, and was afterwards commanded by the great admiral's son. Then she was cut down to a 24-gun frigate, and appeared on the scene once more when the war with France broke out. In the famous quiberon Bay expedition of 1795 she took a conspicuous part, and in the later stages of the long struggle fought several spirited actions, notably one with the Loire, which was forced to surrender.

King George III. on her Decks.

In 1796 the captain of the Anson gave a ball on the decks of the frigate when she lay off Weymouth, and George III. and Queen Charlotte were among those who attended. Though not at the battle of Trafalgar, the Anson was some time previously under Nelson's orders. In 1805, in company with the Arethusa, she accomplished the famous feat of destroying a French frigate and ten gunboats in West Indian waters.

CAPTAIN AND FIFTY MEN DROWNED.

The same year, after being engaged with the fleet watching Brest, she was driven ashore at Mount's Bay, her gallant commander, Captain Lydiard, and fifty men being drowned.

"Work and Play."

The biggest summer resort within easy reach of civilization is what is commonly termed Muskoka, a district in the Highlands of Ontario, about 100 miles north of Toronto, including an immense tract of country bordering on the Georgian Bay. This district is composed of lakes and rivers innumerable and is situate 1,000 feet above sea level. Good fishing and hunting are assured. Ample hotel accommodation at all points on the lakes is provided to suit the purses of everyone. Excellent transportation service.

Copies of handsome descriptive literature relating to this country, can be had free by applying to J. D. McDonald, District Passenger Agent, G. T.R., Toronto.

RESEMBLE TRAMCARS.

The first two trains built in connection with the "electrification" of the Metropolitan District Railway have been recently delivered to the company, and are now at South Harrow, where they are being fitted with their electrical equipment before being worked in a series of trial trips over the new section of railway between that place and Ealing. This line, though it has been completed for about two years, has not yet opened to the public, and it is now being used as a sort of training ground in connection with the "electrification," a small power station having been built to supply the electric current, as the main station at Chelsea is still far from complete. The new trains are interesting as constituting a great departure from all former British practice in railway carriage design, the only cars at all resembling them being those in use on the Central London Railway.

Painted a Bright Yellow.

The District cars are painted a bright yellow, and they are thoroughly American, both in appearance and in arrangement, though they were built at Loughborough, in England. They are much more like tramcars than railway carriages, as all the seats are placed longitudinally along the sides, with a broad corridor running down the middle. The doors are, of course, at the ends of the cars, with platform gates to be manipulated by a conductor standing between the cars as on the Central London Railway. But the District cars also have side doors in the middle, which, however, do not open outwards as in an ordinary railway carriage, but slide, handles being provided to enable them to be worked either from within the car or from the station platforms. It is possible that these side doors may not be used in the ordinary way, but treated, as emergency exits; or they may be used only at stations where a large number of people desire to alight at one time. There are seven cars to each train, and each car is 50 feet long and holds about the same number of people. The total seating capacity of the train, therefore, is about 350 passengers, which is not much more than half the number which can be seated on an ordinary English suburban train of the compartmental type. Those who are responsible for the new arrangements on the District frankly say that they expect to carry almost as many passengers standing as seated in the new trains in the busy hours. This, it appears, is the usual thing on American electric railways, and the wide passage between the seats with straps hanging from the roof is designed for this end. Whether the London traveler will take kindly to this arrangement remains to be seen. Its advocates contend that with real "rapid transit"—i.e., very frequent trains traveling at high speed and spending the minimum of time at the stations—the objection to standing in the cars largely disappears.

There are several other new features in the internal fittings of the new District cars. One is the absence of all cloth or stuffing in the upholstery, the seats being all covered with the material known as "rattan." This is done in the interests of cleanliness, in fact there is nothing inside these cars which cannot be washed over every day. All the material employed is as far as possible fireproof, the wood having been treated by the patent "non-inflammable" process, while the ceilings are lined with asbestos. But for this precaution one might apprehend danger from fire from the electric "heaters," sixteen of which are placed under the seats of each car. This heating apparatus is an American patent and finds much favor in that country, but it is quite new in an English suburban train.

Motors Under the Floors.

Practically all the electrical equipment for driving the trains is carried under the floors of the three motor cars, which are placed one at each end of the train and one in the middle. A small space above the floor of each of these cars is required for the motorman's cabin, but with this exception the entire length of these cars, as of the "trailers," is available for the service of the public. On the two end motor cars of the District trains luggage lockers have been provided. There is, of course, no locomotive, as the trains are driven by what is known as the "multiple-unit" system. Apart from the saving in weight and length of train resulting from this system of traction, it has the great advantage of easy adaptation to the needs of the traffic. Three seven-car trains, for instance, can at any time be split up into two trains, one of three and the other of four cars, or into three trains of correspondingly shorter length or a single motor car can be run if the traffic be exceptionally light. One of the principal objects of the trial trips about to be run between Harrow and Ealing is to decide which is the best system of "master control" for these "multiple units." Accordingly one of the trains has been fitted with the Thomson-Houston system and the other with the Westinghouse. The former is purely electric, whereas the latter is electro-pneumatic.

So far as the fittings of the cars of these new trains are concerned, no distinctions of "class" are observable. Of course, if in this matter also American practice be followed, there will be one class only on the "electrified" District Railway, but no final decision has been come to on this point. It is possible that, as a concession to British custom, some of the cars will be labeled "reserved," and for these, of course, an extra fare would be charged. Apart from this, it is understood to be the intention of the authorities to introduce a uniform fare of about 2½d. for any distance.—Correspondence of London Times.

MANITOULIN COMES FIRST.

Evidence of a Reporter Who According to Gamey's Evidence was to be Used to "Scare the Government."

Toronto, May 13.—The Gamey Commission resumed its labors yesterday morning, and took evidence for two hours and a half, after which it adjourned until this morning at ten o'clock.

The Ontario Bank has finally decided, after some weeks of controversy, that no outsider shall be permitted to examine its books. A letter to this effect from Mr. Walter Barwick, K.C., was read, but it was added that the officials of the bank had been instructed to look into the books, and that they would be in a position to report to-morrow.

A couple of reports as to the condition of the jail at Little Current, a minor matter, which has come up in connection with the enquiry, were put in.

MORNING PROCEEDINGS.

Mr. Chas. Cavers, a World reporter, was called and examined by Mr. Ritchie.

Q.—Do you know Mr. Frank Sullivan? A.—Yes, I know him to see him; I have spoken to him.

Q.—Do you recollect seeing Mr. Stratton and Mr. Sullivan together at any time this year? A.—Yes, sir, I was going up to the Parliament buildings between the 16th January and 10th of February of this year. I saw them near Mr. Stratton's private entrance. Sullivan was with me. When Mr. Stratton passed us Sullivan left me and followed Mr. Stratton up towards his private entrance and remained in conversation with him for five minutes, I should judge. Fully that long.

PROMISED AN INTRODUCTION.

Cross-examined by Mr. Johnston.

Q.—Nothing unusual about these two men speaking? A.—There was something unusual about that, if I am allowed to say.

Q.—Did Sullivan say something about introducing you? A.—Yes, that is what fixed it in my mind.

Q.—And went apparently for that purpose? A.—Well, I don't know what he went for.

Q.—What other reason did he give for it, as far as you know, at that time? A.—Mr. Sullivan previous to that said that he would introduce me to Mr. Stratton—would take me to his private office.

Q.—But on that occasion, what other reason do you suppose he had for speaking to Mr. Stratton, except to introduce you or see whether he might introduce you? Do you know of any other reason? A.—No, sir.

Q.—What were you going to be introduced to him for? A.—Frank and I have been friends, and he said he would help me out around the buildings—would take me to Mr. Stratton and say I was a friend of his, and Mr. Stratton would give me any news he had.

Q.—You were the gentleman putting the scare lines in the World? Were you the man that was referred to? A.—Yes, I think I was. I did not put any scare lines in.

Q.—Now you come along with a scare conversation? A.—I don't think it is a scare conversation.

Q.—When was this thing first called to your mind? A.—When I heard Mr. Stratton say that he hadn't seen Frank Sullivan from the 9th of September until the day before the House met.

Q.—Now, let me tell you that Mr. Stratton never said anything of the kind? A.—Well, what did he say?

Q.—Now at page 2607 of volume 7 of the evidence, this is what he says, notwithstanding the newspaper men: "Q.—Now, Mr. Stratton, are you sure that you didn't see some person to whom you spoke about Mr. Gamey about three weeks before the meeting of the House; think that over, and tell me whether you did or not? A.—In what respect, Mr. Blake? Q.—Meet some person in one of the corridors two or three weeks before the opening of the House—a memorandum that I have states that you had an interview with Mr. Frank Sullivan in the corridor, near your office, two or three weeks before the opening of the House? A.—No, I had no interview with Mr. Sullivan. Q.—You swear absolutely to that? A.—I do."

Q.—Now, will you swear, having heard that evidence read, that Mr. Stratton had such an interview with Mr. Sullivan as referred to in that evidence—will you or will you not? A.—That was two or three weeks before the House met?

Q.—I am not caring about the time. Will you swear that Mr. Stratton had such an interview with Mr. Sullivan as is referred to in Mr. Stratton's evidence that I have read? I want yes or no. Will you swear to it as a fact upon your oath? A.—I don't care to swear to anything of that kind.

VOLUNTEERED THE INFORMATION.

The Chancellor—Q.—You cannot tell what the subject of conversation was? A.—No.

Q.—And it was a month before the House met, as you put it? A.—I think so.

Mr. Johnston—Q.—I am covering this particular interview. Now, what Mr. Stratton swore to is that he had no interview with Mr. Frank Sullivan with reference to Gamey for two, three, four or five weeks before the House met? A.—That is not so. If—

Q.—Can you contradict that? A.—Yes, if you are not particular to two, three, four or five weeks.

Q.—Can you contradict what Mr. Stratton says, that he had no interview with reference to Mr. Gamey with Mr. Frank Sullivan for two or three or four weeks before the 10th of March? A.—No, sir, I don't know what they were talking about.

Q.—Did you volunteer the information? A.—Yes. I spoke to several people about it, and said I knew Mr. Stratton was wrong.

Q.—But you see we have shown that you don't know anything about it. I am asking you now, because you did not know, apparently, what Mr. Stratton had sworn to, to whom did you volunteer the information. A.—Well, I was stating two or three days ago—but I had told both Mr. Ritchie and Mr. McPherson previous to that.

MR. GAMEY'S POLITICS.

William H. Hearst, barrister of Sault Ste. Marie, testified that he had campaigned in Manitoulin with Mr. Gamey, and that the latter had made it clear at his meetings that he was running on the straight Conservative platform. The only speakers at most of the meetings were Mr. Gamey, Dr. Fell and the witness.

In cross-examination, Mr. Hearst said he knew nothing about Mr. Gamey's personal canvass.

Dr. Fell, who was Conservative candidate in East Algoma in the campaign of 1898, followed. In last May's campaign he stumped Manitoulin in all its settlements on Mr. Gamey's behalf. At some meetings Gamey was present with him. He swore that Gamey ran as a straight Conservative. He had spoken in many ridings, but had never heard more bitter denunciations of the major portion of the Ross Government's policy than those which fell from Mr. Gamey's lips.

Dr. Fell said he wished to clear up some misapprehension that existed among honest people on this question. Every candidate in his experience, be he Grit or Tory, used certain stereotyped phrases stating that he would reserve to himself the right of judgment on the measures he would support. That was all that Gamey had said.

Cross-examined, Dr. Fell said that no sane man nowadays went to Parliament bound hand and foot.

More Campaign Talk.

John Kinney, farmer, and Town Clerk of Gore Bay, was next sworn. He stated that he had attended several meetings held by Mr. Gamey, at which Gamey spoke as a Conservative and denounced the policy of the Ross Government. At the Conservative convention Gamey was given a free hand, but witness said he would certainly find fault with Gamey if he voted for a Government measure in the interest of the constituency alone. Witness naively admitted he was a strong politician.

J. A. Kinney, who was one of the concealed witnesses in the piano factory, said he heard Mr. Gamey at several campaign meetings. Mr. Gamey said nothing to justify anyone in thinking that he would support the Liberal Government.

Samuel King, of Sturgeon Falls, clerk, resided at Providence Bay during the general elections of 1902. He corroborated the evidence of previous witnesses. During his testimony, it transpired that he had been in Chicago for some weeks in 1902, but had returned in time to cast a vote in the election. This led Mr. McEvoy to ask the witness: "Are you an American citizen?" Witness replied in the negative.

A Credulous Politician.

A. A. Riley, a Toronto citizen, who came from Little Current last December, and was formerly Mayor of the town, next took the stand. He was nominated at the Conservative convention, but retired in Mr. Gamey's favor. Nothing was said at any of the meetings about Mr. Gamey giving an "independent support" to the Ross Government. Mr. Johnston was curious to know if the member for Manitoulin should oppose bad measures initiated by the Conservatives, but the witness didn't expect there would be such measures.

"My Dear Foy" Again.

Mr. Ritchie called attention to the reason Mr. Stratton gave for addressing a letter in October to "My dear Gamey" if he were not on friendly terms, that he might have been thinking of "My dear Foy." He produced a letter written by Mr. Blake to Mr. Foy, dated December 27, nearly three months later, so that Mr. Stratton could not have had it in mind.

Mr. Johnston retorted that there was another "My dear Foy" letter written before the 22th, in which vitriol was poured on the party.

Mr. Ritchie dissented from this.

Mr. Johnston said that if necessary he would call upon Mr. Foy to produce the correspondence with Mr. Blake, for Mr. Blake did write before the general elections promising to speak for him in Toronto.

Mr. McPherson put in a number of technical exhibits, covering minor points in the case. The question of how Mr. D. A. Jones should be called was discussed. Mr. Johnston undertook to examine him in chief, with the privilege of cross-examination if new matter were brought out.

The Chancellor asked if Mr. Gamey would testify. Mr. Ritchie said that Mr. Blake, who was absent from the court, was considering that point.

After the filing of a few formal documents the court adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.

Cleaning Up Evidence.

If the evidence is concluded to-day, argument will continue this week. This seems unlikely, however, and the plan at present in view is to clean up all the evidence this week, and adjourn until Thursday, May 21. It is estimated that the addresses of counsel will take three full days.

FUNERAL OF JUSTICE MILLS.

Ridgetown Pays Last Tributes to the Mortal Remains.

Ridgetown, May 13.—Yesterday afternoon a representative delegation of citizens, neighbors and admirers of the late Hon. David Mills met the train, to which was attached the special car "Montreal," conveying the remains and the immediate relatives of the deceased statesman. Several hundred of the citizens of the town were in waiting to pay their last tribute to the deceased. Mayor William, by special proclamation, requested all places of business to be closed during the transit of the remains through the town. A procession was formed in the following order: The police force, Town Council, School Trustees, Collegiate Institute staff, citizens on foot, Collegiate Cadet Corps, under Lieut. J. W. Marshall, a guard of honor, pall-bearers, hearse and the relatives in carriages.

Several of the business places of the town were draped, while flags on all poles were at half-mast. The pall-bearers were:

J. H. McKinlay, James E. McKinlay, Archie McKinlay, Archie McDiarmid, Mayor William, John Reycraft, John Duck, Duncan Campbell.

The procession was about a mile in length.

BACK TO FRANK.

Merchants and Other Residents Have Reoccupied the Village.

Blairmore, N.W.T., May 13.—Premier Haultain has re-opened Frank. Merchants and other residents at once re-occupied the place. The conclusion reached by experts was that slides will continue for some time, but to what extent is a matter of judgment. They might come down frequently or there might be a big slide that would wipe out a part of the town, but it was uncertain. R. McConnell and R. W. Brock of the geological survey, are here for the Dominion Government to establish the cause of the slide.

A Lover's Suicide.

Hamilton, May 13.—After quarreling with his sweetheart yesterday morning, Abraham Myles, 171 Bold street, went home, placed a revolver at his temple, and shot himself through the head. He sent his mother and sister out of the house on fool's errands, and then ended his life. The girl in the case is Miss Ethel Bell, 157 West Hunter street. She is exceedingly pretty

"I had an abscess in my side in the fallopian tube (the fallopian tube is a connection of the ovaries). I suffered untold misery and was so weak I could scarcely get around. The sharp burning pains low down in my side were terrible. My physician said there was no help for me unless I would go to the hospital and be operated on. I thought before that I would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which, fortunately, I did, and it has made me a stout, healthy woman. My advice to all women who suffer with any kind of female trouble is to commence taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once."—MRS. IRA S. HOLLINGER, Stilvideo, Ohio.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

It would seem by this statement that women would save time and much sickness if they would get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and also write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for special advice. It is free and always helps. No other person can give such helpful advice as Mrs. Pinkham to women who are sick.

THE GAMEY CHARGES.

(The Canadian Freeman, April 29th.)

Our readers must be satisfied by this time, from the evidence presented before the Commission, that the charges preferred by the "commercial" member for Manitoulin have no substance, and that his well woven story has fiction alone to support it. The gentleman says he was bribed, and owns up to receiving $2,000 in cash, of which $1,500 was melted into his private business seven months ago, but in this he is not alone not corroborated but flatly contradicted on oath by Mr. Sullivan. Mr. Gamey, shortly after his examination, is said to have mutilated the cash book of the Piano Company and changed his bank deposit slip lest, as most people believe, his story would not hang together if the documents were to confront him. Then his mysterious visit to Buffalo to the evident annoyance of his counsel, and the intimation of Mr. Blake that he wished to abandon the case, very plainly indicates that the pit which had been dug for Mr. Stratton is more likely to bury his accusers than himself. All through the trying ordeal Mr. Stratton has preserved a calmness not possible were he guilty—but up to this there is not the slightest necessity for his entrance into the witness box, for the case seems to have collapsed so utterly that the Gameyites are ashamed of their apostle and much regret that the "man for Manitoulin" was ever born.

CARNEGIE SLANDERS CANADA.

(Toronto Star.)

Andrew Carnegie has offered Toronto a public library building, but it would be more fitting if Toronto should present Mr. Carnegie with a library of books in which he could find some useful information about this country.

He has spoken again in contemptuous disparagement of Canada. A few months ago he gave an address, in the course of which he glorified the United States, pictured the business depression in Germany and Great Britain, and as to Canada, said that the Dominion gave no sign whatever of possessing the elements and possibilities of industrial development.

He has been at it again. In an interview with the Ironmongers' Journal, he is represented as saying that Canada can have no influence in bringing Great Britain and the United States into greater sympathy. "Canada has no future except as a part of the States," said Mr. Carnegie. "Her native population increases more slowly than that of Scotland. She only added 536,000 to her population in ten years, and of these 440,000 came from abroad. Canada, standing alone, can never become a great industrial nation. The steel industry is a figment, and Cape Breton a mirage. Nothing there need ever trouble the United States. In no conceivable circumstances can your colonies ever have a population approaching that of the States, and colonial empire, what is it but a politician's catchword?"

Andrew Carnegie does not know what he is talking about, or he slanders Canada designedly. Standing on his pyramid of dollars, he is a conspicuous figure in England, and at the present time his disparagement of this country will work much harm. Some effective answer should be made him, and perhaps the city of Toronto by declining his offer of $350,000 for library purposes, and by sending along a recital of facts concerning Canada, could make that answer most effective.

It is true enough that the population of Canada has not increased at a satisfactory rate up to the present time, but the reason of it is so evident as to deceive nobody. Heretofore the same law that has caused Toronto to draw population from the smaller towns of Ontario has caused the United States to draw population from Canada. The Republic preceded the Dominion in development—received the world's attention a hundred years earlier. The declaration of independence was the greatest advertisement ever penned. In the immigration literature of the world it stands supreme. The country was a great one and its natural wealth enabled it to yield comfort, if not wealth, to nearly all who came. And yet, notwithstanding the millions of people who crossed the ocean to the Republic in a hundred years it was only yesterday that the Republic ceased to depend on the money of Europe for works of development. It is only to-day that the money of the United States finds release to seek investment outside its borders, and it is only to-day that the natural resources of Canada can appeal to British investors without having to bid against the better advertised investments of the better known country next door. The change has come, and Mr. Carnegie does not see it.

Population draws population. When Chicago was being built up so marvellously, the same rumours and inducements that drew young men in thousands from Ohio and Massachusetts, drew them in thousands from Ontario, for the boundary line was no barrier then, as it is no barrier now to the thousands of Americans who are pouring into the Canadian wheat lands of the west. When the Dakotas were being settled there was the same rush of farmers' sons from Ontario as from New York State, because Old Ontario was well settled, and new Canada was not opened up.

People from Europe seeking homes naturally passed Canada by, for it was little known them, while the Republic was known the world over. There was not a village in England, Ireland or Scotland, in which a young man desiring to come to the new world, could not go to a neighbour who had a son or brother in the United States to whom a letter could be sent. History, current fiction, the press, correspondence by mail, drew people from the United Kingdom to the States and not to Canada. But in the natural order of things Canada's turn has come, and that man is not wise or not honest who denies the capacity of the Dominion to absorb a great population, and to become a great country industrially. Our immense wheat fields cannot be surpassed in the world. Our wealth in woods and mines, fisheries and fruits, is nowhere surpassed. It is said that Canada includes more than one-half the fresh water on the globe, which will be a great thing for domestic commerce in the future. In ten years our foreign trade has grown at a greater rate than that of any other country, and our per capita trade is now almost double that of the United States.

Mr. Carnegie does not know anything about Canada, and is probably too old to learn.

BEAUTY'S CHARM.

No woman needs to be told the charm of a clear complexion. No man can be blind to the beauty of rosy cheeks, or the power of sparkling eyes. And every woman—no matter what her features may be—can have a perfect complexion. Bright eyes and a perfect complexion come from pure blood—and pure blood comes from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. By enriching the blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills give vigour, strength, health, happiness and beauty. Here is a bit of proof: "For upwards of three years I suffered from anæmia," says Miss Mary Jackson, of Normandale, Ont., "I had no colour in my face, my lips and gums were bloodless and I grew so weak I could scarcely walk about the house. I doctored a good deal but got no benefit until I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Before I had taken them more than a couple of weeks I could see a change for the better, and continuing the use of the pills for some some time longer my strength returned, the colour came back to my face, and I gained fourteen pounds in weight. I can recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to every weak, ailing girl or woman."

These pills are good for all troubles due to poor blood or weak nerves. Don't take any other medicine—see that the full name, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," is found on the wrapper around every box. If in doubt send direct to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., and the pills will be mailed at 50 cents per box or six boxes for $2.50.

SOME HAPPENINGS IN THE NORTHERN TOWN.

Personal Mention and Other Happenings of Interest at Lakefield.

Messrs. R. P. Butchart, of Owen Sound, and Mr. W. H. E. Bravender, of Hudson City, New York, Vice-Presidents of the Lakefield Portland Cement Company, were in the village on Saturday on business in connection with the works here.

The nine year old son of Mrs. Lennox, who keeps the boarding house at dam No. 3, disappeared from home on Saturday evening, and although a thorough search has been made for the missing lad he has not been found and the mother is grief stricken with the fear that he has been drowned. Hopes are still held out for the safe recovery of the boy.

On Friday evening, May 8th, a social was held in the Methodist church under the auspices of the Epworth League. A very pleasing programme was rendered by various members of the league, and at the close of the programme Mrs. George Fitzgerald read an address, after which Miss I. Cox, on behalf of the Sunday school, presented Mr. Evans with a purse handsomely filled as a token of the esteem in which he was held by the Sunday school workers. Mr. Evans replied in very pleasing terms and stated that it was with deep regret that he parted from his fellow workers in the Sunday school. He cordially thanked them for the kindness that had been shown to him and his family during his sojourn with them, and that he would look forward to the meeting where partings are not known.

Mr. Hill, of Winchester, assumed the duties of principal of the Lakefield public school on Monday morning, a position left vacant by the resignation of Mr. Evans, who has gone to Barrie.

Mr. R. P. Davidson was in Peterborough on Sunday.

Miss Glover, of Peterborough, was in the village on Sunday.

The citizens of Lakefield are somewhat surprised at the attempt on the part of the town of Peterborough to pass a bill in the Provincial House which will give that town the right to appropriate all the power on the Otonabee River. We understand that the bill will meet with some opposition by other municipalities and power owners.

Mr. Thos. J. Tilly, of the Bell Telephone Co., is in the village on his annual inspection and repair tour.

Mr. Cornish, of Liskard, has bought Mr. Bowden's share in the Lakefield Milling Company. Mr. Cornish, who with his wife and daughter, have removed to the village, took over the management of the mill on May 1. Mr. Cornish comes to the village very highly recommended and we hope that a goodly share of prosperity shall be his.

THE HOG RAISING INDUSTRY.

A Man Who has Done Much to Promote its Interests.

There are very few men in the province of Ontario, who have done in a quiet and unassuming way so much to build up the fine trade in bacon that Canada enjoys at the present time as W. H. McNish, of Elm Grove Farm, Lyn, Ont. Through the press on the platform and by practical demonstration on his farm, he has been a true champion of this most worthy cause. As far back as 1889, when our exports of bacon and hams were under a million a year and we were importing from the U.S. more than that, Mr. McNish, while addressing a Farmers' Institute meeting in the city of Hamilton, said: "While we in Ontario are going forward by leaps and bounds in the dairy business, there is a part of that business which is being sadly neglected, and I do not know but that it is the most profitable part, that is the production of more bacon hogs on our dairy farms. We are not actually producing enough for home consumption while we should be exporting at least ten millions worth every year. This I consider a blot on the ability of the Ontario farmer as well as very short sighted. Dairying and hog raising are twin industries, and we cannot hope to attain the highest possible success without the other. Our superior climatic conditions, the large amount of cheap feed in the shape of dairy offal, and the great variety of other feed stuffs, make it possible for us farmers in Canada to successfully compete with any country or people in the world in the production of the very choicest bacon. There is no reason why every dairyman should not sell at least one bacon hog weighing from 160 to 200 lbs. to every cow he keeps, and I hope to see our exports of bacon, by the time another ten years go over my head, where our cheese exports are today."

These hopes have been fully realized, as our exports in 1092 were $12,403,793 worth.

Mr. McNish built a model piggery a few years ago which compares very favourably with any in Ontario. It is 100 x 34 ft. with 12 ft. posts. The ceiling is high and with plenty of windows; the main part is both light and roomy, giving plenty of pure air. The compartments are laid out with a view to comfort and convenience, and the building will accommodate 180 pigs of all ages. The second storey is used for storing feed and bedding and will hold enough straw for a year's use. Grass in summer and roots in winter form a considerable part in the production of these pigs. While the pigs are growing they are given plenty of exercise, which not only keeps them in a healthy condition, but is conductive to the production of a much better class of flesh. When the pigs weigh 125 lbs. they are put up for fattening. The food principally used is fine barley meal and skim milk, which Mr. McNish says has no equal. There are plenty of children that would be very glad to have the very wholesome food and comfortable quarters of Mr. McNish's pigs. The pens are thoroughly cleaned and fresh bedding put in every day. The floors are cement, etc. He has over 100 head of as fine and thrifty pigs as we ever looked at on hand at the present time.

The pure bred Tamworths are the favorites on the farm and Berkshire crossed. Mr. McNish's sales for the last twelve months were 168 hogs of an average weight of 177 lbs. The highest price received was on May 20, $7.00 per cwt.; lowest, Nov. 17, $5.87 1-2 per cwt.

THE PRESS AND ITS CRITICS.

The Press Needs no Defence From Intemperate Critics.

Some Ontario newspapers are making the mistake of treating seriously some remarks made by a minister of the name of Horne in a paper read at the erecting of the Presbyterian synod of Hamilton and London last week, says Hamilton Herald. In this paper Mr. Horne discussed Canadian newspapers. He denounced them as wholly vicious and given over to evil courses, incapable of good because the men who make them are immoral and mercenary. It took the reverend gentleman quite a while to say this, but it is the pith of his essay.

Why should the Woodstock Sentinel Review devote three or four columns of editorial space to defend the Canadian press against this attack? Was it in the least important? Newspaper men—business managers, editors, reporters, printers and all—should be welcome and grateful for candid and helpful criticism, and they almost always are; but a screed like this of the Rev. Mr. Horne should be received with contemptuous silence. We never heard of the gentleman before, but he is, probably, one of those restless, strutting little clerics, fresh from college and panting to be noticed and talked about, who has not yet found his level and is still a victim of the common clerical delusion that what he says must be worth saying and hearing because he wears a black coat of peculiar cut and a white choker. In a few more years, when he knows more, he will know that he doesn't know nearly as much as he is now sure that he knows.

At Mr. Rountree's Hotel on Saturday.

Farmers Should not Fail to see Them on Saturday.

Some very fine stallions were on view in Mr. Rowntrees stables, which are at the rear of his hotel, Brock street. Among several other excellent horses should be mentioned Stately City, Prince Hal, Jr., Young Hermit and Attraction. The imported Clydesdale stallion Stately City, is the property of J. Elmhirst and W. Renwick of Keene. His sire was Prince Romeo (8144) and his dam Nancy (12,710).

Stanley City is a grand, big, thick horse, of great weight and substance and good quality. He has fine, clean, flat bones, and his action is superb. As a yearling he was second at Hamilton and Lanark. As a two-year-old he was third at Glasgow and first at Hamilton; and as a three-year-old he was fourth at Glasgow in a very strong class, and had the Islay Premium both that year and the following one, and was the Greenock Premium horse in 1901 Stately City has only been shown once since he was imported, at the Toronto Spring Stallion Show in February 1903, when he won the sweepstakes in his class, and also the championship as best clydesdale stallion show. He is particularly well bred, and is certain to be a profitable investment to breeders in this district.

He will appear at Rountree's Hotel every Saturday throughout the season, weather permitting.

Prince Hal, Jr., also is the property of Elmhirst & Renwick. He is a pure gaited pacer and stands 15 hands 2 1-2 inches high, is a chestnut and the only entire son of Octoroon. The dam of this horse is Highland Boy and the public can judge his merits when such men as Mr. J. Healey of Niagara, and Mr. A. C. McCombs of Beamsville have used him.

Prince Hal, Jr., since coming into possession of his present owners won the 2.30 trot at Norwood Fall Fair; the County trot at Peterborough in January, 1903; and at the same meet he was matched against the great pacer Re-Elect, winning in straight heats, showing the fastest clip on Peterborough track.

He will also appear at Rountree's Hotel on Saturday throughout the season all conditions being favourable.

Another excellent horse is Young Hermit. This is a beautiful dark dapple chestnut, standing about 16 hands. He is the son of Hermit (3,923) while his dam is Dolly Wilson, by Toronto Chief. This horse is the property of Jas. McMillan and will appear at Rountree's Hotel on Saturdays from one to six p.m. throughout the season, weather and circumstances permitting.

He is a beautiful chestnut, has a narrow stripe on the face, four white stockins and was bred by F. Joy of Detroit, Mich. He is very stylish and of a beautiful conformation, and an all-round high actor. In the showing he has an enviable record, taking first at New York State Fair, 1900 besides many other similar distinctions.

His sire is Fandango (4,256) and his dam Wild Thyone (3,872). It will be seen by the above that this horse is sprung from the bluest blooded and the most noted ancestors in the Hackney stud book.

The above item should be of interest to farmers, who should not fail to see them. They will all appear at Rountree's Hotel, if all conditions are favourable.

SELECT COMMITTEE.

To Be Appointed to Investigate Public Trading.

THE LEGISLATURE TUESDAY.

Col. Gibson, in a Speech of an Hour and a Half, Summed Up the Case, in a Splendid Review of the Situation—Information Needed to Enable Legislators to Perform Their Whole Duty.

Toronto, May 13.—An extensive inquiry into the growth and success or failure of municipal trading will be undertaken by a select committee the adoption yesterday of a resolution by Attorney-General Gibson. The motion calls for an exhaustive examination of reports and publications from various countries upon this subject, particularly based upon the experience of Great Britain, the result to be published in a Parliamentary paper. Col. Gibson, in a speech of an hour and a half, exhibited a splendid grasp of the question, and presented much information and argument favoring both sides. Mr. Whitney professed to be in the dark, but offered no objection, and the resolution passed unanimously. On the motion to go into supply in the evening Dr. Beattie Nesbitt introduced a discussion on Niagara power.

Public Trading.

Attorney-General Gibson in introducing the following resolution, said that the result of his investigations into municipal ownership and public trading went to show that there is much to be said on both sides, but that the preponderance of evidence was against municipal ownership. He then moved the following resolution:

Resolution Introduced.

"That a select committee of five members of the House be appointed for the purpose of selecting reports of committees on commissions or other authorities on the subject of municipal trading or municipal ownership, or operation of public utilities as well as other useful deliverances of authoritative weight on these subjects, both favoring and opposing any of these systems and generally such material as the committee may select, and that the selections made by the committee be printed and distributed to the members of the House in pamphlet form, and that the committee, if necessary, have power to sit and act after the close of the present session, and that publication of the material selected be carried out without necessity of previous report to this House."

Mr. Whitney said he was not quite clear as to what the Attorney-General intended to convey by his speech. While expressing no disapproval of the motion, he (Whitney) thought the members of the committee would be compelled to neglect other duties if it was intended that they should sit during the present session. He said that every time the Attorney-General quoted anything in support of the principle, he at once proceeded to quote the antidote to show that the principle was wrong.

Mr. Crawford wondered if the appointment of the commission was intended to forestall any further move in the direction of the extension of public ownership, and the Premier said: "Certainly not." Mr. Crawford believed that the reasons given by the Attorney-General would convince the people that municipal ownership was the proper thing.

The Premier re-affirmed that the Government had not the slightest intention of side-tracking any of the bills before the House. There was an agitation, he said, for an extensive system of municipal ownership, and he was not opposing it, but before going any further the people should have the benefit of the experience of other countries.

The motion passed, and the Premier announced that the committee would be named to-day.

A number of bills were introduced and read a first time.

Third readings were given to the following bills: Respecting the Huntsville and Lake of Bays Railway (Tudhope); to amend the act incorporating the North Lanark Railway Company (Caldwell); to legalize and confirm Bylaw 679 of the Town of Petrolea (Hanna); to confirm Bylaw 575 of the Town of Sarnia (Hanna); to confirm Bylaw 31 of the Town of Goderich (Cameron); respecting the Ross Memorial Hospital (Fox); respecting the Town of Bracebridge (Tudhope).

The House adopted a motion of Hon. Richard Harcourt, to ratify the following Order-in-Council: Upon the recommendation of the Minister of Education, the Committee of Council advise that a bylaw of the trustees of the University of Toronto be approved by Your Honor, viz., Bylaw No. 16, respecting a loan of $50,000 to the Faculty of Medicine.

The House went into committee on Mr. Ross' bill, respecting the taxation of lands in New Ontario.

Mr. Davis' bill, respecting land grants to veterans, was read a second time.

Mr. Harcourt's bill, respecting Boards of Education in certain cities, and Mr. Gibson's bill respecting local works and improvements, were read a second time.

On the motion to go into supply, Dr. Nesbitt continued his criticism of the Government which he said had given away the most valuable asset in Ontario, the power concessions at Niagara Falls, and if it had appointed a Commission some years ago the province would have been placed in possession of information as to the value of the concessions which have been given away. If the Government could not do anything else it had better buy out the rights of the existing companies and generate the power for the benefit of the people.

Mr. Gross said he believed that if no concessions had been granted no municipality or union of municipalities would care to generate electricity, nor would it be in the interest of the people for the Province to generate electricity at the Falls. The only power at Niagara Falls that had been given away was on the American side.

In reply to Mr. Kribs the Premier said that the Government is prevented by the agreements with the company from developing the remaining power within the boundaries of the park. But there are three other sites outside the park, which the Government is not prevented from utilizing.

In Committee on Supply the items for colonization and immigration, totalling $14,325, were then passed.

On reaching the estimates of the Department of Agriculture the item of $166,950 for grants to agricultural societies provoked some opposition, and the Premier agreed to allow the item to stand over for fuller discussion, and the House adjourned at 11 o'clock.

QUARANTINE ON BIG SCALE.

Mange Among Western Herds May Be Felt in Canada.

Denver, Colo., May 13.—The most extensive quarantine of cattle in the west for many years will be in effect within a few days, as the result of the prevalence of the mange. Six or eight other states and territories will come under the same rule before the end of the week. Cattle from the Mexican border to Canada will come under these regulations, and practically all of the territory from the Rockies to the Missouri River will be affected.

The mange is a highly contagious parasitic disease of the skin that affects all classes of lower animals. It is most important that it should be properly quarantined. While common, it is said by veterinary authorities to be prevalent in no portion of Canada.

Watching Canadian Cattle.

London, May 13.—The British orders prohibiting Argentine live cattle and sheep has raised prices of beef, though the fact that six more ships from Argentina will be admitted this week prevents the possibility of shortage of the supply. Government inspectors are using great vigilance for the detection of disease in importations from Canada and elsewhere.

MANSLAUGHTER.

Toronto Jury Finds Isaac Romaine Guilty of Killing His Partner.

Toronto, May 13.—"Murder, a true bill," was the answer given by the foreman of the grand jury to Mr. Justice Street in the assizes yesterday morning. The accused, Isaac Walter Romaine, stood charged with shooting his partner, Louis Goldsmith, during a row in their tailor shop on Victoria street. Monday afternoon his Lordship instructed the grand jurors that if they found the prisoner had been provoked beyond endurance, and had committed the deed in uncontrollable passion, they might change the charge to manslaughter. The jury reported the more serious charge. Romaine pleaded not guilty, and the trial went on. Various witnesses testified to the shooting, and Romaine himself took the stand and claimed great provocation and fear of his life. The jury, after an hour's absence, brought in a verdict of manslaughter, with a recommendation to mercy. Sentence will be passed at the conclusion of the Assizes.

The Number Seven.

The ancients believed and taught that seven planets ruled the world and its inhabitants, thus accounting for the seven days of the week, the seven holes in the head, the seven colors of the spectrum and the seven senses. The superstition attaching to the seventh daughter of a seventh daughter endows such a person with magical gifts and unlimited good luck.

Among noted events and things that bear this mystical number are the Seven Days' war, the great conflict for German supremacy, the seven churches of Asia, the seven sleepers of Ephesus and the seven wonders of the world.

PUTS BLAME ON WELLS.

Montreal, May 13.—Sir Thomas Shaughnessy leaves to-day for Victoria, B. C., where he will give evidence before the Commission that is enquiring into the South Kootenay land grants scandal.

Tuesday's Proceedings.

Victoria, B. C., May 13.—George McL. Brown, former executive agent of the C.P.R., gave evidence before the Commission enquiring into the alleged South Kootenay land scandal yesterday, to the effect that he had pressed W. C. Wells, Minister of Lands and Works, for delivery of the grants of the land in South Kootenay, as well as Messrs. Dunsmuir and Eberts, but the grants were withheld. He considered that the C. P. R. was entitled to the land subsidy for the building of the Columbia & Western. Wells is alone responsible for the non-delivery of the grants, he said. E. P. Davis, counsel for the C.P.R., will cross-examine Wells today. Sir. Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the C.P.R. has wired that he will be present for the examination next Monday. He is coming from Montreal for that purpose.

New Steamship Service.

Ottawa, May 13.—The Department of Trade and Commerce concluded a contract yesterday for a term of years with Nova Scotia Steel Co., for a summer weekly steamship service between Pictou and Souris, P. E. I., and the Magdalene Islands. The same company are already performing a service between Cheticamp and Pictou.

ROUND EMIR'S FLAG

6,000 AGAINST 500 BRITISH.

Fulanis Charged With Fanatical Bravery Under a Withering Maxim and Rifle Fire—Refusing Quarter, They Were Shot Down at Weapon's Length Crying "Allah"—Great Growth of British Empire.

London, May 13.—Details have been received here of the capture of Sokoto, March 14, by the British column commanded by Col. Morland. The engagement lasted 2½ hours. The British numbered about 500 men, with four quick-firing guns and 4 Maxims. The enemy's horse and foot were estimated to number some 6,000 men, their riflemen being armed with modern rifles, and using smokeless powder.

The British camped during the night of March 13 a mile and a half from Sokoto, after a hard march of 100 miles from Kasra, with but little water, and having passed through a difficult country. At daybreak, March 14, the British moved out in square formation towards the valley in which Sokoto lies. Immediately after the British appeared over a ridge, the Fulanis charged with fanatical bravery, undeterred by a withering fire of Maxims and rifles.

They had no proper leadership, but the isolated bands continued to advance over heaps of dead and dying, often only individuals reaching within a yard of the square, where, refusing quarter, they were shot down while shouting "Allah!" with their last breath. The main body of the natives was finally routed, leaving a remnant of about thirty chiefs around the Emir's great white flag.

These chiefs were defiant to the last, and their corpses were found hedging the standard, when the British entered the city, which consisted mostly of thatched houses. Its semi-ruined wall extended seven miles round the place, and were pierced by eight gates. A few days later, the populace returned and the Fulanis tendered their submission to Commissioner Lugard, who arrived March 19, and installed a new Emir. The British then retired towards the coast, leaving a garrison of two companies.

Red Spot Getting Bigger.

London, May 13.—Colonial Secretary Chamberlain announced in the House of Commons yesterday that as a result of the British Military operations in the Sokoto and Kano districts, ending with the capture of the Emir of Kano, 100,000 square miles of territory had been added to Northern Nigeria, and would be administered by the Government of that territory.

Was Prompt as Possible.

Sir Edwin Landseer, the animal painter, one time was about to put the finishing touches to the portrait of a dog belonging to a nobleman and was expecting a visit from his model when the owner arrived in a state of great perturbation without the dog—the animal had been stolen. After talking over the loss with Sir Edwin, the owner decided to leave the matter in the painter's hands, together with a £10 note for the recovery of the dog. Sir Edwin's acquaintance with the dog fanciers was large, and he summoned to his aid one Jem Smith, who, he thought, might put him on the right track. He showed the man the picture and the bank note, and promised that if the dog was restored no questions should be asked. Six weeks later Smith arrived at the studio leading the missing dog by a piece of string.

"Here is your £10," said the artist, "and I suppose I must ask no questions. But now that the affair is done with you may just as well tell me all about it."

After a moment of hesitation the man confessed that he himself was the thief.

"You, you thundering rascal!" exclaimed Sir Edwin. "Then why on earth have you kept us in suspense all this time?"

"Well, you see, govner," was the answer, "I stole the dorg, but the gen'leman I sold him to kep' him so jolly close that I hadn't a chance of nicking him again till yesterday, and that's the truth s'elp me."—M. A.P.

Britain's Cotton Supply.

The movement to make Britain less dependent upon the United States for the cotton supply is assuming very extensive dimensions. An article which appears in the first issue of The West African Mail, the official organ of the British Cotton Growing Association, sets out to prove that the success of the movement for promoting cotton production within the British Empire means for Britain safety for one of her most impoetant industries, and self-protection against a peril which might become a national disaster; for Lancashire, the cessation of dependence on the United States, increased prosperity from the larger supplies of raw material, and for West Africa the creation of a new industry, an increase in purchasing power, and a consequent advance in the development of the colonies.

Queer Women.

"Yes, all the other women in the neighborhood consider her a suspicious character."

"You don't say! Why is that?"

"She never gossips at all."

Fine Outlook.

"Finest in the world. Editor's up in a tree, an' sees over the whole country!"

A PASTOR'S WIFE

CURED OF PELVIC CATARRH

She Suffered for Years and Felt Her Case Was Hopeless—Cured by Peruna.

Mrs. Anna B. Fleharty.

MRS. ANNA B. FLEHARTY, recent Superintendent of the W. C. T. U. headquarters, at Galesburg, Ill., was for ten years one of the leading women there. Her husband, when living, was first President of the Nebraska Wesleyan University, at Lincoln, Neb.

In a letter written from 401 Sixty-seventh street, W., Chicago, Ill., Mrs. Fleharty says the following in regard to Peruna:

"Having lived a very active life as wife and working partner of a busy minister, my health failed me a few years ago. I lost my husband about the same time, and gradually I seemed to lose health and spirit. My daughter is a confirmed invalid, and we both felt great need of an invigorator.

"One of my neighbors advised me to try Peruna. A bottle was immediately secured and a great change took place in my daughter's as well as in my own health. Our appetites improved very greatly, the digestion seemed much helped, and restful sleep soon improved us, so that we seemed like new women.

"I would not be without Peruna for ten times its cost."—Mrs. Anna B. Fleharty.

What used to be called female diseases by the medical profession is now called pelvic catarrh. It has been found by experience that catarrhal diseases of the pelvic organs are the cause of most cases of female diseas

Dr. Hartman was among the first of America's great physicians to make this discovery. For forty years he has been treating diseases peculiar to women, and long ago he reached the conclusion that a woman entirely free from catarrhal affection of these organs would not be subject to female disease. He therefore began using Peruna for these cases and found it so admirably adapted to their permanent cure that Peruna has now become the most famous remedy for female diseases ever known. Every where the women are using it and praising it. Peruna is not a palliative simply; it cures by removing the cause of female disease.

Dr. Hartman has probably cured more women of female ailments than any other living physician. He makes these cures simply by using and recommending Peruna.

Mrs. E. L. Brown, 329 Elliott street, Memphis, Tenn., writes:

"I suffered for several years with headache brought on by nervous prostration. I was also afflicted with insomnia. I would get up in the morning more weary than when I retired and I used to dread the approach of night. Peruna came into my home as a welcome guest, and within three short months I was like another woman. I have now enjoyed perfect health for over a year, and those who have suffered as I did will know how happy I am."—Mrs. E. L. Brown.

Mrs. Esther M. Milner, De Graff, Ohio, writes:

"I was a terrible sufferer from female weakness and had the headache continuously. I was not able to do my housework for myself and husband. I wrote you and described my condition as near as possible. You recommended Peruna. I took four bottles and was completely cured. I think Peruna a wonderful medicine."—Mrs. Esther M. Milner.

Congressman Thad. M. Mahon, of Chambersburg, Pa., writes:

"I take pleasure in commending your Peruna as a substantial tonic and a good catarrh remedy."—T. M. Mahon.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Sale of Gibbs' Livery.

Remember the sale of horses, carriages and livery plant, the property of Mr. Robert Gibbs, at his stables on Chambers street, at one o'clock to-morrow, (Thursday, May 14.) Everything will be sold as Mr. Gibbs is giving his sole attention to the hack business. John Haggart, auctioneer.

PIANO RECITAL.

Mlle. Decrey will give a farewell recital in the Y.M.C.A. Hall on Thursday evening, May 14th, at 8.15. She will be assisted by Miss Georgie Dennistoun, Mr. Gilbert Markle and Mr. Lawrence. Admission 25c.

One Employer's Way.

The Y.M.C.A. to-day received a cheque, through Mr. Conway, local manager for Grafton & Co., from Mr. J. B. Grafton, of Dundas, the senior member of that firm, who each year provides tickets of membership for the firm's employees in the Y.M.C.A. in towns where the firm has branches. Mr. Grafton is also the heaviest contributor to the Association work in Dundas. Such interest is worthy of imitation by all employers of men.

May be seen in Mr. F. J. Bell's Division Court Office, Water street, where any measurements may be obtained for the following purposes: Measurements for areas, and descriptions for conveyancing, according to registered plans in the Registry Office, all in plain figures in feet. If sub-divisions are to be made areas can be calculated. In cases of assessments for sidewalks, sewers, etc., measurements can be taken from the map. In cases of sale and purchase the areas can be taken from maps. I am sure that lawyers and the general public will find it a convenience to refer to the map and save trouble and expense. G. W. NEW RESIDENCE FOR CEMETERY CARETAKER.

The Directors of the Little Lake Cemetery Company, at a meeting held yesterday afternoon, awarded the contract for the erection of a new residence for the Superintendent, to Mr. James Graham.

The new residence, which is to be built from plans prepared by Mr. Wm. Blackwell, architect, is to be placed outside the cemetery proper, nearly opposite the main entrance gates, upon the lot purchased for the purpose, or the corner of Crescent and Haggart streets. The building will be of brick; two stories in height; will contain office and vaults, and is expected to cost about $3,500.

The old residence will be taken down and removed, and the material used where possible in the new structure or in constructing a new stable which may be built at a later period.

THE POLICE COURT THIS MORNING.

Man Fined for not Securing Dog Tag—Other Cases Dismissed.

At the Police Court this morning before Police Magistrate D. W. Dumble, about eight cases came up in which persons were charged with not having purchased dog licenses. Seven of them had bought the license since the issuing of their summonses and had not to pay the extra cost of 85c., while the eighth remarked that he had given his dog away to his brother. However, he had to pay $1.35 instead of 85c.

A local cattle dealer was charged with cruelty to animals. The alleged charge was that a drove of cattle had been seen going up George street with the skin underneath their necks cut and hanging down. During the evidence it was shown that this method of branding was not more cruel than other methods and was far more effective. After hearing considerable evidence the Police Magistrate dismissed the charge.

MEN'S GUILD OF ST. LUKE'S CHURCH

Gave an Interesting Entertainment Last Evening.

An interesting concert was given last night in St. Luke's School House, Ashburnham, under the auspices of the Men's Guild of that church. The Rector, Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, acted as chairman.

The evening was commenced by several graphaphone selections of a very amusing nature, afterwhich the following excellent programme was run off:—

Instrumental solo ... ... Mrs. W. Turner
Vocal solo, "The Holy City" ...Mr. Edwards
Recitation ... ...Little Miss Pringle
Vocal solo... ..... Miss Lillie Jackson
Reading ... ... Mr. Sorsoleil
Recitation ... ...Miss Aggie Paterson
Vocal solo ... ...Mr. J. Dawson
Graphaphone selections ....
Instrumental solo ... ...Mrs. Turner
Recitation ....Miss Paterson
Vocal solo ... ...Miss Lillie Jackson
Reading ....Mr. Matchett
Vocal solo ... ... Mr. J. Dawson

On the conclusion of the programme the Rector made a few very excellent and appropriate remarks. The very enjoyable evening was brought to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.

NEWS NUGGETS.

—There will be a meeting of the Court of Revision this evening.

—Many of the shops in town are receiving their summer coating of paint.

—The pavement on Argyle street is torn up and pedestrians are forced to take to the street.

—A very substantial looking railing has been put along the edge of the Hunter street bridge.

—If the abundent bloom fulfils its promise there will be a phenomenal crop of apples this year.

—Remember the grand promenade band concert in the Market Hall, on Friday evening, May 15th; admission, 10 cents. 3d

—Several persons appeared in Court this morning for not having bought dog licenses. The Police Department's shot gun will soon come into requisition.

—Shamrock III excels the previous Liptonian bout in speed. It is said the owner is about to fix a derrick on board, the object of which will be, of course, to lift the cup.

—The two Italians and their bear, who thoroughly amused the school children of the town, were politely asked to "move on out of town," by Chief Roszel yesterday afternoon.

—There are a number of water sprinklers at work on the grass in the Court House Park, which make it a very pleasant and refreshing place after the heat of the town pavements.

—Mr. P. Delaire, who was somewhat seriously injured while taking down an old house, is sufficiently recovered to resume his occupation. It seems to take something more than a house falling on Mr. Delaire to put him out of business.

—A surveying party, comprising ten persons, in charge of Mr. A. N. Bruce, of Ottawa, one of the assistant engineers for the Lindsay, Bobcaygeon & Pontypool Railway, started out to-day to locate the route for the new railway from Lindsay to Burketon. We understand that another party will leave to-morrow to locate the route between Lindsay and Bobcaygeon.—Lindsay Post.

—The condition of Mr. William Bell, who was injured a short time ago, at the Cereal Company's new dam, is said to be much better. Although in the hospital he is up and around, and it is hoped will soon be on the street again. It will be remembered that Mr. Bell was working under a derrick when the arm broke loose and fell, striking him on the head.

—The river is already beginning to be largely patronized by numbers of pleasure seeking individuals and groups. Last evening Mr. Roy invited the young ladies of the local telephone office, to a trip down the river in his launch, appropriately named the "Rob Roy." The party landed at a point about six miles down the river, where they for a short time, enjoyed the pleasures incidental to Bohemian life. A large portion of the town was wrapped in sleep ere the party returned home.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF PETERBOROUGH RIFLE ASSOCIATION.

A Large Attendance and Lively Interest.

Officers Elected and Preparations for Season's Work.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Rifle Association marks an important phase in the operation of this important organization. For nearly, if not quite, half a century it has been a factor in improving the marksmenship of its members, and not only this, but it has, so to speak, exercised a stimulating reflex influence upon the rifle practice of the volunteer corps. At times the Association has had its dark days and troublesome periods, but the past few years it has achieved a secure position and a more flourishing condition, such as it is in to-day. The interest taken in the annual meeting held yesterday augurs another prosperous season, which it is hoped the Association will enjoy. The war lessons of South Africa have taught that the prime requisite of a soldier in active campaigning is good marksmanship and, promoting this the Association is doing a good work, which is worthy of every encouragement.

The annual meeting was held at seven o'clock last night in the office of the Secretary, Mr. R. P. Watt. There was a very large number of persons present, all of whom seemed to take a great interest in the Association. Last year the Association proved to be a great success both financially and materially, for many very successful shoots were held, and from all appearances it looks as if the association will be even more successful this year.

Mr. Charles Curtis was on motion asked to take the chair during the evening's proceedings.

After considerable discussion it was finally decided to have the ranges open for shooting on Thursday afternoon of each week, throughout the season, commencing to-morrow, if the weather and similar conditions are favourable.

On motion of Mr. J. Gibson, seconded by Mr. J. B. Pentland, it was deed that last year's officers should be re-elected for this season.

Hon. Pres.—Hon J. R. Stratton.
Hon. Vice President—Col. E. B. Edwards.
President—Mr. E. B. Clegg.
Vice-President—Mr. D. Cameron.
Sec.-Treas.—Mr .R. P. Watt.
Executive Committee — Messrs. J. B. Pentland, W. Moore and T. Byshe.

The annual membership fee is $1, and those contemplating joining the association are urged to do so at once to get the benefit of practising in view of the autumn matches.

LAST NIGHT'S BLAZE.

A fire, which might have had disastrous results had it not been for the prompt action of the local brigade, occurred at about 9.30 o'clock last night in the lane at the back of Mrs. Darnley's millinery shop, 142 Hunter street. In some manner, which at present has not been yet learned, a heap of rubbish caught fire. Mrs. Darnley saw the blaze from the window of her workroom and immediately sent in the alarm.

Messrs. Holmes & Christie, grocers, 140 Hunter street, state that after a thorough inspection they find that they suffer a loss of about $250, through having their goods either destroyed by fire or water. It is, however, covered by insurance.

Mrs. Darnley's shop was uninjured in any way.

COUNTY POLICE COURT.

An Interesting Case Before Magistrate Edmison.

The only case before Police Magistrate Edmison at the Court House Tuesday morning was McFarlane vs. Wallis, in which the latter was charged with a breach of the Indian Act, by removing twenty or thirty trees off the Indian Reserve at Rice Lake. The defendant, Wallis, cut and removed certain trees, relying on the Indian's statement that he had a Government permit allowing him to do so. As a matter of fact this was untrue. The Magistrate in view of the surrounding circumstances, and facts presented, took a lenient view of the matter and desposed of the charge by imposing a fine of $3.00, the minimum penalty. Mr. S. T. Medd appeared for Wallis.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

Miss E. Graham of Lindsay, was in town to-day.

Mr. J. Fleury of Lindsay, is in town to-day.

Mr. G. H. Brown, of Chemong Park Hotel, was registered at the National to-day.

Mr. D. H .W. Somerville, who has been attending the North-west Dental College, Chicago, is in town.

Rev. J. G Potter, pastor of St. Andrew's church, is in Toronto to-day attending the Synod, which commenced last night in Knox church.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. M. Sucee, 154 Rubidge street, will regret to hear of the illness of their little daughter, Myrtle, who is suffering from scarlet fever.

Mr. J. R. McKelvie of Toronto, and formerly of Norwood, is visiting in town for a few days. He has recently returned from the "Soo," and has gone into business as paper hanger and decorator in the city.

The Examiner greatly regrets to have to announce that Mr. Adam H. ("Addie") Ferguson, son of Mr. W. G. Ferguson, is lying very seriously ill at his father's residence, Stewart street, and that not much hope is entertained of his recovery.

Mr. A. E. Ames, a former resident of Peterborough, and now a prominent financial leader in Toronto, has been appointed president of the Imperial Life Assurance Company, in succession to Sir Oliver Mowat, and Mr. Fred G. Cox has been appointed Vice-President.

Mr. A. Foreman was in town to-day en route from Montreal to Toronto, where he will reside in the future. He passed his final examinations at McGill University with flying colours, taking honours and several medals. Mr. Foreman will be especially remembered by lacrossists—he was a prominent member of t Y.M.C.A. team last year.

THE BAPTISM OF PRESBYTERIAN INFANTS.

(Special to the Examiner.)

Toronto, May 13th.—The Toronto and Kingston Presbyterian Synod in session here spent the morning in the reception and consideration of reports. A request was read from Peterborough asking a direction as to the baptism of children whose parents are communicants. This was returned with the suggestion that it be sent to the General Assembly.

An Instrument of Utility.

The race horse and the racing bicycle each have their uses, and each in turn bears the same relation to the rest of its kind. We hear less of bicycle racing to-day than when the wheel fist became popular. To-day the bicycle is more strictly an instrument of utility. Its usefulness in economising time, in getting quickly from place to place or as a vehicle of pleasure are all so deeply impressed upon the public and have become so commonplace that we scarcely think of them as extraordinary. Yet there are more and more wheels used every year, and new riders are constantly learning the value of the bicycle as a means of easy and speedy locomotion.

"Work and Play."

The biggest summer resort within easy reach of civilization is what is commonly termed Muskoka, a district in the Highlands of Ontario, about 100 miles north of Toronto, including an immense tract of country bordering on the Georgian Bay. This district is composed of lakes and rivers innumerable and is situate 1,000 feet above sea level. Good fishing and hunting are assured. Ample hotel accommodation at all points on the lakes is provided to suit the purses of everyone. Excellent transportation service.

POWER BILL FROM PETERBOROUGH

Discussed by the Private Bills Committee.

Mr. J. K. Kerr Appears on Behalf of the General Electric Company.

Concerning Peterborough's Power Bill, which was up before the Private Bill's Committee of the Legislature, the Toronto News says:—

A Peterborough Bill asking that the powers given the town to acquire dams on the Otonabee River, south of the Nassau dam be extended by allowing the town to acquire and operate water powers some distance further up the river. The town wishes to be placed in a position to operate its own electric light as it does its water works system, with power derived from municipal dams, and also wishes to control power sites so as to safeguard against any future combination of power companies to raise prices. Mayor Roger of Peterborough detailed for the committee the present situation as regards the local power question. There were nine good power sites along the Otonabee up to Lakefield. Of these all but two had been pre-empted by private companies. The city had taken over one power site south of Nassau, capable of developing 500 horse power, and was operating it now under the old statute. But the town now asked for the right to take over other power sites above Nassau so as to guard against any future combination of the three companies who now practically control all sites below Nassau with the exception of the one site owned by the town.

MR. KERR'S CONTENTION.

Mr. J. K. Kerr, K.C., representing the Canadian General Electric Company, submitted that a clause should be inserted in the bill guaranteeing that any power given the town with regard to acquiring new dams should not interfere as regards water supply with the rights of companies having vested rights.

The Attorney-General thought that the town should wait and come under the provisions of the general act now pending as regards the acquiring and developing of municipal power. The representatives of Peterborough, however, intimated that they wished to proceed with the expropriation of sites at once and to be relieved of the more complicated procedure necessary according to the new Power Bill.

Mr. R. M. Dennistoun of Peterborough, representing the Peterborough Light & Power Company, the American Cereal Company, the Auburn Woollen Mills, and other companies now owning power sites, also asked that clauses be inserted in the bill guaranteeing that rights of these companies be not contravened.

After some further discussion the bill was left over till to-morrow morning, to allow of the clause being drafted, agreeable to representatives of both town and companies, protecting vested rights.

Last Evening at the Local Bowling Green.

The Eastern Baseball League—Canoeing and Other Sports.

LACROSSE.

The Lindsay Post says:

About twenty-five turned out for practice last night and some brilliant work was displayed. The boys are improving very much in their "com" work. In addition to the lacrosse players a large number of spectators were present, among whom were many ladies, who had assembled to see the boys in green and white play the game.

"Billy" Wood, who figured on the Ontarios of Port Hope last year, has quit the game.

* * * *

The schedule for this district in the junior series of the C.L.A., will be drafted in Port Hope on Friday.

* * * *

The T.A.S. II Team met last night and elected Jack Primeau captain. A team will be picked to-night after practice to go to Campbellford on Friday afternoon to have a practice game with the team there. Campbellford has a fast bunch of players this season who may probably be seen in junior C.L.A. company.

* * * *

The executive of the senior T.A.S. will meet to-night.

* * * *

There will be a line-up of both T.A.S. teams this evening at seven o'clock.

* * * *

The game on the morning of May 25th, between the T.A.S. II team and the Vics. of Port Hope, will open the lacrosse season in Peterborough.

GENERALLY SPEAKING

AN ARTICLE reprinted in the Examiner on Monday, from the Ottawa Journal, regarding the relation of "Strikes and Prosperity," gives the writer's plausible view, the natural but possibly mistaken view, that commercial and industrial activity, called by the name of prosperity, is as profitable to operators as appears on the surface. The plea is made that the advance of wages is not as rapid as the activity which seems to bring good times to employers. Under existing conditions, it is a question whether the great "prosperity" in all commercial and industrial circles, is as great as it appears. Industrial operations have been carried on under advanced prices of wages, material, and nearly every element that enters into manufacturing operations. The result is that the margin of profit is reduced, and there is possibly less aggregate profit under large operations than there would be under much smaller operations, with normal conditions, when the prices for things were lower. The high cost of material is to a certain extent due to increased wages, and this factor operating in every sphere of production leads to an all-round stiffening of prices, and an increased cost of living. So that, in a sense, the advance in wages has to be paid for. It is to be borne in mind that the manufacturer, or merchant, doing the largest business, is not necessarily making the most money. He finds his wage bill, and the cost of raw materials so increased that he makes a large turn-over with less profit than the great extent of his operations would indicate. He may be sailing very close to the wind in the matter of profit. A very little additional expense, therefore, might cause the margin of profit to disappear, and as no man likes to do business "for fun," as the expression goes, the consequence might easily be that operations will be suspended altogether. Under such circumstances a demand, on the part of employees, for increased wages, would, in spite of the apparent prosperity of the establishment, be an embarrassing demand to the employer, who in many lines of business does a great deal of work on a narrow margin of profit, in preference to keeping his works idle or dispensing with some of his employees.

* * *

INCREASE OF WAGES seems sometimes to react injuriously on employees. The workmen in the building trades in Toronto got big advances in answer to their demands and the consequence has been that now with their big wage scale they are making no money, for building operations have been rendered so expensive and conditions so unreliable that there is or was a general suspension of building works. This is an example of the unwisdom of employees making too great demands—there is a possibility of killing the goose that lays the golden eggs. It is true that cost of living is greater, but it is also true that there has been a general advance in the wages of workingmen and the question is to be considered whether it is wise to push demands for increased wages so far as to produce conditions that render the employment of labour unprofitable. The good times we are enjoying will be succeeded by a period of depression, and then there will have to be a general re-adjustment of conditions in all labour employing spheres. Labour and capital are necessary to each other; capital can't operate if labour places its value beyond the point of operating at a profit, and labour can't live if capital refuses insufficient wages. The interest of both lies in the happy medium, and working men will consult their own interests and capital its interest, by reasonable demands and reasonable concessions respectively.

* * *

THAT LANE AGAIN. The Examiner has repeatedly called attention to the disgracefully and dangerously unsanitary condition of the lane in rear of George street between Brock and Hunter streets. Neither the Health authorities nor the Town authorities seem inclined to act, and therefore the elements seem determined to purge it as by fire. Last night a fire broke out in a winter's accumulation of rubbish, and if it had not been promptly suppressed would have produced a disastrous fire. Why is not something done? This unsavoury lane in its past and present condition is a menace to health and a menace to the safety of property. It does not seem possible that the authorities will permit the existence of a lane within fifty feet of our chief business street, which for condition is worse than a badly kept stable yard?

* * *

THE RIGHT SPIRIT for the town young men of this country has been shown by two or three young men who have deserted mechanical pursuits in town, to enter upon practical farming in the Temiscamingue District. It is an insoluble conundrum why so many persons will hang about towns and cities, many of them, especially in dull times, eking out a precarious existence, at uncertain employment and by their presence helping to congest the labour market, when there are millions of acres to be had for the taking, of fertile lands, where by a few years of industry, and, of course, some self-denial, they may become prosperous farmers and build up happy homes, independent as kings. There are scores of retired farmers residing in Peterborough who have made a success of farming and are now living in ease and comfort upon the fruits of their toil on the farm. And many of those have passed through as great ,or greater, hardships as the settler in the Temiscamingue district, where the excellent soil is easily cleared, and where the settler makes money from the first stroke of the axe, for he can sell his pulp wood at good prices. Railway communication will soon be available, and the region presents splendid opportunities for young men with muscle and industry, to make a start in farming.

"Why should our churches not make more use of their choirs? Why should we not have more frequent sacred concerts in our churches at the close of the Sunday evening service, or during the week? It would mean both labour and expense, but both well spent. The church condemns, and properly, too, certain forms of amusement. Why should it not supply the place of what it condemns, by something so much better?"

The idea is a good one, and might be elaborated with profit. If we had an opera house, where a sacred concert could be given, say, on Sunday afternoons, it would no doubt be a great attraction to the public, especially during the season when out of doors is not so irresistibly attractive. We have several good choirs in town, and some arrangement might be made by which each in turn would furnish the programme for a concert. It need not involve much labour or rehearsal, for the anthems or selections which have been sung, say, the previous Sunday, and are fresh in mind, would be new to the vast number of those who would attend such concerts, and who, unfortunately, do not trouble the churches much with their presence.

CANADA GETS THE MOST IMMIGRANTS.

More People Leave for Here Than for all the Other British Possessions Together.

London, May 9.—The board of trade returns of emigration during April show that 9,763 Britishers left for Canada during the month as compared with 3,095 in the same month last year. During the first four months of the year 21,643 British emigrants left for Canada, as against 6,554 in the same period last year. The totals of British and foreign emigrants combined were 34,911 for the four months, as compared with 17,819. More emigrants have gone to Canada than to any other British possession, the totals for Australia being only 3,324 and for South Africa 18,511.

The Canadian commissioner of emigration has called upon the Beaver line to explain the alleged overcrowding of the Barr colonists, owing to numerous complaints received. He is also asking the board of trade why the overcrowding was permitted. The criticism directed against the emigration officials ought to be addressed to the shipowners and the board of trade.

AT ROYAL EDINBURGH.

London, May 12.—King Edward and Queen Alexandra, accompanied by large suites, left London yesterday morning to pay their first ceremonial visit to Scotland. They arrived at Edinburgh last evening.

Their Majesties were greeted by big crowds while driving in semi-state to the railroad station, escorted by a detachment of the Household Cavalry.

The King and Queen arrived at Edinburgh last evening, and were enthusiastically welcomed. They were met by Lord Balfour of Burleigh, Secretary for Scotland; the Earl of Furol, Lord High Constable of Scotland; Lord Rosebery, Lieut.-Gen. Sir Archibald Hunter, commanding the forces in Scotland, and the Lord Provost, and members of the corporation in their official robes. While a salute was fired from the castle the keys of the city were presented to the King, who returned them, saying they could not be in better hands than those of the corporation.

After the ceremony Their Majesties were driven in a semi-state carriage to Dalkeith Castle,

THE BRAIN'S ENDURANCE.

Remarkable Recuperative Power of That Delicate Organ.

During the South African war many wonderful cases were reported of recovery from bullet wounds under circumstances which at an earlier date would have had a very different ending. Such recoveries were due in very large measure to the difference in the character of the projectile itself as compared with those of previous wars and also to the progress made by modern surgery. A case now reported by Dr. Theodore Diller in the Journal of Nervous and Mental Diseases is chiefly remarkable, however, in showing the extent of injury which may be tolerated by so sensitive an organ as the brain.

The case was that of a boy who at the age of thirteen was wounded by a bullet which entered just above the middle of the right eyebrow and made its exit five millimeters to the left of the occipital protuberance. Unconsciousness followed the injury and lasted for three weeks. Hernia cerebri occurred at the site of the wounds, and fragments of bone had to be removed before healing took place.

When the patient regained consciousness, he was found to be speechless and completely paralyzed on the left side of the body. Speech, however, returned at the end of four or five weeks, and the paralyzed leg gradually regained some degree of power during the next three years. Eleven years after the injury, although he had lost all power of motion in the left hand and forearm and there was partial paralysis of the left side of the face, the patient's health was otherwise good, and he exhibited no mental defect.

Fruits From South Africa.

Among the fine and costly fruits now in market are English hot-house grapes, which come from the Isle of Guernsey. They were selling last week at $2.50 a pound. A little earlier in the season they cost $3 a pound; a little later they will go down to $2.

South African peaches sold in London at 75 cents each, though this is not the highest price paid for peaches, hot-house peaches, when they are obtainable in the market, running up to $1.25 apiece.

Japanese plums from South Africa sold for 20 cents apiece, and good fancy South African nectarines for $2 a dozen. All the South African fruits sold there are grawn in the open air.

It is a rather far country, South Africa, to bring fruits from, but it doesn't take so long to get them from there as might be imagined. As a matter of fact, in these days of fast steamers and close connections only about four weeks is required.

There is no great quantity of these South African fruits brought to London, but it is greater than it was. Fruits from this source of supply are a novelty, for one thing, and they help, by chinking in, to make the supply of those sorts of fresh fruits continuous the year around.

A fruit by no means new, which may yet be novel to many when seen in a fruit store window, is the fig banana, called also the finger banana, which is brought from Jamaica. It has a yellow skin, it is of the same proportions as the ordinary banana, and grows in bunches in the same manner; but is only about half as big. It is sweeter than the banana of ordinary size and of a more delicate flavor. It is not a costly fruit, nor is it cheap; it sells for the same price as the more familiar fruit of full size.—London Express.

CURIOSITIES OF SOUND.

Every Noise Has Its Corresponding Note on the Musical Scale.

In very high or mountainous regions sounds become diminished in loudness so that a conversation cannot be carried on in an ordinary tone of voice. In mines or in a diving bell the reverse of this is the case. Speech becomes so startling that it must be carried on in whispers to be at all endurable to the ear. Sounds of all kinds become musical if the vibrations of air are uniform and rapid enough. It is said that the puffs of an engine would make a tremendous organ peal of music if they could be made to attain the rapidity of fifty or sixty a second. Everything in nature has its keynote, as it were, and attuned to one particular musical sound. This fact can be very easily verified in everyday life. Stand near an open piano and speak in an ordinary tone. While speaking you will suddenly hear a string within reverberate to your voice. The tick of a watch, the sound of every human voice, the bark of a dog, the mew of a cat, the noise of a wagon, the roll of thunder, the fall of rain, the running of water—in fact, everything about us can easily be placed by an attentive ear on its proper musical note, one of the sounds of the scale. This is a most interesting experiment and easily verified.

It is said that the ear can distinguish eleven octaves of sound; but, as a rule, those made by quick, short vibrations are more easily conveyed. For instance, the whir of a locust makes a more distinct impression than the sighing of the wind through the trees. A whirlwind in its approach is noiseless. It is only when it strikes some obstacle that the volume of sound becomes terrific to us. Then we receive the secondary shorter waves from the destruction of this obstacle. Tyndall says all friction is rhythmic. Flames are notoriously sensitive to sound. They will bend and flicker and even respond with a leap of quivering light to a high, shrill sound. This is another interesting experiment. If we use a glass tube with a small jet of gas, by lowering or raising it to certain points we can cause it to shriek out shrilly or to answer sympathetically to its own keynote when sung or spoken by the voice.

If we could only hear the roll of the vast oceans in harmony all around us in our everyday life, we could say with truth, indeed, what the poet only imagined:

"There's not the smallest orb which thou beholdest but in its orbit like an angel sings, still quiring to the young eyed cherubim."

WALKED LIKE AN OLD MAN.

Nicolet, Que., May 10.—(Special).—Of the many people in this neighbourhood who have been brought back to health and strength through the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills few are in a better position to give the public the benefit of their experience than Joseph Hamel. He knows both sides of the question—the suffering and the relief.

"I suffered from Kidney Disease for three or four years," says Mr. Hamel. "For two years I would take two or three days off work a week ,I was continually sick and forced to walk like an old man/ I lost all my energy and became discouraged.

"After trying a lot of medicines that only gave relief for a while I was fortunate enough to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. After using three boxes I was completely cured."

Mr. Hamel is enthusiastic in his praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills and there is not the slightest doubt of the correctness of his statement as dozens of people can testify to his illness and cure.

Tricks of Language.

Cunning in the use of language to give false impressions is a Yankee trick celebrated in song and story. Many instances of its use come to light in the testimony given in courts. An illustration of such dishonest craftiness is related by a Maine gentleman. A man came to him wanting him to buy a share in a country lottery in which the principal prise was a horse. "I'll take one," he said, "if you'll warrant me I shall draw the horse." "Oh, yes," said the seller glibly, pocketing the cash. "I'll warrant you to get the horse." The horse went in another direction, and the ticket holder, meeting the seller, said jokingly, "I thought you warranted me to draw that horse." "Oh, no," said the other shrewdly; "I did but say warrant, but want. I said I wanted you to get the horse, and I did."

The Colossus of Rhodes.

The Colossus of Rhodes, a bronze statue, was 105 feet high. It was made by Chares, who, aided by an army of workmen, consumed twelve years in its construction. It remained in position in the harbor of Rhodes for sixty-six years and was thrown down by an earthquake B. C. 224. It lay on the ground 894 years and was sold to a Jew for old metal. He carried away 900 camel loads, or about 720,000 pounds, of bronze.

A Switchman's Death.

Windsor, May 12.—Milton Dunn, a Grand Trunk switchman, was run over in the company's yards here at 5 o'clock yesterday morning and terribly mangled. The unfortunate fellow died at 8 o'clock at the Hotel Dieu.

For a Certainty I am Cured.

Mr. Jas. Treneman, 536 Adelaide street, London, writes that for two years he was laid up with kidney disease and urinary troubles. He became dropsical and his legs would swell so that he could hardly walk around. He never used any medicine that did him so much good as Dr. Chase's Kidney Live Pills, and knows for a certainty that this treatment cured him. One pill a dose; 25c. a box.

FIFTY CENTS A MONTH

A small bottle of Scott's Emulsion costing fifty cents will last a baby a month—a few drops in its bottle each time it is fed. That's a small outlay for so large a return of health and comfort.

Babies that are given Scott's Emulsion quickly respond to its helpful action. It seems to contain just the elements of nourishment a baby needs most.

SNU-GOLD.

By Helen M. Merrill.

'All day the sun drops gold, the grassy mead
Like miser olden hoarding underground,
Till soft-shod June will track it, like a hound
Scents the lone covert where the wild deer feed.

"Then from an ample mint, with lavish hand
In every field, by every fountain-side,
She'll scatter gold-bits round her far and wide,
In flower cups o'er all the fragrant land.

"Wherever buttercups and wild daisies blow,
You'll mark her presence in the green lush grasses;
You'll hear her bitthely singing as she poses
On sunny uplands where gold violets grow."

Sketch of Miss Merrill.

Miss Helen M. Merrill is the daughter of Judge Merrill and a native of Napanee. She was educated at Ottawa Ladies' College and has made a specialty of entomology. So far as I am aware she has published no collection of verse, but her poems have appeared in various Canadian periodicals and given pleasure to many by their graceful form and indubitable note of true emotion. The above lines are contained in "A Treasury of Canadian Verse," compiled by the late Dr. Rand. Miss Merrill is now resident in Picton.—Pharos, in The Globe.

OFFICIAL REPORTING.

Stenographer Butcher's Elaborate Staff at the Gamey Trial.

Mr. Nelson Butcher, the official stenographer of the Gamey investigation, made elaborate preparations for his task. Mr. Butcher has 16 copies of a verbatim report of each day's proceedings in the hands of the court at 10 o'clock of the following day. The copies are for the use of the commissioners and the solicitors and principals on each side. To reproduce them in the required time Mr. Butcher has a staff of 10 or 12 experts, with other professional operators in reserve in case of accidents. Even with so large a staff the most laborious and exacting labor will be required to carry out the contract.

Mr. Butcher himself remains in court during the proceedings and takes most of the shorthand report himself. This occupies his time from 10 o'clock to 4. To extend his notes he uses a Bettini instrument. This is an electrical appliance, which works on something of the same principle as a phonograph. Mr. Butcher reads his notes into the instrument, and this operation takes about the same time as the proceedings took in court, that is until about 11 o'clock at night. The Bettini attachment, while Mr. Butcher is speaking into it, is connected to successive rollers, which reproduce his words as by a phonograph to two expert operators on typewriting machines, who made the first copies of the evidence. A few minutes after these two start working another relay begins making the copies of their sheets, and in this way the 16 copies are complete before midnight. After that there are two or three hours' work verifying the report. This is done by reading the typewritten manuscript back to Mr. Butcher, who follows his shorthand notes throughout.

The officials thought at one time of attempting to reduce the report to printing each night for the following day, but this plan was given up as impracticable owing to the limited time. Printed copies are, however, available on the second day after each day's proceedings.

Mr. Butcher has one or two Bettini instruments and several typewriting machines in reserve in case of accident, as a breakdown with such a limited time to work in would be disastrous. One of his typewriting machines is run by electricity—said to be the only one of its kind in Canada. It is a ponderous instrument, but the keys require only the merest touch to depress them and form the letters. Magnetism does the rest. The speed of the machine is almost unlimited.

The Shepherd and His Flock.

A certain good bishop was in Italy for his health, and while walking in the country one day he met a small girl who was tending some pigs. The animals were giving her a great deal of trouble, and the good bishop offered to stay and watch the ones that were grunting and rooting in a ditch while the little shepherdess went to catch two runaways that had strayed from the fold. When she came back, the reverend gentleman stroked the unkempt curly head of the child and asked her how much she earned by her hard work and was told that she received 4 soldi a day.

"Do you know," said he, "that I, too, am a shepherd? But I earn much more than you."

"Ah, yes," answered the little peasant, "but, no doubt, you tend many more pigs than I do."

On a Different Footing.

"A man dat's got a fast hoss," said Uncle Eph'm, "don' keer how off'n he got to git shoes fur 'im. Hit's diff'runt if he's got a boy."

A man's task is always light if his heart is light.—Wallace.

SHIRT WAISTS.

The Wash Waist Is Now Being Made of Serviceable Materials.

In spite of many adverse rumors the separate waist still continues to hold its own.

For street wear with the coat and skirt costumes it is most necessary. The shirt waist of the summer of 1903 will be more substantial than last year. Sad experience taught the majority of women that the dainty lingerie waist of tucks and valenciennes insertion was far too perishable to look well after the third washing. The shirt waists of this season are substantial enough not to show the effects of the hard hand of the laundress.

Shirred bodices and skirts are without doubt the novelty of the spring.

CASHMERE BLOUSE.

and nothing can be prettier than a gown of veiling made in this manner, the deep shirring around the shoulders of the waist being outlined with silk fringe.

Hats, particularly the dressy ones, are flatter than ever, the sole beauty consisting in the outline and in the tuckings and shirrings which cover the frame.

Sleeves continue to grow fuller at the cuffs, with no perceptible change at the tops.

The favorite material is doubtless white linen either made up plain or embellished by heavy linen embroidery. The sleeves, slightly full at the top, graduate into puffs at the wrist.

The collars worn are of stitched linen or of pique in the popular stock and four-in-hand effect.

Dalkeith Palace, which has been placed at the disposal of the King and Queen during their stay in the southeast of Scotland in May, stands near the end of the High street of Dalkeith village, some eight miles from Edinburgh, in a beautiful park of 1,035 acres. The palace is in the Grecian style, and was built in 1700 by Sir George Vanbrugh for Monmouth's Duchess. Its predecessor, the castle, was the seat first of the Grahams and then of the Douglasses from the 14th century till 1642, when the ninth Earl of Morton sold it to the second Earl of Buccleuch. Dalkeith has been visited by James IV., James VI., Charles I., Prince Charles Edward, George IV., and Queen Victoria.

A Lost Fee.

Dr. Hunter, the famous English physician, invariably received very large fees for his services. On one occasion when he was asked by a lady the amount of his fee he informed her that he made an invariable practice of never fixing its amount. "Very well, sir," the patient promptly answered, "if you cannot fix it I am sure I can't." And, to the doctor's consternation, she walked out of the room without paying him a penny.

The Broken Health of School Life.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

So many school girls and school boys, too, are pale, languid and run down in health, subject to weak spells and nervous headaches, and victims of sleeplessness, that we no longer realize the folly of developing the mind at the expense of the body.

It is on the mothers and fathers that falls the responsibility of looking after the health of their children and to them we suggest the wisdom of having the health of their children kept at the high water mark by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This great food cure is so gentle and natural in action as to be admirably suited to the requirements of children. The benefits to be derived from its use are certain and lasting, as it goes to form new red corpuscles in the blood and creates new nerve force.

Mrs. R. Wareham, 267 Sherbrooke street, Peterborough, Ont., states:

"One of my children has suffered a great deal with nervous headaches, dizziness and sleeplessness, and in fact, was all run down, pale and languid. These troubles we attributed to over-study and confinement at school. She began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and I can say that we have found this treatment exceedingly helpful. It has relieved her of headache, steadied her nerves, and built up her system wonderfully. We can see a great change in her, as the color is returning to her face, and she is gaining in flesh and weight."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box; six boxes for $2.50 at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. 10

A Golden Heart

BY BERTHA M. CLAY

Suddenly the hand that had been clasping her shoulders relaxed their hold; the white face was raised for a moment with a faint cry, and then Lola fell, a senseless, helpless mass, at her mother's feet.

Madame called for no aid; with her own hands she raised her daughter, and laid her upon the couch; then she knelt by her, weeping bitterly.

"It has broken her heart," she moaned, "my only child—broken her heart."

Presently she thought of the sorrowful awakening, and she fancied that it would almost be better for her daughter to die then and there. It was her warm kisses that brought life back to Lola, that caused the dark eyes to open and the locked lips to unclose.

She murmured a few words, and then madame drew her head to her breast, but Lola sprang from her arms—she would not listen to the soothing voice.

"Say no more, mamma!" she cried, her indomitable pride and spirit coming to the rescue. "It is all a mistake. I—I do not care. Let Sir Karl marry whom he will; it is nothing to me."

Her voice had in it such a ring of pain, that tears came into her mother's eyes.

"Did I say that I loved him, mamma? It was perfect nonsense, quite untrue. The white rose, you know—always the white rose!"

Madame thought that she was wandering in her mind; she could not see what a white rose had to do with her disappointment. Lola's dark eyes flashed as she went on.

"Never remind me of my folly, mamma; forget all about it, as I shall. Who would have thought Dolores would have two husbands, while I have not had one? It is most amusing. Have I frightened you?" said, looking toward her mother, who sat with a terrified face. "It was the closeness of the room which made me faint,; not what you told me about Sir Karl."

She laughed with a laugh that made madame's blood run cold—a horrible laugh; then she stopped suddenly, kissed her mother's face and said—

"Poor mamma! I am sorry I have frightened you. Let me get you some wine. You must have something; you look quite white."

"I want nothing, Lola. Tell me one thing. You have neither father nor brother—only me to befriend you; but I, though a weak woman, I can be like a lioness when my child is touched. Tell me, has that man deceived you? Has he made love to you as a mere sport and pastime? If so the law shall punish him."

Lola laughed again, this time with flushed face and glowing eyes.

"No, mamma, he has never made love to me. Say no more about him. What lies between him and myself I will repay. Never mention the subject again."

When the clock struck seven, the girl stood up, and then a worn look dimmed the brilliancy of her face.

"Mamma, I am very tired," she said. "I am going to my room. Do not let any one disturb me on any account. I shall be quite well tomorrow."

CHAPTER XVII.

When Lola was alone she drew a deep breath of relief. Now that she dared to be natural, the dark beautiful face was terrible to behold. She walked with hasty steps up and down her room—only Heaven knew what was passing in her heart—her hands clinched tightly, until her maid came.

"Stephanie," she said, "will you tell Jean that I want the little pony-carriage, and that he must drive me over to Deeping Hurst? I want to see Lady Rhysworth; but madame must not know anything about it. You can manage it for me, can you not, Stephanie?"

"Yes, mademoiselle," was the brief reply.

"Tell Jean to make as little noise as possible, lest madame should hear the sound of the wheels."

It takes a great deal to surprise a French waiting-maid of the type of Stephanie. If her young mistress had asked to be driven to some house where she might have met a lover, there would have been a spice of fun and intrigue in it; but a visit to a lady, and that the most irreproachable of widows was flat and tame.

Half an hour afterward, Lola was driving toward Deeping Hurst, her heart torn with pain, love and jealousy, her brain filled with schemes of vengeance, her whole soul in hot rebellion against her fate. She had no settled plan of action; but the look that was in her face and the light that was in her eyes evidently meant mischief.

"I told her," she muttered, "that any one coming between Sir Karl and myself should beware. Let her beware. I cannot take her life, but if I could mar her beauty—the beauty that has won him—I would. If I knew how to torture her so that never again in her life should there come one moment of peace or rest, I would do it. Let her beware!"

She never heeded the brilliant colors that made the evening sky so fair; she took no notice of the song of the birds; all the fair beauty of earth and sky were lost on her.

"Let her beware!" she repeated to herself, when the carriage stopped. "Wait for me, Jean," she said to the groom. "I may be one hour, or I may be three. Do not take the horses to the stable, and do not leave the carriage. I shall expect to find you here when I return."

She rang the hall-bell and was told by the servant who answered it that Lady Rhysworth was at home and alone; that she could see her at once; her ladyship was in her boudoir.

"You need not announce me," Lola said to the man. "I will go myself."

The servants were so accustomed to her coming to the house at all times that there seemed nothing unusual in her request. Lady Rhysworth's friends had access to her at all times.

"Let her beware!" Lola murmured to herself as she went through the long corridor and up the wide staircase. "Whatever her fate, she has drawn it on herself."

She knew the way to Lady Rhysworth's boudoir. She had spent many hours in it. Without knocking, without speaking, she opened the door and went in.

Dolores, who was sitting in a low chair near the window, looked up with a startled glance as Lola entered, and uttered a little cry as she saw the full expression of the beautiful face.

"Lola!" she said, frightened more than she would have cared to own.

No answer came from the French girl, who walked up to her with a haughty air. She let her dark traveling cloak fall from her shoulders, removed her hat from her head, and then, standing erect before Dolores, she said—

"Let me speak. I have come to ask you a question. Is it true that you have stolen my lover from me?"

She had grown very pale; she was really afraid of the girl who stood before her with such glittering eyes.

"You have stolen mine. Sir Karl was mine. You are a false friend and a false woman! You have stolen him, knowing that he was mine!"

"He was never yours, Lola. When you say that, you speak falsely. He was kind to you; he has been, I know, a true and staunch friend to you; but he was never your lover—you know it."

"I repeat that he was mine, and mine only, but that you have come between us—you, with your pale, sickly face and yellow hair, thinking yourself no doubt, irresistible; you, I say, have come between us."

"I have not," replied Dolores. "Sir Karl has never been your lover and never will be."

"He was learning to love me," continued Lola. "I loved him with my whole heart, and my love had touched him. He was beginning to care for me when you came between us and stole him from me. It was rank treachery. Can you deny that you knew I loved him? I had opened my heart to you, I had told you that he was mine!"

"He was not yours. The fact of your calling a man yours does not make him so. The fact even that you love a man does not compel him to love you. Sir Karl had the right to love whom he pleased."

"He would have loved me," reiterated Lola sullenly, "if you had not come between us."

"My dear Lola, you are quite wrong. Now be reasonable; do not stand and look at me as though I were your greatest enemy. If there had been any engagement, any acknowledgment of love between Sir Karl and yourself, I would rather have died than have promised to marry him!"

"I repeat that he was mine, and that you have stolen him."

"He was never yours," said Lady Rhysworth—"I have his own word for it."

Lola's face flushed with rage.

"So you have talked to him about me!" she cried.

"Yes, I have. I will tell you honestly what passed. I had often wondered whether he really knew his own mind, and I asked him. He told me plainly that he had never even had the least flirtation with you, but that he had always esteemed your friendship highly—that you were friends, but nothing more, and—you compel me to speak plainly—that he loved me, and no one else. It was then that I promised to marry him."

"After stealing him from me by treachery! If you had not interfered, he would have loved me," exclaimed Lola. "He wrote to me constantly from abroad; he came to see me on the very night of his return, before he thought of seeing you."

It was seldom that the gentle nature of Lady Rhysworth was aroused to anger, but her heart swelled with a keen sense of injustice. Why should this girl, whom she had never cared for, have come here to insult here? Why should her happiness be marred because this girl had chosen to take an obstinate fancy to a man who cared nothing for her? Why should she suffer and be made wretched for that? She rose with the graceful dignity natural to her.

"I will not prolong this distressing scene by denying the truth of your words. You know that they are wickedly false. I am innocent of the charge you bring against me, and no one knows it better than yourself. I must say, Lola, that I am surprised that you should have shown so little maidenly delicacy as to try to force your affection on a man who did not care to receive it."

So spoke Lady Rhysworth; but she shrunk back, brave as she was in the knowledge of her own truth, from the angry face that Lola turned upon her.

"It will be better for you, Lady Rhysworth, not to say another word. You think yourself very pure and good and noble. Let me tell you a few home truths; you are quick enough to tell the like to me. What does the world think of the delicate, refined, high-bred Dolores Cliefden, who has angled for two husbands, who married an old man for his money, and two years after his death would marry a young one for love—what of the woman with a little daughter who neglects her to attend to the wooing of a man who will never tolerate the presence of another man's child in his house—dainty Dolores, who, with all her modesty, has managed by her artful wiles to secure the two best matches in the neighborhood, and then whispers about maidenly delicacy? My faults are open ones; yours are hidden. I love one man honestly; you have either loved or pretended to love two. Oh, sweet Dolores, what now of maidenly delicacy?"

Lady Rhysworth did not answer her. She saw that it was useless, as Lola was beside herself with rage; and she knew the whole tirade to be utterly false. She moved from her place as though she would quit the room; but Lola prevented her; she stationed herself before the door with her arms outstretched.

"You shall hear me," she said. "I will force you to listen. You have done this shameful thing to me; you have stolen my love from me; and I swear to be revenged; I gave you fair warning, I said, 'let any one beware who comes between us.' You have come between us. Now beware. You have broken my heart; I swear to break yours. You have ruined my life; I will ruin yours. You have tortured me; I will torture you. When the time comes for my revenge you shall suffer as I suffer now. False woman and treacherous friend, you can go now; but beware! It may be years before my vengeance comes; perhaps I may not seek it until he has grown tired of you; but, be the interval long or short, beware, Lady Rhysworth! As surely as the sun rises and sets, so sure is my vengeance to fall upon your guilty head."

Lola spoke with such flashing eyes, with such a threatening face, with such power and passion, that Dolores shrunk back, pale and trembling, from the terrible avalanche of words.

"Let me pass," she said faintly.

"You may go now!" cried Lola, opening the door. "You will remember your last interview with Lola de Ferras! Such happiness as a woman can enjoy with a sword hanging over her head I wish you; and I pray that so much of your treachery as Heaven leaves unpunished may be repaid by me!"

She wrapped the dark cloak round her shoulders, and drew her veil over her face; her whole form was trembling with passion. Ere she quitted the room, she glanced round it, remembering the happy hours she had spent there, and knowing that she would never enter it again. It was with a malignant look that she watched Lady Rhysworth walk quickly down the long corridor. Then she went back to the little carriage. Before she took her seat, she turned to gaze at the house.

"I do as they did of old," she said to herself. "I shake the dust of the place from my feet."

Then she drove home. The return was managed as quietly as the departure had been, and madame never knew of her daughter's visit to Lady Rhysworth.

"I have one more duty," Lola said to herself. "I will see him, no matter what it costs me, and tell him what I think of him."

With that resolve she once more sought her room. Sleep was out of the question; and she spent the whole of that night in pacing up and down her chamber. It was true that he had not made love to her in the common acceptation of the phrase, but he would have loved her in time had it not been for this most cruel treachery of Dolores.

"I ought to have had a far better chance of winning him than she ever had," she said to herself. "If she had not come between us, he would have been mine;" and, by dint of constant repetition, she believed it at last. She would go early in the morning to see Sir Karl; he should not escape.

"I am going for a long walk this morning, mamma," she said, "so I will not ask you to accompany me. It will do me more good than driving."

"It will be an excellent thing for you, Lola," returned madame, relieved. She had feared that Lola would be overwhelmed with sorrow; instead of that she was laughing and bright as ever.

"The storm has passed over her head and left her untouched and untroubled." So thought the mother, who little understood her daughter's character.

She followed Lola to the door and saw her start. She admired the pretty costume and the coquettish hat, and thought that there was not in the whole world any one so beautiful and charming as her child.

If the teacher could wipe away the blotches from her skin as easily as she does the caricature with its pimply face, she would be a happy woman.

Pimples and eruptions are more than a disfigurement to a woman,—they make her sensitive and unhappy. The way to cleanse the skin is to purify the blood. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery purifies the blood, and removes the clogging accumulations and poisons which corrupt it. When these are removed, pimples, boils, eruptions, sores, and other consequences of impure blood are entirely cured.

"For about one year and a half my face was very badly broken out," writes Miss Carrie Adams, of 116 West Main St., Battlecreek, Mich. "I spent a great deal of money with doctors and for different kinds of medicine, but received no benefit. At last I obtained a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Before I had taken one bottle of this medicine I noticed a change, and after taking three bottles I was entirely cured. A Garden for Birds.

I knew a certain garden that was made solely to attract the birds, says a writer in Country Life, and it is in every way an unqualified success. It is free from murderous cats and small boys, and the birds like it. Thirty-four different species have been counted at a single time, and on one occasion 20 different species were building nests or rearing their young.

The ground is deeply carpeted with Bermuda grass, on whose matted tangles birds may scratch and catch bugs from morning until night. Fruits and seeds of many plants that mature at different times of the year are in great abundance, and if at any time there is not enough the owner of the garden supplies the birds with various tidbits. Sunflower seeds are always on hand, as well as quantities of crisp lettuce. These supplementary stores are placed on a stand called "the birds' banquet board." About the grounds are scattered logs, under which bugs and worms huddle in the damp earth. Hydrants re left dripping, where birds may drink or bathe to their hearts' content. Strings, threads and cotton are hung about on bushes and trees, so that building materials may be easily accessible. Many of the birds become so tame and so wise in the ways of the place that when Mrs. Grinnell overturns a log they will flock to her like a drove of chickens.

Surprising.

The London Morning Post states that Canadians never fought for their existence. To the shades of those Canadians who fought and fell in the war of 1812 this information must be somewhat surprising. It is much longer ago since Britons fought for their existence. The British wars of the past two centuries have all been fought in foreign lands.—Montreal Herald.

New York, May 13th, 9.45 a. m. — Local labour situation improving. U.S. Steel officials deny any break in steel prices. Banks gained from treasury since Friday $177,000. Further gold shipments expected to-morrow.

DOW, JONES & CO.

Late London cables report market for Amns. steady. Money market at London easier. Our side general conditions good but labour situation disturbing factor and troubles in that direction seem to be spreading. Is thought more gold will be shipped soon but this has been discounted as a factor. We believe good stocks are a purchase on breaks but only for a turn and advise securing profits on rallies.

M & M.

Messrs. Haight & Freese, Stock Brokers, submit the following:—

New York, May 13th.—Traders may temporarily ignore all facts that point to the continuance of good times, but improving conditions will be assertive and become potent mark factors. U.S. Steel officials deny that there has been any change in the price of steel billets or raw commodity in the iron, or steel market; professionals have been the aggressive sellers of short stocks while the buying continues to be for the account of operators and bankers who are counting on market speculative and investment improvement from now on. Excellent absorption of A. C. F. Gould, Rockfeller factions are very bullish on M.O.P. and Wabashes.

JOE.

New York, May 13th. —Softening of iron and steel prices may cause some selling in the market this morning, and we believe a slightly lower level will be established at first, but the reaction yesterday afternoon was a bear raid asserted by the heaviness of Penns and rumors about the iron trade coincident with the weakness of steel stocks. A reaction of iron prices will put the trade in a more healthy condition. Imports will decrease and exports will increase. It seems likely that a strike will occur on the Great Northern. Looking carefully over the situation however we fail to see why any reason why good stocks should not be bought on this reaction. Paul ought to be a purchase for a turn. Our information indicates that Kansas City Southern will have an advance soon. L. & N. will move higher later on. M.O. P and Wabash preferred should be confidentially bought when weak on this reaction. The Erie issues are apparently displaying the strongest lines of resistence of any stocks on the list and we recommend their purchase. London market heavy.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Room traders are keenly interested in Missouri Pacific and are watching the movement of the stock closely. It is very generally thought that something important is going on, but traders have not as yet been able to satisfy themselves whether stock is being accumulated or sold on balance. The Butlers and other brokers who usually represent the Gould interests continued to be open buyers of Missouri Pacific on a large scale. Many traders, however, believe that the Butlers are selling Missouri Pacific heavily through other brokers. If stock is being accumulated it is certainly being done in an exceptionally open manner. There has been quite a little short selling of Missouri Pacific by traders during the last few days on the belief that insiders were unloading stock on the market. These traders, however, stand ready to cover their short sales at the first sign of an upward movement.

He Got Even.

The late Paul Leicester Ford had, as every one knows, a deformity of the spine. Any reference to this he resented, sometimes with considerable acrimony.

On one occasion in Ford's youth he paid an overbold compliment to a girl whom he admired.

"You are," he said, "the handsomest young woman I have ever seen."

The girl, vexed, answered rudely:

"I wish I could say as much for you, Mr. Ford."

"You could," Ford retorted, "if you would lie as I did."

TREADGOLD CONCESSION.

Ottawa, May 13.—Mr. Maclean introduced in the House yesterday a bill to change the name of Hudson Bay. He explained that he proposed this in order to assert our supremacy in that region. He said we had lost the Mississippi valley through inattention, lost Louisiana, Texas, Oregon and a portion of the Pacific coast.

Mr. Cowan—And North Ontario. (Laughter.)

The motion "that the hon. gentleman have leave to introduce this bill" was received with cries of "No," and the question of "When shall the bill be read a second time?" with shouts of "Never" and laughter.

The Treadgold Concession.

The House spent the entire day discussing Mr. Casgrain's amendment to supply, condemning the Treadgold concession. The speeches on both sides were longer than usual. The feature of the debate was a spirited address by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who remained until the division at 1.10 a.m.

Sir William Mulock contended that Mr. Casgrain had greatly exaggerated the value of the concessions, but promised that the Government would make a searching investigation into the charges.

Mr. Pringle said that the Liberal Association of Dawson had gone so far as to charge that fraud and misrepresentation must have been used to obtain use of the enormous concessions.

Minister Blair replied that he thought that Mr. Pringle, though generally a fair-minded man, had worked himself into a somewhat unreasonable frame of mind on this question. There was no evidence that the country would lose an enormous revenue, and there was nothing to interfere with the rights of miners, except in places where works were actually constructed.

Mr. Porter argued that the sale of lands by Order-in-Council was illegal.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier defended the concessions. He argued that ample means had been taken to defend the public interests, and the interests of individual miners. He said that in the first Order-in-Council the abandoned claims were given to the syndicate that seemed fair at the time, but the Government had found reason to modify its view, and the second Order-in-Council very much restricted the power of the syndicate to work abandoned claims. The Order-in-Council had been amended again and again in deference to the protests of miners and others.

Mr. Borden, leader of the Opposition, asked how it was that the Government had not long ago opened the investigation which they had promised this evening. What did the Liberals in the Yukon mean when they said these concessions had been obtained by fraud? Had the Government had any information on this subject? There should either be free competition or efficient Government supervision.

The House adjourned at 1.10.

Death of Rev. Munro Fraser.

Hamilton, May 13.—Rev. Munro Fraser died at the family residence, 213 North Park street, about 6 o'clock last evening. Until two years ago he was pastor of Knox Church, which he built up to be the second largest Presbyterian congregation in Ontario. He was forced to retire on account of ill health. He had lived in Hamilton for the past 18 years. His birthplace was Dunkeld, Perthshire, Scotland. He was 67 years of age. A widow, two daughters—Helen and Lilian—and one son—Edward of Colorado—survive him.

Joaquin Miller Not Dead.

San Francisco, May 13.—Joaquin Miller is not dead. The report that he was came from Oakland too late for investigation. Yesterday morning it was learned that the report was unfounded.

"Royal Muskoka."

DIED AT AGE OF 110

MRS. NEVE, OLDEST WOMAN IN ENGLAND, PASSES AWAY.

Friend of the Late Queen Victoria—Met Marshal Blucher and Entertained the Prussian General After Waterloo—She Made a Trip to Russia When 98 Years Old—Received at Rouge Huis.

Mrs. Margaret Neve, King Edward's oldest subject, died on Saturday, April 4, 1903, at her home, in Guernsey. For 110 years she preserved her health, strength and even her eyesight, and was known throughout the United Kingdom.

She was a wealthy woman, lived on a charming estate and gladly welcomed visitors. She was a friend of the late Queen Victoria, and never missed sending on Her Majesty's birthday a telegram of conratulation to her.

The Queen never forgot to return the compliment and had Mrs. Neve's portrait hung in a conspicuous place at Osborne. When ninety-two years old Mrs. Neve went to Cracow to see Kosciusko's monument. She enjoyed the trip so much that she went on to Russia, accompanied only by her younger sister, who was eighty-nine years of age.

Mrs Neve lived the simple life of a country gentlewoman and was keenly interested in her estate, over which he walked unaided by stick or arm. She retained the old fashioned fondness for the darning needle, work which she accomplished without glasses.

Among the many accomplishments of Mrs. Neve, who entertained Marshal Blucher shortly after the battle of Waterloo, was a translation which she made of Dante's works into French. She had been a widow for the last half century, had no children, and in May would have been 111 years of age.

The fact of the great age of Mrs. Neve is substantiated by the preservation of her baptismal register. Beautiful grounds surround Rouge Huis, the home of Mrs. Neve.

Mrs. Neve's first recollection seems to be that of leaving her native island at the age of thirteen, in order to proceed to Bristol, situated between the counties of Gloucester and Somerset, to be educated. This trip had, of course, in those days to be accomplished in a sailing boat.

Mrs. Neve's impressions of the great battle of Trafalgar were rather faint, but of Waterloo, fought in the year of her marriage, 1815, she had the most vivid recollections. She wedded a Kentish gentleman, and enjoyed twenty-five years of conjugal happiness traveling about the Continent. Among many other places they visited the historic field of Waterloo, a souvenir of which this wonderful old lady retained to the day of her death. It was in the form of a buckle belt marked with an "N," and must evidently have belonged to a soldier of the Imperial Guard.

So inherent was the love of travel that Mrs. Neve continued her custom of visiting foreign countries even up to the advanced age of ninety-two, when she went to Russia.

To habits of simplicity and early rising Mrs. Neve attributed much of the health which she enjoyed during her long life. It was her custom to partake of only three meals in the course of the day, and to eat absolutely nothing between them. Against afternoon tea she set her face like a flint, and nobody could persuade her to drink the beverage except at the usual hour for supper.

Until as recently as five years ago it was Mrs. Neve's custom to walk to church, situated at a distance of half a mile from Rouge Buis, both going and returning.

Radium.

Radium is self luminous, shining with a bluish light. It, like Roentgen rays, makes a sensitive screen phosphorescent. It shows the bones in the hand and is so vigorous that it has produced sores on those who have incautiously carried it about their persons. The radium emits negatively electrified particles with a velocity in some cases approaching that of light.

NORWAY HOUSE RELICS.

Sun Dial Constructed by Sir John Franklin is Wonderful Preservation.

Mr. C. E. Perry, C. E., has arrived at Quebec City from Norway House on the Nelson River, the outlet of Lake Winnipeg, where he has been in charge during the last winter of the surveying party engaged in exploratory and location work for the trans-Canada railway. Norway House is one of the most important of the fur-trading posts of the Hudson's Bay Co., the Indians coming in to it from all directions for a distance of 250 to 300 miles in their canoes in summer and dog sleighs in winter. In this trade last year the profits of this post exceeded $40,000.

One of the most prized possessions of Norway House is a sun dial constructed there by the famous Arctic explorer, Sir John Franklin, with his initials, supposed to have been carved by himself, cut into the lead covering. It is placed upon a pillar of spruce four and a half feet high in the garden of the chief factor. The copper disc, which is covered with the lead plate already described, is a foot in diameter, and there is also a little copper index. The longitude and latitude of Norway House are marked upon the plate. The wood and metal work are as good as new, and though relic and curiosity hunters of all kinds have made repeated efforts to get it they have always been refused.

One of the most pathetic landmarks of the place is a monument erected to the memory of a former chief factor of Norway House, who was accidentally drowned in a rapid more than a decade ago by the upsetting of his canoe. His faithful Indian managed to lash him in the water to the canoe, and endeavored to swim with him to the shore, but lost his own life in the attempt. The monument is not only to Mr. Belanger, the late chief factor, but bears also the inscription, "To the faithful servant, who died for his master."

Mr. Perry has with him plans and profiles of the survey work done by his party during February and March. This may be briefly summarized as follows' Explorations carried on for fully four hundred miles have demonstrated an exceptionally easy country east and west of Nelson River, at head of Lake Winnipeg. On the first thirty miles of located line but two easy curves exist, and the party are now running a 100-mile straight line through level country east towards Island Lake. Westerly from crossing of Nelson River there will be a 60-mile straight line, and the gradients exceedingly easy. An excellent crossing of the Nelson River was secured, and exhaustive surveys made of the river channel. Crossings tried and soundings carefully taken to determine the very best bridge site.

IDEALS OF LIBERTY.

English and American Conceptions Contrasted by Prof. Milner.

Prof. W. S. Milner of Toronto University recently read a very carefully prepared paper upon "The English and American Conceptions of Liberty," before the Toronto Canadian Club.

He considered that the best conception of liberty was embodied in the English idea rather than the American. The English had never forgotten the early German conception of individual liberty, which had been carried from the shores of the Baltic, and every great revolutionary movement had represented the fact. The Normans had brought the conception of Roman Imperialism against which the English had battled, and he believed that the danger of the Norman influence upon English civilization, had been thwarted, and that the German conception, as illustrated in the turning out of Governments when in power with a safe majority, as pointed out by government defeats in bye-elections, had won the day.

American democracy was a faith in man, which had almost attained the zeal of a religion. It embodied all the good and bad ideals of the Roman and the Greek. It had made the people believe that the revolution of 1767 had given the country the most lofty ideal of liberty, and it had culminated in the great trusts and in the most impure system of party government in the world.

He considered that the younger Canadians are losing the English conception, and drifting towards the American, and that only the assertion of the individual conception would save us from falling into the American ideas. The present apathy in Canadian politics strongly supported his contention. Discipline had lost its force, partly by reason of the ideals of American democracy, which had crept in, and by reason of so many women teaching in the public schools.

Medical Knights.

Sir James Grant of Ottawa, and Sir William Hingston of Montreal are the only two Canadian physicians who owe their knighthoods to their professional rank and services. Although Sir James Grant long sat in the House of Commons, it was not the politician, but the physician to the vice-regal household and the successful doctor who was decorated. It was as a medical man and not as a member of Parliament that Dr. Hingston received his knighthood. The other "doctors," like Sir Charles Tupper or Sir John Schultz, won their titles in public life, not in medical practice.

Named for Indore, India.

Rev. R. A. King, M.A., a graduate of Manitoba College, who, after taking his degree, pursued his studies in Edinburgh and Germany, and who has lately been in the pastorate in British Columbia, was designated in Knox Church, Winnipeg, the other evening to the principalship of Indore College, India. The occasion was of interest to all Presbyterians, and the honor done Manitoba College in the selection of one of its graduates for so important and responsible a position, is highly appreciated by friends of that institution.

GAMEY ON SEPT. 9TH

Witness Gives Evidence as to His Movements.

CONTRADICTS FOUR MEN.

Mr. E. J. Armstrong's Memory Hazy on All Other Appointments—More Evidence on Gamey's Political Leanings by Men From Manitoulin—Bank Account Examination—Investigation to Continue.

Toronto, May 14.—There was a conference at the outset of the Gamey bribery investigation yesterday as to the accountancy phases of the matter. Mr. Walter Barwick, K.C., was on hand in behalf of the Ontario Bank, and Mr. A. Claude Macdonnell represented the Dominion Permanent Loan Company, in which Mr. Stratton keeps his private accounts. The bank finally announced its permission to one counsel on each side to examine transactions in $50 and $100 bills, so long as the strictest privacy were guaranteed. All information gathered by the staff will be submitted.

Mr. Macdonnell objected to the examination of the Loan Company's books unless the prosecution would state just what entries they wanted.

Merely Fishing.

"They cannot," said the Chancellor, "this is a fishing expedition." He held, however, that the counsel were entitled to the information.

Mr. Johnston, on behalf of Mr. Stratton, said that the position was simply this: That the prolongation of the enquiry was a serious drawback to Mr. Stratton in pursuing his duties as a member of the Legislature and a Minister of the Crown. Every item of Mr. Stratton's personal account had been submitted.

The court directed, however, that one counsel on each side should have access to the books. Mr. Johnston requested that the enquiry be limited to the same date as in the case of the Ontario Bank.

The Chancellor directed that counsel should look for traces of the alleged $1,000 transaction of January 29, as well as of the $3,000 affair of September 9.

Brought From Espanola.

H. E. Sheppard, of Espanola, testified that he had met Mr. Gamey on the train between Sudbury and Webbwood, about noon, on Jan. 14th last. To be on that train on that particular day Mr. Gamey must have left Toronto at 11.15 p.m. on Jan. 13.

Mr. Sheppard's evidence was intended to reply in part to that of Dr. Arthur's, who had sworn that he saw Mr. Gamey at the Walker House on both Jan. 13 and 14.

To Mr. Johnston, Mr. Sheppard said he would not contradict Dr. Arthur's statement, as that gentleman might have seen Mr. Gamey on January 13.

Mr. McPherson quoted from Dr. Arthur's evidence a statement that he had seen Mr. Gamey and conversed with him at the Walker House on January 14.

Gamey's Campaign Politics.

Thomas Ellis, district constable of Providence Bay, swore that he had been at Mr. Gamey's meeting on May 3. Mr. Gamey had denounced the Government and had said nothing to give the inference that he would support the Ross Government. Mr. Gamey did not mention the name of Mr. A. F. Campbell, and did not make the statements attributed to him by Messrs. Neil McDougall, W. J. Berry, Sylvester Berry, and the other defence witnesses.

To Mr. Johnston the witness said that Mr. Gamey had promised the convention to support Mr. Whitney. In answer to a question as to the course he would expect Mr. Gamey to pursue if Mr. Whitney did not carry out his announced policy, the witness answered that he would expect Mr. Gamey to come home and resign. Asked if he had created a disturbance at one of the campaign meetings, Mr. Ellis said he had not. He had just interrupted a Liberal speaker long enough to correct a statement he had made that witness thought was a subject that should not have been mentioned.

Another of the Kind.

William Vincer, Township Clerk of Carnarvon, Manitoulin, was at the Providence Bay meeting, as well as two or three others. He heard all of Mr. Gamey's speech, in which he denounced the Ross Government. Witness did not agree with Neil McDougall or the Berry's, to the effect that Gamey said he would support good measures of the Ross Government, nor did he hear A. F. Campbell's name mentioned. The whole trend of Gamey's speech was that there would be no Ross Government after May 29. The witness was deputy returning officer for the referendum, and was notified of his appointment by Mr. Gamey, instead of by the returning officer, Sheriff Jackson.

To Mr. Johnston the witness said that he would think it perfectly right for a member of Parliament to support measures which would be for the advantage of the country. He put the country before party.

More of the Same Sort.

William H. Clark, who was at meetings at Providence Bay, Long Bay, Manitowaning and other points last May, swore that Gamey had given no intimation that he would support the Ross Government. The only Liberal for whom Gamey had a good word was Mr. James Conmee. The latter he said he hoped to see elected, as he had a good mining policy and was a good fellow. Clark swore that he had been a Liberal until the last general election, and had known Gamey as a stiff Conservative for eighteen years. He himself supported Mr. Gamey because he was a good man and knew the wants of the country.

George Strain, of Gordon township, gave testimony similar to that of the previous witnesses. He had been a McMillan supporter, but had said to the electors: "If you can't vote for McMillan, vote for Gamey."

James Carter, of Kagawong, corroborated the previous witnesses in regard to the statements that were made by Mr. Gamey at his meeting, and denied that he had ever said he would give the Ross Government independent support. He did say, however, that if the Opposition, meaning the Liberals, were to introduce a measure beneficial to the Island he would support it.

In cross-examination by Mr. Johnston the witness said the principal issue between the parties at the general election was the benefit of Manitoulin, but to Mr. McPherson he said the interests of the Province generally were also to be taken into consideration as well.

R. J. Armstrong, general merchant of Gore Bay corroborated the previous witnesses as to what happened at Mr. Gamey's meetings.

On the morning of Tuesday, September 9, 1902, he had met Mr. Gamey about 9.15 around Simpson's store in Toronto. They arranged to meet at 10 o'clock at the Exhibition grounds. Witness was at the appointed place at 9.55. Mr. Gamey arrived ten minutes later. The two visited various portions of the Exhibition, and were together until one o'clock, when they separated. Witness then transacted some business with Mr. W. R. Landon, of the Chatham Wagon Works. He fixed the date accurately by a receipt for some notes which he had handed over to Mr. Landon.

(The object of this testimony was to contradict the evidence of Hon. J. R. Stratton, Elgin Myers and Frank Sullivan, that Gamey visited the Parliament Buildings on the morning of September 9, and that this was his only visit during that month. Gamey swore that to the best of his recollection his first visit was on the tenth.)

Cross-Examination.

To Mr. Johnston, the witness said that when he was in the city at Fair time he did not stay at a hotel, but at a friend's place. On the Monday afternoon he had business at the McCormick offices, but could not recall where he went afterwards. On Tuesday morning he went to Eaton's just after the meeting with Gamey, and after walking about for a time, he went to the Exhibition grounds. He would not swear the exact time he arrived at the grounds, but he thought it was within ten minutes of ten o'clock.

Mr. Johnston went exhaustively into the question of time, and witness stuck to the date and the time within ten minutes as he had looked at his watch. He created some amusement by saying that he could not remember ever making any other appointment to meet anyone, though he might have done so in his younger days.

Mr. Johnston then produced a bill for $168, which was paid by the witness to the McCormick Company at the Exhibition grounds by a cheque. Asked the date of the cheque, witness said it was the 9th of September. He could not say why the bill was twice folded.

His Poor Memory.

He was also asked about his movements during the rest of the week. The witness could only recall that he spent most of his days on the Exhibition grounds and visited three different theatres. He could not fix within five or ten minutes where he was on any other day of that week.

In re-examination Mr. Armstrong said he usually visited Toronto once a year, and that at Exhibition time. He was not familiar with the directions here and the only street of which he was sure was Yonge street. The Court adjourned at 2.10 until this morning.

BREAKING A STRIKE

Stringent Bill in Victoria Parliament.

GIVES THE WIDEST POWERS.

Authorities Bound to Have Power by Law to Enable Them to End the Disastrous Tie-Up of Australian Railways—Provisions of Premier Irvine's Measure—An Amendment Defeated on a Division.

Melbourne, Victoria, May 14.—In the Legislative Assembly yesterday, Premier Irvine made a speech on the subject of the strike. He said the country faced a long meditated revolt against established authority. The issue concerned every country. The strike had thrown the State into confusion, and it would be a fight to a finish.

The Premier then moved the second reading of a bill providing for the suppression of the strike, which was not retrospective, and which will not remain in force after the termination of the strike. It provides that an employe leaving his work without giving four nights' notice is to be assumed to have joined the strike, and will incur the penalty of $500 fine or a year's imprisonment, with loss of pension, and will be ineligible in future for Government employ.

The bill also forbids interference with employes, the collection of strike funds, or encouraging the strike in any manner.

The bill further empowers the police to destroy documents encouraging the strike, makes printers thereof offenders against the law, and declares meetings to be unlawful if four strikers are present. All persons refusing to disperse are liable to arrest without warrants, and the police are empowered to forcibly enter meetings.

An amendment expressing regret at the strike and promising that Parliament would consider the grievances of the railroad men if they return to work was defeated by 58 to 30 votes.

SAID IT WAS IN SELF-DEFENCE.

McGrain Adjudged Guilty of Manslaughter Only in Stabbing Williams.

Toronto, May 14.—Christopher McGrain was last night adjudged guilty of manslaughter only for the stabbing of George Williams. He took the stand himself and admitted the offence, but urged that he did so purely in self-defence. McGrain is 62 years of age, and took the day's proceedings coolly.

Commercial Traveler Drowned.

Slater Shoe Advertising

Foot Comfort

Short talks by the Slater Shoe ad. man, No. 3.

For years the "Slater Shoe" has been advertised as the shoe of comfort—of foot ease.

Thousands of pairs of "Slater Shoes" have been bought because of this claim.

If the "Slater Shoe" had not proven to wearers its claims to comfort how long could it have remained on the market, no matter how loudly or skillfully it might have been advertised?

How long could the makers have continued to expend large sums in advertising had the "Slater Shoe" fallen short in any of its advertised claims to comfort, wear and appearance?

The Slater Shoe

Goodyear welted. Made in Canada 40 years.
$3.50 and $5.00—for men and women.

MR. STRATTON'S FRANK DENIAL

(St. Catharines Journal.)

The Hamilton Herald, which has evinced a keen interest in the Gamey-Stratton proceedings, and which has been, by no means, friendly towards the Provincial Secretary or the Government, as an outcome of the evidence produced by the prosecution takes a careful and candid review of the evidence given by Mr. Stratton and in its Tuesday edition, says:—

"The best witness who has testified before the bribery commission thus far is the Provincial Secretary, who gave evidence yesterday and whose examination is continued today. His replies to the questions in the direct examination were frank and explicit, full and unhesitating. Under the keen and harassing cross-examination by Mr. Blake he kept his temper and his head, and while he did not forget the courtesy due the court and showed no desire to bandy words with Mr. Blake, he countered effectively upon the lawyer in reply to insinuations and sarcastic comments of the latter.

"It is, however, a matter of little importance whether Mr. Blake or Mr. Stratton made the best showing in the war of wits. The important thing to consider is whether the evidence given by Mr. Stratton had the appearance of truth. Even his political enemies admit that he offered plausible explanations of circumstances which, when related by Mr. Gamey, looked suspicious. But to the unprejudiced mind his explanations appear more than plausible; they appear to be reasonable and satisfactory.

"The central pivotal question in this investigation is whether Gamey received $4,000 from Stratton. Gamey swears he did; his evidence is flatly contradicted by Sullivan, Myers and Chase, the first of whom and either of the toher two must have known of the transaction if it had taken place and now Mr. Stratton himself gives to the statement of Gamey an absolute and unqualified denial.

"The weight of testimony is decidedly in favour of the assumption that Mr. Stratton is innocent of the charge; and unless the prosecution has important evidence in reserve it is not hard to predict what the outcome will be."

While the trial is not yet closed there is little doubt that the Provincial Secretary will have been vindicated by all the respectable electors of the province who will have naught but condemnation for Mr. Gamey, and the big organs which have been so aggressive and defensive in his behalf. The trial thus far, has resulted as many honest Liberals had expected, hence it yet remains for the Opposition to unearth a skeleton that will bring reproach and scandal upon a Government which has so long guided the public ship.

RURAL MUNICIPALITIES.

The composition of county councils was liberally discussed at the Legislature Tuesday. Before the adoption of the present law some six years ago, the councils were composed of the Reeves and Deputy Reeves oft townships and villages. The chief objection to old system was that in large counties the councils became unwieldly. As an example the united counties of Northumberland and Durham, during the last year, under the old act, had a council of 52 members. The present law reduced the representation to 24. While this system is satisfactory, so far as the numerical strength of the councils is concerned, the provision for separate and distinct election does not result in the necessary unity between the township and county boards. The old system kept both the township and county administration very close to the electors, and secured an exceptionally good class of men for the county councils.

Mr. Taylor's bill, which passed its second reading, aims at a restoration of the old system, but would limit the representation by restricting it to Reeves of townships and villages, and Mayors of towns, not separated from the counties. A local option feature of the bill was generally approved. A majority of the local municipalities in a county must approve of the new method by resolution before it can be adopted. The discussion brought out divergent views as to the relative merits of the old and the present methods, and made it clear that the effects of the change had not been the same in all counties. Some were perfectly satisfied with the present method, while others wished to return to a modified form of the old. Some system of local option will probably be adopted. It is worthy of note that the public affairs of rural municipalities in Ontario, are exceptionally well managed. The system brings the elector very close to the representative and his work. The county councils are excellent deliberative bodies, but a wider measure of local option with regard to their composition may work needed reforms in some counties.—Globe.

CANNOT POTECT THE FARMER.

In moving his annual resolution setting forth the conservative policy of prohibitively high tariff duties, but which met with its usual fate of defeat, Mr. Borden declared that it was the desire of the Conservatives to protect the farmers. This is not a new story. It has been told over and over again in Parliament and out of it, but neither Mr. Borden nor his followers has ever been able to explain how the farmers will be protected. They do talk about the extention of the home market, but they know, or if they do not, they are densely ignorant, that the home market cannot be extended so as to afford a market for the surplus products of the farmer. Sir Richard Cartwright dealt with this matter in his speech on the budget in reply to Mr. Borden. He sought enlightenment from that gentleman but he sought it in vain. Sir Richard said:—

"The honourable gentleman was good enough to tell us that it was the policy of his party to protect the farmers. That is a laudable, desirable and most important object in which I heartily concur, and I would like to see how the honourable gentleman proposes to do it. We stand here to be instructed; we desire to know. We are not above—if the honourable gentleman can show us how—taking a useful hint from that honourable gentleman.

"Last year the people of Canada produced about 100,000,000 bushels of wheat, and possibly next year they will produce 200,000,000 bushels of wheat; the chance is that in a very short time they may produce 300,000,000 bushels of wheat. Will the honourable gentleman (Mr. Borden) be good enough to show me how he proposes by protection to add one cent to the value of wheat grown in Canada? I should like to know.

"I should like to understand under what conditions, if we grow 300,000,000 bushels of wheat and require 30,000,000 bushels for our own use, the honourable gentleman is going to protect the growers of the remaining 180,000,000 bushels. I am open to conviction; I carry an open mind."

No answer was given because no answer is possible. No tariff legislation can add to the value of the wheat, the cheese, the hams and the bacon which we dispose of in the British markets. The best policy for the farmers is that which prevails under the present tariff, moderately high, and giving a fair degree of protection to the manufacturer, with such competition from foreign manufacturers as will guarantee that the farmer and other consumers shall not pay exorbitant prices.

PROF. ROBERTSON ON MANUAL TRAINING.

Importance and Value of This Form of Instruction.

In the Committee on Agriculture and Colonization this morning Prof. Robertson, Dairy Commissioner, gave a most entertaining and instructive address on the introduction and operation of manual training and consolidated schools in the Dominion, a work in which he is associated with Sir William Macdonald. The professor stated that he was acting in conjunction with Sir William Macdonald, by permission of the Minister of Agriculture, as a private citizen, doing the work, which did not cost the Dominion one dollar, in his own time. Dr. Sproule suggested that there might be a conflict of authority, as the whole question of education belonged to the Provincial Governments, and since taking up the work he had become so thoroughly convinced of the importance and value to the educational interests of the Dominion of manual training and consolidated schools, of which there would be 1,000 in operation within ten years, that if it came to a question of giving up either of the great works in which he was engaged he would prefer to relinquish the Dairy Commissionership. The committee passed a resolution of thanks to Prof. Robertson, expressing appreciation of the valuable and progressive character of the evidence he has given to the committee, and congratulating him upon well-deserved honours conferred upon him by the universities of Toronto and Kingston.

FARMER BOY'S

Lot Now Lighter Than it was in Former Years.

Did you ever drop corn all day by hand in a furrow "laid out" by a horse driven by a single line attached to a single shovel plow and keep it up for two or three weeks? Most old people who have lived on a farm have had this experience, or have followed the boy who was dropping the corn day in and day out, covering it with a hoe. Forty years ago a boy who could drop for two coverers could earn his fifty cents a day, while the ordinary boy could earn from twenty to thirty-five cents a day. As a matter of fact, a boy could get over more ground and plant a much bigger acreage than a man, but then, as now, there was an unwritten law that he should not receive men's wages. Before the days of labour-saving machinery, farm work—for the boy especially—was a constant round of drudgery, and it was little wonder they pined for a life in the city. Now it is different, and life on a farm is preferable to most other pursuits in life.

CAUGHT A SALT WATER SALMON

Experiment in Freshening a Salt Water Fish.

Wiarton Echo.

Some seven or eight years ago the Dominion Fisheries Department deposited a quantity of Atlantic salmon fry in some of the rivers running into the Superior and Huron. About three years later, the Echo is informed, a fine specimen was caught on the Saugeen River. With manly pride, the lucky angler sent his catch to the authorities at Otawa for which he received a ten dollar bill as a prize. In so far as we are aware, this was the only one caught up to last week, when an Indian succeeded in landing, at the power house near Southampton, another fine specimen. The strangest part is that this later catch resembles the Pacific salmon more closely than it does the Atlantic species.

GREATLY ALARMED.

By a Persistent Cough, but Permanently Cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Mr. H. P. Burbage, a student at law in Greenville, S. C., has been troubled for four or five years with a continuous cough, which he says "greatly alarmed me, causing me to fear that I was in the first stages of consumption." Mr. Burbage, having seen Chamberlain's Cough Remedy advertised, concluded to try it. "I soon felt a remarkable change and after using two bottles of the 25 cent kind was permanently cured. Sold by all druggists.

INTERLOCKED DEER HORNS.

A Fight to Death Between Two Big Bucks.

From the Alpena (Mich.) Echo.

Interlocked deer horns, from the heads of two big bucks that fought to the death on the banks of McGinn Creek, are on exhibition in the show window Doyle and LaLonde's shoe store.

The interlocked horns were found near the Raburn Dam, forty miles west of Alpena, on the opening day of the brook out season, by W. L. Dobson, editor of the Echo.

The larger of the two sets of horns has sixteen points, and is one of the largest ever seen in Northern Michigan, The buck that wore the horns weighed over 300 pounds.

When found, the horns were attached to the skulls of the two animals, and were buried in the mud alongside of McGinn Creek, on a beaver meadow. The skeletons were also buried in the mud.

Deer hunters who have seen the interlocked horns say the largest of the two sets of horns was probably worn by "Old Brim," a famous big buck that had been shot at hundreds of times. He escaped the many bullets fired at him only to die in a fierce battle with another buck. The fight probably occurred about a year ago.

RUSH POINT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The farmers are pretty well done with their spring work.

We are sorry to learn that Mr. John Patherick is very low. La-grippe together with old age, leave small hope of his recovery.

Mr. J. Hart was in this locality on Sunday last.

Mr. J. Pollock had his knee badly hurt by a colt falling against him.

Mr. C. Little has had the misfortune to lose a valuable horse.

Mr. Pollock captured four young foxes lately, which he intends to keep for pets.

KEENE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Keene, May 12th, 1903.

Miss Lillian Campbell is home from Toronto, where she has spent the winter season taking instructions in vocal and instrumental music.

Mrs. K. Roech, with her daughter, Flora and grand-daughter, Miss McLaughlin, returned from Buffalo, N. Y., on Wednesday last. They have been across the border since October.

Miss Margaret Bryce took part in the St. Andrew's anniversary concert, Peterborough, on Monday evening. She rendered a solo in a remarkably clear and full voice, and won laudatory comments from the Peterborough press. We congratulate Miss Bryce on her success. Miss Mabel Harrison also took part as pianist in the programme and won much praise. We are pleased to know that our local talent is being appreciated elsewhere.

Mr. John Walsh, of Hastings, was in the village, Sunday.

Mr. J. J. Crowe, License Inspector, was here on Thursday and Friday.

The steamer Rainbow, Captain Fred Copperwaith, was the first boat to make this port this season. It called on Thursday with cedar deals for the Township to be used in making culverts.

An excellent programme will be given at the Civic Improvement concert to be held the evening of the 22nd.

Our streets should be named. How inconvenient it is to have to refer to a certain street as "that street," or some such ambiguous term. We are improving. Keep it going. Let the Local Improvement Committee attend to this at once.

Mr. Jos. Howson, of Carbury, Man., was here on Saturday. He is leaving for the West at once.

It is high time the farmers of this district turned their attention to the condition of the road-sides in front of their lots. In many cases they are used as dumping places for large field stones, stumps and broken rails; and less frequently, but too often, as a runway for hogs to root. Nothing looks nicer or bespeaks more of the man's nature, than a neat and trim road-side.

The boys have purchased a football and are practising the old game one so much in favour here. They will meet this week and organize a club, after which they will be glad to hear from junior teams in the district. We have a number of young players who ought to give a good account of themselves.

We are pleased to hear that Herb Quinn has secured a position with the National Correspondence School. He left for Toronto on Monday.

The Public School Board met on Wednesday evening. All interested in the good work should attend.

Miss Huldah Dobbin, of Peterborough spent Sunday with Miss Irene Shaw.

Mrs. John McFarlane has decided to discontinue her sewing. The village is now without a dressmaker notwithstanding the fact that there is now more work in that line than ever before.

Rev. D. McDonald is having a cement walk laid in the manse grounds this week.

Mr. J. C. Brown, inspector of Public Schools, paid an official visit to the school here on Monday.

Mrs. W. A. Eaton left Toronto on Wednesday, for Orbow, Assa., where she will join Mr. Eaton.

Will Mather left on Wednesday morning for Rochester, N. Y., where he will engage in the undertaking business. He will be greatly missed by his many friends here.

Mr. Wm. Shearer is erecting a very fine residence on his farm.

Mr. Jas. Kerr, of Chicago, is here to see his son, who is at present dangerously ill.

Mrs. W. J. Humphries of Acton, Ont., is visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Fife.

Mr. Ed. Howson is selling stock in the Canadian Cordage Co., of Peterborough, and is meeting with exceptional success on account of the excellent business standing of the company last year.

A WIDE DISCUSSION.

Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Bill in Committee.

INTERESTS OF THE NATION.

Effort to Compel the Use of Canadian Ports—Members Who Wish the Intercolonial Railway to Be Extended to the West—Mr. Hays Answers Questions as to the Company's Intentions.

Ottawa, May 14. — The Railway Committee met yesterday, when the Grand Trunk Pacific bill came up again for consideration. The preamble was adopted without discussion.

In reply to questions by Mr. A.E. Kemp, Mr. Hays said that the present freight arrangement with the Intercolonial and the Grand Trunk was satisfactory to the Grand Trunk. The proportion of receipts which the Grand Trunk obtained for this traffic was also satisfactory. Under the existing arrangement the Grand Trunk handed over to the Intercolonial a considerable quantity of grain for shipment by way of St. John and Halifax.

Mr. Hays also stated in reply to Mr. Kemp that under an arrangement similar to that which is in existence at the present time, the Grand Trunk Pacific would be able to hand over the products originating on their line to the Intercolonial to be so shipped. Products originating on the Grand Trunk Pacific would find their way, he said, to Halifax and St. John with as great facility as to Portland.

"If," said Mr. Hays, "We fail to make a satisfactory arrangement with the Intercolonial Railway, then we will build a line to a winter port in the Maritime Provinces."

Mr. H. J. Logan next put a couple of questions on this point.

"You do not," said Logan, "propose to build independent of the Intercolonial?"

Mr. Hays—"I would not say that. What I did say was that if satisfactory arrangements were not made with the I.C.R. then we would build to the Maritime Provinces. If they did build into the Maritime Provinces. If they did build into the Maritime Provinces then it would likely be to Moncton."

Mr. Logan—"Do you intend to build north or south of Lake Abittibi?"

Mr. Hays—"Either north or south, somewhere near there. He could not say until surveys were made."

Mr. Blair explained that while the arrangement between the Grand Trunk and the Intercolonial might be satisfactory to the Grand Trunk, it was not to the Intercolonial. The rate which the I.C.R. received from the G.T.R. at Montreal was the same as that which was paid to the G.T.R. to Portland. The distance to Halifax and St. John was very much greater, and therefore the arrangement would require to be amended considerably in this regard. The I. C. R. could handle at Halifax and St. John, all the traffic that the Grand Trunk would give.

Mr. Fowler spoke of the charter being fixed so that the company would be compelled to take the traffic to the Maritime Provinces. Mr. Hays replied that the company could not control the shippers.

Mr. Emmerson said that unless the company agreed to carry their line to the Maritime Provinces, the object of making the road an all-Canadian road, with a Canadian ocean port, could not be obtained. He was not in favor of the terms of the proposition as now before the committee. The committee should grapple with the question from a national standpoint. The only way that this could be done properly was by the Government constructing a line into the wheat fields of the great west. He did not think that the people were just now clamoring for a transcontinental line. Before any subsidy was granted to the Grand Trunk the road should be ensured to go to a Maritime Province port. He spoke from a Canadian standpoint.

Mr. Logan said the committee should see to it that the road was constructed on Canadian territory with an ocean port on the Atlantic and the Pacific. He had no confidence, however, in the Grand Trunk carrying out its promises. It had already broken all the promises it had made in connection with the Drummond County contract. All that Mr. Hays now said was that the Maritime Provinces would get the preference. What he wanted to see was an arrangement which would make it to the company's advantage to take the traffic to St. John. If the company built to Moncton, this advantage would be obtained.

Mr. Wade (Annapolis), spoke strongly for the company building to Moncton, and therefore he would suggest amending the bills so that the company would commence its road at Moncton.

Mr. Blair said that while there was force in Mr. Wade's suggestion, he did not desire, if it could be helped, the building of another line which would parallel the Intercolonial from Quebec, and therefore it might be possible to make an arrangement between the G.T.R. and the Intercolonial. He thought this could be done between himself and Mr. Hays. If not then the G.T.R. could build.

Hon. D. C. Fraser was in favor of giving a charter to any company that would build. He was in favor of anything that would enhance the price of what Canada produced. If Canadians got a good price it mattered not where the goods went. When the subsidy came up for consideration he would then and not until then agree with very much of what was being said. One thing at a time was sufficient. The subsidy could be dealt with when it came up.

Mr. Galliher favored an all-Canadain road and Mr. Cargill wanted the Government to extend its road to Winnipeg. Mr. P. Roche said that Halifax had excellent terminal facilities for handling all the traffic that could be sent to it.

The committee adjourned without passing any of the clauses.

The bill comes up again on the 27th.

IN PLEASANT PLACES.

The Vice Regal Party's Visit to Windsor and Detroit, Mich.

Windsor, May 14.—The visit of Canada's Governor-General, Lord Minto, and Lady Minto, and daughter to this city yesterday was made the occasion for an international celebration, 25,000 people participating. Troops on both sides of the line vied with each other to do honor to the King's representative in Canada.

In addition to the splendid reception tendered the distinguished visitors at the Russell House in Detroit last evening, a thousand United States troops, regulars and militiamen, marched under arms as a guard of honor to the vice-regal party as their carriages traversed several of the main thoroughfares of that city.

Mayor Maybury, with a number of Detroit ladies and gentlemen, escorted Lord and Lady Minto across the river from Windsor early last evening in the yacht Vita.

After the officers had been presented by Col. Bartlet, Their Excellencies proceeded to hold an informal reception, assisted by Lady Eileen Elliot.

At 4 o'clock an adjournment was taken to the large drill hall, where Their Excellencies, after taking their place upon the platform, listened to an address of welcome by Mayor Drake. Lord Minto replied briefly, thanking the Mayor for the warm welcome extended him on the occasion of his first visit to Western Ontario.

During his stay at Detroit Lord Minto was constantly guarded by half a dozen plain clothes men. The whole affair passed off most satisfactorily and pleasantly.

ALMOST IN DESPAIR.

Was H. Trudel Before he Used Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets—Now his Dyspepsia with all its Pain and Weariness has Disappeared.

To what desperate straits Dyspepsia will reduce a man is exemplified by the story told by Hene Trudel, a student, of Three Rivers, Quebec:

"Sometimes," says Mr. Trudel, "I had slight attacks of indigestion. Then for some weeks it made alarming progress. I became discouraged, weak and almost in despair. I resolved to give up my studies, when a happy accident put a Dodd's Almanac in my hands, and I made up my mind to try Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

"I began using Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets in January, and for six weeks I took one after each meal, sometimes two. After that, feeling greatly better, I took only one after supper; now, from time to time I take one if I feel a little fatigued after eating.

"Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets made me better. To-day I have no headache, no weariness, no pain. I am cured."

500 More New Settlers.

Halifax, N. S., May 14.—The steamer Carthaginian, which arrived yesterday afternoon from Liverpool via St. John's, Nfld., landed 522 passengers last evening. They are a mixed lot, consisting of English, Scotch, Norwegian, Swedes, Finns, Danes and Russians, and are bound for various points in Canada.

Street Car Kills Pedlar.

Hamilton, May 14.—William Cohen, a peddler, who lives at 146 North Ferguson avenue, was fatally injured last evening. He was run into by a street car, at the corner of Herkimer and McNab streets. His skull was fractured, and he lived only about ten minutes after reaching the hospital.

A Farmer Cured of Rheumatism.

"A man living on a farm near here came in a short time ago completely doubled up with rheumatism. I handed him a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and told him to use it freely, and if not satisfied after using it he need not pay a cent for it," says C. P. Rayder, of Pattens Mills, N.Y. "A few days later he walked into the store as straight as a string, and handed me a dollar saying 'Give me another bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm; I want it in the house all the time for it cured me.'" For sale by all druggists.

THE HOUSE AT OTTAWA.

The Topics Which Occupied the Commoners at Tuesday's Session.

Ottawa, May 14.—In the House yesterday afternoon was taken up in making some progress with Mr. Mulock's bill for settlement of railway labor disputes, and in a discussion on the allotment of Cabinet positions, as between Ontario and Quebec.

Some progress was then made with the estimates for public works.

Parliament will be asked by the Premier to adjourn from May 20 to 26.

IMPORTANT MEASURES.

Bills Brought Down by Premier Ross in the Legislature—Second Readings—City of Toronto's Bill.

Toronto, May 14.—Premier Ross brought down in the House yesterday a bill to increase the tax on circuses and traveling shows from $50 to $100 a day for the big shows, and a graduated scale for smaller ones. It is provided that the license may be revoked when gambling is carried on in connection with the show, and heavy penalties may be exacted from the owners of the peanut shell and other games of chance, or no chance. The minimum penalty is raised from $100 to $200, and the maximum penalty from $200 to $800, while the term of imprisonment is increased from 30 days to three months. The proprietor of the show will be held liable for any gambling operations in connection therewith. It is also provided that an official of a municipality must require the production of the Provincial license before issuing a license of the municipality, and he will be liable to a penalty if he fails to carry out this provision.

By the bill, detectives will be given free access to theatres, ball games and public gatherings.

The sideshows, forming a part of an industrial exhibition or agricultural fair, shall not require to be licensed under the act.

The Premier also brought down a bill to protect the banks of the Niagara River, from Fort Erie to Chippewa, from the wash of the river, and to improve the highway along the bank. The Premier proposes that any electric railway company, which may receive a charter to run over the highway, shall enter into a contract to widen and otherwise improve the highway.

A third bill introduced by the Premier amends the Statute Law, by providing that a person is not disqualified from being elected a member of a municipal council by reason of any exemption privileges he may enjoy, even if based on a contract or agreement with the corporation.

Other bills introduced by the Premier were: To amend the act for the improvement of public highways, and to amend the Municipal Act.

Mr. Pettypiece introduced a bill, amending the act respecting the Town of Sault Ste. Marie, the Lake Superior Power Company and certain other companies.

Mr. Downey's bill to repeal the Conmee clauses of the Municipal Act will come up for a second reading on Friday, the second reading being deferred at the request of Mr. Ross, owing to the absence from the House of Mr. Conmee.

Mr. Joynt moved the second reading of his bill to amend the act respecting veterinary surgeons. It went to the Agricultural Committee.

Mr. Powell's bill to prevent the overcrowding of street cars was declared lost on division.

The bill of Mr. Little of Cardwell, to allow corporations to narrow their highways, was sent to the committee.

Second readings were given to a number of private bills.

In committee of the whole House several bills were adopted.

The bill of the city of Toronto which proposes to wipe out the property qualifications for Mayor and Aldermen so that anyone who has a vote in municipal affairs may be elected to the City Council. It reduces the property qualifications for voters from $400 to $200, and allows women who have the requisite property qualification to vote, whether married or single. There are also some elaborate provisions in reference to the transmission of electricity, similar to the provisions of the Premier's power bill.

The bill went to the Municipal Committee.

Miners' Bills Vetoed.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 14.—Governor Pennypacker yesterday signed the Child Labor Bill, which makes it unlawful to employ children under 16 years old in and about the mines. These three miners' bills were vetoed: The Eight-Hour Day Bill; the bill providing for the payment of coal mined by the ton of 2,240 pounds, and the Mine Inspection Bill.

Another Hamilton Suicide.

Hamilton, May 14.—The fourth case of self-destruction within the past few days was brought to the notice of the police yesterday morning, when Alfred Emberson, 68 North Wellington street, ended his life with a razor. He made two big gashes in the front of his throat, and then slashed his wrists. He was 51 years of age.

Sues Her Own Royal Father.

Brussels, May 14.—The Countess Lonyay has brought suit against her father, King Leopold. The Countess claims that her share of the estate of her mother, the late Queen Marie Henriette, should be $3,400,000, instead of the $120,000 offered by King Leopold.

For a Certainty I am Cured.

Mr. Jas. Treneman, 536 Adelaide street, London, writes that for two years he was laid up with kidney disease and urinary troubles. He became dropsical and his legs would swell so that he could hardly walk around. He never used any medicine that did him so much good as Dr. Chase's Kidney Live Pills, and knows for a certainty that this treatment cured him. One pill a dose; 25c. a box.

THE LARGEST BATTLESHIP.

The Commonwealth Launched on the Clyde Is a Big 'Un.

London, May 14.—The Commonwealth, the largest battleship afloat, was launched at Govan-on-the-Clyde yesterday afternoon. She is the first vessel of the British navy to have her ten six-inch guns protected by an extended barbet, instead of by casemates. Her other armament consists of four twelve-inch guns, four 9.2-inch guns and four small guns. The new battleship's speed is to be 18.5 knots per hour, and she will carry a crew of 750 men. She is of 16,350 tons displacement, and her engines are to be of 18,000 horsepower.

A Bit of Scotland in Canada.

At a point 145 miles north of Toronto on the Grand Trunk Railway System is reached one of the most magnificent districts in the Highlands of Ontario known as the Lake of Bays District. The region comprises a series of connected lakes, over which large steamers are navigated. What greatly adds to the Lake of Bays value as a health-giving and sportsman's resort is the unmatched purity of the air one breathes upon its heights. The visitor forgets his ills under its reviving influence in less than a week, and sees life's problems in a smoother light, enjoying the good things in this life which Nature and Providence have prepared for him. Its bracing morning breeze which rivals the celebrated atmosphere of Pike's Peak, Col., impart new lung power and fresh vitality.

PETERBOROUGH POST OFFICE

A Night Service Inaugurated on Friday.

Mails Must Close at 12 p.m., and West at 4 a.m.

Mr. H. Merrick, of Kingston, Post Office Inspector for this postal district was in town yesterday, and completed arrangements for the beginning of a night service in the Peterborough post office.

An employee will remain in the office during the night to attend to despatching of mails.

The closing hours for night mails will thereafter, beginning Friday, May 15th—to-morrow—will be as follows:

The mail to be carried on the 12.25 a.m., C.P.R. express going east will close at 11.30 p.m.

The mails for the 5.10 a.m., C.P.R. express going west will close at 4 a.m.

Mail matter deposited in the post office boxes in the Oriental, National and Snowden House will be collected for mailing from the post office at 11.20 p.m. each night.

This service will, it seems probable, serve the purposes of business men with late correspondence, written after business hours. They will have up to 11.30 p.m., and 4 a.m., to post letters going east and west respectively.

Mr. E. W. Morphet has been appointed for the night service, and he possesses the necessary clerical ability to perform the duties of the office satisfactorily.

The new arrangement indicates that the Postmaster-General is anxious to serve the public interest in the best possible manner.

GOUGH BROS.' NEW DEPARTURE.

No More Premiums Given After August 1st, 1903.

Lower Prices Than Ever to Take Their Place.

Gough Bros., the Wonderful Cheap Men, while they are in their line and methods public benefactors, find it necessary to draw the line of generosity. As will be seen by their advertisement elsewhere in this day's issue, this enterprising firm will definitely discontinue the giving of premiums on purchases. This decision will take effect on August 1st, 1903, and after that date customers of this big clothing firm are informed that no tickets will be recognized. The firm very reasonably say, that they cannot afford to sell the cheapest clothing in Canada, and at the same time give premiums. After a careful study of the situation they came to the conclusion that they had only two courses open to them — they must either advance prices of their goods to warrant giving premiums, or continue to sell goods cheaply and do away with the premiums. At the prices which prevail at Gough Bros., the bargains themselves, which every purchase means, is premium enough for any reasonable man or woman—for anybody who doesn't want to live on charity. The firm feel that the course they have adopted will prove satisfactory, and that access to the most magnificent stock of goods in the district, sold at the lowest possible price will be ample compensation for the loss of premiums. Gough Bros. are in Peterborough to stay and will make it well worth while to the public to continue doing business with them at the old stand—375 and 377 George street.

A MAGNIFICENT ONYX SODA WATER FOUNTAIN

Has Been Installed in Mr. Potvin's Fern Parlours.

Perhaps after the heat of the town pavements there is no more refreshing place to visit than Potvin's Fern Parlours. This handsome refreshment parlour, where cooling drinks such as ice cream soda, lemonade and similar delicious luxuries can be obtained, has, this summer, been equipped with a magnificent Onyx soda fountain of more than ordinary dimensions. This Fern Parlour has always had the reputation of providing excellent refreshments, but this year its popularity has greatly augumented and it is now patronized by our best people. It might be mentioned that the ice cream to be obtained in this parlour is really more than delicious. Mr. L. Potvin's Fern Parlour is conveniently situated on George street and presents an attractive appearance from without and a very cooling one from within.

HALLELUJAH WEDDING AT S. A. BARRACKS.

Miss Gertie Bacon and Mr. Carlos Greene Enlist for Life in the Matrimonial Brigade.

A very unique wedding service was held last evening in the Salvation Army Barracks, the contracting parties being Miss Gertie Bacon, third daughter of Mr. Henry Bacon, of Wescott street, and Mr. Carlos Greene, of Greene Bros., Charlotte street. The groom is a valuable member of the local Salvation Army Band. The ceremony was performed by Major Creighton, of Toronto, who came to town for that especial purpose. Two little children, Aileen and Mendal Braund, were in attendance on the contracting persons. The number of interested spectators present was exceptionally large and followed the service from beginning to end with keen interest. The local Army Band was in attendance and played the wedding march. The couple came in and took their places while those present were singing "The Crowning Day is Coming, Hallelujah." This was followed by an earnest prayer by Ensign French, of Toronto. All then sang, on their knees, the beautiful hymn "Nearer My God to Thee." After which the actual wedding service was performed. The hall was beautifully decorated, and at one end was arranged a beautiful arch, in the shape of a horseshoe, under which the bride and groom passed for good luck. Electric lights of different colours made a very fine effect as they were simultaneously turned on. After the knot had been effectively tied, Ensign French delivered a vocal solo entitled "I Found the Saviour Precious." Ensign French has a really charming voice and did great justice to the song. This was followed by a few short speeches of a very appropriate and fitting nature from the brother of the groom and the father of the bride.

The presents were very numerous and costly but yet were of an extremely useful character.

It is understood that the newly wedded couple will take up their residence on Bolivar street.

SPECIAL LEGISLATION FOR PETERBOROUGH.

The Bill Passes the Private Bills Committee.

The Deputation's Mission Practically Successful.

The deputation of Mayor, Aldermen and Civic Officials, who have been in Toronto the past two or three days looking after special and general Legislation in the interests of Peterborough, have returned home fairly well pleased with the result of their visit. Their principal business was to see after the Peterborough Bill, giving the town extended rights in regard to power and light development. At present the town has no authority to acquire water powers north of Nassau, and application is made in the Bill to extend their power, to acquire power sites, etc., on the river north of Nassau at whatever points may be convenient, available or practicable. This has been granted, but the corporation is estopped from expropriating or acquiring power, etc., by any other means than agreement, lease or purchase. The Bill also asked power for the town to erect poles, or place conduits, to convey electric power to lease to companies. This clause was not allowed to pass the Committee, but was held over pending arrangements with companies concerned.

The third principal demand of the Bill was to give power to the Water Commissioners to issue debentures to cover the shortage of some $7,000, resulting from the Water Works purchase debentures for $230,000 selling to that extent below par. This clause was agreed to as was also the clause permitting the Water Commissioners to form a sinking fund to provide for necessary extensions, repairs and improvements. The Peterborough Bill, embracing the above, has passed the Private Bills Committee, and only awaits the formal third reading to become law.

Peterborough, through its representatives, made application for amendments to the general municipal law, to provide:—

1.—For power to provide for a continuous audit of municipal accounts.

2.—That the name added to the assessment roll by the court of revision shall also be added to the voter's list.

3.—And that the exemption from taxation enjoyed by premises rented for school purposes shall cease with the expiry of the lease of the premises for school purposes.

These amendments are now before the several committees concerned.

It may be added by way of comment that the last amendment is quite necessary. As a case in point, the Menzies property is leased by the town for school purposes, therefore it is exempt from taxation for general purposes, and local improvement taxation—sewers and pavements. The lease will expire in two or three years and supposing it is not renewed, the property will continue exempt from local improvement rates for the time over which annual payments are spread — between twenty and thirty years.

AUCTION SALE

Of Mr. R. Gibb's Livery Stock This Afternoon.

Mr. Robert Gibbs' livery stable on Chambers street cannot very well be called a shambles to-day, although horses are being "knocked down" at a great rate by Mr. John Haggart, the popular local auctioneer.

The auction sale of Gibbs' livery stock took place this afternoon. There was a large number of persons present and some very fair prices were obtained for the horses, carriages and harness and the rest of the equipment incidental to a livery stable.

A DISASTROUS FIRE

A disastrous fire broke out on Tuesday last on the premises of Mr. Wm. Gifford, of lot 6, concession 2, Ennismore, as a result of which the barns, outbuildings, with their contents were totally destroyed. In the basement of the barn were several calves and hogs, which were burned alive. The fire, the origin of which is unknown, broke out about 12.30 in the day time, and it is said that Mr. Gifford had none of his buildings insured.

Mr. Gifford has the sympathy of his numerous friends in the neighbourhood in the severe loss which he has naturally sustained.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

Mr. C. McDonald, of Norwood, is in town to-day.

Mr. Jas. Powell has returned to town from Orillia.

Mrs. Benj. Cooney, of Stewart street, is very seriously ill.

Mr. A. B. Spellman, of the Clarendon House, Hastings, is in town to-day.

Mr. M. J. Galvin, of Peterborough, was in town yesterday.—Lindsay Post.

Rev. W. Gustin, M.A., the newly appointed rector of St. Mark's, Port Hope, will enter upon his duties next Sunday.

Mr. C. B. Stone, "Charley" son of Mr. E. B. Stone, has passed his final examinations in medicine at Trinity College School, with honours, having taken 70 per cent.

2. Workingmen's pure all wool working pants, extra strong, to be sold at 90 cents each.

3. Splendid remnants in tweed, worsted and serge cloths; in lengths of from one to 3 1-2 yards. Just the thing for men's or boys' pants, or boys' suits, etc.

Rush sale now going on. H. LeBrun & Co.

CUT DOWN IN YOUNG MANHOOD'S FLOWER.

The Sad Death of Adam Hall Ferguson This Morning.

General regret and universal sympathy for the family and bereaved relatives will be felt over the death of Mr. Adam H. ("Addie") Ferguson, who passed away at his father's residence, 254 Stewart street, this morning.

The deceased young gentleman, who was only 26 years of age, and to human reasoning, on the verge of a prosperous and useful future, was ill for only a few days. The cause of death was peritonitis. He was attacked with illness on Friday night of last week, and became very seriously ill on Sunday night, but the most diligent efforts of his physicians, Dr. Greer and Dr. Eastwood, failed to avert a fatal termination.

Mr. Ferguson was the second son of Mr. W. G. Ferguson. Educated in the schools of the town, he learned the hardware business with Messrs. Kingan & Co., and spent three years in Chicago, where, about two years ago, he was married to the young wife whom he now leaves widowed.

Mr. Ferguson was a young man of many very estimable qualities, and enjoyed a very large popularity with all classes in the town where he was born, and practically passed the whole of his life. He was of a high moral character and of a most genial and sunny-tempered disposition, and his passing away at the threshold of a life of apparent usefulness, will leave a blank in the circles of our younger citizenship, which will not easily be filled, and not relatives only but a wide circle of personal friends, and the community generally, will mourn what, seems to our human understanding, his untimely death.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 254 Stewart street, on Saturday afternoon, May 16th, at three o'clock.

DIED.

FERGUSON.—At 254 Stewart street, Peterborough, on Thursday, 14th of May, 1903, Adam H. Ferguson, aged 26 years. The funeral will leave the family residence, 254 Stewart street, on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

CANOEING SEASON.

A Large Number of Young Canoeists on the River.

The canoeing season on Little Lake and the Otonabee River has opened and every evening Little Lake is alive with canoeists and others who appear to thoroughly enjoy a few hours outing on that broad expanse of water. Yesterday evening a canoe party of about 30 young people went down to Crawford's Grove, and spent a delightful time. On the way back an hour was spent on Little Lake. A phonograph in one of the canoes furnished additional enjoyment to the young ladies and gentlemen who made up the party.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

Mlle. Decrey's Farewell Recital This Evening.

Mlle. Decrey will give a farewell recital this evening at the Y.M.C.A. Hall, which should not be missed by lovers of really good music. Mlle. Decrey will be assisted by Miss G. Dennistoun, Mr. Gilbert Markle, and Mr. Lawrence, all of whom are well known to Peterborough audiences. A splendid programme has been arranged and everything seems to indicate a really very successful recital.

A promenade band concert, which it is felt, will attract a large number of persons, will be held in the market hall on Friday evening next. The following excellent programme has been arranged:

PART I.

March, "Viscount Nelson" ... ...Brete
Overture, "Zampa"... ... ...Harold Mazurka, "Ambrose"... ... ...Boldeau
Selection, "Reminiscences of Ireland"... Godfrey

PART II.

Cake walk, "Mississippi Bubble"..... Haines
Fantasia, "Voyage in a Troopship"... Winterbottom
Waltz, "Over the Waves"..... .....Rosa
March, "Dunlop Commandery"... ..Hall
God Save the King.

MRS. MORROW'S CHORAL CLASS.

Mrs. W. J. Morrow's choral class held a very successful rehearsal last evening in the Y.M.C.A. Hall, during the course of which Miss Bell sang, "What the Chimney Sang," composed by Griswold. By special request Mr. Froude was induced to sing "The Toreador and I." Both vocalists who are private pupils of Mrs. Morrow, received rapturous encores. Miss Bell scored a complete success, in fact immediately after her selection she was engaged to sing at the concert which the men's guild of St. Luke's church, Ashburnham, intend to give on May 25th.

The grand recital which Mrs. Morrow intends to give some time next month is expected to be a great success. It is stated that no less than twelve new voices will be brought before Peterborough's musical citizens.

CORNER STONE LAYING AT CENTREVILLE, CAVAN.

Hon. J. R. Stratton will assist in the Ceremony.

Hon. J. R. Stratton, says the Globe, has accepted an invitation to be present and assist at the laying of the corner stone in the new Presbyterian Sunday School at Centreville, in Cavan Township, East Durham. The ceremony will take place on Monday, June 1st.

THE LATEST NEWS OF LOCAL SPORT.

Movements of the Local Lacrosse Clubs.

Last Evening's Lawn Bowling Matches —Baseball and Other Sports.

LAWN BOWLING.

The following games were played last evening on the local bowling green:—

K G Loch	A Weddell
R Kerr	J McIntyre
C Wright	J Gibson
J Maude, sk...17	Dr. Wightman, sk.13
F Bell	W O'Brien
E Runnals	T S Medd
E W Cox	G Giroux
F Dixon sk...5	M Green, sk...14

* * * *

In yesterday's Examiner the score in the match between McIntyre vs. Green was reversed, and should have appeared as follows:—

L Potvin	O Laplante
W F Talbot	W F Johnson
A Weddell	D H Moore
J McIntyre, sk.11	M Green, sk...15

By the way the above match was a peculiar and exciting one. Up to the twelfth end neither rink had ever been more than two ahead of the other and at the twelfth they broke even. After that the winners gained ground rapidly.

FOOTBALL.

Association football has received an impetus this season by the organization of a league in the district and some interesting struggles may be expected. "You may depend upon it," said an Omemee enthusiast a few days ago, "our team will win the League championship. We have a husky bunch and we are out for the championship."

* * * *

The Quaker Oats football club, a new organization, gives promise of doing good work with the pigskin. They have on their line-up a number of Douro's sons, who learned the game in that township, and who can give pointers to the best of them. The Quaker Oats will be heard from quite often this season.

* * * *

A final practice of the Y.M.C.A. football team will be held this evening in preparation for the game on Saturday against Bethany, in the the Midland Football Association, which is called for two o'clock.

LACROSSE.

Oshawa and Brantford cross sticks on May 23rd in the Lake Ontario town. Brantford enthusiasts have a longing in their hearts for the Minto Cup, but the knowing ones scent defeat for them on the occasion of their visit to Oshawa.

* * * *

The schedule for District No. 11, of the Junior C.L.A. will be drafted on Friday at Port Hope. Mr. R. J. Begley will represent the T.A.S.

* * * *

The Team Committee of the T.A.S. II team met last night and picked the following team to go to Campbellford on Friday: J. Gilman, goal; Lou Shannon, point; W. Donovan, cover point; F. Whaley, 1st defence; W. McCormack, 2nd defence; A. Delaire, 3rd defence; Alphonse Shannon, centre; J. Mulligan, 3rd home; J. Primeau, 2nd home; Bert Doris, 1st home; W. McCoy, outside home; Jas. O'Brien, inside home; Geo. Lynch, field captain.

* * * *

Twenty-six T.A.S. lacrosse players turned out last night, when the Seniors and the II team lined up for a practice game. Some half dozen or more players were unable to be on hand for the line-up. The practice was an excellent one, and the large gathering of spectators witnessed some good lacrosse.

* * * *

The T.A.S. team is losing a good man in the departure of Mr. James O'Brien from town this month to Uncle Sam's domains. Jimmy was their crack goal keeper and was conceded to be the best man in that position in this section.

* * * *

"Billy" Crowley, it is feared, will have to drop from athletics in general on account of an injured limb. That gentleman was a tower of strength to the T.A.S. twelve, and the players sincerely hope he will be able to don the red and black during the summer season.

* * * *

The Athletic Section of St. Peter's T.A.S. has received applications from nearly all the athletic organizations in town for the privilege of using the grounds under their control. The management regrets that they are not in a position to grant the requests of the applicants as the grounds are used at present by three teams, two lacrosse clubs, representing the society, and the Shamrock baseball club, which, it is understood, is virtually connected with the Athletic Section of the T.A.S.

* * * *

Port Hope is certainly a great lacrosse town. Not content with having a strong twelve, (which this year will don senior clothes in the C.L.A., and travel with Brantford and few of the big 'uns,) but the enthusiasts have organized a league among the young saplings and some five or six teams entered and drew up a schedule. Now comes the information that another league—a kindergarten as it were—has been formed in which the juvenile element in Port Hope will figure. The idea of developing the juniors is to be commended. "Great oaks from little acorns grow."

* * * *

Lacrosse is not mentioned in Cobourg this year, although last season that town had a fairly good bunch of players. Cobourg never did grow enthusiastic over the game, still it is within the memory of the veterans in town of a sultry August day way back in the eighties, when Cobourg sent up an importation of players consisting of two fleet-footed Indians, and men from Bowmanville, Oshawa, etc. It was a hard battle too, that afternoon, but the locals won out.

* * * *

Talking of old lacrosse days brings to mind the struggles for the Gildersleeve Cup between Kingston and Peterborough in which the latter team triumphed. The cup has been in the possession of Mr. H. LeBrun ever since, and it is now rumoured in sporting circles that it is to be handed over to the Turf Club, who will put it up for competition between local clubs.

* * * *

Orillia has two teams in the C.L.A. this season—intermediate and junior. Orillia was worsted in the northern district last season by Bracebridge and nearly all of last year's team, or at least the best of them have decamped to other points. True, they they have still Bobby Watson, of hair-dye fame, but that celebrity is not the Bobby of the good old days. "Micky" Connors is still there enjoying a siesta under the cloak the C.L.A. laid over him for questionable tactics last season.

* * * *

Campbellford is trying hard to arouse interest in lacrosse, and if the efforts of Mr. Ed. Crowe and Editor Dryden, of the Despatch, are not productive of good results, it will not be their fault. That burg is credited with having a fast team this season, and in order to infuse interest in the team, and to boom the game in general, the T.A.S. II team will give the boys a game Friday afternoon, which by the way, will be a work-out for the locals before they battle with the Vics. of Port Hope on May 25th.

* * * *

The Athletic Lacrosse Club held their first practice on the Owal last night. There was a good turn-out of players and the practice was a complete success.

* * *

Hastings Club will send a representative to the meeting in Port Hope to-morrow and will place a team in District 11, Junior C.L.A. It was rumoured on the streets to-day that Campbellford would also enter the district.

* * * *

Lindsay has a new player in the person of Buck, of Toronto University. The Scugogites will line up a strong team against the T.A.S. at Lakefield on May 25th.

CANOEING.

A meeting of the Trent Valley Canoe Club was held last evening and matters of importance were discussed.

The Club intend having a regatta on May 25th. The regatta is open to club members, and will consist of single, double, four, war canoe, sailing, upset and tub race.

An illuminated parade will also take place, and the club will give prizes for best decorated canoes.

All fast paddlers are asked to enter the trial races in the meantime, as the club is anxious to select the best paddlers to send to different regattas.

The officers for the year are:—
Hon. President—Mr. J. H. Connal.
Patrons and Patronesses—Mr. and Mrs. C. B. McAllister, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Dennistoun.
Commodore—Mr. Bert Stock.
Vice-Commodore — Mr. Norman Bell.
Secretary-Treasurer—Mr. Charles Whiten.
Executive — The officers and Messrs. Will Ackerman, Ross Dobbin, Jack Cocks, F. Bradburn.

BASEBALL.

The baseball fever has struck town this year, and already two or three leagues are organized. The Shamrocks practice on the Murray street grounds, and this aggregation is composed of clever young ball twisters. Their new uniform is a natty one of white, with the club name in green letters on the shirts.

* * * *

The Auburn team are comers, and many pick them as winners of their League. In a practice game on Saturday they defeated the Pullmans, and no one was more surprised than the Pullmans.

* * * *

The Excelsiors, who are in the same league as the above named teams, are saying very little, but they have a good line-up.

* * * *

The Intermediates of the Y.M.C.A. will play a Toronto team on the afternoon of May 25th, on the Murray street school grounds.

* * * *

The Oriole baseball team wish to organize. All those interested will kindly turn out at 1.30 on Saturday afternoon at Chamberlain's field for the purpose of selecting a captain, as there will be a game with the Shamrocks on that date.

* * * *

It is understood that there is to be a royal baseball match to-morrow afternoon on the oval between the I.F.E.'s and the R.C.D.S.'s, two ladies' baseball teams.

* *

St. Andrew's Young Men's Guild held their first practice last night, about twenty-five members turning out. Some good work was done, and the boys are looking forward to a good summer's sport in the Guild League. The next practice will be held Friday night and Wednesdays and Fridays thereafter. Manager Elliott has charge of the team.

NOT OMENS, SURELY?

Strange Freaks of Animal Instinct.

William Gilchrist, a farmer living near Kemble, in Grey County, was going through the bush one day recently when he found a nest of eight young foxes, which he took home, where they were immediately adopted and mothered by a fox hound which had just been parted from her pups. The fox is the natural prey of the hound, and this adoption is in violation of instinct. The hound, while nursing the young foxes, is described as trembling with excitement and the bristles standing up on her back.

In a store window in the town of Dresden is another "happy family" exposed to view—a cat with three kittens and one young rat, the latter being treated exactly the same as the kittens, nursed and played with. The cat, with her strange family, was caged in a store window so that the public might view the queer sight.

P. T. Barnum used to make the lion and the lamb lie down together in his circus. He would cage together snakes, birds, cats, canaries, and all kinds of creatures, the secret of it being that care was taken to keep the snakes and carnivorous animals stuffed so full of food that they scarcely move, and had no desire to eat.

But the cases we mention are of a different sort. Here is a cat nursing a young rat alongside her kittens, and a hound nourishing young foxes. In an earlier age some reader of dreams and interpreter of omens would probably tell us that these two queer cases are warnings against years of leanness and famine to come—the cat and the hound but doing what they can to provide game for their kind in the early and necessitous future. That would have been the mildest interpretation put upon such occurrences a few hundred years ago. At times in the past some have based predictions of great wars and even the end of the world on meaner omens.—Toronto Star.

DR. PITCHER'S BACKACHE-KIDNEY TABLETS

CLEANSE THE SYSTEM FROM HEAD TO FOOT AND PURIFY THE BLOOD.

THESE Tablets act on the three great blood purifying organs of the body—the kidneys, liver and bowels, and clear away the bile, uric acid and all other poisons and impurities. They positively cure blood humors, skin diseases, headache, backache, dropsy, gravel, rheumatism, all kidney and urinary troubles, liver torpor, constipation—and give sick, disheartened men and women a new lease of life.

J. Williams, telegraph operator, Port Hope, says "Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are the only thing I have found in the last four or five years that has done any good and they certainly are marvelous in their rapid and good effects. I suffered from backache, kidney, and liver trouble, with loss of appetite and strength, but these conditions are entirely gone, and I feel generally better and stronger every way."

An Imperial Endowment Policy

Is the contract par excellence. While it embraces the life assurance feature its strongest point is the excellent return made to the assured himself at the expiration of the endowment period.

To indicate the many valuable features of this contract, take the case of a policy for $5,000 issued on the life of a man aged 30, with an Accumulative Surplus Period of 20 years:—

The premium would be $247.00 per annum for 20 years only, or $128.00 half-yearly.

The Company guarantees to pay to the beneficiary $5,000 in the event of the death of the assured during the 20 years.

At the end of the 20 years, the assured, being then alive, receives the entire cash value of his policy, consisting of—

The face value of the policy...$5,000
20 years accumulated surplus, estimated at... 1,695

Total cash value $6,695

(Being a return of $1.35 for every $1.00 paid, and in addition, the protection of $5,000 life assurance for 20 years.)

CROWN LANDS SOLD.

Summary of the Annual Report of the Department—Settlers for New Ontario —The Temiskaming District.

The annual report of the Commissioner to the Legislature at its first meeting after the Gamey adjournment. It states that during the past year the department disposed of 924 acres of clergy lands, valued at $731.80; 104 acres of Common School lands, valued at $187; 317 acres of Grammar School lands, valued at $298; 5,722 acres of university land, valued at $2,881.25. There were no sales of railway lands.

During the year there were sold for agricultural purposes 66,868 acres of Crown lands, aggregating in value $44,913.67. The collection on account of these sales and those of former years was $58,892.31. There were sold for mining purposes during the year 3,985 acres, the aggregate value of which was $8,202.52. There was received on account conversion of mining leases into patents $9,594.75. The gross collection on account of mining sales and conversions of leases into patents was $19,076.87. There were leased for mining purposes 25,548 acres, at a rental of $25,288.38. The collection on account of rental of these and former leases was $64,436.94. There were leased of Crown lands 968½ acres. New rent, $67. Collection on account of this and leases of former years amounted to $732. The total area of lands disposed of during the year was 101,436½ acres, the value of which was $92,163.87. The total collection on account of Crown lands was $164,770.03.

New Ontario Settlers.

The Temiskaming and Rainy River districts attracted most of the settlers. In the former district about 224,000 acres were taken up. About 700 heads of families went in and the estimated increase of population was from 3,000 to 3,500. In the Rainy River country 500 heads of families took up land, a large number of whom came from the United States.

The mineral industry shows a substantial progress. The output of nickel and copper for the former wholly and the latter chiefly, contained in the Sudbury nickel-copper mattes, was 5,945 tons nickel, valued at $2,210,961, and 4,932 tons copper, worth $686,048. The production of iron ore was considerably greater in 1902 than in any previous twelve months, being 359,286 tons, worth $518,445, as against 278,538 tons, worth $171,428 in 1901.

The production of pig iron during 1902 was 112,667 tons, valued at $1,683,051, and of steel, 68,802 tons, valued at $1,610,931.

Revenue of Departments.

The total collections of the department from all sources was $1,501,518.23; of this, $164,770.03 was derived from sales and leases of Crown lands; $1,321,852.10 was derived from timber, and $5,396.10 from miscellaneous sources.

The total disbursements were $295,050.89. The includes $34,097,-31 for fire ranging, $31,962.48 for forest ranging, $32,887.97 for surveys, $21,090.19 for refunds. It also covers $102,581.31, special services under the direction of the department, such as Mining schools, $47,191.80; Iron Mining Act, $25,000; parks, $12,868.72; diamond drill, $5,451.45; Liverpool agency, $4,777.25.

The total revenue collected from the Woods and Forests branch was $1,331,852.10; of this, $1,078,273,-85 came from timber dues; $227,-667.84 from bonuses; $61,039.41 from ground rent, and from transfer fees, $4,871.50. The revenue collected on account of timber dues is the largest in the history of the province.

Losses by Fire.

The losses caused by fire this season are of small moment, and the timber damaged will all be cut. $10,000 is approximately the damage reported to have been done by fire during the past season.

The Mohawk Institute.

The Mohawk Institute at Brantford, which was burned the other day, was a particularly good residential school for Indians. It was held in high esteem by the Indians of the Grand River Reserve, who have manifested much loyalty to it, and have shown eagerness to place their children in it. The ownership of the Institute rests in the New England Company, which claims to be the oldest Protestant missionary society in the English-speaking world. Its inception was due to the efforts of John Eliot, the "Apostle to the Red Men," and it was founded in the middle of the seventeenth century, during the Commonwealth. The governing body is a self-perpetuating board, many of whose members are descendants of the original members of the society. The society has considerable means, and for two centuries and a half has carried on educational work among the Indians. At the time of the Revolution it migrated with the Loyalists, and it has for years maintained a school in New Brunswick and the Institute of Brantford.

Joseph Brant Documents.

E. M. Chadwick, barrister, has sent to Dr. Oronhyatekha, some exceedingly valuable documents relating to Joseph Brant for preservation and exhibition in the historical collection. The documents were secured by Mr. Chadwick after considerable trouble, and his action in turning them over to the Oronhyatekha historical collection is indeed one of public interest. They relate to the conduct of Skayentaghengh, a war chief of the Onondaga tribe in the war of 1812, and are signed by Joseph Brant himself. These documents are, of course, highly valued by Dr Oronhyatekha, and he appreciates very fully Mr. Chadwick's kindness in turning them over to him.

DUBLIN'S FINE PARK

ALMOST IRREPARABLE DAMAGE DONE BY RECENT HURRICANE.

1,242 Forest Trees and 1,706 Thorn Trees Blown Down—Phoenix Park Referred to in the British Commons as "The Finest Park in the World"—Antiquarians on Origin of Its Name.

Of all the damage done by the terrible gale that lately ravaged the greater part of these islands the most irreparable is that caused in the Phoenix park, Dublin, says Lloyd's Weekly Newspaper. The storm swept through the famous park with hurricane force, uprooting the stoutest oaks and patriarchal elms, and strewing the ground with timber in an incredibly short space of time. When the keepers came to go round and count the number of the fallen, they found the casualties very much heavier than they had expected. No less than 1,242 forest trees and 1,706 thorn trees had been blown down by the hurricane. A question on the subject was asked in the House of Commons. Replying to Mr. J. O'Connor, the Chief Secretary for Ireland said irreparable damage had been done to the finest park in the world. The epithet evoked instantaneous applause from the Irish benches. The timber was to be sold, added Mr. Wyndham, the money so obtained to be appropriated in aid of replanting the Phoenix park.

Antiquarians deny that the name of the park has any connection whatever with the bird of ancient fable that rises triumphant from its own ashes. Dublin's Phoenix is held to be a corruption of fionn-uisge, pronounced fin-uiske, which signifies in Erse a spring of running water. In the Middle Ages it belonged to the Knights Hospitallers, who held it down to the time of Henry VIII., and then surrendered it to the Crown. Charles II. enclosed it as a deer park. The Earl of Chesterfield, who was lord-lieutenant in 1747, earned the gratitude of Irishmen by obtaining the park for the people. It was he who laid it out and erected the pillar from which it takes its modern name. The column is 30 feet in height, and is surmounted by a phoenix, which is depicted as rising out of the flames, in defiance of the antiquarians. It is not all of the Phoenix park that is open to the public. The total area is 1,760 acres, and of these the people have access to 1,860. The seven mile walk round the park is one of the most enjoyable that could be obtained anywhere. Broad roadways run past ornamental beds and lawns, and through small forests of trees. Away in the south rise the blue mountains of Dublin and Wicklow, which complete a picture of great natural beauty.

The name of Dublin's beautiful park is ever darkly associated with the atrocious crime of May 6, 1882, when Lord Frederick Cavendish and Mr. Burke were assassinated while walking home in the evening. Even after 21 years the circumstances of this historic tragedy scarcely need detailing. The four "Invincibles" who committed the murders got safe away, and for a time evaded arrest in spite of the Government reward of £10,000. Eventually 20 men were arrested, and James Carey turned informer, with the result that Joseph Brady, the actual murderer, Daniel Curley, Michael Fagan, Thomas Caffrey, and Timothy Kelly were executed in May and June, 1883. On July 29 following Carey was shot dead by Patrick O'Donnell on board the liner Melrose Castle, near Port Elizabeth. O'Donnell was hanged at the Old Bailey on Dec. 17 of the same year.

ACCESSORIES OF DRESS.

Deep Berthas of Lace—Fashionable Evening Skirts.

Some of the new galloons and embroideries, besides being obtainable in the straight bands now so fashionable, have vandykes and lozenge shaped motifs which can be disconnected and employed in many useful ways. Entire gowns of panne decorated with lace are among the spring models, and for morning and country wear there are bolero costumes of serge and cheviot ornamented with braid or Russian galloon.

Skirts with a hip yoke are much favored, and these certainly lengthen the figure. Many evening skirts have the yoke of lace or entirely covered with tucks, and a tulle skirt nearly covered with puffs and frills is very smart made this way.

The deep bertha or frill of lace is very modish on evening bodices, and when the decolletage is very low and the frill deep there is quite a bolero effect.

Shirt waist dresses will be worn a great deal this summer, and they will comprise a great variety of material, from gingham to silk.

The new skirts are made with kilted effects and folds of the goods smartly stitched. The majority of the trimmings are placed perpendicularly to give the long, flowing lines now considered so necessary; still, there are a few new models which show horizontal, or, rather, sloping, effects. These consist of bands of shirrings or embroidery.

So far there are few actual novelties in sleeves, but slight modifications in cuffs or wristbands are sufficient to give an air of novelty.

The illustration shows a blouse of point d'esprit and silk.

Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder is a specific for curing Colds, Coughs, Deafness, Headache, Sore Throat, Tonsilitis, Cold in the Head, Influenza and all other diseases of the nose and throat. Mr. C. Spooner, a literary man, and editor of the Kingston News, Ontario, writes: "I was troubled with constant headache, and used almost every concoction sold under the name of 'Headache Cure' without obtaining any relief whatever. At last I heard of Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder, and thought to give it a trial, although having but little faith in its curative action. I was at once relieved and after using it but a short time almost entirely free from the disorder."

THE LITTLE PREMIER.

Three Stories Illustrative of His Methods, His Way of Looking at Things, and His Quaint Humor.

It was years ago that I first called upon Sir Oliver Mowat, says a writer in The Toronto World. It was part of my newspaper work to call around at the Government offices. Being on a Conservative paper I had to know what I wanted to talk about when I got in to see him, for the "Little Premier" was never a free talker. Upon this day I had received answers to two or three questions and was standing a moment thinking whether there was anything else I wanted. My embarrassed hesitation was ended by the old man looking up through his blinking glasses, and, with his courteous smile and the utmost kindness in his voice, remarking:

"Well, Mr. ——, I won't take up any more of your time."

One morning about one o'clock I was sent up from the office of The Globe in a cab to take him the proofs of a letter which was to be published that morning. It was during the Unrestricted Reciprocity campaign of 1890, when a good deal of what looked like annexation sentiment was in the Province. Sir Oliver wrote an open letter on the lines of British connection, and it had a steadying effect upon public opinion. He made a great many changes in the proofs, although he had already cut to pieces a couple of previous sets. It was questionable, in fact, whether so many corrections could be made so late at night. Apologizing about it, he said, in his smiling, gentle way:

"It is a good thing there is no time for another proof or I should probably make as many more changes. George Brown said to me one time that if the Lord's Prayer had been submitted to me in proof I would have changed it."

His sense of humor acting upon his knowledge of human nature greatly helped his influence with men. His political methods being beyond suspicion, he yet always avoided posing as honester than other men. I attended a meeting in Richmond Hall one afternoon where were gathered all the Liberal candidates in Ontario at previous and pending elections. It was an organization meeting, a kind of family gathering. Sir Oliver was called upon near the close of the proceedings to make a few remarks. He was in good form, and as he looked over the audience he understood that it was not a time for ordinary platform speechmaking. He was, therefore, very brief. He thanked his friends and followers for the zeal they had showed for the welfare of the Liberal party. He expressed confidence that the result of their labors would be a Liberal victory when next they appealed to the electorate. "I thank you, gentlemen," he said, "for your efforts. You have a good cause for which to fight, and"—(with a smile)—"a good Government. I think I may venture to say that if you have a good party you have also a good Government. For nineteen years we have given the Province a prudent administration of its affairs. We have given the Province a Government which has been efficient, progressive, and as honest"— at this point his sense of humor entered, he hesitated, and, after looking through his glasses at his audience for a moment, he added—"as honest as is practicable." This finish of the sentence being altogether unexpected, aroused the utmost laughter and applause. Such a turn of his phrase away from the point of boasting, before an audience before whom boasting was not necessary, was a touch of humor whose piquacy was greatly increased by the undoubted integrity of the speaker's whole record.

LAME AND ACHING IN BACK AND LEGS

In Quick Time Mr. Oughtred and his Neighbor Were Cured by Using

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

Constipation, clogged kidneys and sluggish, torpid liver are derangements which usually accompany one another. Because of their direct and combined action on the kidneys, liver and bowels, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the most prompt and thoroughly effective treatment for these ailments that money will buy. This statement is fully borne out by the letters of recommendation which are daily received at these offices. Here is one:

Mr. J. W. Oughtred, farmer, Marbleton, Wolfe Co., Que., writes: "Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills deserve to be recommended. I was lame all through my back, legs and arms, and had a continual dull pain in my bowels. Every little thing I did required great effort, I was so sore and lame. I took lots of other pills, but they only made me sick. When haying time came on I had sixty tons of hay to pitch, and felt that I could not possibly do it.

"Just at this time Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills came to my notice and did me so much good that I worked at the haying and did lots of other hard work with ease. I sent and got five boxes, and gave away one box to a neighbour, who was suffering so badly with backache that he could not do any work. He afterwards told me that they were the best pills he ever used, and is now real well. I found that by taking two a week they kept me feeling well. Other pills give me sick headaches, but Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cure sick headache and suit me better than any others."

THE WELL-KNOWN SPECIFIC FOR

Backache, Sideache, Diabetes, Dropsy, Bright's Disease, and all Kidney or Bladder troubles.

Read of how a whole family got cured by using these wonderful Pills.

Mr. Henry Hedrick, South Woodslee, Ont., says that Doan's Kidney Pills are far ahead of doctor's medicine.

He writes: "I have tried Doan's Kidney Pills and can honestly say that I never used anything better. I was so bad with my kidneys I could hardly raise myself up without help but Doan's Kidney Pills cured me.

"My wife was always complaining of a lame back, and they completely cured her.

"Our son was also troubled with his kidneys and as your pills had done us so much good we got him to try them and they cured him as well. They are far ahead of doctor's medicine, and I advise a trial of Doan's Kidney Pills for all sufferers from kidney trouble."

CHAPTER XVIII.

Sir Karl had risen early. He wanted to go over to Deeping Hurst. Every day he found something on which to consult Dolores—the color of the curtains, the placing of a statue, the hanging of a picture; nothing, in his opinion, could be done without her advice. As he sat down to his solitary breakfast, he inwardly congratulated himself that he would soon have a fair face opposite to him and a sweet voice to talk to him.

"Man was never intended to live alone," he said to himself; "and no one has been more miserable under the ordeal than I have been."

However, it would not be for long, he thought. It was too early yet to go to Deeping Hurst. The first hours of the day were always devoted to Kathleen. He had found by experience that it was almost useless to ask for Lady Rhysworth until "baby" had been properly equipped. No more loving mother ever lived, and the charge that Lola had brought against her of neglecting the little one for Sir Karl's sake had cut Dolores to the heart.

Sir Karl thought that he would while away the intervening hours with a cigar on the terrace, from which there was a beautiful view of the surrounding country. He was walking up and down, watching the blue rings of smoke that curled upward from his cigar, and thinking with a smile of the fair lady he loved, and of the little child who had twined herself round his heart. In his careless, untroubled mood nothing could have been further from his thoughts than misery of any kind. It was a shock to him when, turning suddenly, he saw Lola near him. He had heard footsteps, and looked round to see who it was.

"Lola?" he cried, startled more than he liked to show.

A shadow seemed to fall over everything. Recovering himself, he went up to her, and held out his hand.

"This is indeed a surprise—'So early in the morning!' That is the title of a comic song, is it not?"

But his bright word died away when he saw the white face set as if in stone, and his countenance changed.

"Are you ill, Lola? Great Heaven, what is wrong? What is the matter? Is Madame—is anything wrong with madame?"

"There is something wrong," she said, slowly, "but it concerns me, not madame. It is a very simple wrong, but one which I lay at your door. My heart is broken."

She looked so woe-begone that he was touched. He would have resented reproaches or passionate words; but, when a beautiful girl tells a man that her heart is broken, and he knows that it is for love of him, it is hard indeed to be angry.

"I must ask you if it is true," she continued—"I will believe it from no other lips but yours—that you are going to marry Dolores?"

"Yes, I hope so," he replied.

"Was it of that hope you spoke to me on the night of your return?" she asked.

"Yes, it was."

"Then," she cried, raising her miserable face to the sky, "may Heaven have mercy on me! I—I thought you were alluding to me—I felt sure of it!"

"I do not see how you could, Lola," he returned. "My friendship with you has been perfectly open. There has never been any thought of love on my part. You must remember that I told you when you spoke of it, that your friendship with me should never interfere with your marriage."

"Yes, I remember it. It must have been my fancy, then; but I did believe you were beginning to care for me but for Lady Rhysworth's cruel treachery!"

"You must not speak in that way, Lola. There is no woman on earth so good, so pure, so worthy of all honor and reverence as Lady Rhysworth. Whatever you have to say to me, say; but leave her name out of the question."

"You love her so!" she cried, in tones of utter despair.

"Yes; and why not? I have never loved any one else. We may all love whom we please."

She came a little nearer to him, and laid her hand upon his arm.

"Look at me," she said, with piteous eyes; "am I not fair to see?"

"Am I not as fair as Dolores?" she asked, the old, bitter jealousy rising in her heart.

"Perhaps fairer in the eyes of others, but not so fair in mine."

"I have not found favor in your eyes," she said; but Sir Karl interrupted her.

"Why say more, Lola? What is done can never be undone. I have always admired you, and been your friend; more than that I cannot say—more would not be true."

"I understand," she said, mournfully. "I am glad I came. I should not have believed it from any other lips than yours. I do not blame you. Remember that, if she had not come between us, you would have cared for me in time—you could not have helped it. My great love must have influenced you in the end; you are not hard-hearted."

"No, I am not. I am more grieved than I can tell you, Lola; but, my dear girl, I have never misled you; it is but a fancy of yours which you will forget in a few days."

"I shall take it with me to my grave," she replied. "You call such love as mine a fancy. Oh, how blind you must be! There has never been a greater—it is a love deep enough to have shielded you from every sorrow that falls to the lot of man. No other woman will ever love you so dearly, so truly. Dolores will not. You will worship her and lavish a whole world of affection and love on her; she will accept it with smiles, believe it to be her due, take it as a homage you ought to pay her; but, as for returning it, women of her stamp take, but never give. My love would be as the breath of the whirlwind, hers as the faintest sigh. Ah, Karl," she cried in a pathetic voice, "pause and think before you give up one love forever."

He could not help feeling touched. So much love lavished, and in vain! He felt for the girl herself, for what must be her humiliation, her distress, her anguish!

"The time may come," she resumed, "when feeble love will fail you, when you will want a natute as strong as your own to help you. Ah, then you will miss me—I who love you so!"

"My dear Lola," he said huskily, "if I could but persuade you that it is all too late! I am so grieved that I cannot find words to express my sorrow. Be reasonable."

"Love like mine knows no reason," she answered. "I must hear the whole truth while I am here," she added. "You say it is too late. Perhaps it is not. You do not know the love I have for you. I—I—oh that I should have to say the words! But I must speak or I shall die—I would make you happier than any one else can, because I love you so dearly. If you do not marry Dolores, she will cry for a few days, and then calmly look out for a better match; while I—when you are gone from me—I shall die!"

He took the burning hands in his.

"You are not yourself, Lola," he said. "I will not listen to another word. Let me tell you this—it is better to be frank with you. If Dolores dies to-morrow, I should go unmarried to my grave. She is the only woman I ever could love; my fate—and to me it is a very happy one—is fixed beyond recall. I could not love you, even if I could prove false to Dolores. Now be your better, brighter self, and forget all this."

"Nay," she said, bitterly, "my better, brighter self is dead. But I do not blame you; you would have loved me if she had not come between us—and she shall suffer for it! My vengeance shall fall upon her, not upon you!"

She raised her right hand and—he could not but notice how white and beautiful it was—raised it toward heaven.

"I swear vengeance against the woman who has robbed me of my love," she said, solemnly, "and swear that she shall suffer pain for pain, pang for pang—the sharpest suffering that human vengeance can inflict! As for you, I—I do not hate you—a false woman has taken you from me. It may be that we shall never meet again; but remember always, when you think of me, that my heart is broken. Farewell!"

"Lola!" he cried, "do not leave me in that way! You distress me inexpressibly. Tell me that you will try to be happy. I cannot bear you to leave me like this."

She turned her white face to him in silent farewell, and then passed out of his sight.

* * * * *

"Mamma," she said, "do you really love me, and wish me to live?"

"How can you ask me that, Lola? You are all I have in the world. If you were to die, I should die too."

"Will you do that which will save my reason and my life?"

"You know I will," replied madame.

"Then take me away from this place at once. I must not see either Sir Karl or Lady Rhysworth again; if I do, I cannot answer for myself. I hate her! I cannot breathe the same air. I cannot be where I may see her. Take me away. Never mind expense. Let us leave the house to-morrow. Mrs. Jordan can take care of it until we return. You must write to your friends and tell them that you have been called away suddenly, and have not time to say good-by. Leave the time of your return quite uncertain. Do you understand?"

"It shall be done," she said, "just as you wish. Rest, Lola, and tomorrow we will leave this spot, where I wish with all my heart that I had never set my foot."

Madame kept her word. On the following day all her friends received a note saying that she had been suddenly called abroad, and that, the time of her return being uncertain, Lola and herself had written to say farewell.

The news of their departure was soon all over the neighborhood. Sir Karl heard it with silence, Dolores with tears. Of Lola's wild vow of vengeance Sir Karl breathed not a word to his affianced wife.

Burdock Blood Bitters

BUILT UP THE SYSTEM AND ADDED TEN POUNDS IN WEIGHT.

Mr. Ed. J. Harris, Newbridge, Ont., was in poor health, but has now been restored to full health and vigor. Here is what he writes us: "Last spring I was in a very critical condition, my system was all run down. I felt drowsy and miserable, and thought I would surely die if I did not get something to build me up. After reading one of your almanacs I decided to try Burdock Blood Bitters, and before I had taken two bottles I had gained ten pounds in weight, and am now in perfect health, and I can certainly recommend Burdock Blood Bitters to build up the system."

Well Preserved

Women often astonish new acquaintances, who are introduced to a large family of strong boys and healthy girls, who call this young looking woman mother. It is popularly supposed that maternity is the foe of beauty, and the worn and faded face of many a mother seems to warrant the belief. But it is hard to believe that nature should compel a woman to sacrifice the rightful dower of her beauty in order to carry out a natural function of her being. And nature does not. The pains and sufferings incident to motherhood are, to a large extent, unnatural. This is proved by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which prevents and cures nausea, tranquilizes the nerves, encourages the appetite, induces refreshing sleep, and makes the baby's advent practically painless.

Mrs. Orrin Stiles, of Downing, Dunn Co., Wis., writes: "I have been intending to write to you ever since my baby was born in regard to what your 'Favorite Prescription' has done for me. I cannot praise it enough, for I have not been as well for five years as I am now. In July last I had a baby boy, weight 11 lbs., and I was only sick a short time, and since I got up have not had one sick day. I have not had any uterine trouble since I got up. I was not only surprised myself but all my friends here are surprised to see me so well."

"Favorite Prescription" has the testimony of thousands of women to its complete cure of womanly diseases. Do not accept an unknown and unproved substitute in its place.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets clear the complexion and sweeten the breath.

Malt Breakfast Food

Is the Best Food for Children of Any Age After Infancy.

If your children are weakly and frail and have not the snap and vigour of healthy boys and girls, we say, have them use Malt Breakfast Food for breakfast and supper. The usual starchy foods so commonly used for children lack the nourishing elements which they need to develop muscle and bone, and put life and vigour into the blood. In Malt Breakfast Food the Malt changes the starch of the wheat to maltose, the most nutritious food element, and this with gluten and phosphates of the wheat gives a muscle-building and bone-forming food of unequalled value. Ask your grocer for Malt Breakfast Food.

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

English Ignorance of Canada.

James Dale of Baldur, Man., was in Toronto recently, on his way home from England, where he has been one of the Canadian farmer delegates to the old country. Mr. Dale said that the ignorance of the English people with reference to Canada's great west is very dense, but there is an eager desire for information. As an indication of the ignorance of things Canadian in England, he asked the scholars of a school what Canada's national emblem was. "Stars and Stripes" was the answer. Mr. Dale avoided that question afterwards. He traveled 2,000 miles, almost entirely in Suffolk, and gave three addresses a day during the six weeks he was there. One man got up at a meeting held by Mr. Dale, and said they were draining the country of the best men. Mr. Dale replied that they were drawing to Canada men who, for lack of opportunity, were filling the English workhouses when no longer fit for hard manual labor. Canada gives these men 160-acre farms free, and good wages as farm hands. Mr. Dale said the class of men they had interested would prove excellent settlers. The army reservists, he said, would be all right. The maps of Canada used in English schools are very antiquated, Mr. Dale says, and give a wrong impression of the country. However, after one of his addresses, he booked 50 passengers for Canada.

How Arrowheads Were Made.

"We did not know until to-day how the Indians made the flint arrows that are very often found all over the country," says a far West newspaper. "They had no tools to work with, and the question of how they made them was not answered. Abe Matheney, who was for many years a heap big chief, says the squaws broke flint rock into small pieces by putting it into the fire. They then selected a suitable piece for an arrow-head, held it in the fire till it got hot, then put a drop of water on it, which 'chipped off' a small particle of the flint, and by this slow and tedious process the squaws shaped the arrowheads. A look at an arrowhead will convince one that this was the process adopted to make them, as they all have rough surfaces."

Doom of Piccadilly.

The landmarks are vanishing. Syndicates whistle, and the St. James' hall crumbles and falls, says Books of To-day. The Albany will go next—Mr. Pierpont Morgan requires a west end office. Then Burlington house—Mr. Carnegie needs a library site. Devonshire house—Mr. Yerkes schedules it for a power station. At the next world's show there will be a model of Piccadilly before its day of dolour. "Ye olde Piccadilly, A. D. 1902."

A BIT OF HISTORY.

Battle for a Throne Which Paralyzed the Jacobites.

The conversion of England to the Whigs was hastened by a desperate attempt of the Pretender to gain the throne. There was no real hope of success (says Green), for the Jacobites in England were few, and the Tories were broken and dispirited by the fall of their leaders. Lord Oxford was impeached and sent to the Tower, while Bolingbroke and the Duke of Ormond fled over the sea. But James Stuart was as inaccessible to reason as his father had been, and in spite of Bolingbroke's counsels he ordered the Earl of Mar to give the sign for revolt in the North. In Scotland the triumph of the Whigs meant the continuance of the House of Argyll in power, and the rival Highland clans were as ready for a blow at the Campbells under Mar as they had been ready for a blow at them under Dundee or Montrose. The Scots were on their march southwards when they were met by the Duke of Argyll at the head of 3,500 disciplined troops. Early on the morning of Sunday, Nov. 13, 1715, the Highlanders opened fire so suddenly and well that the Duke's forces were taken by surprise. His left wing being routed, the fugitives fled with all speed to Stirling, carrying the news that Argyll had been totally defeated. Meanwhile, however, the Duke's dragoons had driven the left of the Highlanders back for two miles, when the right and centre returned from the pursuit, and took him in the rear. He then skillfully withdrew his men to a place of shelter and remained facing his opponents till the evening, when he retired to Dunblane, and next day to Stirling. Mar was content to draw off, and yet boast of Sheriffmuir as a victory. The battle was so little decisive that it paralyzed the action of the Jacobites, and before the year was out James had fled over the sea again.

Religious Degrees at Oxford.

Furthermore, Oxford must frankly sacrifice the last dyke of the Anglican tradition which still closes the B. D. and the D. D. to all but the Anglican. A Nonconformist to-day can obtain a first-class in the honor school of theology (theology is a branch of education), he cannot obtain the B. D. and the D. D.; in other words, theology as a department of knowledge and research is still corseted in a religious test. The B. D. must be made like the B. C. L., the D. D. as the D. C. L., degrees open without reserve to every worker who can satisfy the requirements of knowledge; and then, and not till then, will Oxford be able to say that in theology as in law, in medicine, history or mathematics, she knows of no sect, no faith, no schools—she recognizes and knows only the servants of knowledge and the seekers after truth. And the university will then have an incontrovertible answer to the red caps that would assault her educational system. You must prove, she will say, that your subject is not merely educationally good in itself, but educationally better than what already is prescribed. To those who urge she is neglecting a branch of knowledge, she will reply: "Prove to me that your subject is a fit branch of knowledge for educated students and serious research, and I will gladly provide you with a post-graduate school in it," and this position will be based on a clear perception of her dual functions as a university.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Monument for Two Purposes.

Sir John Cave was in Glasgow in 1807, at a time when the populace had it in mind to honor Nelson with a monument. Sir John attended a public dinner one evening whereat the monument came in for a good deal of discussion, and many opinions were advanced as to the style of the inscription that should grace the stone. Finally the visitor was asked to favor the company with his views on this matter.

"I think," said Sir John, "that the style of the inscription should be eminently simple and plain. What I should put on the monument would be just the words, 'Glasgow to Nelson.'"

"I agree with the gentleman," said an aged Scot, arising, "but I would make an addition. We all know that from the town of Glasgow to that of Nelson is six miles, and therefore I would affix to the monument, after the words Glasgow to Nelson, the addendum, 'six miles,' and then our monument would serve two purposes."

Messrs. McMillan & Maguire have received the following despatches:—

Liverpool.—Close, wheat and corn unchanged; London— American stocks closed strong—general market steady. The market is little better on more encouraging news regarding labour trouble, especially on the So. Pac. and Great Northern. London bullish and has bought moderately of late. It is stated that the raids on Atch. and R. I. were instigated by the bucket shops to freeze out a large long interest all over the country. The Gould stocks continue strong any they should be bought on the breaks. Wab. and Texas will follow M.O.P. Alton good upon news of an alliance with the Burlington for a short line between St. Lewis and Kansas City. We command Alton among the cheaper stocks. B.R.T. is arranging to carry freight at night and has taken from the railroads some of their brightest freight men for the purpose. Before the year is out we expect much from B.R.T. Traders are bullish, but they turn quickly. The frequent fluctuations should be used to scale up the market.

DICKINSON.

SPRINGVILLE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Rev. Mr. Yule preached an excellent sermon from Exodus xx, 8th vs., the subject being Sabbath observance. After a most instructive review of the origin of the Sabbath, the uses and abuses through the different centuries, down to the adoption of the Sunday of the Christian era, the Rev. gentleman pointed out with great earnestness some of the present day evils — the morning nap, the customary visiting, the Sunday newspaper (a subject which might well be enlarged upon as the desire to read even the secular publications seems so prevalent that it seems necessary to open the post office for the distribution of mail for the accommodation of even church attendants.) The popularity of the evening service was explained. The cause of the doctors' extra labours on Sunday was condemned, and a most earnest appeal made for all to remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy. The sermon was a most eloquent discussion on the subject.

The choir has been reorganized, with F. E. Wilson as leader. Miss McIntosh is the organist. We note the addition of Miss Lillicoe as soprano, and Miss Fowler and Miss White as altos. They with the former members make a most harmonious musical combination.

The cellar of Mr. Jas. Baptie's house was entered by some sneak thief, and Mrs. Baptie notes the loss of some half a dozen bottles of the delicacies of the season. The necessary danger of being detected on account of the entrance being by the summer kitchen would suggest familiarity with the premises on the part of the rogue.

Mr. George Raper and family were taken suddenly ill. The suddenness and generality of the attack suggested some general cause, and Dr. King was summoned; he pronounced the well water as being unfit for use. We are pleased to see Mr. Raper and family able to attend to their duties as usual.

Mrs. Samuel Grandy is quite ill.

Mrs. R. D. Dundass is suffering from a very severe attack of la grippe.

Mr. D. V. Trew, in his ambition to keep pace with the spirit of advancement, has followed the example of the other business houses by placing a bell on his door. He reports the grocery trade as being especially brisk, he having a monopoly of the Green photo coupons.

Special services will be held in the Presbyterian church on June 7th, it being the anniversary of the induction of Rev. Mr. Yule. Further announcements will be made.

"Royal Muskoka."

"THE ROYAL MUSKOKA" Hotel is the largest and most magnificent summer hotel in Canada. Location unsurpassed in the centre of the famous Muskoka Lakes District, Highlands of Ontario, (1,000 feet above the sea level), about six hours journey north of Toronto.

The grounds include an area of 130 acres, containing pine and hemlock groves and many beautiful walks and points commanding lovely views. There are Tennis, Golfing, Bowling, Fishing, Bathing, Croquet, Bowling Green, and many enjoyable water trips. First class in every respect. Excellent transportation service.

Descriptive literature and information how to reach the "Royal Muskoka," on application to J. D. McDonald, District Passenger Agent, G. T. R., Toronto.

DEATH IN THE RIOTS.

Dock Laborers' Strike at Valparaiso Becoming Very Serious.

Santiago, Chili, May 14.—The strike of dock laborers at Valparaiso is becoming more serious. The strikers, after setting fire to the Guay, as well as to the offices of the South American Steamship Company, had a number of encounters with the police, during which ten persons were killed and 200 were injured. A detachment of 3,000 troops has been despatched to Valparaiso to quell the disorder. The Government has refused all offers to compromise the difficulties, and is determined to adopt the sternest measures to restore order.

6,000 Return in New York.

New York, May 14.—Pending the arbitration of their grievances, most of the 6,000 strikers returned to work on the subway yesterday.

Final Seeding Report.

Winnipeg, Man., May 14.—The General Superintendent's Department of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company yesterday received its final seeding report. This shows that all the wheat is in the ground, and, also, that a large proportion of the rougher grains for this year's crop is also sown.

Not So Courageous.

MISTAKES WILL HAPPEN.

In the winter of 1865 a man died in the Army Hospital at Madison, Ind. For some reason as soon as the dead man was taken from his cot, a patient in the adjoining cot, named D. P. Kyle, was transferred to the one the dead man had occupied. Meanwhile a card bearing Kyle's name remained hanging over the empty cot. So the chaplain prayed for the repose of Kyle's soul and buried the dead man under his name.

That was thirty-seven years ago. Recently A. E. Macomber, of Arizona, called upon Mr. Kyle, who did not recognize him.

"Is your name Kyle?" said the stranger.

"Yes."

"Did you ever have the smallpox?"

"Yes."

"Did you die with it?"

"Yes."

"Whereabouts?"

"Madison Hospital, Ind."

"Well, shake. I was at your funeral, and it's the first time I've seen you since."

Mr. Kyle was pleased, for he naturally feels an interest in those who have wept over his bier.

HON. JAMES BOYLE.

One-Time Toronto Printer Now Consul-General of the U.S. at Liverpool.

Ontario had recently a distinguished visitor in the Honorable James Boyle, once a printer in the office of a Toronto newspaper, and now Consul-General of the United States at Liverpool. Twenty years ago, Mr. Boyle was a printer here in Toronto. He had brains and he had ambition. In his spare time he studied shorthand, and, it is said, became one of the fastest writer in the city. He abandoned the printing business about 1881, and went to Cincinnati, where he obtained a position on one of the local newspapers. He was sent to Columbus, the State Capital, to represent his newspaper, and there he met Major McKinley, who shortly after became Governor of Ohio. Mr. Boyle was detailed by his paper to accompany McKinley on a trip which he made in his official capacity, and so well did the young journalist hand the assignment that in a few months McKinley made him his private secretary. Of course, after that all was plain sailing for Boyle. When McKinley was elected President he offered his secretary any Consul-Generalship which he might choose, with the exceptions of London and Paris. Boyle took Liverpool, a post which, it is said, is worth at least twenty thousand dollars a year to its holder. The fees which the United States Consul at Liverpool collects make his position more valuable than that of the Ambassador to the Court of St. James. That official receives only $17,500 a year, and out of it he has to pay all his expenses for entertaining and the upkeep of a large establishment. A Consul-General, unless he elects, has none of these expenses. He can live quietly as he chooses to live, and, if he wants to, can save nearly all his income. Patrick F. Collins, who was Consul-General at London, saved over sixty thousand dollars in his four years' term. And Liverpool is very nearly as valuable an appointment as London.

Canadians Stay in South Africa.

Miss Florence J. Wilkinson, late of Toronto, one of the Canadian teachers in the Transvaal, writing home by the last mail, states that she and Miss Mabel Yenney, formerly of Peterboro, have re-engaged with the Education Department of the colony as teachers in the Klerksdorp schools for a period of three years.

It appears that the Canadian teachers in South Africa have had very liberal offers made to them to induce them to remain longer in the country. The following options were open up to a recent date for their acceptance:

1. The teachers may go home at end of the year's engagement and are entitled to have their passage paid.

2. Or they may sign an agreement for three years from present date. In this case they can have: (a) Three months' leave of absence without pay, with passage paid home and return, at any time convenient to the Education Department. (b) A gratuity of three months' salary at end of three years' service—the three months' leave of absence not being counted in the three years.

Final passage home will not be paid for any teacher who has taken the three months' leave. If a teacher does not take leave she will have: (a) Free passage home at end of engagement (or on terminating engagement at three months' notice). (b) Gratuity of three months' salary at end of three years' service.

3. Or they may sign for three years from date of original engagement. In this case all right to three months' leave of absence is foregone. The teacher entering into this agreement may have: (a) Full gratuity at end of engagement, or at three months' notice.

The salary paid the teachers for the past year has been at the rate of £100 and naintenance, which was considered equal, in all, to about £200. It is understood that the salary offered for the re-engagement period will be at the rate of £180 per annum, which will include salary and maintenance. It is not yet known how many of the Canadian teachers will remain in Africa for a longer period.

A Reviewer's Protest.

We get accustomed to the pleasant little ways of novelists and are sometimes inclined to overlook minor solecisms when we remember that they are all part of a praiseworthy effort to please. But just now we feel called on to protest against a prevalent practice that tends to get on the reviewer's nerves. The danger of using such phrases as "Such things might happen in a novel, but not in real life," or "As they say in novels" should, one would think, be sufficiently apparent to writers of fiction. "If this were a novel," remarks an ingenious writer, "so and so might have occurred, but in a narrative of plain fact," etc. This sort of thing has, of course, the sole result of reminding the reader that he is reading a novel, and if he has been beguiled by the author into losing himself for a moment the effect is at once dispelled. Suppose Hamlet had taken the opportunity to remark to his mother in the closet scene, "After all, this is only a play, you know!" But the person who wrote under the name of Shakespeare practiced the art that hides art (some say the artist also), and he was far too wary to remind his audiences that he was imposing on their credulity.

THE COMING OF THE KING.

In loving memory of S. J. Hillier, who died March 18, 1903.

All the day we watched and waited,
Waited at our papa's side,
While his frail bark slowly drifted
Out upon a shoreless tide.
We had wept in bitter anguish,
We had prayed with burning tears,
While our hearts drew back affrighted
Looking down the lonesome years.
All in vain our tears and pleading,
All in vain our sorrowing;
We could only watch and listen
For the coming of the King.

Oh, the terror of the coming
Of the grim and ghastly foe!
Oh, the darkness of the pathway,
Where our papa's feet must go!
Oh, the glory of the summer,
Bending skies, so blue and clear,
And the splendour of the roses,
And the bird songs far and near!
Must he leave this world of beauty,
All the joys our love could bring,
And lie down in darksome silence
Till the coming of the King?

Came He solemnly and slowly,
As a Lord Who claims His own,
Touched the white hands, clasped together,
And they were as cold as stone.
Suddenly the dark eyes opened,
While our hearts grew faint with fear,
In their depths of solemn rapture,
Faith and Hope were shining clear.
Did he see the golden portals;
Hear the songs the blessed sing,
Perfect peace, he softly murmured,
At the coming of the King.

When the days are long and lonely,
Summer days most sweet and fair;
When we gather in the gloaming,
Round our darling papa's chair,
Say we softly to each other,
Fairer scenes than we can know,
Sweeter airs and softer voices,
Made our darling papa go.
Shines his happy face upon us,
Still a smile is lingering,
So with sad, sad hearts we tarry,
For the coming of the King.

GAMEY AGAIN VARIES HIS ADJUSTABLE STORY.

Now Says he Borrowed the Money From Sullivan.

HE DENIES THE BUFFALO INTERVIEWS.

Several Toronto Newspaper Men Flatly Contradict Him.

GAMEY'S WORST DAY IN THE BOX.

Blake Refused to Recall Gamey—Chancellor Boyd Bids him go Into Witness Stand—Gamey Declines to Explain Deposit Slip Manipulation.

Toronto, May 15.—The Gamey case revived in interest yesterday when the man from Manitoulin was called by the Commissioners to explain certain contradictions of his story. But he did not explain. He maintained that he and Frank Sullivan were paid $3,000 on Sept. 11th, although it appeared from the testimony of half a dozen witnesses that it was impossible that this could have been done, as he alleged. He also said that the $900 deposited to the credit of the Crossin Piano Company on Sept. 11 was borrowed from Sullivan's share of the $3,000, and when confronted with his statement in Buffalo that he had gathered it during the summer he merely replied that he might have said so. He declined to say anything about his doings with the $900 deposit slips, in view of threatened criminal proceedings.

Mr. E. F. B. Johnston, at the opening of the Gamey bribery enquiry yesterday, announced that Mr. Hall, of the law firm of Stratton & Hall, Peterboro', had submitted all the personal accounts of Hon. J. R. Stratton for examination. Mr. Hall will return if his presence is required.

Mr. William Cavanagh, C.P.R. conductor of North Bay, identified Mr. Gamey's railway pass, No. Q168, and produced his records to show that he had traveled from North Bay to Spanish River on the morning of Jan. 14 last; one of the days on which Dr. Arthurs of Sudbury says he conversed with Gamey at the Walker House, Toronto.

Mr. C. R. Atkinson, barrister, of Little Current, spoke at four election meetings with Mr. Gamey last May, and swore that the latter ran as a straight Conservative, and that no inference could be drawn from his utterances that he would support the Ross Government if returned.

FOUR NEWSPAPER MEN.

Mr. Johnston—The four witnesses I propose to call are from the Mail and Empire, the Globe, World and News.

The Chancellor—If they are here call them.

John F. McLean, sworn.

Mr. Blake—I have telephoned for Mr DuVernet. Your Lordships understand my position in regard to this matter. I have just got a wire that he is out of the city and cannot be here.

The Chancellor—He will have to to cross-examine these witnesses again. We really must go on.

By Mr. Johnston—Mr. McLean, you are a reporter on the Globe? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Did you see Mr .Gamey in Buffalo on April 21st, or thereabouts? A.—Yes.

Q.—At what place did you see him? A.—At the Mansion House.

Q.—Was the subject of the $900 deposit in the Ontario Bank discussed at that time? A.—Yes.

Q.—What did he say to you? A.—My recollection is that he said that he had it some time before. If you will allow me, I noticed that the other papers said he said it was collected in the summer. My recollection is it was some time, but at any rate you will see by a subsequent answer he said distinctly in reply to a question of mine that it was not part of the $1,500 which he got from Sullivan.

Q.(Reads from Globe interview)—"It is said the $900 was part of the $3,000 you claim to have got from Mr. Stratton and you gave Frank Sullivan etc., etc.," is that what he said to you at Buffalo? A.—Yes, that is my recollection.

CAN'T CROSS-EXAMINE GAMEY.

Mr Johnston is informed, and Mail Reporter is Called.

Mr. Johnston asks the Commissioners whether it is open to him to cross-examine Mr. Gamey.

Chancellor Boyd—I think not.

J. E. Middleton, of the Mail and Empire sworn. Examined by Mr Johnston.

Q.—You were present at Buffalo on the 21st or 22nd of April to see Mr. Gamey? A.—Yes.

Q.—You saw him amongst others? A.—I did.

Q.—About what hour? A.—Twenty minutes after twelve.

Q.—You had an interview with him? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you correctly report it? A.—Yes.

Q.—You asked this question in relation to the nine hundred dollars deposit, "Can you explain that?" and you state as his answer, "Certainly I can," said the man from Manitoulin, "and I might as well begin at the beginning with Crossin. I entered into partnership with him. I agreed to pay nine hundred dollars last fall into the company. During the whole summer I was engaged in gathering the money from various sources, and in September when I came down to Toronto I brought the money and paid it to Mr. Crossin who, on that day, decided to bank it. We went to the bank together and made the deposit." Is that correct? A.—That is correct. It is a joining together of a number of answers to questions. It is not an accurate verbal statement, but it is the gist of what he said.

Q.—Then, "It has been said that the reason you left was that you had really given Frank Sullivan only six hundred dollars of the three thousand dollars you received from the Government; that you had used nine hundred dollars to pay the Crossin Company and fifteen hundred dollars to deposit in the bank to your credit." "That is not true," said the member from Manitoulin; "Sullivan himself divided the money and gave me only fifteen hundred dollars of the three thousand." "The nine hundred dollars you got from another source entirely?" "Yes; I told you that I had gathered it up from various sources during the summer." Witness—That is correct.

STAR MAN ALSO.

Tells of Interviewing Mr. Gamey in the Mansion House, Buffalo.

John Bone, sworn. Examined by Mr. Johnston.

Q.—You are a reporter on the Star? A.—Yes.

Q.—Were you present at Buffalo interviewing or seeing Mr. Gamey about the 21st or 22nd of April last? A.—Yes.

Q.—Where did you see him? A.—In the Mansion House.

Q.—Was he asked during that interview about nine hundred dollars deposited in the Ontario Bank on the 11th September? A.—Yes.

Q.—What did he say about the money—where he got it? A.—As I recollect the conversation, he said that he had been collecting that during the summer on the island, that nine hundred dollars; he told me that he had borrowed a considerable amount of it—that he had borrowed three sums of $400, $200 and $250.

Q.—That would be $850? A.—He told me the places that he had borrowed them, but I can't say which was which. The places were, one on Manitoulin Island, one at the Soo, and one at Sudbury.

Q.—That was to make up the nine hundred dollars? A.—Yes.

Q.—Was any claim made that it was part of the three thousand dollars? A.—Not on his part. He was asked that, and he said it was not.

Q.—Did he say how much he got of the three thousand dollars? A.—I don't remember—

Q.—Don't remember that. But the important point was that it was nine hundred dollars that you were talking about? A.—Yes.

Q.—Any hesitation in telling you how the nine hundred dollars was got? A.—Not the slightest.

Q.—Could not be any misunderstanding in regard to the question you put? A.—I don't think there could.

Q.—You reported it in your paper, and whatever your paper contains would be a correct report of the interview? A.—I did not report that conversation for the Star.

Q.—Who reported it? A.—I don't know who wrote the report of it.

Chancellor Boyd—Q.—You gave the information? A.—No, sir, I did not. The interview was early in the morning and it was reported for the morning papers. I did not report for the afternoon papers at all.

Geo. W. Verrall, liveryman, sworn. Examined by Mr. McPherson.

Q.—Have you your books here to show the business done on the 10th and 11th September, 1902? A.—Yes.

The books are produced, and the witness examined them.

Q.—After examining entries in the book of the 10th September, do you find any carriages going to or returning from the Parliament Buildings? A.—No.

Q.—And on the 11th September? A.—None on the 11th.

A brief discussion takes place in reference to calling the witness Mr. Jones. Mr. Johnston remarking, "I do not call him as my witness." The Chancellor says that the commissioners will call him in the interest of the case, and Mr. Johnston assents.

MR. GAMEY RE-CALLED.

One feature of the case was the refusal of Mr. Blake to recall Mr. Gamey, and his decided disinclination to have him recalled by any person—a natural disinclination considering the new complications Mr. Gamey added to his statement, and his previous evidence.

"Well are you going to call Gamey?" asked the Chancellor.

Mr. Blake said that the only point on which he thought Mr. Gamey need be called was that matter regarding which it had been intimated that proceedings might be taken against him. He scarcely thought that matter was relevant to the case. Mr. Gamey's counsel, Mr. DuVernet, was not present, but he had intimated that considering that criminal proceedings were supposed to be pending he did not think Mr. Gamey should be examined on that point.

"Then you do not propose to call him?" said the Chancellor.

Mr. Blake—"No; we feel that he was subjected to a full cross-examination, which seemed to cover all possible points in advance."

"I think we will ask Mr. Gamey to come into the box," said the Chancellor.

And Mr. Gamey stepped up. The Chancellor examined him.

The Chancellor—How long were you preparing this statement that you read in the House? A.—I was working on it for at least ten days before I left my home.

The witness went on to say that he had spent about fourteen days on the statement altogether.

Q.—Had you any material from which to prepare it? A.—Oh, I had all the letters that I had received from Mr. Sullivan and Mr Stratton and the other members, and I had a small book—

Q.—Where is that book? A.—It is down in the hotel just now, but I can show you one on the same system.

THE CROP REPORT FOR ONTARIO, 1903.

Official Advance Bulletin From Department of Agriculture.

Interesting Information Respecting Agricultural Condition and Prospects.

The May Bulletin, about to be issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, will contain the following regarding crop conditions on the 1st of May, 1903:

FALL WHEAT.

The crop bulletin issued in November last, said that the outlook for fall wheat was most promising, the crop being healthy in colour and vigorous looking generally, although not having as much top as was usually seen at that time. Reports just to hand are practically unanimous regarding the general condition of the crop. In most instances it has come through the winter unharmed, only a few complaints being made from injury by snow or ice, except in some fence corners here or there. A few correspondents make mention of patchy spots, but it is safe to say that much less fall wheat will be ploughed up this spring than is usually done. No one portion of the province appears to have been more favoured than another in this regard. The cold nights and dry windy days of the greater part of April were the chief drawbacks to the crop, and caused the young fields to go back rather than to go forward. Nevertheless only the top of the plants appeared to have suffered, the roots being uninjured and vigorous and full of promise. In fact the later reports speak of timely rains which have sent the crops along again in splendid shape. Taking it altogether fall wheat may now be described as promising to be from fair to good, more especially as only the faintest mention has been made of the Hessian fly, which for the past few years has been the scourge of the wheat fields of western and south-western Ontario. Odd mention has been made of the presence of the wireworm, but the hurt caused by insect pests so far has been remarkably small. Several correspondents point out the well established fact that fall wheat is doing best on well-drained land. The acreage is said to be less than in the last year or two.

WINTER RYE.

Very little winter rye is now grown in Ontario, the acreage being so small that it can hardly be considered a staple crop. What was sown however wintered well, considered as a whole; in fact a number of correspondents liken its history and condition this season to that of fall wheat.

CLOVER.

Clover fields as a rule, came through the winter in the same condition in which they entered it, only a comparatively small proportion having been reported as "heaving," and as the catch at last year's sowing was a good one, the crop faced the spring with the best prospects. The dry cold weather of April, however, has been rather unfavourable for clover, and some correspondents complain of the fields as looking rather brown; but the greater part of those reporting speak of the crop as showing excellent promise, the meadows having a good thick bottom even though the spring growth has been backward. The prospects for clover are particularly bright in the western half of the province.

VEGETATION.

Notwithstanding the fact that the snow disappeared early, and that warm weather in March gave promise of advanced vegetation, the cold and unusually dry weather prevailing in April retarded growth to such a degree that conditions were only about normal on the first of May, and relatively backward compared with the earlier prospects of the season.

SPRING SEEDING.

The bulk of the reports are to the effect that seeding was well advanced by the end of April, many being through with the work, while a few were only beginning. While some complain of the soil being hard and unsuitable for spring work, a much larger number describe the seed-bed as being in the best possible condition. The least favourable reports concerning the extent and quality of seeding came from the counties forming the Niagara peninsula. The cool weather existing during the month of April, together with the very light rainfall, hindered the sprouting of the seed to a remarkable degree, and as correspondents wrote on the first of May it was almost impossible to measure the success of the "catch" as some of the seed was lying dormant waiting for a warm shower. Several correspondents point out the fact that the dry and comparatively cool weather prevailing during seeding and spring operations generally made the work easy upon the horses.

LIVE STOCK.

Taken all together, the outlook for live stock may be classed as good. Distemper appeared among horses in various parts of the Province, but hardly in sufficient degree to be considered epidemic. In fact, some correspondents attribute much of the trouble among this and other classes of live stock to the poor quality of hay, a great deal of which was badly cured owing to the wet summer. Two or three cases of glanders were also reported among horses, but these were confined to where the outbreak took place. The general health of horses, however, may be regarded as satisfactory, and the high prices now being offered for well-reared animals has restored the horse industry to its old time place. Cattle are reported to be a trifle thin, but healthy and have suffered little from any form of disease. Sheep are reported to be in fair condition, but the dog is said to prevent many from raising mutton and wool. Lambing is reported to have been later than usual, and a considerable number of those dropped have died. With the exception of an outbreak of hog cholera in some of the Lake Erie counties, the swine industry is most promising. The litters have done better than those of last year. Fodder generally is sufficient, roughage being plentiful; but bran, shorts, and meals generally are very high in price.

FARM SUPPLIES.

It is more difficult than usual to estimate the surplus of farm supplies in the spring, since so much of the hay and grain, which formerly would be for sale, is now being fed on the farm. There is a good supply of hay on hand in most localities, but much of it is of inferior quality owing to the wet weather of last summer. A fair quantity of oats is also reported to be in farmers' bands, although much of this will also yet be fed. While a large number of correspondents report a considerable supply of wheat, a number of others claim that most of it will be turned into beef and pork, more especially as some of the grain is soft, owing to the rainy weather prevailing at harvest. It is safe to say, however, that good prices would bring out a liberal quantity of marketable hay and wheat. The reports regarding cattle for sale are varied. A number of correspondents claim that there are a fair number of either fat or store cattle yet available, while about about as many more hold that there is a scarcity of beefing animals. However, a large number of fat cattle were taken off last fall at the high prices then offering, and there has been a steady shipment since, which would lead to the opinion that prime beeves must now be rather scarce. There are hardly as many store cattle on hand as usual, one reason of a most suggestive nature being that a lot of our young animals, are now being sent to the ranches in the North-west. With shipments of cattle being made to both east and west, the prospects for cattle raising in Ontario are certainly assuring.

FRUIT TREES.

Orchards have come through the winter in excellent order so far as weather conditions are concerned, no injury from severe frosts or ice storms being reported. The only damage to fruit trees between November and April was caused by a plague of field mice, which appears to be working steadily westward, the centre of operations now being in the Lake Ontario counties, while a year ago they were most hurtful in the counties along the St. Lawrence. Than there were few complaints west of York, while this year reference is made to their presence by correspondents in portions of Simcoe, Grey, Perth, Middlesex, and Haldimand. Thousands of valuable fruit trees have been girdled by these pests, and some correspondents regard their operations as a serious menace to fruit culture. Heavy frosts occurred about the close of April and the beginning of May but fortunately the bulk of the fruit trees were not sufficiently advanced in bud to be much injured. Owing to the backwardness of blossoming on the first of May it was then difficult to estimate the amount of bloom, and the promise of the general yield. It was the opinion of several correspondents, however, that stone fruits, such as cherries, plums and peaches, would be relatively better in yield than apples and pears. Small fruits give promise of an excellent yield should favourable weather continue.

THE HEELEY FALLS BRIDGE.

The Last Spike Driven on Saturday.

(Campbellford Herald)

The planking of the new bridge at Heeley Falls, was completed about 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon last, Mr. R. H. Bonnycastle and Fred Keller having been the workmen who laid the last plank and drove the last spike.

The first to drive a horse and rig upon the bridge was Mr. J. T. Vosper, editor of this paper, accompanied by his young daughter, Lily, who were there at 11 o'clock Saturday forenoon. He drove over it until within a few yards of the end, but was unable to drive off the bridge to the shore, as a large quantity of stone which had been deposited at the north approach to the bridge had fallen into the river, leaving only a fragment of a roadway.

In the afternoon, however, a party of several gentlemen of Campbellford, including Mr. J. B. Ferris, clerk of the township, Mr. E. C. West, clerk of the village, Mr. Jas. Dickson, one of the contractors, and two or three others, paid a visit to the bridge, and at considerable risk they laid plank over the space at the approach, and managed to drive the team off the bridge to the shore.

The approach is being filled in again, however, but the work will be made perfectly secure by laying large blocks of stone, rock-bolted, at the bottom, and building up the outside facing the water and filling up with loose stone.

The contractors, Messrs. Dickson Bros. expect to finish the guard rail and give it a finishing touch with the paint brush to-day. The bridge is a plain, substantial structure which will no doubt stand the closest inspection. It is considered to be able to stand a greater strain than than the bridge at the Narrows.

AN EXCELLENT MOVE.

Hamilton Times.

The proposal of the Ontario Government to appoint a commission to collect information on the question of municipal trading is one that will commend itself to thinking people generally. Among the many reports of such experiments it is difficult to find any such trustworthy record of facts as would justify a conclusion on the general principle involved. There have been many failures; it is said that there are also some successes. In Great Britain, where the system has had perhaps its greatest development, opinion varies widely, and it would be folly for Ontario municipalities to make the plunge without acquainting themselves with the results of the experience of others, when it is so easily to be obtained. It is cheaper to do our enquiring before squandering our money than afterwards; and if the result be to lead us into municipal coal and wood yards, groceries, dry goods, hardware stores, etc., we shall at least have a fund of information to begin with which has cost others much hard cash. As for the general theory of municipal trading the Times' views are well known. We believe that for all ventures not in the nature of monopolies private initiation and management is the more effective, and ever to be preferred. We believe that even in the case of public franchises, which ought to be regulated by the State, province, or municipalities, and made to yield a revenue to the public, it is generally better to have private management and operation. A few services, among which are water supply, fire protection, and possibly in some cases street lighting, the municipality may more advantageously (perhaps not always more economically) manage and operate. But these are merely the exceptions which go to prove the general rule.

We shall welcome the collection of a large fund of information on the subject and stand ready to give it careful and unbiassed consideration.

Collector McGregor Dead.

Windsor, May 15.—Collector of Customs William McGregor died at his home here yesterday afternoon in his 68th year. The deceased was taken suddenly ill while addressing a public meeting about ten days ago. He was born in Sarnia in 1836. He was educated at Oberlin College and afterwards came to Windsor and engaged in the banking business. He was Warden of Essex County for five consecutive terms, and served four terms as representative of North Essex in the Dominion Parliament.

Guelph Boy Killed.

Guelph, May 15.—The young son of John Carney, who fell between the front wheel and the box of a wagon yesterday morning, and was badly crushed, died in the hospital yesterday afternoon. Three years ago he was run over by a G.T.R. train and lost an arm.

Winnipeg.—J. S. Crew, Dominion Immigration Agent at Yorkton, is dead at St. Boniface Hospital, aged 60.

THE INDIAN TRAPPER.

The Red Man Has a Keen Eye for the Beautiful in Nature—The Happy Hunting Grounds.

It is dawn when the Indian trapper leaves his lodge. In midwinter of the far north dawn comes late. Stars, which shine with a hard, clear, crystal radiance only seen in northern skies, pale in the gray morning gloom; and the sun comes over the horizon dim through mists of frost smoke. In an hour the frost mist, lying thick to the touch, like clouds of steam, will have cleared, and there will be nothing from sky line to sky line but blinding sunlight and snow-glare.

The Indian trapper must be far afield before midday. Then the sun casts no man-shadow to scare game from his snares. Black is the flag of betrayal in northern midwinter. It is by the big, liquid eye, glistening on the snow like a black marble, that the trapper detects the white hare; and a jet tail-tip streaking over the white wastes in dots and dashes tells him the little ermine, whose coat must line some emperor's coronation robe, is alternately scudding over the drifts and diving below the snow with the forward wriggling of a snake under cover. But the moving man-shadow is bigger and plainer on the snow than the hare's eye or the ermine's jet tip; so the Indian trapper sets out in the gray darkness of morning and must reach his hunting grounds before high noon.

With long snow-shoes, that carry him over the drifts in swift, coasting strides, he swings out in that easy, ambling, Indian trot, which gives never a jar to the runner, nor rests long enough for the snows to crunch beneath his tread. The old musket, which he got in trade from the fur post, is over his shoulder, or swinging lightly in one hand. A hunter's knife and short-handled woodman's axe hang through the beaded scarf, belting in his loose, caribou capote. Powder-horn and heavy muskrat gauntlets are attached to the cord about his neck; so without losing either he can fight bare-handed, free and in motion, at a moment's notice. And somewhere, in side pockets or hanging down his back, is his skipertogan—a skin bag with amulet against evil, matches, touchwood, and a scrap of pemmican. As he grows hot, he throws back his hood, running bareheaded and loose about the chest.

Each breath clouds to frost against his face till hair and brows and lashes are fringed with frozen moisture. The white man would hugger his face up with scarf and collar the more for this; but the Indian knows better. Suddenly chilled breath would soak scarf and collar wet to his skin; and his face would be frozen before he could go five paces. But with dry skin and quickened blood he can defy the keenest cold; so he loosens his coat and runs the faster.

As the light grows, dim forms shape themselves in the gray haze. Cones and domes and cornices of snow heap the underbrush and spreading larch bows. Evergreens are edged with white. Naked trees stand like limned statuary with an antlered crest etched against the white glare. The snow stretches away in a sea of billowed, white drifts that seem to heave and fall to the motion of the runner, mounting and coasting and swimming over the unbroken waste like a bird winging the ocean. And against this endless stretch of drifts billowing away to a boundless circle, of which the man is the centre, his form is dwarfed, out of all proportion, till he looks no larger than a bird above the sea.

When the sun rises, strange color effects are caused by the frost haze. Every shrub takes fire; for the ice drops are a prism, and the result is the same as if there had been a star shower or rainfall of brilliants. Does the Indian trapper see all this? The white man, with white man arrogance, doubts whether his tawny brother of the wilds sees the beauty about him, because the Indian has no white man's terms of expression. But ask the bronzed trapper the time of day, and he tells you by the length of shadow the sun casts, or the degree of light on the snow. Inquire the season of the year, and he knows by the slant sunlight coming up through the frost smoke of the southern horizon. And get him talking about his Happy Hunting grounds, and after he has filled it with the implements and creatures and people of the chase, he will describe it in the metaphor of what he has seen at sunrise and sunset under the Northern lights. He does not see these things with the gabbling exclamatories of a tourist. He sees them because they sink into his nature and become part of his mental furniture.

The most brilliant description the writer ever heard of the hereafter was from an old Cree squaw, toothless, wrinkled like leather, belted at the waist like a sack of wool, with hands of dried parchment and moccasins some five months too odoriferous. Her version ran that heaven would be full of music of running waters and south winds; that there would always be warm gold sunlight like a midsummer afternoon, with purple shadows, where tired women could rest; that the trees would be covered with blossoms, and all the pebbles of the shore like dewdrops.—Miss A. C. Laut, in "The Story of the Trapper."

Hungarian Grass.

If Hungarian grass were cut for hay as early as it should be—that is, in first blossom—it would be more highly regarded, for while it has not been ranked with hay made from the leguminous plants its analytical classification approaches so near to them that it is worth considering. Its habit of quick growth makes it especially valuable for planting after some earlier crop is removed.

Unless the land is very rich all these crops will manifest appreciation of an application of about 250 pounds acid phosphate, 40 pounds muriate of potash and 10 pounds nitrate of soda and heavy applications of the manure of tillage.—W. F. McSparran in Stockman and Farmer.

NO LIVES LOST YET.

But Over a Hundred Families Have Been Made Homeless.

BY THE FIERCE FOREST FIRES

Raging For Three Days on Both Sides of Lake Winnipeg—Thousands of Acres of Dominion Timber Lands Burned Over—An Area of 300 Miles Square Devastated by the Flames.

Winnipeg, May 15.—Word reached the city yesterday of terrific forest fires raging on both sides of Lake Winnipeg. The fires commenced evidently about three days ago. The district on fire covers thousands of acres of valuable timber lands, chiefly property of the Dominion Government.

The loss of personal property is tremendous, and over a hundred families have lost their homes and stock.

E. F. Stephenson, Commissioner of Crown Lands and Timber, returned yesterday morning from Selkirk and confirmed the reports of the forest fires. "The whole country on both sides of the lake," said Mr. Stephenson, "is either on fire or the fire has run through it, leaving nothing but ruins of trees and buildings.

"Valuable Government timber is being destroyed, but we are powerless to do anything to check the fire. The timber is parched dry and the undergrowth is very rank and like tinder owing to the scarcity of rain this spring.

"I should say that about 300 miles along the C.P.R. from Tyndall to Balsam Bay, from there to Gimli, and from Winnipeg right down to Selkirk comprises the territory which the fire so far has visited.

"Many homes have been destroyed in the German settlement, and all buildings where the fire has reached have been destroyed. Fences, barns, farm houses and valuable timber is burnt to an amount that I cannot estimate. The fire has been raging for three days. In just what territory it started I cannot say. So far as I know no lives have been lost, but many families are destitute."

TAPS FROM THE WIRES.

Santiago, Chili.—All the banks and business houses at Valparaiso have re-opened their doors. The strike is over.

Halifax, N. S.—King's College has invited Dr. Parkin to become its principal at a salary of $5,000. He will likely consider the offer.

Halifax, N.S.,—While fishing from a punt in Yarmouth Harbor Thursday, Jesse Amiro, aged 14, and Henry Deveau, aged 15, were drowned.

Canadians have been given a chance to tender for food and forage for the Imperial troops in Cape Colony, the Transvaal and the Orange River Colony.

St. John, N.B.—The Veronica mutineers, were convicted of murder, Thursday in the Liverpool court, and were sentenced to death. The prisoners numbered four.

Manila.—The Health Board is preparing to inoculate the Chinese colony of Manila with bubonic serum in order to prevent a spread of the plague. It is estimated that there are 50,000 Chinese residents here.

Isaac Walter Romaine was, Thursday sentenced in Toronto to four years in the penitentiary for shooting Louis Goldsmith and McGrain was given eight years in the same institution for stabbing Geo. Williams to death.

Hanging from a beam of an outhouse, with the fatal noose about his neck, the wife and sister of Frederick Le Bar, a young French-Canadian, came upon his dead body at 7 a.m. Thursday, in Toronto. Deceased leaves a widow and three small children. There will be no inquest.

A special from Norfolk, Va., says that the British steamer St. Oswald arrived Thursday with the crew of the British brig Bertha Gray. The brig was lost at sea. The brig Bertha Gray of Yarmouth, N. S., sailed from Jacksonville, Fla., May 2 for St. Kitts. She was of 320 tons register.

Winnipeg, Man.—The unions affiliated with the local Trades and Labor Council threaten to boycott the C.P.R., and the step, if carried into effect, will mean stagnation of business in almost every line. This proposition will finally come before the Trades and Labor Council at its next regular meeting.

Halifax, N.S.—William Gray, aged 60, an oiler, in the Consumer's Cordage Works at Dartmouth, was whirled to death Thursday afternoon. He was passing the big flywheel, which was moving at the rate of 100 revolutions a minute, and his body caught up by the belt. He was carried around several revolutions and then dropped.

Ontario Legislature.

Toronto, May 15.—In the Legislature yesterday afternoon Premier Ross, at the request of Mr. Whitney, explained some features of his power bill. He said that the Government would not undertake the proposition of supplying all parts of the province with power generated at the Niagara Falls. It would cost too much. He would leave it with private enterprise. Mr. Whitney in reply said Mr. Ross did not expect any municipality to take advantage of the permission to develop power. He also took objection to allowing the Chief Justice of Ontario to have charge of the working out of the bill. Mr. Davis' bill to extend the land grants to all veterans who served on the frontier during Canada's several wars provoked much discussion, but was reported without amendment, $289,920 of the agricultural estimates were passed, and the House adjourned.

TO THE SUPREME COURT.

Mr. Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., Toronto, Appointed to the Vacancy Caused by Death of Hon. David Mills.

Toronto, May 15.—Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., of Toronto, has accepted the appointment to the Supreme Court bench, as successor to the late Hon. Justice Mills, Mr. Nesbitt is a well-known Conservative, and the offer, coming, as it did, with the unanimous approval of the Liberal Government, is especially complimentary. As the Supreme Court is now in session, the new judge has been given short notice, and will enter upon the discharge of his judicial functions on Monday.

Mr. Nesbitt is a son of the late John W. Nesbitt, and his wife, Mary Wallace. He was born in Woodstock, Ont., in 1859, where he received his academic education. After being called to the bar, in 1881, he practised for a short time in Hamilton, and then came to Toronto. As a member of the firm of McCarthy, Osler, Hoskin & Creelman, he received his training as a corporation lawyer, and, on the deaths of B. B. Osler and Dalton McCarthy, his "foster-fathers in the law," he was fortunate enough to keep up to their standard, gaining almost a monopoly on the railway and insurance work of the Province. Later, he became a member of the present firm of Beatty, Blackstock & Nesbitt, and has engaged in many important litigations, both as general counsellor to the Grand Trunk Railway, and as legal advisor for other prominent railway and insurance companies.

Mr. Nesbitt has been president of the Osgoode Legal and Literary Society, and became a Q.C. in 1896.

He was prominent in Toronto social circles, and his numerous friends will be sorry to hear that his appointment will necessitate his removal to Ottawa.

Dominion Parliament.

Ottawa, May 15.—The time of the House of Commons was taken up all yesterday afternoon discussing the Minister of Finance's resolution to increase the annual grant of 2 per cent. on the cost of dry docks approved of by the Government to 3 per cent., up to the extent of $30,000 a year for twenty years. Practically, the first dry dock to come under the new proposal is now being built at Collingwood. Mr. Fielding hoped that one at St. John would be built under the new bonus, and that others would follow. The House generally favored the project, but various criticisms were passed. The evening session was spent discussing the question of German goods coming to Canada under British preference.

Representatives of railway companies and Boards of Trade yesterday had a conference with Hon. Mr. Blair and Hon. Mr. Fitzpatrick respecting the former's bill creating a railway commission.

The Best Physic

"I have used Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets myself and in my family and think they are the best on the market to-day. They are exceedingly popular in our community," says Mr. J. G. Page, of of Alberton, Ala. Give these Tablets a trial and you will never wish to take another dose of pills. They are easier to take and more pleasant in effect, as they never gripe and leave the bowels in a natural condition, while the use of pills is often followed by constipation.

Curious Fire Alarms.

Commenting upon the annual report of the chief of the Ottawa Fire Department of the editor of Fire and Water, a firemen's paper of New York, says:—"Some of the causes of fire and fire alarms at Ottawa, Ont., are common enough. Other are, at least, peculiar. Among the latter may be included steam from a window, reflection from a stove, a bird's nest on fire, and two alarms turned in last year by persons, one a man and the other a young lady, trying to post letters in fire alarm boxes. It is not stated, however, whether or not the maiden's letter was of such an ardent nature to start a fire. Other causes of alarms are electric poles, transformers and motors on fire, while chimneys, stove pipes, grates and defective flues are most persistent offenders."

The Payment of Convicts.

Some time ago I urged in these columns that the labor of convicts should be paid for at its market value, and if the said convicts had a family depending upon them their earnings should be used for the benefit of the dependants. Recently a small woman, with a baby and a black eye, put a question to the presiding magistrate in a not far off city that completely nonplussed him, and, as a contemporary says, "practically knocked nine centuries of British civilization into a cocked hat." Her husband, who was responsible for the black eye aforesaid, was given "$20 or a month," and elected to "take it out." Then the small woman stepped up to the bench and pitifully asked who was to keep her and her children while her husband was in jail. The bench glared, cogitated, and finally blurted out "Dunno," or words to that effect. And the same answer has been given for ages by the law, judges, Parliaments, royal commissions, magistrates, etc. "Dunno!" A simple question is put in a casual sort of way by a small, unimportant woman, and the combined wisdom of all Canada, with that of the whole British Empire on top of it, cannot discover an answer. Yet Germany has solved the problem. That out-of-date, derided country makes such men as these toil at remunerative occupations in jail; maintains them in a strictly thrifty manner, and devotes the proceeds of their industry to maintaining the wife and children. Seems as if the British Empire is too beastly proud to learn from Germany.—The Captious One, in Toronto Sunday World.

Plant Your Garden.

Mr. A. Blade, of the West-end Greenhouses, (at the residence of G. M. Roger) has ready a very fine collection of hardy seedlings and bedding-out plants. This is the time for planting your garden and flower-beds; and the West-end Greenhouses can be depended upon for exercising the utmost care to have everything pure and dependable. Parties having baskets, hanging pots and vases to fill will confer a favour by sending their orders in early for filling. Telephone 21b., to A. Blade, Manager.

Are You Fond of Tomatoes?

Most people are—and if you like them early, smooth, hard and almost seedless, plant "Spark's Earliana,"—earliest and most prolific tomato that comes on the Boston market. I am selling these famous seedlings, well started, at the rate of three boxes for a quarter. Cabbage plants—Henderson's Reliable, and other high bred garden plants—the most for your money at my greenhouses. Flowering plants, ready for transplanting, cheapest anywhere. Sample Cobb's Asters, a special variety, the best that grows. Jos. H. Cobb, Aylmer street greenhouses; phone 132.

The great land sale, Dumble Estate, comes off on the 9th of June at the Market Building, beginning at 2 p.m. There are lands in all parts of the town, so every one may be suited. Full information may be had from Mr. John Haggart, auctioneer.

TAKE THE FIRST TRIP DOWN THE OTONABEE.

First of a Series of C. G. E. Benefit Society Excursions

To be Held on Saturday Afternoons During the Early Summer.

The Canadian General Electric Company Benefit Society, are wise in their generation, and have outlined a decidedly pleasant programme for first rate enjoyment of their Saturday half holiday. They have arranged a series of five or six Saturday afternoon excursions down the river. The first of these delightful outings will take place to-morrow afternoon. The steamer "City of Peterborough" will leave the wharf at 1.30 o'clock sharp. The fare is 40 cents and 20 cents. It is probable that there will be a large gathering of pleasure seekers on the first pleasure outing by water of the season. It would be well for the excursionists to remember that it is early in the season, and that the evenings are still chilly, a sufficient hint of the wisdom of providing warm wraps.

The action of the society cannot be too strongly commended. No more pleasant, healthful and delightful way of spending the Saturday afternoon could be found than a trip down our beautiful winding river, well in advance of the mosquito brigade, and just at the time when the spring leaves, with their tender shades of green, are pushing themselves into the sweet spring sunshine, and looking shyly at their delicate faces mirrored in the water over which the boughs of the trees seem to hang carressingly. The excursionists will get health, happiness and that opportunity for social intercourse and cultivation of an esprit de corps, which the hours of toil together during the week do not afford—infinitely a better way of spending the afternoon than aimless and idle wandering about the dusty streets of the smoky town. Buy a ticket and go with the electric colony's excursion tomorrow, and other afternoons also.

The latter will be—Goal, F. McFadden; backs, H. Burnham and B. Simpson; half backs, Shortell, Lee and E. Moore; forwards, A. W. McPherson, centre; Snider and Crough, left wing; Noble and Macdonald, right wing. Admission to the game will be 15 cents.

BASEBALL.

Cobourg and Port Hope will open the league with a game here on Saturday afternoon next. The treasury of the club is by no means overflowing, and it is hoped that they will be greeted by a large gate.—Port Hope Guide.

* * * *

The first game of the City Amateur Baseball League, will be held on Saturday next, and will be between the Auburns and the Excelsiors. It is pected that the game, which will be played on the T.A.S. grounds, and which is booked for 3.30 o'clock sharp, will be a very exciting one, as both teams seem to be fairly evenly matched.

The Auburns team is composed as follows:

McCorry, pitcher; C. Graham, catcher; E. Cassidy, 1b.; W. Parnell, 2b.; W. Foster, ss.; G. Laybourne, 3b.; E. Renton, lf.; A. Lang, cf.; F. Cassan, rf.; and F. Derocher and W. Shaw. All players are requested to be on the grounds at 3 o'clock sharp.

The Excelsiors will be represented by the following:

K. Simpson, 1b.; J. Pilling, 2b.; W. Wareham, ss.; J. Sheridan, 3b.; W. Cavanagh, T. Pilling and B. Simpson fielders. Mr. Fred Whitcroft is the manager.

* * * *

Owing to the reception to be tendered St. Andrew's Y.M.C. by the George street Y.M.C., the practice which was to be held this evening will be called off. A practice will be held to-morrow afternoon at 2.30.

* * * *

There are some players who try to make spectacular one-hand catches. They will never have a place on the ball team. There are other players who throw a ball to a base before a man is there to receive it. See where the baseman is first — then throw the ball straight, but not over hi shead. A player can take four seconds and then will have plenty of time to perform the trick.—Lindsay Post.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Yachtsmen all over the world will be disappointed at the news that Ratsey, the great English sail-maker, is to furnish the American defender with her wings for the approaching races. The London Yachting World has been prompt to express disapproval, and voice a regret which will be shared by landsmen, British and American, that the contest is not to possess the international significance of past years. Sir Thomas Lipton is reported to be much surprised at the action of the sail-maker, and it is hinted that Ratsey had promised never to supply sails to an American Cup defender when Sir Thomas was the challenger. The behaviour of Mr. Ratsey is unsportsmanlike enough, without the charge of breaking faith added. The fact that he promised or did not promise is irrelevant to the present issue. The regret on both sides of the Atlantic is that an essentially English challenger is not to meet a distinctively American defender, and contest with her the yachting supremacy of the world. The international sentiment in the races is wholly responsible for the keen interest taken in them by the public. The yachtman's point of view is different. He sees the two fastest boats in the world racing, and may disregard the fact that one is British and the other American. In this particular contest, as a matter of fact, every effort has been made to attach significance to its international character. Past victories of United States defenders have been enthusiastically quoted as proof of the general superiority of an American over an Englishman. Opportunity has been taken to chaff us good naturedly on on of our most cherished traditions, to wit, that "Britain rules the waves." We have accepted the banter, and have even smiled, in a rather sickly fashion, at the jokes. After many years there appears a boat which promises to give us a chance for some genuine laughing at the expense of our friendly rivals. Shamrock III., it is generally conceded, is a faster craft than Shamrock II., and the latter was almost as speedy as the Columbia. Then, too, the new defender "Reliance," has not proved herself superior to Columbia. On paper the chances for Sir Thomas Lipton "lifting" the cup, seem excellent. It is at this juncture that Mr. Ratsey comes to the rescue of Mr. Iselin, and the New York Yacht Club. We may be pardoned for expressing the hope that, despite Mr. Ratsey's manoeuvre, and the somewhat surprising attitude of Mr. C. Oliver Iselin, who hopes to benefit by it, Sir Thomas Lipton may not be deprived of the victory which he so well deserves.—Mail and Empire.

The Garrett Baseball will be used extensively this season. Price $1.00 each at Sailsbury's.

High Tea and Social.

The public is invited to an interesting High Tea and Social, under the auspices of the Daughters' of England, to be held on Friday evening, May 15th, in Sons of England Hall. Admission, adults 25c.; children two for 25c. H. Wolstenholme, President. 3d111

EXCELLENT MUSICAL FAREWELL RECITAL

By Mlle. Decrey and Other Artists Last Evening.

Mr. J. Lawrence's Complete Success—A Delighted Audience.

Mele Decrey, who, assisted by Miss Georgie Dennistoun, Mr. Gilbert Markle and Mr. Lawrence, gave a farewell recital in the Y.M.C.A. hall last night, was welcomed by a large and delighted audience. She played the difficult numbers with transparent clearness and was enthusiastically greeted on each occasion. The precision and definition of this pianiste's finger-work being supplemented by the skill with which the various parts were in turn revealed to the hearers were elements in most artistic execution. Scarcely less brilliant was the playing of Miss G. Dennistoun and Mr. G. Markle and the singing of Mr. J. Lawrence.

The recital was suitably opened by a selection on two pianos by Saint Saens, entitled "A Victor Hugo," cleverly played by Mele. Decrey and Miss Georgie Dennistoun. The next number on the programme consisted of two vocal solos entitled (a) "The Rose," by Noel Johnson, and (b) "The Night has a Thousand Eyes" by Lambert, which were sung by Mr. Lawrence. He made, if anything, last evening, a more pronounced impression than on any of his previous appearances in town. Mr. Lawrence has a voice of exceptionally even quality throughout its compass and with no apparent breaks. Another duo entitled "Danse Macabre," by Saint Saens, was as excellently played by Mele. Decrey and Miss Georgie Dennistoun as had been the opening number. This selection opens with an interpretation fo a clock striking the hour of midnight, and continues with the skeletons appearing and performing the "Danse Macabre" or the dance of death. The next item on the programme was a violin solo from Mr. Gilbert Markle. This number was entitled "Air Varie," and was composed by De Beriot. Mr. Markle's phrasing is artistic and smooth, and his interpretations are distinguished by taste and appreciative sympathy with the character of his music. This was followed by a duo consisting of two selections, (a) Variations, by Schumann, (b) Minuet and Gavotte, by Mlle. Decrey and Miss Dennistoun, after which Mr. Lawrence scored a singularly complete success. This item was a song entitled "Mary," after which Mr. Lawrence was recalled twice. For the first encore the sang, "Let me like a Soldier Fall," and for the second, "Under the Rose," all of which were heartily endorsed by the audience present. Mr. Lawrence's vocal selections were followed by an instrumental solo, entitled "Loreley," by Seeling. As has before been stated, Mlle. Decrey is an excellent pianiste, and the audience demanded an encore. She played "Humoresque." The next number was a duet, a valse in A flat, by Mlle. Decrey and Miss Dennistoun, which was well received. This was followed by a violin solo by Mr. Markle, entitled "Cavatina," composed by Raff. This selection evoked rounds of applause but Mr. Markle did not appear the second time.

The programme proper closed with a duo from the two pianistes, a characteristic Greig concerto, Allegro Molto Moderato, Opus 16, As was befitting this last selection it was greeted with rounds of applause. Miss Georgie Dennistoun brought the excellent farewell recital to a close by playing the National Anthem. At the conclusion of the evening's programme congratulations were showered upon all the contributors to the programme, although of course more especially upon Mlle. Decrey.

Mlle Decrey, whose departure from town will be a distinct loss, both in musical circles, where she occupied a prominent position, and in social circles, where she enjoyed so great a popularity.

TAXING THE CIRCUS.

Bill Proposing Increase of Tax From $50 to $100.

Premier Ross has brought down a bill to increase the tax on circuses and travelling shows from $50 to $100 a day for the big shows, and a graduated scale for similar ones. It is provided that the license may be revoked when gambling is carried on in connection with the show, and heavy penalties may be exacted from the owners of the peanut shell and other games of chance or no chance. The minimum penalty is advanced from $100 to $200, and the maximum penalty from $200 to $300, while the term of imprisonment is increased from 30 days to three months. The proprietor of the show will be held liable for any gambling operations in connection therewith. It is also provided that an official of a municipality must require the production of the Provincial license before issuing a license of the municipality, and he will be liable to a penalty if he fails to carry out this provision.

By the bill, detectives will be given free access to theatres, ball games and public gatherings.

WORKING MEN!

SPECIAL MEETINGS

From May 25th-29th in the Bethany Tabernacle.

A series of special services will be held in the Bethany Tabernacle from May 25th to 29th, during which period a number of preachers of no mean repute will deliver addresses. It is understood that there will be three services a day at 10.30 a.m., 2.30 p.m. and 7.30 p.m., respectively.

The well known preacher, teacher and author, Dr. G. D. Watson, of Pittsburg, and Rev. S. C. Farnham, of New York State, will address the meetings and Rev. J. Fisher will be present also.

TO-NIGHT'S BAND CONCERT.

"Remember," as Charles I said to Bishop Juxon,—remember the promenade band concert to-night in the market hall. It will be the last opportunity that the public will have of being able to materially assist the band, for in a short time this splendid musical organization will be giving concerts in the park on gospel terms—free. A fine programme will be presented. Give the band boys a cordial "send-off" to-night.

Q.—I would like to see the one itself—was it a diary for the year? A.—I will show you just what it was.

Q.—Was it a diary for 1901 or 1902? A.—No sir; it was a book of that kind (shows book.)

Q.—I would like to see exactly what it was. Then you have that book? A.—Yes.

Q.—Had you any memo. on paper? A.—No sir; just the book and the letters that I had received from the different ones.

Q.—Had you any memo. showing when you received money? A.—I had a memo. in my book showing date of deposit in the bank.

Q.—Had you any memo showing the receipt of money. A.—I had a memo. showing all the money I paid out.

Q.—You mean to say that beyond this book you had no memo.? A.—No.

Q.—Then I will just ask you to say how you explain what Mr. Crossin mentioned in this examination. Mr. Gamey had private memos. of money he had sent down that I hadn't time to post up." A.—Well, sir, I had a memo. of the amounts paid to Mr. Crossin.

Q.—And private memos. of money are in this book? A.—Yes, sir; and I have at home in addition to that an account book in which I kept account of moneys I loaned out and moneys I paid out, but not sums that I paid out for travelling expenses from day to day.

Q.—The private memo. which Mr. Crossin appeared to receive, had you them down here? A.—I had them in a small book all the time.

Q.—Was there any private memo. but in that small book? A.—Not in regard to the expenditure from day to day, but sums I had loaned.

Q.—Where is that book? A.—I have that here. Mr. DuVernet has it.

Q.—Then when any reference was made to books or memoranda and so on it all comes to this, that small book and some other book? A.—With regard to expenditures that are made in connection with my business from day to day, I just have the two books.

Q.—Apart from those you had no private memoranda? A.—No, sir.

HOW HE FIXED THE DATE.

From the Deposit Noted in His Small Book.

Q.—How do you fix that date? A.—From the deposit; in the small book, I put down the amount of money I pay out.

Q.—Have you in that book the amount you received also? A.—Not altogether.

Q.—Have you in that book the $900 which you deposited on the 11th September, as Mr. Crossin said? A.—I have a memo. of the amount deposited.

Q.—You have it in that book? A.—Yes.

After saying that nobody assisted him to write the statement, the Chancellor asked Mr. Gamey—Q.—In January you wrote this: "At the request of many of my constituents I have decided to take an independent stand in the House"—is that information correct? A.—That letter was written—

Q.—Is that information correct, if you please? A.—I might say it is not correct in that sense of the word.

Q.—Is it incorrect? A.—It is not correct in the sense it was written. It was written for a purpose after Mr. Stratton—

Q.—I am asking you—just answer my question—I am calling your attention to that—"At the request of my constituents I have decided to take an independent stand in the House"—is it correct that any of your constituents requested you? A.—Well, I suppose some of my constituents perhaps did request me; that letter was not written because of that intention.

Q.—We have to judge of that; we only have your evidence; I am asking whether it is correct or not, as expressed in this letter, that many of your constituents had requested you and you had decided to take an independent stand in the House—is that correct or not? A.—In one sense of the word it is correct, my Lord; in any riding like that many Liberals would be glad if I would take an independent stand, and perhaps some Conservatives; from the Conservative standpoint they would not want that.

WOULD MISLEAD WHITNEY.

Mr. Gamey Admits That was the Intention of the Letter.

Q.—This letter taken up by Mr. Whitney after he received it, would it give him a correct impression of what you wished to convey? A.—No, sir, it did not.

Q.—He reading this letter would be misled? A.—Certainly, that is the intention of the letter; Mr. Stratton wanted that letter written, and the idea would be to have Whitney understand that proposition; I had no intention of taking an independent stand, so that the letter would be misleading to that extent.

Q.—This statement you prepared was prepared with the greatest care so as to make it as accurate as possible? A.—Yes, sir, reasonably so; I read it over several times, and I thought I had it as correct as I could get it.

Q.—In January you say "the people are not to-day in Ontario represented by either political party, and they are going to demand something more, a shaking up of the dry bones"—does that correctly represent what you thought at that time? A.—To a certain extent, yes, although that letter was written for the express purpose of getting the Expositor newspaper to keep quiet.

Q.—Was that to mislead also? A.—It was done for that purpose; to keep them quiet.

Q.—Misrepresenting your feelings? A.—It did not represent my feelings to the fullest extent; it was written for the express purpose of keeping the Expositor quiet.

Q.—Was this to mislead—I am asking about this letter—did you make this arrangement to keep the constituency quiet? A.—Partly, otherwise I would never have had the opportunity of making the statement in the House.

Q.—You still say the people are not represented by either political party? A.—I say there is a large portion of Ontario not represented; I am sure you will agree that the Liberal party does not represent the good element of the people of Ontario.

Q.—You are not making a political speech now. You say, the people, not a section of the people, are not to-day represented by either political party and they are going to demand something more? A.—In the constituency which I represent there is a large section of socialists who are asking for just what I have expressed there, and I have a conviction that many of their contentions are right, and I say so yet.

Q.—Do you call yourself a straight Conservative? A.—I certainly am a straight Conservative as the party is constituted now under the leadership of Mr. Whitney; I would be glad to advise them on some matters.

Q.—I wish you to answer just these short questions, whether these words correctly represented your feeling at the time you wrote that or not? A.—They do to some extent; I believe some of the people are not represented by their political party.

Q.—Had you any mining deals in the course of progress at the beginning of September? A.—I had with Mr. Bristol.

Q.—Had you any mining deals? A.—I had an option on a mining deal down at Arnprior; Mr. Bristol was acting, and that expired in November and was not carried out.

Q.—Had you any deal in September which you were in hopes of getting wound up speedily? A.—Nothing, except the deal at Arnprior; the option was good only to the first of November, and after it expired I did not do anything with it.

Q.—I suppose you followed the course of the evidence here to some extent? A.—Yes, my Lord.

Q.—And you know what has been said about the payment on the 11th of September—you stated that the money, $1,500, was paid to you on that day—now we are in search of the owner of that money, whether it was legitimate money, or whether it was money paid corruptly which should be forfeited to the Crown; you know what has been said, the history of that package; you said Stratton gave it to Myers, and Myers gave it to Chase, and then Chase gave it to you and Sullivan; you have heard that Stratton denies that, that Mr. Chase denies that, and Myers denies that, Sullivan denies that—you have heard further that on this day, the 11th, when you say the money was paid, Mr. Boland says he was all morning with Mr. Stratton, and accompanied him down town, so that there would be no opportunity for you to see Stratton on that day; Chase and Myers and Costello say you were not there with Sullivan except on the 9th; Crossin says that on the morning of that day, the day you were interviewing Mr. Stratton and getting the money, you paid $900 into the Ontario Bank; in the face of that evidence do you still adhere to that statement? Do you still say that that money was paid to you on the morning of the 11th? A.—Certainly, my Lord; Crossin was mistaken; the $900 was paid in the afternoon.

WHERE DID THE $900 COME FROM?

Asks the Chancellor, and Mr. Gamey Says it is out of Sullivan's Half.

Q.—They are all mistaken? A.—I say the bank book will show that the money was paid dduring the afternoon—the $900 to Crossin.

Q.—Where did the $900 come from? A.—It was part of the half that Sullivan received. Sullivan and I divided the $3,000 into $1,500 each, and then I received out of his $1,500 a loan of $1,200, for which I gave an I.O.U. There were ten one hundreds, and the rest were in fifties.

Q.—Then the $900 came from Sullivan? A.—Yes, part of the $1,500. I looked upon it as a loan and I considered that in making my statement; in my examination I was not asked about it at all.

Q.—You did not speak about that? A.—I looked upon it as a loan.

Q.—You did not speak about the $500 to any one? A.—That I received on the 21th of January?

Q.—Yes. A.—I produced that in the court.

Q.—Did you give Mr. Sullivan a receipt for this? A.—I gave him an I.O.U.

Q.—We should have that produced. Then the $1,000 which was received on the 29th January, you got that and divided that equally; you did not mention the fact of receiving that money to McGregor? A.—I showed it to McGregor before I came to Toronto.

Q.—You did not say that before—you said you had not showed it to anyone? A.—I said I had not showed it to him in Toronto.

Q.—You did not speak of that in the conversation in the Crossin piano factory? A.—I do not recollect.

WHEN HE WAS TO GET IT BACK.

"Whenever We Concluded the Deal and Arrangements,"

Mr. Johnston—Will your Lordship ask this question, when the money was to be paid back to Sullivan?

The Chancellor—When was the money to be paid back to Sullivan?

A.—It was to be paid back to Sullivan whenever we concluded the deal and arrangements, mineral and timber and everything; then he was to get it back.

After some reference to Mr. Conmee's evidence the Chancellor asked if Mr. Gamey wanted to say anything about the bank slips.

"Since Mr Johnston," said Mr. Gamey "has been so kind as to say in the Globe that he was going to take a criminal action against me, and since he has been so kind as to tell this court that he would lay the facts before the Crown, I thought the proper place to give my evidence on that point would be in the criminal court."

Mr. Gamey went on to ask the court find that evidence in regard to his Buffalo trip was relevant to this inquiry. It had been put in while he was away, and while he was not represented by council.

The Chancellor—Your interests were protected by council.

Mr. Johnston—The statements which I have here, which I thought I ought to call your Lordships' attention to, that is, statements affecting Mr. Gamey's position, in which your Lordships might ask the question——

Mr. Blake—Are these papers that are in?

Mr. Johnson—No, I am merely stating what is said as to the explanation which he is said to have given to the reporter of the World and also to the reporter of the News, and it is merely to ask him if that is so.

Mr. Blake—Why?

Mr. Johnston—Because he says it accounts for the $900, that he was engaged in gathering money from various sources on the island during the summer.

Mr. Blake's anxiety so much in evidence in the beginning to give the Commission full scope seems to have disappeared.

Mr. Blake—Surely we are going very far afield when we are going through all the newspapers that may have made statements in reference to these matters.

Mr. Johnston—There are four reporters who will contradict it and who will say that that is so.

The Chancellor—This is perhaps relevant, Mr. Gamey. You will come into the box and be examined as to this. It is said here in this newspaper of the Toronto World—apparently the reporter is available—"How do you account for that $900 deposit? A.—I arranged sometime before that Mr. Crossin pay $900 into the business. I collected money during the summer and this $900 has nothing to do whatever with the $1,500 bribe."

Mr. Gamey—Just let me say that part of that is correct and part of it I don't assume the correctness of. I arranged with Mr. Crossin during the early part of the summer. What I said was that it was private funds; I considered the loan from Sullivan as a private deal; I didn't connect any part of it with the $1,500 bribe. It had no connection with it.

Mr. Johnston—There are four papers in which it is published by four different reporters, that he collected $900 from various sources during the summer.

Mr. Gamey—I probably didn't say that at all. I don't remember whether that was said or not; I wouldn't say positively if it was said or not.

The Chancellor—If it was said it is not true? A.—Yes, it was not true. I have explained where the $900 came from.

Q.—Your answer is here according to this report in the daily News of Wednesday, the 22nd:—"During the whole summer I was engaged in gathering money. The $900 came from various sources. In September when I came down to Toronto I brought the money and paid it to Crossin." What do you say as to that? A.—That is not correct.

The Chancellor—Did you say that you collected this $900 during the summer? A.—I don't recollect whether I said that or not.

Q.—If you did say it it was not true? Mr. Gamey started on what seemed to be a long explanation, and the Chancellor broke in: "Will you please stop, Mr. Gamey, and please leave the box."

Mr. D. A. Jones, of Beeton, was then called and swore that he was an uncle by marriage of Mr. Gamey, and that some time prior to the last general election Gamey had told him that he was going to run as an independent. After the general election, some time in June or July, Jones swore that he saw Gamey, and the latter said that he did not propose to sit in Opposition for four years. The bargain was struck that they were to go into partnership on various "deals." They discussed the matter of patronage, and Gamey said he would be content with half of it, and would be careful to avoid friction.

After ascertaining Gamey's position, Jones went to see Mr. Alexander Smith, the Liberal organizer, and told him that Gamey would support the Government. He didn't let him know that they were pulling together, however. He was acting entirely without the knowledge of the Government. He saw Gamey again and suggested that he get evidence to unseat Mr. Smyth and Mr. Miscampbell, and Gamey said that if he did so he would want to be well paid for it. That was what he alluded to in his letter to Gamey of August 16th, in which he said that if he were in his position he could pick up thousands of dollars. Asked what he meant by "You will be even better treated than you expect." Jones said that he meant Gamey would be a strong candidate at the election, which must follow his being unseated, because he would not be opposed.

The "Acting Manager."

He had seen Smith and asked if it would be legal to pay Gamey's expenses for collecting evidence in Sault Ste. Marie and Algoma, and Smith said it would. Mr. Smith was the "Acting manager" referred to in the letter.

Asked what he meant by his allusions to the railway passes being all right. Jones said that at Gamey's request he had seen Mr. Smith about them, and the latter had said he thought they would be all right. The letter of September 14, Jones explained, referred to mining matters in part. They were considering some good things down East. The "party" alluded to was a party Gamey was to hunt up in connection with the Sault protest. He could not say who the party was.

When he said that he could get into Mr. Gibson's office at any time, he meant the office of Thomas W. Gibson, of the Bureau of Mines.

He had never known that Gamey had been near the Parliament Buildings, or that he knew Frank Sullivan. He thought that he and Gamey were working together to make what money they could out of deals. Gamey had expected but half the patronage, but Alex. Smith said it was usual to give Government supporters the whole of it.

Jones Cross-Examined.

Cross-examined by Mr. Blake, Jones could not say how long previous to August 16 he had first talked with Gamey and with Smith about the petition.

"Is it not an absurdity for you to speak of Mr. Gamey's being unseated when he was going to support the Government?" asked Mr. Blake. Mr.

FIGURES ABOUT LONDON.

Interesting Statistics of the Houses and People in the World's Largest City —Healthy Withal.

Another ponderous volume, issued by the London County Council, brings down what is known of the world's greatest city to the end of March, 1902. The metropolis within the administrative County of London contained then 571,768 inhabited houses, in which there dwelt 4,536,541 men, women, and children. Of greatest moment in these figures is the population per house, and in this respect the return is disappointing. In 1891 the number was 7.74 per house; in 1901 it was 7.93. Apparently the people are increasing more rapidly than habitations are provided. The industrial workers of London and of large towns generally form about one-fourth of the whole. In London they aggregate 1,013,077, of whom rather less than three-fourths—746,968—were males.

Despite its huge population, London is healthier than any other of the eleven large towns in England, except West Ham, Bristol and Bradford. It had a greater mortality in the past ten years than Amsterdam, Brussels, Copenhagen, Stockholm, and Berlin, but healthier than Paris, St. Petersburg, Vienna, and New York. Akin to these facts are those relating to the housing of the working classes. A continual displacement of the population is going on by extension of railways and public works, and with this process the accommodation provided barely keeps pace. The County Council has spent £3,148,815 in clearing unwholesome areas and erecting dwellings. Schemes carried out by the Council and the late Board of Works have provided dwellings for 41,644 persons.

Intimately associated with these matters is the subject of locomotion, in which a state of transition prevails, owing to the extension of tramway lines and the adoption of electric power. The present report anticipates that before 1904 "the Council will own, in addition to any new tramways or light railways that it may construct itself, a total of 108½ miles." During 1901 a gross profit was earned on the metropolitan tramways of £148,797. During 1901 passengers by tramcars numbered 387,780,626; by the General Omnibus Company, 202,024,222, and by the Road Car Company, 67,909,587. All kinds of locomotion show an increase.

In some respects the least satisfactory of these returns are those relating to crime. On the whole, offenses against the law "have considerably diminished during the last ten years, but drunkenness is a notable exception, the figures showing an almost continuous increase since 1890." Prosecutions have risen from 537 per 100,000 population to 846—over 50 per cent. "Crime in the metropolis is somewhat higher than in the country generally, but much less than in some of the other large towns—Manchester and Liverpool, for example."

Silently and almost unobserved, the wealth of London, as shown by its rateable value, is always growing. It has almost exactly doubled in the last twenty years. In 1871 the value for rating purposes was £19,963,285; in 1891 it was £39,769,089. Of this amazing increment nearly £12,000,000 was due to new buildings and over £8,000,000, to increased values. The gross rateable values at this moment must be about £50,000,000, out of which a local revenue is raised year by year of more than £11,000,000!—London Telegraph.

CEREAL COMPANY'S DAM AND POWER HOUSE.

Work of Construction is Progressing Rapidly.

Mr. John O'Toole, who has the contract for the construction of the American Cereal Company's new dam and power house, is to be congratulated on the success he has achieved so far in the construction work. Visitors to the scene of operations at the foot of London street are struck with the wonderful transformation that has taken place at that point. The work at present is retarded somewhat owing to the non-arrival of the steel work.

The new power house foundation has been completed and the huge generator installed in position. A large staff of men are busy on the tail-race, which, by the way will have a rock bottom—excavations having been made into the solid rock to the depth of five and six feet. The banks on either side will be "riff-raffed."

Mr. O'Toole has lost no time in his construction work and when the contract is completed it is admitted that the Cereal Company will have turned over to them a dam and power house second to none in the country.

THE MAIL'S APPRECIATION.

Toronto Paper Sums Up Neatly Life of Late Sir Oliver Mowat.

With the exception of Sir John A. Macdonald no man played so active a part in the history of what was once Upper Canada, and is now the premier province of Ontario, as Sir Oliver Mowat. Moreover, the paths of the two men curiously intertwined at certain times during their long careers, and at times widely divergent. Like the great Macdonald he was politically fortune's favored son and was privileged, as the founder of federated Canada was not, to spend his latter years in peaceful enjoyment of one of the highest honors his sovereign could bestow, happily removed from the turmoil of party conflict. In one respect moreover his career was unique. As Premier of the Province of Ontario he remained in office uninterruptedly for nearly a quarter of a century—"a period of continuous office," to quote Morgan, "which has never been accorded to any public man by the people of any province, colony, or dependency within the British Empire."

His full list of titles embrace those of Kings Counsel, Doctor of Laws, Privy Councillor, and Grand Cross of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George. First, a barrister, then a Bencher of the Law Society of Upper Canada, Vice-Chancellor of the province, an officer of the Canadian militia, an alderman of the City of Toronto, a member of the old Parliament of United Canada, thrice a Minister in Cabinets of the old regime, "a Father of Confederation." Premier and Attorney-General of the Province of Ontario, first Minister of Justice in the Laurier administration, and finally Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, this constitutes a career which few Canadians can parallel.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

ALMOST IN DESPAIR.

Was H. Trudel Before he Used Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets—Now his Dyspepsia with all its Pain and Weariness has Disappeared.

To what desperate straits Dyspepsia will reduce a man is exemplified by the story told by Hene Trudel, a student, of Three Rivers, Quebec:

"Sometimes," says Mr. Trudel, "I had slight attacks of indigestion. Then for some weeks it made alarming progress. I became discouraged, weak and almost in despair. I resolved to give up my studies, when a happy accident put a Dodd's Almanac in my hands, and I made up my mind to try Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

"I began using Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets in January, and for six weeks I took one after each meal, sometimes two. After that, feeling greatly better, I took only one after supper; now, from time to time I take one if I feel a little fatigued after eating.

"Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets made me better. To-day I have no headache, no weariness, no pain. I am cured."

WHEN THE TIDE TURNED

By MARIE AVARY

Copyright, 1903, by McClure's Newspaper Syndicate.

The fresh sea breeze gave Acton Davis a saucy "good morning" as he sauntered out on the porch. It blew Betty Fagan's yellow curls auriole wise round her face. She looked up joyously.

"Lazybones, are you here at last?" she cried merrily. "I have been waiting for you for ever so long."

Davis sat down beside her on the step and looked at her with good humored tolerance as he said lightly, "What do you want this morning, child?"

The girl detected the superiority in his tone. A flush rose to her cheeks, and her voice had a plaintive ring as she said, "Children are so unreasonable and want so many things, don't they?" Then, with swift return to her former bantering: "These are my commands; so read, mark, learn and inwardly digest, as the prayer book puts it. I want you to promise to take me to Hazard rocks this afternoon."

A shade fell on the man's face. She went on hastily: "I've wanted to go all summer, and now summer is almost over. You promised you would take me if I was very, very good, and, oh, it will be so lovely to scramble along the shore and find long strands of strange seaweed and come upon unexpected pools full of jelly and star fish! Please take me. I will be good."

Her eyes were shining and her cheeks pink with excitement as she bent toward him pleadingly.

The man hesitated as if fearful of paining her by a refusal. He seemed solely intent in watching the whitecaps in their mad race for the shore. Then he said brusquely: "No, I won't take you. I ought never to have promised, and so I take it back. You are quite too foolhardy to venture in so dangerous a place. You would be sure to fall on those treacherous, slimy rocks, and then there would be the devil to pay. If the tide should catch us, there would be no hope."

Betty's chin quivered like a child's, and the tears were shining through her long lashes.

Davis felt swift compunction for his hasty words. "I honestly don't think it's safe to take you, Betty, or I would. Promise to forget about it, and we will go for a sail on the Petrel or anywhere else at your pleasure. Come, show me that you can be a reasonable little girl."

Betty might not have resented his fatherly tone if a gay voice had not rung out behind her:

"What are you two fighting about, as usual? Give me an explanation." And she laughed rather maliciously. It was Mrs. Neville, the source of Betty's heartaches for the last weeks.

The girl rose impetuously. "I have nothing to explain," she said icily. "Mr. Davis can tell you what he pleases. It is nothing to me."

Davis looked after her with a frown of annoyance. It was really unpardonable for Betty to behave so rudely. She was too old for such childishness. It was quite true that they had quarreled almost constantly for the last weeks; he forgot that it was only since Mrs. Neville had appeared at the hotel.

The young widow sank back in a rocking chair with a little laugh. She looked unusually pretty this morning, and as the man looked at her admiringly his frown faded. The full blown rose was certainly more satisfying than the thorny bud.

Mrs. Neville met his glance by a well executed droop of her lashes. "Tell me all about it," she commanded playfully.

"Betty wanted me to take her to Hazard rocks," Davis explained. "And I would not take her because it is so dangerous a trip."

Mrs. Neville was all interest. The Hazard rocks! She had heard about them. Did people ever go there? And was it all very romantic and exciting? A look of daring flashed across her face. She bent forward and gazed straight into his eyes. "Will you take me there?" she asked softly.

Perhaps it was the glamour of her dark eyes, the intoxication of her warm breath on his cheek. The man grew white. His voice was low and tense as he answered, "Yes; I will take you."

Betty did not appear at lunch. Again Davis felt the strange pang of compunction as he missed her laughing chatter. He did not know that Mrs. Neville had met her in the hall and explained that, though the Hazard rocks were much too dangerous a place for children, it was quite permissible for grownups, and Acton had promised to take her.

The girl had drawn herself up to all the slim height of her eighteen years and turned away without a word.

Nor did he guess that when the two strolled away an hour later a pair of blue eyes watched them from behind the half shut blinds, while slow tears rolled down the pale cheeks.

The rest of the guests shortly departed for an afternoon's sail. So presently Betty crept down, a forlorn little figure. As the afternoon waned, bringing no signs of the two, a vague fear began to take possession of her. The tide had begun to turn. Could it be that they had failed to notice it? She recalled Acton's words with a thrill of fear, "If the tide should catch us, there would be no hope."

• • • • • • • •

Mr. Acton Davis was not enjoying his afternoon. The two had scrambled along the foot of the cliffs until they reached the half submerged pile of rocks bearing the name of Hazard. The man was gazing at the sea. He could not forget the glint of tears in Betty's eyes.

He turned suddenly to his companion with a reckless resolve to make the best of the matter. Something in the languorous depths of the dark eyes seemed to fire his blood. With a swift movement he caught her to him.

But as his lips met hers a wave of repulsion, sudden as unexplainable, made him start back. As he did so he heard the splash of water. A tiny wave was breaking at his very feet. The tide had risen.

With a cry of horror he sprang to a higher point of rock and looked desperately toward the path over which they had come. The waves were licking hungrily at the base of the cliff. Above the rock towered dark and trackless. They were caught in a deathtrap.

But he would not give up hope. Some fisher boat might be near. Again and again he sent his voice ringing out over the tossing waters.

As the last echoes died away he seemed to hear a faint answering halloo. Again his cry for help rang out; again came the nearing answer. A boat shot from behind the point. A single figure struggled with the oars. It was a girl—Betty.

It seemed an eternity before she ground the keel on the sand and he had lifted in the almost unconscious figure of his companion.

Then the two set to work at the oars. Many a time they had rowed for a prize, but this was a struggle with death. The tide was rising higher and storm clouds were gathering. If they could win past the point to the quiet waters of the bay, all would be well. If not— Mrs. Neville huddled in a heap in the stern watched their desperate efforts with fear dilated eyes.

One great pull, another, and they shot into the bay. They were saved!

As Betty ceased to feel the fierce current tugging at her oars she fell forward nervelessly.

She awoke to the dash of waters on her temples. The boat was drifting near the landing and Acton was pillowing her head on his arm. "I dared not stop rowing before, dear," he was saying humbly.

As he read the heaven of love in her violet eyes he drew her close and whispered, "You saved my life, my brave little girl, and I did not deserve it, for I have behaved like a brute." She put up one little hand, blistered and bleeding from her cruel exertions, and tried to stop his words. "It is all right now," she said weakly. There was a smile of perfect content on her face.

They had both forgotten Mrs. Neville, but she still huddled in the stern and looked longingly at the shore, too white and shaken to think of love or lovers.

One of the "Nine Martyrs."

The late Mr. Justice Lount, it is recalled, was one of the "nine martyrs," a political phrase dating back to 1867, and now almost forgotten. When Lord Monck (acting, of course, on the suggestion of his Prime Minister, Sir John Macdonald), selected a leading Liberal statesman, Hon. John Sandfield Macdonald, to form a Ministry for Ontario, the latter formed it on a coalition basis, half Liberal and half Conservative. By so doing he secured the support of the Conservative members in the Legislature and nine Liberal members. The latter were hotly denounced by The Globe and the official Liberal party as recreants, threatened with defeat at the next general election, and so sternly assailed for supporting Sandfield Macdonald that they were dubbed the "nine martyrs." Mr. Lount had been elected for North Simcoe in 1867 as a Liberal. When the elections of 1871 came round neither party would adopt him. The Conservatives ran W. D. Ardagh, who was elected, and the Liberals, H. H. Cook, and Lount came in at the end of the poll.

Fusibility of Alloys.

Alloys are usually more fusible than the least fusible metal contained, and they are almost always heavier or denser than the average of their uncombined constituents. A remarkable exception to both rules is an alloy of 18.87 per cent. of aluminium and 81.13 per cent. of antimony. Both metals melt at about 650 degrees C., while the alloy requires a heat of 1,080 degrees C., and the specific gravity of the latter is only 4.218 instead of 5.225, which it would be if there were no change of volume.

DAINTY EFFECTS.

Immense Amount of Work Required on Hats and Gowns.

Many of the new blouses show the most intricate hand work, and such garments are undoubtedly costly. On all sides dressmakers are complaining of the extra work demanded of them and of the illogical behavior of their clients who grumble at having to pay higher prices when at least two yards extra material are demanded than formerly, not to speak of at least one-third as much work again.

The same applies to millinery, for the most effective headgear is that which shows a great amount of expert hand labor. Truly this is a bad time for the amateur milliner. Every detail concerning hats must be perfect, and now that they are worn right off the face even the bandeau must be skilfully manipulated, to say nothing of the knots of ribbon resting on the hair.

Hats entirely composed of rich foliage are trimmed simply with a bow of pale colored ribbon. This idea is particularly effective when carried out in russet foliage, with a pale blue bow.

A little handkerchief sleeve of lace set on a crisscross band of velvet caught through tiny paste buckles is a fancy to be noted, and it forms a charming evening effect.

A fancy for floral decoration revives with the spring. Fuchsias, forgetmenots, clematis and silver grapes are prominent among the decorations not only of headgear, but of evening coiffure.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Coughs, Colds and Asthma

As Well as Croup, Bronchitis and Whooping Cough are Quickly Cured by

DR. CHASE'S SYRUP OF LINSEED AND TURPENTINE.

The virtues of this great prescription of Dr. Chase is so well known in Canadian homes that it seems useless to do more than remind you that it has a larger sale and is curing more people than ever before.

Mrs. J. W. Lloyd, Albion street, Belleville, Ont., states:—

"In the beginning of last winter I took a very severe cold, accompanied with a bad cough, and was almost laid up for a time. I tried serveral remedies, but with indifferent results. On the advice of a friend I got a bottle of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and found that it relieved the cough at once. By the time I had taken the one bottle my cold was gone, and I can truthfully recommend it as a splendid remedy for coughs and colds."

Mrs. A. A. Vanbuskirk, Robinson street, Moncton, N.B., and whose husband is carpenter on the I.C.R., states:—

"For years I have used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for my children whenever they take cold. I used it first with one of my children suffering with a severe form of asthma. It seemed as though the least exposure to cold or dampness would bring on an attack of this disease. I began using this medicine, and must say that I found it most excellent. We have never tried anything in the way way of cough medicine that worked so satisfactorily. It seemed to go right to the diseased parts and brought speedy relief."

Do not be satisfied with imitations or substitutes. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase is on every bottle of the genuine. 25 cents a bottle, family size (three times as much) 60 cents, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. 12

Is the contract par excellence. While it embraces the life assurance feature its strongest point is the excellent return made to the assured himself at the expiration of the endowment period.

To indicate the many valuable features of this contract, take the case of a policy for $5,000 issued on the life of a man aged 30, with an Accumulative Surplus Period of 20 years:—

The premium would be $247.00 per annum for 20 years only, or $126.00 half-yearly.

The Company guarantees to pay to the beneficiary $5,000 in the event of the death of the assured during the 20 years.

At the end of the 20 years, the assured, being then alive, receives the entire cash value of his policy, consisting of—

The face value of the policy...$5,000
20 years accumulated surplus, estimated at... 1,695

Total cash value $6,695

(Being a return of $1.35 for every $1.00 paid, and in addition, the protection of $5,000 life assurance for 20 years.)

A Golden Heart

BY BERTHA M. CLAY

Asthor of "The Gypsy's Daughter," "Another Woman's Husband," "A Heart's Bitterness," "A Mad Love," "A Heart's Idol," "Gladys Greye," Etc.

CHAPTER XIX.

Two years and a half had passed since Sir Karl had married Dolores, Lady Rhysworth, and taken her to his stately mansion of Scarsdale. The wedding had been a quiet one. Dolores would not hear of this second marriage being celebrated in the same church where she had been married before; it would not be lucky, she averred, and above all she would dislike the memories it would recall. So the Squire, who had certainly grown younger in his daughter's happiness, took her up to London, where Sir Karl joined her, and they were married at St. George's, Hanover Square; but it was perhaps the most unpretending ceremony ever performed in that fashionable church. They went down to Richmond for their wedding-breakfast, and from there proceeded to the Isle of Wight for their honeymoon. Dolores could not leave Kathleen for more than a week; in her opinion no nurse or servant could ever take her place, were she ever so devoted. They spent one happy week on the island, and then went home to Scarsdale.

It seemed strange to Dolores to live in the same neighborhood, but in a different home. From the woods on the western side of the Hall, a glimpse of the towers of Deeping Hurst could be obtained; and, believing that his idolized wife would be pleased to see her old home, Sir Karl had the trees cut down which obstructed the view.

The excitement caused by the sudden departure of madame had abated. It was believed that she had gone away from some political motive. No one knew how relieved Sir Karl and Lady Allanmore were that madame and her daughter had left the neighborhood.

They fell into the usual routine of life, and were very happy. One day Dolores put her arms round her husband's neck, and said to him—

"This is too bright to last, Karl; it is impossible."

"Why, Dolores?" he asked in astonishment.

"It is perfect happiness," she answered, "and that never can last on earth. It is meant only for heaven."

"Shall I do anything to make you a little less happy?" he asked with a smile. "Shall I, for instance, form a phantom friendship with some of the beauties of the neighborhood? Shall I try to be impatient and quarrelsome?"

"No, certainly not."

They were sitting in a shady nook on one of the garden seats. Sir Karl threw his arms around the graceful figure and kissed the beautiful face. The simple expression of great happiness had touched him inexpressibly.

"Are you really so well content, Dolores?" he asked.

"I am almost afraid to say it; but I am perfectly happy. I have not one shadow of care, not a wish unfulfilled."

They had been blessed with one little daughter. At first they had been a little disappointed that it was not a son, but Sir Karl declared that there could not be too many replicas of Dolores. They named the little one Gertrude, after one of Sir Karl's heroines in poetry—"Gertrude of Wyoming."

"I should give her your name," he had said to Dolores; "but I think there is a burden of sorrow about it, and the little one must have no sorrow."

Even those few words had roused his wife's nervous anxiety.

"Karl," she whispered, "do you really think my names means a burden of sorrow?"

"The word 'Dolores' means sorrow," he replied.

"But, my darling, what sorrow can come to me?" she asked. "How strange it is? Do you know that is what I have feared all my life? It has been hanging over me like a dark shadow—the feeling that I had in some way to work out the mystery of my name."

"It is but fancy," he replied. "One thing is certain, Dolores; while I live no sorrow shall ever reach you. Forget the fancy. The little one shall be called Gertrude."

So it was settled; and, after his wife, Sir Karl worshiped his child, though he loved Kathleen but little less.

Scarsdale was, every one declared, the most pleasant house in the county. The new Lord Rhysworth, who had taken up his abode at Deeping Hurst, was one of the same opinion, and a constant visitor there. Sir Karl and Lady Allanmore were the most popular host and hostess in the neighborhood.

News had come to Lady Fielden that Madame de Ferras was dead; she had died at Heidelberg after a long and protracted illness. She had left Lady Fielden a cameo which she had once admired, and Lola had sent it to her through the post. That event made people talk of the family and of Beaulieu. The house was closed now; not even a servant was left in it. It was rumored that it was to be sold, and the rumor proved to be correct. Once more Beaulieu was in the market; and this time it was purchased by a rich manufacturer who wished to make his entree into society. So there was an end to the history of one family, and the beginning of the history of another. No other information was received; and it seemed that even the name of De Ferras was forgotten. For some short time after madame's death there was a fear of coming danger in the heart of Dolores, but it passed with the summer days. Kathleen was now about five years old, and little Gertrude, a pretty, winsome creature, not quite two.

"The day is very fine," he said to the Squire; "and I am sure Dolores will not enjoy it without you. Come over to breakfast."

The old man was only too delighted. As they were driving back to Scarsdale, Sir Karl drew off his glove from his right hand, and the Squire's attention was attracted by a ring which he wore.

"What a beautiful ring, Karl!" he said.

The young baronet laughed pleasantly.

"It is a gift from Dolores," he answered. I have never seen one half so beautiful!" It was a large ruby, in the midst of which was a tiny white rose composed of minute diamonds. "I used to call her the white rose," he added, "and she has given me this in memory of it."

"What a happy surprise!" cried Dolores, when she saw the Squire. "But, papa, I ought to know what to expect when Karl goes away early; it is always for you. Now the children must come in to breakfast."

Sir Karl declared laughingly that his wife spoiled them. Dolores always brought the same accusation against him.

"We have a large correspondence this morning," said the baronet, opening the letter-bag. "This is Lady Fielden's handwriting—a ball or dinner-party for you, Dolores." There were several letters for himself, some on business, some from friends. "I must say," he cried, looking round with a happy, beaming face, "that I do like a number of letters!"

"Then you have what you like," laughed the Squire.

Sir Karl's eyes fell suddenly on a small, square envelope addressed to him in a lady's handwriting. His countenance changed when he saw it. his lips trembled, and all the light of happiness went out of his eyes. He opened it and read these few lines—

"I must see you. I can take no refusal. My mother is dead. I am desolate and most unhappy. You professed friendship for me in former times. By the pledge of friendship that you gave me, and by the memory of my mother, I appeal to you to let me see you. I will not enter the house where the woman who stole you from me lives; but for her, you would have been mine. Let me see you this evening; I want a favor from you—the last I shall ask from you in my life. You must not tell Dolores. To-night, at eight o'clock, I will be at the white gate which leads into your woods. Meet me there. LOLA."

"I thought that old chapter was finished," he said thoughtfully to himself. "For what can she want me? The girl is a perfect—"

But he did not finish the sentence; some remnant of loyalty, some memory of the time when he had been her friend, some pity for her because she was motherless and desolate, prevented it. For what she could possibly want him he could not imagine. A half thought crossed his mind as to whether it might be money; but madame was wealthy, and Lola her only child. Still it would be almost a relief to him if it were money. He would not do anything without telling Dolores. He looked up with a great sigh. It seemed to him that all the perplexities of his life were returning. The red rose for him had always been surrounded with sharpest thorns. He looked up to find his wife's eyes fixed upon him.

"A sigh, Karl!—and such a deep one! What is it about; and from whom is your letter?"

His first impulse was to tell her, his second not to let her know, if possible. It could bring her only sharpest pain, and could do no good. Her words returned to him that her name was a burden of sorrow, and her happiness too bright to last. A superstitious chill came over him as he looked at the letter. He would not tell Dolores what was in it. But she saw that he looked pale and agitated.

"You have had news, Karl?" she said suddenly.

"No, my darling—indeed I have no news at all," he replied.

"Show me that letter you have in your hand," she said.

The Squire looked up in wonder at the change in his daughter's voice. Sir Karl was at a loss for a few moments. He knew that if he did show the letter to Dolores, it would make her miserable; she would imagine all kinds of horrors, and perhaps their happiness would be destroyed. If he refused she might be vexed, and think he was keeping a secret from her. He compromised the matter by thrusting the letter into the depths of his pocket, and saying he would show it to her later on.

"Is it anything important?" she asked.

"Oh, no," he answered—"only a little favor asked by a neighbor!"

In some strange manner all the brightness was gone for the day. They went out for a long drive after breakfast; but Sir Karl's jests were few—he even forgot to smile. His one thought was, What did Lola want with him, and should he tell Dolores? He looked at the bright, sunny face so radiant with happiness and love. How could he sadden it even for a moment? And yet he hated to keep a secret from her. The struggle between his desire to save her pain and his desire to be truthful to her made him wretched.

"What day of the month is it, Karl?" asked Dolores, as they stood together in the library after luncheon.

"The tenth of June," he replied.

"Well, I shall always remember the tenth of June," she said, half smilingly, "as the first day on which you seemed dull after our marriage."

"I am not dull, surely!" he cried, "That cannot be, Dolores."

"You are; and a greater crime, Karl, you could not commit—in my opinion at least, for I love to hear your laughter. What has been the matter all day? Even papa has noticed it; he says that he fears you are not well."

"This is quite a new line over your brow, Karl. I never saw it until today. Now what has brought it here?"

"I cannot tell. I think you will soon send them all away. Kiss the lines, Dolores, and they will vanish as if by magic."

She kissed them with her sweet, fresh lips. How he longed with all his heart to fold her in his arms and tell her all his perplexity! How at that moment he hated Lola for coming between them! Never was man so sorely perplexed; and the loving wife read the perplexity in his face.

"Karl," she said, "you are keeping a secret from me—that is, you are trying to keep it; but you will not succeed. I can read your thoughts. You have not the faintest chance, believe me. You had better tell me at once before I find it out."

"My darling Dolores, I shall never keep any secrets from you," he answered; and he spoke the truth. He never intended so to do. If he did meet Lola to ascertain why she wanted to see him it would be only to tell Dolores afterward every word that had passed between them. Of that he felt convinced; so he took her in his arms and kissed her until she cried out for mercy.

"We have been married all this time, Karl, and you kiss me as if we had been married only a day or two."

"My beautiful wife!" he cried, "every day of my life I love you more and more."

"Do you really, Karl? Ah, my dear, it is too bright, too beautiful to last!"

He kissed her again and told her that they would never be less happy because they could never love each other less; Dolores was satisfied although still a little anxious.

Father and daughter talked about him later on just before dinner; and the Squire said that Karl was not well; that there was a look of distress about his face which could only come from physical pain; but he laughed at Dolores' forebodings of trouble.

"All happy wives have those fears," he said. "There is nothing wrong, only Karl is not well."

"Are you going to drive me home, Karl?" asked the Squire, when the dessert was placed on the table.

The baronet flushed all over his handsome face—not a faint flush, but a hot, burning color, which deepened when he saw his wife and her father looking at him with wondering eyes.

"Why, Karl," laughed Dolores, "you are blushing like a girl! And what a beautiful blush! I wish I could look like that!"

But the Squire's heart sunk within him. "There was something wrong," he thought. Ah, surely a time of sorrow and trouble had not begun for his child!

"I am so sorry," said Sir Karl; "I really cannot go. I have to see some one this evening on business, and I must keep my appointment."

He detested the bare idea of it as he uttered the words.

"Can I drive anywhere with you?" asked the Squire, his heart sinking more and more with the sense of coming evil.

"This is the first time you have been unable to drive papa home," observed Dolores. "How strange! Shall I drive you, papa?"

But a vague belief that his beloved child would be better and safer at home came to the Squire.

"No, my darling. If you can spare James, I will take him."

"James can go with pleasure," said Sir Karl, with a look of relief— a look not unnoticed by the Squire.

So it was arranged. The Squire, after bidding a loving good-night to his daughter and her children, drove off with James Ashford, the groom, in the pony-carriage.

"I am not going straight home," he said, "I shall go round by Deeping."

No warning came to them that this was their last meeting on earth, that a terrible cloud was hanging over the happy household, and that the sweet, bright look on the face of Dolores would be seen there never again. They stood together, Sir Karl and Dolores, little dreaming of what that night would bring forth, watching the carriage, and waving adieus to the Squire until he was out of sight. Then Lady Allanmore said gently to her husband:

"I hope papa is not disappointed. He likes to have you drive him, Karl."

"And it pleases me to do so," rejoined the baronet. "It is as great a disappointment to me as it is to him. But it will not happen again. I am sure he will forgive me this time."

"Yes, I am sure he will," said Dolores, smiling. "You are always so good to him, Karl. If I loved you for nothing else in this world, I must love you for your constant kindness to my father."

He longed to remain with her; it was so pleasant out in the sunshine, with the one being he loved so dearly by his side. Dolores wore the dress that was his favorite — a pale-violet silk, with a superb suite of pearls. She never even looked at that dress again after that evening.

"I am sorry I must leave you, Dolores," he said. "It is very annoying to have our pleasant evening spoiled in this way."

She looked up at him.

"Where you going, Karl? It is so unusual for you to have business interviews in the evening."

"It is not only unustal, but it is awfully disagreeable," he replied. "I will take good care that it never happens again."

"Tell me what it is all about," she said. "You know everything of interest to you is of equal interest to me."

"I will tell you all about it, my darling, when I return," and to his morbidly excited fancy the rustling leaves seemed to repeat the words "when I return."

"At least," said Dolores, "tell me where you are going, Karl."

"I cannot; I will tell you all about it when I come home."

Again the summer breeze stirred the leaves, and they seemed to repeat the words, "when I come home."

"I shall sit up for you," continued Dolores. "you will not be late?"

He looked at his watch, and, as he held it in his hand, the sunlight flashed upon the ruby ring and the white rose. Dolores bent and kissed it.

"How I love white roses!" she exclaimed. "And, oh, Karl, how your ring shines in the sun! It dazzles my eyes."

"I must go," said Sir Karl, hastily—"I shall be late: but I am loath to leave you, Dolores. You seem sweeter and dearer than ever. How many kisses will you give me?"

"How many will you take?" she returned, laughingly.

"Good-by, my sweet wife," he said, clasping her to his breast; "I will tell you all about this business when I return."

Their lips met in one long, loving kiss, and then he was gone. She watched him until he was out of sight, and then slowly went back to the house.

DECEPTION.

When the coujurer shows an empty hat, and at once begins to extract from it rabbits or cabbages, we know that we have been adroitly deceived, because we know we can't get out anything that isn't in it.

If people would only reason in that way about medicines they would be a great deal better off in health and pocket. A number of so called "blood making" and "flesh forming" "tonic" medicines are only stimulants in disguise. You can't get strength out of a stimulant because strength is not in it. All physical strength is derived from food digested and assimilated and in the form of blood nourishing the entire body. Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery does not make blood or make strength, no medicine can do that. But it does cure diseases of the stomach and its allied organs, and so causing the perfect digestion and assimilation of food, it enables the building of the body in sound and vigorous health.

"I can say to you one bottle of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' has cured me sound and well, after suffering two long years with stomach disease," writes W. H. Braswell, of McAdenville, Gaston Co., N.C. "My health is worth all the world to me. I will praise you as long as I live."

QUOTATIONS ON THE WALL STREET MARKET.

The Market Remained Weak Throughout the Day.

The Quotations of the Leading Stocks —Market Letters.

The Wall street market opened this morning at about the same as last night's close, but immediately sold off. C.P.R. was weak throughout the morning, falling to 130, a point and a quarter below the opening quotations. P.O. should have been a good buy at 100 1-4; it went up to 101 1-4 before the close, however. P.A. continued strong throughout the day, opening at 128 3-4. St. Paul was a weak stock, dropping from 159 to 157 7-8. It closed at 158 3-8. London opened at parity.

Messrs. McMillan & Maguire, stock brokers, Hunter street, have received the following:—

American stocks in London steady and featureless. Heavy rains in Kansas. Great Northern strike settled and adjustment of Union Pacific difficulty expected this week. Goulds will extend Wheeling system from Pittsburg to Baltimore. Expected that 10 million dollars gold will go to Argentine. 43 roads for 1st week May show gross increase of 15.69 p.c. Many brokers report time money practically easy. Considerable demand for stocks in London crowd. Banks lost to sub.-treas. since Friday $1,841,000. No truth in rumour associating General Electric with storage battery. U.S. Rubber Co. annual report will show important increase in net earnings. 12 Industrials 0,48.20 active railroads decrease 0.69.

New York, May 15th, 9.45 a. m. — Steele trade reports favourable. Great Northern strike settled and adjustment of U.P. difficulty expected this week. Expected 1,000,000 will go to Argentine. Money brokers report time money especially easy. Considerable demand for stocks in loan crowd. Banks lost to sub.-treas. since Friday $1,841,000. No truth in rumors associating General Electric with electric storage battery. U.S. rubber annual report will show important increase in net earnings. Gould will extend Wheel system from Pittsburg to Baltimore.

DOW, JONES & CO.

While there was considerable liquidation by disappointed bulls and tired holders yesterday there was unquestionable considerable short selling which is shown in better demand for stocks in loan crowd at close. While commission houses generally continue to report on new outside investment demand for stocks; houses making a specialty of bond business and investments say there is improvement in bond business. It is, however, confined to bonds of larger railroad companies which will net at least four per cent. We do not expect anything better than a narrow traders' market with probably some recovery on more favourable strike news and covering of shorts. Looks as if there would be a negative bank statement.

A Versatile Bishop.

The Bishop of Norwich has revealed his abilities in quite a new light. "If any lady here wants a lesson in simple cookery, how to make flapjacks or cook bacon, let them come to me and I will teach them," was the offer made amid applause by his lordship at a parochial gathering on Tuesday. "It has been said of a certain King that he was fit to be a King because he had blacked his own boots," continued the Bishop, "and, taking that reasoning, I am more fit to be a Bishop than anyone here. I will tell you why. Because I have cobbled my own boots and mended my own breeches."

His Lordship made these confessions in the course of a vigorous speech, in which he maintained that happiness was an internal joy depending on internal feeling. Someone in the hall suggested that income might have something to do with the matter. Then the Bishop declared, in reply, that he had lived a poorer life than any of his hearers. He had known, when a missionary, what it was to sleep upon the ground for months at a stretch without even a blanket to lie upon. "I honestly believe," said the Bishop, "that none of you have led a life of greater hardship."

Genesis of a Cuss Word.

"What the dickens!" has nothing to do with the novelist. "It is as old as Shakespeare, who in the Merry Wives of Windsor mukes Mrs Page say to Ford, 'I cannot tell what the dickens his name is.' And so the word—a palpable diminutive of Dick—like Wilkins and Hodgkins and Watkins—came into use as a substitute for another and more important D. As to 'play the dickens' one thinks of Smollet and 'Humphrey Clinker,' and the immortal scene in which the lion 'would roar and tear, and play the dickens,' and in comparatively late times Thomas Moore could write:—

Like the Goths who played the dickens
With Rome and all her sacred chickens.

Jones answered that he would not do an injury to his friend.

He admitted that he wanted to make use of Mr. Gamey's influence in getting hold of franchises. He wanted to make a little legitimate money. There had been no mining deal between them since 1898.

Mr. Blake took up a phrase in one of the letters, in which Jones said he had seen "the present acting manager." Counsel pointed out that the Premier was then in England, and someone was acting in his place, whereas Mr. Smith had been Liberal organizer for nine years.

Mr. Jones could offer no explanation.

Asked again what he meant by "better" treatment, Mr. Jones said he referred to the fact Gamey was to get more patronage than he expected. The witness said he wouldn't be human if he shied at a timber limit with possibilities in it that came in his way.

The court adjourned till 2 o'clock.

Jones Suggested It.

Mr. Blake continued the cross-examination of D. A. Jones at 2 o'clock.

"Then you state," said Mr. Blake, "that you were going to work in line with Mr. Gamey and you say 'I can tell you how to make a good haul at once.' This letter you said was written shortly after the conference with Mr. Alexander Smith."

Mr. Jones—"It was written after I had seen him." He had not suggested anything in regard to information as to Algoma and Sault Ste. Marie. Although not an ardent politician he had made the suggestion in order to strengthen Mr. Gamey's influence.

Q.—And where were you to come in? A.—I was to come in because he had more influence with the Government and I would be able perhaps to get more——

Q.—Shall we call it pickings? A.—Call it what you like.

Q.—I would call it stealings, but it was in case of you that I called it pickings. Put your own name to it? A.—Legitimate franchises.

In answer to further questions, Mr. Jones said the "Certain important information that will be sufficient to answer the purpose desired," was to open the seat and get Reformers put in. He had asked Gamey to go as a Conservative among Conservatives and get such information as could be handed over to Mr. Smith for the Reformers and get him (Miscampbell) unseated for it.

Didn't Bring Him Up.

Mr. Blake—Q.—Are you bringing up many nephews in the same way? A.—I didn't bring him up.

Continuing, Mr. Jones said the "proper place" to which he could pass the information was Alexander Smith. "That will make a clean sweep of three," meant Manitoulin, Algoma and Sault Ste. Marie. "A good deal of a politician able to get three seats," queried Mr. Blake, and Mr. Jones nodded. He was not to get any of the profit of the payment to Mr. Gamey for what Mr. Blake called treachery to his friends, but he would have his share of the franchises if they secured any.

Witness explained that "No one would dream of you and me," meant that his name would be used in connection with the deals and Mr. Gamey's would not appear. "The snap worth trying for," and "It will come to hand quick sure," were written after his conversation with Mr. Alex. Smith, and Mr. Jones explained that it was his own assurance that he thought they would be willing to pay a reasonable amount for the information.

Explains Letter Terms.

"The pot of money" written of was to be had from some mineral claims that he thought would do it, and these were so rich that he had written, "I will surprise you." Others had been surprised at the richness of the samples of copper he had shown, but he had not made anything out of them yet. Mr. Gamey had told him not to be seen speaking to him, as the Conservative party suspected him, and he didn't want to do anything that would injure his party, at a time when the Government majority was dwindling. If Ross didn't succeed he wanted to hold in with his own party. This was just after the letter of the 19th Sept., and they bid each other the time of day—that is, parted.

Asked if Gamey had an opportunity of discussing these franchises with Mr. Jones, witness said there wasn't any franchises until he had declared himself, and he had never said anything further to witness about them except his statement in the House. Witness thought his chances were very small after his statement.

Surprised at Their Richness.

To Mr. Johnston, Mr. Jones said he had shown his mineral samples to Mr. Thomas Gibson's secretary, a mineralogist, and he was so surprised at their richness that he had some remarks put in the paper about it. Mr. Gomey had said there was a lot of funny work going on in Mr. Miscampbell's constituency, and Gamey had assured him for the last three years that he would support the Reform Government.

Q.—Now I am asking you, if he was pretending then, politically or in any other way, that those Conservatives were friends of his, or treating them as such? A.—He was simply pretending to me that he was doing everything he could to make himself strong with the Government.

Witness said that Mr. Gamey first suggested the prices of information regarding Miscampbell's constituency, and he it was who first talked money concerning it.

To the Chancellor he said that it was at the time there was said to be one of a majority, before the election in the three Norths, that Gamey talked to him about the Ross Government holding the reins of power and the majority dwindling.

Gamey's Nomination Speech.

Lachlan Galbraith, farmer, Providence Bay, said he had attended meetings of Mr. Gamey's during the election campaign. There was nothing in his speeches that could be construed as meaning he would support the Ross Government or their measures. He pledged himself to support the Whitney policy at the convention, and he denounced the Ross Government. There was nothing said about Mr. Campbell at the meeting on May 8. W. J. Berry had told him he was not at the Providence Bay meeting and he had not seen him there.

Mr. McPherson said he had no more witnesses present, but two of them mentioned would be here today.

The Chancellor said they must close all this oral testimony today, and be ready for argument on Thursday next. Saturday would be left for the bank, and the case must be closed so far as evidence went, this week.

The Commission at 3.15 adjourned until to-day at 10 o'clock.

OUR MUSICAL STATUS.

English Composer, Sir Alex. Mackenzie, Gives His Impressions—Delighted With Choruses He Heard Here.

"You may say that I was agreeably astonished at the high standard of efficiency attained by the choruses in all the cities we have visited," said Sir Alexander Mackenzie, the English composer, who conducted recently a cycle of musical festivals throughout the Dominion, to the Montreal correspondent of The Toronto News.

In answer to the query, "What do you want me to say?" the correspondent explained that he thought it would be not uninteresting to many if Sir Alexander would give his opinion regarding the status of choral music in Canada. "Having visited a number of our largest cities and towns, you are in a position to say, if you will, how our work compares with similar work in Britain," said the correspondent.

"Possibly such a comparison would be unjust to Canadian singers," replied Sir Alexander. "But if a comparative estimate is desired that is certainly the only one I could give. As this is my first visit to Canada, I cannot say, except from what I see before me, what progress is being made in choral work here. Looked at in that light, however, the results are surprisingly good. Going into some of the smaller towns, where choruses had been formed specially for this cycle, I was astounded to meet well-trained and exceptionally effective bodies of singers. This was noteably the case in Moncton, N. B., and Brantford, Ont."

"What do you think of the quality of voice produced in Canada?"

"I see very little difference between them and those we have in England. The tone in the aggregate is pretty much the same. Of course, it would be unfair to compare the male voice here with those which participate in choruses in Yorkshire and London; they would simply be drowned out. But otherwise, I have found the choruses characterized by evenness and sweetness of tone with quite sufficient volume for all practical purposes."

"What is the most notable defect in our choral singing?"

"It is that perhaps the singers, taking them individually, have not yet become accustomed to the novelty of their position. When that feeling of strangeness passes away I look for results greater than the truly admirable results which have already been attained."

"Do you think that this musical cycle will tend to stimulate an interest in choral singing in Canada."

"Most assuredly it should. I certainly trust that none of the choruses which have been formed for the purposes of the present cycle will be permitted to disband. They should be the neucleus of permanent organizations which might at intervals be utilized to give a series of choral works. Thus far we have confined our attention exclusively to music composed by British musicians; next year the programs might be cosmopolitan. But I certainly approve most cordially the idea which made the inaugural cycle an all-British one Foreign music had been sufficiently exploited; it was a good thing to let the people know what musicians of British origin were doing."

"Has the cycle proven a success?"

"Immensely so. The attendance at all our concerts has been exceedingly good. In some of the cities the drill hall was utilized; these were filled, and, as you know, that takes a good many people."

"What style of music, in your opinion, stimulates interest among the masses most readily— choral or orchestral?"

"It is perhaps easier to reach the masses through the medium of the chorus. But really the two should go hand in hand. It is impossible to have the one in its highest form without the aid of the other. A good chorus needs a good orchestra to support it properly. No country which does not possess a fine orchestra need ever hope to achieve very great results chorally. Indeed, it is a matter of wonder to me that the leading cities of Canada do not combine to develop orchestras on the co-operative plan. For example, Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa should be in a position to do so without any trouble. It would not cost very much, and the artistic results would be well worth the expense."

As the reporter was preparing to leave, Sir Alexander gave orders that he should be supplied with a series of the programs used at all concerts which had been given thus far "I am to write a description of the concerts for an English paper," he explained. "Without the programs I would remember nothing; with them before me, the whole scene comes back—I can remember the audience, the chorus; everything!"

Curious Time Recorder.

A naturalist while visiting Great Sangir, one of those islands of the Indian ocean known as the Celebes, or Spice islands, found a curious time recorder lodged at the house of a rajah. Two bottles were firmly lashed together and fixed in a wooden frame. A quantity of black sand ran from one bottle into the other in just half an hour, and when the upper bottle was empty the frame was reversed. Twelve short sticks marked with notches from 1 to 12 were hung upon a string. A hook was placed between the stick bearing the number of notches corresponding to the hour last struck and the one to be struck next. The sentry announced the time by striking the hours on a large gong.

THE GAMEY ENQUIRY

Dissatisfaction With Delay Voiced by Mr. Johnston.

M. O. HAMMOND'S EVIDENCE.

Globe Reporter Recalled by the Prosecution—The Globe Interview Under Investigation—Witness Who Had Nothing to Do With the Case —More Information Asked About Gamey's Deposit.

Toronto, May 16.—At the opening of the Gamey bribery Commission yesterday morning Chancellor Boyd asked Mr. Gamey to hand into court the memo. book he spoke of Thursday. He asked Mr. Johnston to inquire into the deposit of the $900 in the bank by Mr. Gamey. Mr. Ritchie said he proposed to call the receiving teller in connection with that.

Knew Nothing of the Case.

Mr. John Loughrin, ex-M.P.P., the Regitrar of Deeds and Stipendary Magistrate for Nipissing; Mr. C. A. McCool, M.P., of Mattawa, and Dr. James, M. P. P., of Mattawa, were brought here because Mr. McPherson said he had positive information that they had an interview with Hon. J. R. Stratton on Sept. 11. They testified that they had no such interview, the first two saying they had not seen Mr. Stratton at all during Exhibition week.

Mr. Hammond Recalled.

Mr. McPherson then recalled Mr. M. O. Hammond, The Globe reporter, to give fuller details as to one or two points in his evidence. On the day before Mr. Gamey gave The Globe interview, he visited Mr. Stratton's office after three o'clock in the afternoon. Mr. Myers told him that Mr. Stratton wanted to see him. Entering the latter's room, the Provincial Secretary asked if The Globe would like to publish an interview with him about the Carnegie Library proposal. Mr. Hammond telephoned the city editor with Mr. Stratton's private 'phone, and ascertained that The Globe did not desire an opinion on this topic. Mr. Stratton then handed him a typewritten interview to read.

"I understand that you have stated privately that you could give evidence on one or two material points had you been asked the questions?" said Mr. McPherson.

Mr. Hammond said he had said something to this effect. The point he alluded to on which he had not been examined was the fact that he had seen Gamey go into the vestibule leading to Mr. Stratton's private office after giving him the interview.

Cross-Examination.

In cross-examination by Mr. Johnston, Mr. Hammond said that, in the interview published in The Globe he prefixed the typewritten copy by an introduction of his own, and some general questions about Manitoulin.

To Mr. McPherson, Mr. Hammond told again how the interview for The Globe was obtained from Mr. Gamey. There had been no discussion about the interview, and Mr. Gamey signed it after witness had read it at Mr. Gamey's request. Mr. Gamey added the words, "In matters that I am satisfied with," while they were seitting at the table before the interview was signed.

Q.—Then as to the statement that you prepared for Mr. Johnston, did you write it out? A.—Yes.

Q.—And sign it? A.—I don't think it was signed.

Q.—Did you deliver it to Mr. Johnston? A.—Yes.

Mr. McPherson asks for the production of this statement.

Mr. Johnston—The answer to that is, first, it was a statement prepared for counsel, and, second, the statement is not now in existence because as each witness was heard in the box his statement was at once destroyed.

Mr. McPherson—What is the substitute for it?

Mr. Johnston—I have no substitute. I have the evidence. The moment I got each witness' evidence I destroyed the statement, for the simple reason that statements on the one hand, and evidence given in the box on the other, are apt to be conflicting.

Mr. W. E. Buckingham.

The last witness of the morning was Mr. W. E. Buckingham, barrister, of Guelph, who was examined with reference to a cheque for $1,900, drawn to his order on the Ontario Bank on Sept. 11 by the Trusts and Guarantee Company. Mr. Buckingham explained that on that day he had obtained a cheque for $2,300 on a stock transaction from O'Hara & Company, brokers. He then went to see Mr. T. P. Coffee, manager of the Trust and Guarantee Company, and closed up an old partnership account for $400 by exchanging the O'Hara cheque for the company's cheque in the amount of $1,900. The latter he cashed, depositing $1,200 with A. E. Ames & Company and taking $700 away with him.

He testified that he saw Mr. Coffee in his office at 10.45 on September 11, and found him closeted with Mr. Stratton and Mr. Boland. They had been there some time, and left the office as he went in. He remained with Mr. Coffee for twenty minutes, and they did not come back.

In cross-examination, Mr. Buckingham stated that he could not say whether Mr. Stratton left the building when he went out.

This closed the evidence for the day, and the court adjourned until this morning.

The Dragging Delay.

Mr. Johnston said that there was an impression abroad that an effort was being made to prolong the enquiry until after the Legislature was prorogued. The Chancellor and Mr. Ritchie both disclaimed any such intention.

A FATAL ACCIDENT IN SOUTH MONAGHAN.

Young Man Killed in Runaway Accident.

Arthur Rowe, a Farm Hand, Suddenly Called.

This morning about ten o'clock, a fatal runaway accident occurred in South Monaghan, resulting in the death of Arthur Rowe, a farm hand employed by Mr. Robert Fisher, ex-Warden of Northumberland and Durham, who resides in South Monaghan, near Bensfort.

The deceased, who was 19 years of age, and belonged to Garden Hill, was employed with another man, in drawing manure from the barns to the fields. The two drivers, it is said, engaged in a race to see which would reach the barn first. Rowe's team became unmanageable, and ran away, with the result that the young man was instantly killed.

Dr. Turner of Millbrook, was called, and communicated with Dr. Grey, coroner, in regard to holding an inquest but the latter decided that one was unnecessary.

THE RIDER OF THE PLAINS.

Agnes C. Laut has an article in Leslie's for May dealing with the Northwest Mounted Police, and as one reads it the conviction grows that Canadians are not sufficiently familiar with the great work done by that body of men, and not rightly impressed with the remarkable safety of life and property over that vast region. From the international boundary to the Arctic circle the solitary traveler is safe. The passenger of the C. P. R. will see a rancher's daughter who has ridden alone twenty miles across the plain, safer from danger or annoyance than if she were in a crowded city. The explanation is found when one sees "a solitary horseman, white helmet, white gauntlets, red coat and gold braid, black trousers with yellow stripes, riding boots, and, perhaps, a carbine." On he rides, not leaving his seat as the horse bounds, but loosely rising and sinking with the animal, as though the horse and man were one—as the cowboys ride, as most of the troopers of the Strathcona Horse rode in South Africh. Miss Laut tells how the mounted policeman as he rides sees a burning spot in the sky, wheels his horse and gallops across the plain—he has been heliographed by the next patrol, ten, twenty, or thirty miles away, to close in and assist in intercepting a refugee. It is a fine system, but the men themselves, taking pride in the reputation of the force, deserve the greatest credit.

In all new parts of America the work of settlement has been preceded by periods of lawlessness, but in the Canadian West, thanks to the mounted police, there has been little of this. The force exists not to punish, but to discourage crime. In dealing with the Indians, the police have not made war on them because some of them have committed crimes, but have always made it a point to arrest the guilty individuals, and them only, and carry them off to regular trial before the proper authorities. The plan has not been to kill a murderer, but to arrest him and have him tried, precisely as would be done with a white man guilty of the same crime. The justice of it early began to be understood by the Indians. That police force is a body of which Canada may be justly proud.

THIS MORNING'S MENACING FIRE.

The Destruction of Five Outbuildings.

A Dangerous Situation—The Brigade's Effective Work.

A fire of a less serious nature than seemed probable, broke out early this morning in the outhouses of buildings situated on the corner of Stewart and Simcoe streets, as a result of which two stables and three barns were totally destroyed.

About 3.20 o'clock, Miss Sherlock, a lady residing at 378 Stewart street, was awakened by a crackling sound. Going to her window she noticed that the stable of Mr. Hurley, 376 Simcoe street, was on fire. Hurriedly dressing, she ran to Mr. F. H. Dobbin's house, whence the alarm was sent in about 3.30. Mr. E. James, 376 Stewart street, on smelling the burning outhouses, dressed and awoke the inmates of the terrace, and then endeavoured to subdue the fire by throwing bucketsful of water over it. The brigade was quickly on the spot, and had two streams playing out he flames in a remarkably short space of time. It looked however as if their efforts would be of no avail, as the fire rapidly gained headway, owing to the quantity of combustible material which the stables contained. A passing train seeing the danger to which the neighbourhood was subjected, stopped and whistled, one might almost say, frantically shrieked, thus arousing the sleeping inhabitants, who would be in danger had the fire continued to spread.

It was not long before a crowd of half-dressed frightened persons were abroad volubly discussing the situation. Had there been the slightest wind blowing it can safely be said that several persons would not have a roof over their heads to-night. The flames, leaping skyward, reflected by a large cloud of smoke which suspended over the buildings, cast a glow around almost as strong as daylight, which continued for perhaps twenty minutes. The scene was a unique one, women, only half clad, talking vociferously, men stolidly watching the leaping flames, the firemen flitting about like ghosts in and around the burning building, and the fire teams, heads turned towards the blaze, with ears pricked up, seemed to watch the flaming buildings with almost human interest. Mr. Armstrong's house, situated about five yards from one of the burning sheds, caught fire once, but the nascent blaze was quickly extinguished.

Once firmly under the control of the energetic brigade, who deserve the highest praise the fire was quickly extinguished. Within ten minutes what had been a menacing blaze for almost half an hour, was a smouldering heap of ruined sheds. The dawning day revealed the charred skeletons of five human homes.

The damage is estimated at between $500 and $600, all of which, it is understood, is covered by insurance. Fortunately Mr. Reynolds had taken his cow to her pasture the evening before. As yet no explanation whatever can be given as to the origin of the fire.

Girls Who Work

Girls who work are particularly susceptible to female ills, especially when obliged to stand on their feet from morning until night.

Day in and day out, month in and month out, the year through, the working girl toils; she is often the bread winner of the family, and must work that others may live; whether she is sick or well, whether it rains or shines, whether it is warm or cold she must get to her place of employment and perform the duties exacted from her.

Among this class the symptoms of female diseases are early manifest by weak and aching backs, pain in the lower limbs and lower part of the stomach; in consequence of frequent wetting of the feet monthly periods become painful and irregular, and frequently faint and dizzy spells, with loss of appetite, until life is a burden and it is hard work to drag about. All these symptoms point to a derangement of the female organism, and if taken in time can be easily and permanently cured.

A Cordial Invitation to Every Sick and Ailing Working Girl.

It is to these girls that Mrs. Pinkham holds out a helping hand, and extends a cordial invitation to correspond with her. Her unrivalled record of success in treating woman's ills makes her letters of advice of untold value to every ailing working girl, and from her wide experience and skill she quickly points the way to health. Her advice is free, and all letters are held by her in the strictest confidence. Address, Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. Don't put off writing her until your health is wrecked.

Grateful Words from Working Girls Who Have Been Helped.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I want to thank you for what you have done for me. I was dreadfully tired, I stand over my work all day, and no one who hasn't tried it knows how it makes your back and sides ache. I couldn't sleep, and had no appetite, but thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I feel entirely different now; it is a wonderful medicine. I do not feel that my work is hard now, and I recommend your medicine to other girls who are always tired."—Miss Isabel Subgin, 293 Willis Ave., New York City.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done so much good for me that I wish to recommend it to all girls whose work keeps them standing on their feet all day in a hot store. The doctor said I could not live and I must give up work, and stay out of doors; he did not seem to realize that a girl cannot afford to stop working. My back ached, my appetite was poor and I could not sleep; menstruation was scanty and very painful. One day when suffering I commenced to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped me, I soon found that my menstrual periods were free from pain and natural; now my health is fine, and every one is surprised at the change in me, and I cannot be too grateful for what you have done for me."—Miss Janet Paine, 530 West 125th Street, New York City.—$5000.00 forfeit if originals of above letters proving genuineness cannot be produced.

THE CANADIAN LEAGUE FOR CIVIC IMPROVEMENT.

ITS ORGANIZATION AND AIMS.

The following article was prepared for the Brantford Expositor by Major George R. Pattullo, of Woodstock:—

The Canadian League for Civic Improvement was formed in the rotunda of the Board of Trade, Toronto, in February last. Besides the Mayor of Toronto, the meeting included a representative body of gentlemen prominent in various walks of life, from different parts of the Province of Ontario. All seemed impressed with the necessity of some such organization, and those who had enjoyed the advantage of seeing what may be done in the way of civic improvement, by well-directed local effort, were most enthusiastic in urging the formation of a League that would cover the entire Dominion.

OBJECT OF THE LEAGUE.

The object of the League is to unite and secure the co-operation of all ladies and gentlemen and all organizations that are interested in the promotion of outdoor art, public beauty, or town, village, or rural improvement. This is a comprehensive program and affords an opportunity for every person in a community to do something towards its accomplishment.

IN CITIES, TOWNS AND VILLAGES.

Civic improvements in cities, towns and villages, may include better streets, more tree planting, well kept boulevards, more and better kept parks and play grounds, improvement of public buildings, school houses and churches by more general use of vines, ivy or climbers, more artistic grounds about all of these buildings and a more general planting of shrubs and flowers therein. The erection of statues, the erection of fountains, public lavatories and closets, public gymnasiums, and reat rooms, cemetery improvement, improvement of railway station grounds, planting of trees and flowers about factories, the improvement of vacant lots, lanes and alleys, a greater attention to public sanitation, a perfect sewage system, improved facilities for the disposition of garbage, more artistic public advertising, simplicity in naming streets, and numbering houses, fruit and flower exhibition, cleansing public buildings and public vehicles, a higher class of pictures in our public halls, and our various public institutions, improved municipal architecture, including all public buildings and bridges, competitions and awarding of prizes to stimulate home-planting among the school children and citizens generally.

IN RURAL DISTRICTS.

Civic improvements in rural districts may also cover nearly as large a field. It includes better roads, more drainage, better fences, more general tree-planting, a general improvement of home surroundings, including orchards better cared for, evergreens, shrubs, more generally planted and better taken care of some flower-beds about every homestead, well kept kitchen gardens, the shielding or covering of all unsightly buildings by trees or vines, better sanitation within the homes, universal bath-rooms, lavatories and closets, the improvement of public buildings, and schoolhouses, school grounds, churches, manses and glebes, by laying out artistically, planting of trees, shrubs, flowers and vines, and providing well kept lawns for each, also the establishment and care of parks in every municipality according to size population and convenience, improving the architecture, approaches and general appearance of bridges, the encouragement of forestry, more particularly in the direction of planting copses of trees as a shade for farm stock, or to replace native trees that should not have been removed. This may be more easily carried on on the banks of creeks, streams, lakes and rivers, whose surroundings lend themselves easily to beautifying, and all woods that could be easily utilized for park purposes and all ever greens that lend beauty to the landscape and other natural features, should be as far as possible preserved. Wayside springs should be preserved and made convenient for public use. Guide boards should also be provided.

AN INVITING FIELD.

The above are some, though not all of the subjects included in the task of civic improvement. It is not possible within the limits of a paper or address to discuss them at length. They are sufficiently numerous to invite the effort of all our citizens, both young and old, rich and poor. To the latter they offer a specially inviting field of profit and pleasure. The poorer sections of several European and American cities, have been literally transformed from apparent squalor and wretchedness to beauty and comfort, by the efforts of civic improvement reformers. Productive vegetable gardens have replaced ashheaps and back door debris, while well-kept boulevards and lawns, flowering shrubs, vines and flowers, have taken the place of bare yards and generally tumble-down surroundings.

SPRING THE SEASON TO BEGIN.

The season of spring is most suitable for beginning the work of out-door improvement and it is only to out-door improvement that I shall further refer in this paper. Nor can I discuss more than two or three features of this branch of civic reform.

UNATTRACTIVE SCHOOL HOUSES.

All who have travelled through our country districts must have noticed how unattractive are the rural school houses and their surroundings. The walls of the buildings are bare, and unrelieved by a touch of green in the form of ivy, climbing roses or other vines, are no trees or shrubs about the ground, nor are there flower beds. The grass, if grass there be, is uncut, the fences are not always in good repair, and the out-buildings forbidding and offensive, are vulgarly exposed to the public gaze. And yet, these are seats of learning. Here is where our children receive their first impressions of education. "Like produces like" it is said, so what must be the impression made by surroundings so rude and repellent? There is also an absence of flag-pole or flag, which every school section should have and such flag should fly on all appropriate occasions, familiarizing the children with our national emblem and to teach them to love and honour it though it be "Only a bit o' bunting!"

CHURCHES ALSO ARE NEGLECTED.

Then our rural church buildings are little less unattractive than are the school houses. They appear to be neglected and uncared for. One might easily imagine that they were seldom, if ever, visited, so cold, bare and uninviting do they appear. If surrounded by a cemetery, as they usually are, it looks uncared for and ragged in the extreme. Respect for the dead, if not for the living, should suggest an improvement in this repect, and surely our places of worship should be made as attractive in their exteriors as our own homes. The spirit of true worship is sacrifice, and professing Christians should show, not only by the attractive character of their churches and attractive interior, but also by pleasant and picturesque surroundings, that they are willing to beautify the temples which they have erected for the worship of Almigbty God.

RAILWAY STATIONS AND GROUNDS.

Another direction in which improvement may be made by vines, shrubs, flowers and well kept lawns, is our railway station houses and station grounds. This is becoming more important, because of the building of electric lines of railway and the same improvements should be made, and indeed insisted upon by the public, upon the station houses and grounds of electric railways as are necessary on steam railway properties. These improvements should be made a condition of granting franchises to companies when applying to municipalities for them. Another condition that should be insisted upon is, that all the land lying alongside the electric railway tracks and belonging to the companies should be kept clear of all noxious weeds and in general be well cared for. Otherwise these properties may become eye sores to the travelling public and a menace to the crops of adjacent farmers.

SHADE TREES ALONG HIGHWAYS.

Tree planting along the highways would add greatly to their beauty, and if done judiciously and the trees not planted too closely, while affording a pleasant shade, would not necessarily injure the roadways by holding the water, and thereby making them damp or wet.

BEAUTIFYING RURAL HOMES.

A strong effort should be made to induce our friends, the farmers, to pay more attention to beautifying the exterior of their homes and surrounding grounds. Farm houses are usually located advantageously for improvements such as are suggested. An ivy, the climbing rose, or any creeping vine, would relieve their bare appearance, while some pretty flowering shrubs, a few evergreens, and some flower beds, would add greatly to the beauty of the surroundings. But what is still more important they would probably interest some member of the household and make all more contented with the home and its surroundings.

COPSES OF SHADE TREES.

Then in the older parts of Ontario and the other eastern provinces, where the larger part of the farms have been entirely denuded of trees, when the trees of the forest were felled, some attempt should be made to partially replace them by planting in appropriate places, copses of evergreens or shade trees. These are not only valuable as shades for the farm stock, but would greatly add to the beauty of the landscape. In the absence of hedges such as are in the old country, and which serve the purpose of fences there, trees scattered here and there over a farm add much to its appearance.

RURAL PARKS.

Not only so, but every rural municipality should provide itself with one or more parks, which should become common and convenient resorts. Public gatherings, picnics, private or public, could be held there. Nor would there be any difficulty securing suitable and attractive locations—no township is without them. In many cases they are there ready to hand, with forest trees, water convenient, and the general topography all that the landscape gardener could wish; cost of purchase would not be great, nor would the expense of properly keeping them up.

GOOD ROADS AND CIVIC REFORM.

The above suggested improvements are all in harmony with the general improvement of the highways of the country, which in recent years has made considerable advances, and has now reached the stage of governmental and municipal reform, in the form of good roads improvement.

A CANADIAN PARADISE.

With good roads to drive, wheel or walk over, with the highways treelined, the landscapes improved by replanting, the school and church properties which we pass beautified by well kept lawns, shrubs and trees, vines and flowers; and with the national flag floating from a flagpole at every school house, how much more pleasant it would be to travel in the country, and how much more proud we would have a right to be of our native land!

URBAN CIVIC REFORM.

This paper must necessarily be too brief to permit me to enlarge upon even a tithe of what is aimed at by the league for civic improvement in the direction of further beautifying our cities, towns and villages. All of these should have parks, picturesquely situated wherever possible, tastefully laid out and always well kept. There should be more boulevards, more planting of trees, better kept streets, more cleanly lanes and alleys, an improved garbage system, more official attention given to regulating architecture, building of sidewalks and landscape work. Fountains should be provided as a convenience, and all local historical events could be appropriately marked by monuments or memorial tablets.

NECESSARY AND PATRIOTIC.

By some it may be said that these reforms are comparatively unimportant, and that the Canadian people cannot be sufficiently interested to carry them out. I deny both of these statements. They are not unimportant and are urgently needed to meet the requirements of present conditions. Canadians are now beyond a primative or primeval stage. They are for the most part able to do more than merely exist. They can now live and enjoy life in pleasant, if not luxurious, surroundings. Being well able to afford to do so, it is nationally important that they should not neglect their opportunities and responsibilities. Their sons and daughters are better off, better clothed and better educated than were their fathers and mothers. They have also better homes, better school houses and better churches, but all three of the latter might easily be made more attractive by following the suggestion that I have made, and the more comfortable and attractive the surroundings of young people are made the more happy and contented they will be. Not only so, but they will grow to manhood and womanhood with a greater liking and affection for their parents, their homes and their country. They will thus be better children, better men and women and better Canadians.

A Severe Case of Lumbago.

Mr. Jas. A. Searls, Norwich, Ont., Quickly and Permanently Cured by

Dr. Pitcher's Backache-Kidney Tablets.

Know what lumbago is? Pain catches you right in the small of the back—makes stooping over or rising up excruciating agony.

Wrong kidney action is the cause of the trouble, and if you let Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablet set the kidneys working right, you'll be quickly and permanently cured.

Mr. Jas. A. Searls, the well and favourably known boot and shoe merchant of Norwich, Ont., made this statement:—"During a recent sharp attack of lumbago, in which the pain was extremely severe, I took a bottle of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets. They took the pain out of my back so quickly, and so far as I can see made a cure so permanent, that I consider them unequalled for that most prevalent and painful affliction. I am only too pleased to recommend them to other people who may be suffering as I was."

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are 50 cents a box at all druggists or by mail. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont. 5

SMALLPOX IN WALL COVERINGS

In these days when smallpox is so prevalent, the question of how we shall decorate the walls of our houses and insure a healthy condition is one of great moment.

PHYSICIANS ALL AGREE that wall paper with its poisonous coloring matter and mouldy paste is unsanitary; that it affords an elegant opportunity for bacteria to thrive. This is evident not only from what they say, but from the fact that the walls of hospitals are never papered.

ANOTHER POINT, sanitarians all tell us that the walls of a room to be healthy must breathe; that wall paper and kalsomine obstruct wall inspiration.

THE BIG POINT IS that Church's Cold Water ALABASTINE has none of the disadvantages of either paper or kalsomine, but all the advantages of a pure, porous, cement-like wall-coating that hardens with age, and can be repeated as often as is necessary to renew.

With ALABASTINE the most beautiful effects can be produced; anyone can do plain tinting. All dealers sell ALABASTINE.

We send to any Lady free, who asks for it, "The Housekeeper's Register." Address,

W. Smith, 21st Fusiliers; Capt. J. M. Jones, 82nd, P.E.I.; Armourer Sergt. H. Morris, 13th, Hamilton; Pte. J. T. Peddle, 5th Royal Scots, Montreal; Capt. W. C. King, 45th, Durham; Major R. J. Spearing, 53rd, Sherbrooke; Lieut. G. V. Room, 69th, Middleton, N. S.; Capt. J. Duff Stewart, 60th D.C.O.R., B. C.; Pte. R. McGregor and Pte. G. W. Russell, G.G.F.G., Ottawa; Staff-Sergt. T. H. Hayhurst, 13th, Hamilton; Staff-Sergt. J. White, 69th, N. S.; Pte. George Brooks, 48th Highlanders, Toronto; Col.-Sergt. W. H. Sproule, 43rd D.C.O.R.

The last two have not been heard from, and the following are waiting men: Sergt. W. Drysdale, 1st P. W. R. F., and Col.-Sergt. E. Skedden, 13th, Hamilton.

PARTIZANSHIP.

Civil Servants in Manitoba Charged by Dr. Roche, Marquette.

Ottawa, May 16.—But little progress was made with the practical business of the House yesterday, owing to a protracted debate upon an amendment to supply by Dr. Roche, Marquette, censuring the Government for allowing civil servants in Manitoba to take an active part in the Dominion elections. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir William Mulock declared that the Government had not receded from the position it occupied in 1897 upon this question, and reaffirmed the principle that the display of offensive partisanship by servants of the public was reprehensible. The "ragging" of Lieut. Willow, a colonial officer in the Imperial army, was the subject of a vigorous protest by Mr. John Charlton and others. A comparatively small item voted in supply represented the sum total of the day's work when the House adjourned at 11.30.

ALMOST IN DESPAIR.

Was H. Trudel Before he Used Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets—Now his Dyspepsia with all its Pain and Weariness has Disappeared.

To what desperate straits Dyspepsia will reduce a man is exemplified by the story told by Hene Trudel, a student, of Three Rivers, Quebec:

"Sometimes," says Mr. Trudel, "I had slight attacks of indigestion. Then for some weeks it made alarming progress. I became discouraged, weak and almost in despair. I resolved to give up my studies, when a happy accident put a Dodd's Almanac in my hands, and I made up my mind to try Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

"I began using Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets in January, and for six weeks I took one after each meal, sometimes two. After that, feeling greatly better, I took only one after supper; now, from time to time I take one if I feel a little fatigued after eating.

"Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets made me better. To-day I have no headache, no weariness, no pain. I am cured."

CHASED FOR HALF A YEAR.

Bad Indian Who Shot One of His Own Tribe Is Captured.

Cornwall, May 16.—Jake Sawattis, the bad redman from the St. Regis Indian reserve, who has given the provincial detectives the slip for the past six months, has at last been arrested by one of his own tribesmen, Mitchell George. Sawattis became jealous of his nephew, and during a dance at the wigwam of an Indian named Cook, shot him; the ball entered the hand and the young brave has been laid up since. A warrant was issued, but Jake has a number of friends in the tribe who kept him posted. The warrant was placed in the hands of Mitchell George, who caught Sawattis on the Canadian side Thursday, handcuffed him and took him to Dundee. Policeman Morris took the prisoner to Beauharnois yesterday morning, and lodged him in jail.

A Farmer Cured of Rheumatism.

"A man living on a farm near here came in a short time ago completely doubled up with rheumatism. I handed him a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and told him to use it freely, and if not satisfied after using it he need not pay a cent for it," says C. P. Rayder, of Pattens Mills, N.Y. "A few days later he walked into the store as straight as a string, and handed me a dollar saying 'Give me another bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm; I want it in the house all the time for it cured me.'" For sale by all druggists.

ABOUT THE REDISTRIBUTION.

Proposals Regarding Ontario To Be Exchanged in a Day or Two.

Ottawa, May 16.—The Redistribution Committee had a private conference yesterday morning in which several propositions were made and left over in most instances for further consideration.

Proposals with regard to the division of Ontario counties are to be exchanged within a day or two, and a conference between the members of the committee representing that province will be held early next week.

It has been suggested that the Townships of Clara, Maria and Head in North Renfrew be added to Nipissing, and that the County of Northumberland shall not include the Township of South Monaghan, but shall include the Town of Trenton.

Toronto is to be divided into five ridings, to be called North, East, South, West and Centre Toronto, but no agreement has been reached as to whether this shall include Toronto as constituted for electoral purposes or Toronto as constituted for municipal purposes.

Proposals were exchanged with regard to the redistribution of British Columbia, and it was found that there is very little difference of opinion as to that province.

It is proposed that the City of Ottawa shall include New Edinburgh, and that the County of Carleton shall not include the Townships of Gloucester and Osgoode, but that they shall remain, as at present, a part of the electoral division of Russell.

Economy and Better Health.

Malt Breakfast Food

A True Nourisher and Not a Fad.

One package of Malt Breakfast Food, costing only 15 cents will make as many meals for the family as can be obtained from three packages of any of the ready-to-eat fad foods, put up in bulky containers, which more weight in cardboard than in food. A still stronger point than the economical one, is the fact that Malt Breakfast Food is the most nourishing, most appetizing and most easily digested of all breakfast foods. Thousands of physicians who have watched results obtained from use of Malt Breakfast Food, recommend it with pleasure and satisfaction as a diet for dyspeptics and maintain that it has no equal for keeping well people strong and hearty. Your grocer can recommend Malt Breakfast Food with confidence.

Conservatives Retain Seat.

London, May 16.—The bye-election held yesterday at Preston to fill the seat in the House of Commons made vacant by the death April 28 of Robert W. Hanbury, Conservative, resulted in Mr. J. Kerr, the Conservative candidate, defeating Mr. J. Hodge, labor candidate, by a majority of 2,149.

For a Certainty I am Cured.

Mr. Jas. Treneman, 536 Adelaide street, London, writes that for two years he was laid up with kidney disease and urinary troubles. He became dropsical and his legs would swell so that he could hardly walk around. He never used any medicine that did him so much good as Dr. Chase's Kidney Live Pills, and knows for a certainty that this treatment cured him. One pill a dose; 25c. a box.

Manslaughter Dismissed.

Ottawa, May 16.—At a public meeting in the City Hall last night from which scores were turned away, the piling of lumber in the city limits was roundly condemned, and a motion carried calling on the City Council to forbid its continuance.

Drowned in Lumber Slide.

Ottawa, May 16.—Fred Dagenais of Hull, aged 13 years, was drowned in one of the Chaudiere Lumber slides yesterday morning. He was playing tag in the bulk-head building and fell through, the stop log opening in the floor.

WITHIN THE EMPIRE.

Mother Country Must Decide Definitely About Its Trade.

THE PARTING OF THE WAYS.

Colonial Secretary Chamberlain Says Protection is an Issue—Upon the Decision Will Depend the Future of the Empire—The Two Alternatives —Premier Balfour on Closer Fiscal Union With Colonies.

London, May 16.—Addressing his constituents at Birmingham last night, Colonial Secretary Chamberlain made an important speech, which seems to foreshadow the direct raising of the question of free trade versus protection at the next general election, and propounds a policy of reciprocal preferential treatment to the colonies.

In the beginning of his speech, Mr. Chamberlain referred to his South African tour, and to his return home to find the minds of the people filled with local questions. He made light of the difficulties he had been told assailed the Unionist party. For him these local questions were comparatively unimportant, beside the great imperialist policy, upon which the fate of the Empire depended, namely, "whether we stand together one free nation against all the world, or whether we shall fall into separate States, selfishly seeking their own interests and losing the advantages that unity alone can give."

Preference in the Empire.

The Colonial Secretary proceeded strongly to urge the necessity in order to preserve the great Empire, that the trade of the colonies should be secured. Canada had offered exceptional advantages, he said, which Great Britain did not dare accept, because of the narrow interpretation of the doctrine of free trade, the policy of dictation, and interference by foreign powers. Mr. Chamberlain said he was justified by the belief that Great Britain was so wedded to its fiscal system that it could not defend its colonies.

This was a position not intended by the pioneers of free trade, who, if they were alive to-day, would agree to a treaty of preference and reciprocity with the Empire's children. The speaker said he believed that an entirely wrong interpretation had been placed upon the doctrine of free trade, but that the country ought not to be bound by this, and it should not hesitate to resort to retaliation, if necessary, wherever the interests between the colonies and the home country were threatened. Mr. Chamberlain avowed himself a free trader, but he objected to the artificial and narrow interpretation of free trade.

The Two Alternatives.

He pointed out that Cobden had made, and that Bright had approved, a preferential tfeaty with France, and said:

"There are two alternatives before you; first, to maintain the free trade policy in all its severity, although it is repudiated by every other nation and your colonies; second, to insist that we be not bound by any purely technical definition of free trade. While we seek the one chief object, the free interchange of commerce between ourselves and all the nations of the world, we will nevertheless recover our freedom, resume the power of negotiation, and, if necessary, our retaliation."

In conclusion, the Colonial Secretary said he desired that the discussion of this subject should be open. It was an issue graver in its consequences than more local disputes. A mistake in legislation could be corrected, he said, but a mistake in the imperial policy was irretrievable.

Personally, he did not think a general election very near; but, whether near or distant, the issue would depend on whether the people have it in their hearts to do all that is necessary, even if it occasionally went against their prejudices, to consolidate an Empire which could only be maintained by relations of interest, as well as by relations of sentiment.

A Closer Fiscal Union.

London, May 16.—Premier Balfour, accompanied by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Litchie, yesterday, received a large and influential deputation of Unionist members of the House of Commons, who protested against the remission of the grain duty. Mr. Balfour made a long argument in reply to the representations of the deputation, but did not give the slightest indication of conceding the demands. In the course of his remarks he said:

New conditions had arisen since the old free trade policy was adopted, and he could imagine circumstances under which Great Britain, by way of retaliation, would no longer consent to be made a passive target for other countries living under different conditions.

Mr. Balfour concluded with saying he would welcome a closer fiscal union of the Motherland and the Colonies. The movement, however, would be extremely difficult to carry out and must come from the heart, conscience and intellect of the great masses of the people.

He believed in universal free trade, but at present every country except Great Britain was protected.

GREATLY ALARMED.

By a Persistent Cough, but Permanently Cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Mr. H. P. Burbage, a student at law in Greenville, S. C., has been troubled for four or five years with a continuous cough, which he says "greatly alarmed me, causing me to fear that I was in the first stages of consumption." Mr. Burbage, having seen Chamberlain's Cough Remedy advertised, concluded to try it. "I soon felt a remarkable change and after using two bottles of the 25 cent kind was permanently cured. Sold by all druggists.

HOW A BEAUTIFUL WOMAN ESCAPED SPRING CATARRH BY USE OF PE-RU-NA.

Nothing Robs One of Strength Like Spring Catarrh--Spring Fever is Spring Catarrh.

MISS HELEN WHITMAN.

Miss Helen Whitman, 308½ Grand avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., writes:

"There is nothing like Peruna for that tired feeling, which gives you no ambition for work or play. After a prolonged illness, about a year ago I felt unable to regain my health, but four bottles of Peruna made a wonderful change and restored me to perfect health. As long as you keep your blood in good condition you are all right, and Peruna seems to fill the veins with pure, healthful blood. I thoroughly endorse it." MISS HELEN WHITMAN.

Have you got nerves? Well, you ought to have nerves. But they ought to be strong nerves, good nerves. Does your hand tremble? You are living too fast. Does your heart flutter at times? You had better call a halt. Americans live too fast. They crowd too much into a single day. They have too little leisure. The hospitals and insane asylums are filling up. The quiet, pastoral scenes of yore are becoming rare. It's time that we quit this sort of business.

How to Get Strong Nerves.

First, repair the injury already done to your nerves. The way to do this is to do exactly as did Mattie B. Curtis, Secretary of Legion of Loyal Women, Hotel Salem, Boston, Mass. She said in a recent letter: "I suffered for over a year with general weakness and debility manifested in severe headache and backache. I took four bottles of Peruna, and for two months have been entirely free from these maladies."

Nervous Prostration.

Thousands of cases might be quoted in which Peruna has been used to rescue people from the perdition of deranged nerves, and put them on the good, solid foundation of health. The County Auditor of Erie county, New York, Hon. John W. Neff, in a recent letter written at Buffalo, New York, stated: "I was persuaded by a friend to try a bottle of your great nerve tonic, Peruna, and the results were so gratifying that I am more than pleased to recommend it."

A Spring Tonic.

Almost everybody needs a tonic in the spring. Something to brace the nerves, invigorate the brain and cleanse the blood. That Peruna will do this is beyond all question. Everyone who has tried it has had the same experience as Mrs. D. W. Timberlake, of Lynchburg, Va., who, in a recent letter, made use of the following words: "I always take a dose of Peruna after business hours, as it is a great thing for the nerves. There is no better spring tonic, and I have used about all of them."

Catarrh in Spring.

The spring is the best time to treat catarrh. Nature renews herself every spring. The system is rejuvenated by spring weather. This renders medicines more effective. A short course of Peruna, assisted by the balmy air of spring, will cure old, stubborn cases of catarrh that have resisted treatment for years. Everybody should have a copy of Dr. Hartman's latest book on catarrh. Address The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Mrs. Lulu Larmer, Stoughton, Wis., says:

"For two years I suffered with nervous trouble and stomach disorders until it seemed that there was nothing to me but a bundle of nerves. I was very irritable, could not sleep, rest for compose myself, and was certainly unfit to take care of a household. I took nerve tonics and pills without benefit. When I began taking Peruna I grew steadily better, my nerves grew stronger, my rest was no longer fitful, and to-day I consider myself in perfect health and strength. My recovery was slow but sure, but I persevered and was rewarded by perfect health."—Mrs. Lulu Larmer.

Mrs. Lulu Larmer.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

Among other places in the Dominion, the following have sent in orders for clothing to Pete Simons: Indian Head, Assiniboia, N.W.T., Fort Steele, B.C., Orillia, and Sault Ste. Marie. All these places have heard of his excellent clothing. If you have not been heretofore satisfactorily served try him for that summer suit. Once tried, you will never deal with anyone else.

Good Meat for the North End.

Mr. William Kemp, a well experienced meat man, has opened out a first-class meat market in the brick store known as Powell's stand, No. 686 George street; next to Edgcumbe's grocery. Mr. Kemp should do well in this locality, as he bears a reputation for being not only a careful and competent workman in the meat line, but a good cattle buyer and a judge of good live stock. He filled the position of practical man in Carton's pork-packing factory for twelve years and is known to be attentive and straightforward in his business dealings.

A PLEASANT SURPRISE FOR MR. E. S. CLARRY.

An Address and Presentation was Made.

Though Generally on His Guard he was not on the "Watch."

An event of more than usual interest took place yesterday afternoon, shortly before six o'clock, in the Examiner office. This consisted in the presentation to Mr. E. S. Clarry, late city editor of the Examiner, of a handsome gold watch, accompanied by an appropriate address.

Mr. Clarry has been connected with the editorial staff of the Examiner for four years, and has retired, to the regret of the Examiner staff and employees, to cope with the intricacies of the stock exchange.

In the presence of the entire Examiner staff, Mr. Yokome, the editor, read the following address, during the latter part of which the foreman of the news room, Mr. Albert Martin, made the actual presentation of the watch, on the inside of which is engraved:

"Presented to E. S. Clarry by the management and employees of the Peterborough Examiner, upon his retirement from the staff, May 1903."

The address was as follows:

Mr. E. S. Clarry:

Dear Sir,—On the occasion of your retiring from your engagement of four years as City Editor of the Examiner, the management and staff wish to express their keen regret at the severance of business relations—which on your part have been marked by effectiveness and unwavering fidelity to the interests concerned, and on our part by a satisfactory enjoyment of good service. Your personal relations with the staff in all departments have been genial and invariably agreeable and the same attitude towards the clients and friends and friends of the Examiner and the general public have procured for you a wide popularity, which have represented increased capacity for usefulness. It is no mere form of words to say that the loss of your services and the personal associations involved, will be deeply felt, nor to say that it is our sincerest wish that your new departure in business may be attended with the success which your industry and ability will bestow upon it. We are pleased to learn that you still remain a citizen of the town, and assure you that you will always receive a warm welcome in the sanctum, whether you call to report a prosperous phase of your affairs, to drop in a "bit of news," or to give us the light of your countenance.

Trusting you will find among the wild beasts of the financial arena as warm friends and as hearty well wishers as you have in the Examiner office, we would ask as an earnest, your acceptance of this watch, with the hope that this "ticker" as well as the other ticker, will mark the hours of many long and prosperous years.

Mr. Clarry was certainly taken by surprise. He thanked his fellow-employees most sincerely for their kindness towards him, and assured them that he felt it was more than he deserved. He regretted exceedingly in many ways, the fact that he was severing his connection with the Examiner. His association with not only the editorial and business staff had been at all times of the most pleasant nature, and the same could be said of his relations with every department. He was glad to know in leaving the paper he left with that good feeling that had always existed between the management, the employees, and himself, and which had been so kindly referred to in the address. Although not actively engaged in newspaper work, he hoped to be a frequent contributor to the columns of the Examiner, for which he felt sure he would always entertain the most kindly feelings, which, he hoped, would be mutual.

CALCUTT'S DRIVER BROKE HIS LEG.

Was Thrown From His Dray Yesterday Afternoon.

Mr. Ed. Flaherty, a new driver for the Calcutt Brewing Company, was yesterday thrown from the dray which he was driving, and his leg broken.

It is reported that Flaherty was turning the dray into Clinkscale's mill, Ashburnham, about five o'clock yesterday afternoon, when one of the front wheels caught underneath the box, overturning the dray, and throwing the driver forcibly to the ground.

Dr. McNulty was quickly summoned and the ambulance was soon on the scene of the accident. The injured man was taken to his home, No. 363 McDonel street, and is progressing as favourably as can reasonably be expected.

SUCCESSFUL SOCIAL

The success with which the Young Men's Guild of George street church entertained the Guilds of St. Andrew's and Charlotte street churches was complete. Mr. F. Skitch, Vice-President of the George street Guild, presided.

The evening commenced with a few pianola solos by Mr. R. Soanes, after which Mr. J. A. Fife gave an excellent address on "Coal." He commenced his remarks by dealing with the formation of the black diamond, and continued by pointing out its importance, the variety of ways in which it is used and the result of the recent strike. In the course of his remarks the speaker showed that peat is coal but not in as compressed a form, and continued by showing the essential difference between the two. He concluded his excellent speech by showing the heating capacity of this mineral.

Mr. Dobbin's speech on "Sports" showed that he had obtained a complete mastery of his subject.

After ample justice had been done to a sumptuous banquet prepared by the Girl's Guild of George street church, the following toast list was run off:—Mr. W. B. Warren in a very few appropriate remarks, proposed the toast of our King which was honoured by all standing and singing the National Anthem. Mr. S. R. Armstrong proposed the toast of "Our Country" referring fittingly to its vast extent.

It was replied to by Mr. Gerard, of St. Andrew's.

"Our Guests" was proposed by Mr. W. Dredge, who referred to the fraternal spirit which existed among the different Guilds of the town.

Mr. Campbell, of St. Andrew's, replied in a very humourous speech and also by Mr. Galbraith, on behalf of the Charlotte street Guild.

Mr. Elliott proposed the toast of "The Ladies," to which Mr. Sorsoleil, of Charlotte street, responded. The ladies, on whom the success of the evening chiefly rested, ought indeed to be proud of the many compliments which Mr. Sorsoleil showered upon them.

The meeting was closed with the benediction, pronounced by Rev. J. G. Potter, of St. Andrew's.

Special mention should be made of the very artistic manner in which the Girls' Guild arranged the tables. The Guild is indebted to Mr. Soanes for the music during the supper and also to Mr. E. F. Mason for the handsome donation of the special Seal Brand blend of coffee, which all pronounced excellent.

THE LATEST NEWS OF LOCAL SPORT.

T. A. S. II Won From Campbellford Yesterday.

Athletic Lacrosse Club to Hold a Concert—Notes on Baseball, etc.

LACROSSE.

T. A. S. VS. CAMPBELLFORD.

"First blood" of the season for T.A.S.—vs. Campbellford. St. Peter's T.A.S. II team journeyed to Campbellford yesterday and started the season well by defeating the team in that burg after a hotly-contested game by a score of 4—3.

Campbellford has, this season a husky twelve, who were much heavier than the locals, and who proved that they knew how to play the game. Pope who last year played on the T. A.S., held down point and played a star game, as did also Kerr, on the home.

At the end of the fist half the score stood 3—2 in favour of Campbellford, but in the last half the T.A.S. boys proved strong finishers and pulled the game out of the fire by adding two more goals to their column.

The game was a clean one in every particular and Referee Blute had no occasion during the game to penalize a single player.

The T.A.S. boys and Manager Dennaird naturally feel jubilant over their first victory, and look forward to another good game with the Vics. of Port Hope on Victoria Day.

THE ATHLETIC LACROSSE CLUB.

The Athletic Lacrosse Club, last year's champions, are in the running again for another championship. This is the second year of this club, and it is a vigourous and promising two-year-old, full of vim and ambition. It doesn't aspire to any running up business, but to the real thing—the Junior C.L.A. championship for the district and the Province too. The Athletics have a membership of about 75, of which about 25 or 30 are active members and mighty active, too, when one sees the bunch out at practice. This permits of the selection of a strong play team, with several strong practice teams which allows frequent practices with the conditions of an actual game. The Athletics are in fine shape and will put up an athletic bid for the championship.

ATHLETIC'S PROMENADE CONCERT.

To prevent the club being handicapped by lack of funds, a grand promenade concert will be given in the Brock street rink on Friday evening, May 22nd, when a first-class programme will be presented. The 57th band will be present. There will be a fine selection of vocal renderings by the best local talent. The Y.M.C.A. gymnastic corps will give a fine exposition of organized athletics and a large feature will be a tug of war struggle between the T.V.O. team and the Quaker Oats pullers, who will strive to be drawers of water as water, is represented by the canal team. The struggle will be for a trophy and this trophy is not to be despised even if it ends in smoke—it is a box of cigars, which means more pulling for the winners. The rink will be suitably prepared for the occasion which promises to be one of enjoyment as it is worthy of liberal patronage for the sake of its object. Winning a championship means considerable travelling expenses and in default of a gate the Athletics will have to depend somewhat upon the liberality of the public, which should not be wanting, especially when splendid value is given in the way of entertainment for the 25 cents which admits to the Athletic Lacrosse Club Concert on Friday evening, May 22nd.

BASEBALL.

A very exciting baseball match was played this morning, the contesting teams being the Vamoh Girls and the Inverlea Boys. The result was in the favour of the girls, the score being 14 to 10. The editorial room of the Examiner was beseiged during the noon hour to-day by two very juvenile young ladies, who ordered the match to be recorded under penalties which they could not express.

Foresters' Funeral.

The funeral of the late D. J. Kerr, of Keene, will be held in the Methodist church, Keene, on Sunday, May 17th, at 3 o'clock p.m. All Foresters are requested to meet at the Foresters' Hall, Keene, at two o'clock, to proceed to take charge of the funeral. Members of other courts are cordially invited to attend.

Successful High Tea.

A very successful high tea and social evening was held last night in the Lady Lansdown Lodge, No. 22, the Daughters of England. The hall, on Hunter street, was well filled by the large number of persons present. Rev. W. L. Armitage, Rector of All Saint's church, presided, and after tea commenced the programme with a few very suitably adopted remarks. The tableau, "Britannia," deserves especial mention.

LAST EVENING'S BAND CONCERT

Patronized by an Audience of About 800 Persons.

No better encouragement could have been given the band than the 800 persons who were present at the Promenade Concert. There were over thirty members of that musical organization present, all of whom deserve the highest praise for the good music which they played. The programme provided was an excellent one in two parts, and was as follows:

March, "Viscount Nelson" ... ... Brete
Overture, "Zampa"... ... ...Herold
Mazurka, "Amorose" ... ... Boldeau
Selection, "Reminiscences of Ireland" Godfrey
Cake Walk, "Mississippi Bubble"..... Haines
Fantasia, "Voyage in a Troopship"..... Winterbottom
Waltz, "Over the Waves" ... ...Rosa
March, "Dunlap Commandery" .....Hall

The last selection in Part I., Godfrey's Reminiscences of Ireland, was excellently rendered, and received hearty applause.

Part II. opened with Haine's, "Mississippi Bubble," (a cake walk) which was rapturously encored. The next number, "A Voyage in a Troopship," by Winterbottom, was very well done, the storm being interpreted in an excellent manner. The other items were all excellent and received loud applause.

Mr. Gliddon conducted in his usual excellent manner. This very pleasing programme was brought to a close by the playing oft be National Anthem.

PREMIUMS WITH PURCHASES.

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Dear Sir,—As a resident of the town I read with pleasure, and, I might also add, satisfaction, the announcement of Gough Bros. that they had decided to drop the custom of premium-giving which some of our merchants have introduced into their business. I have always maintained along with many others this style of business was of an undesirable character and was decidedly unfair to those who made it a direct line of business to handle the articles usually given as premiums, such as furniture, pictures ,etc. The modern merchant is not in business for his health alone, and the habit of giving premiums is not by any means carried on through philanthropic motives for the purchaser certainly pays for the premium in the purchase he makes and the merchant is never at a loss, his extra sales compensate for a narrow margin of profit. In my opinion a spot cash system coupled with honest treatment and fair dealing, a liberal use of advertising space in the press does more to win and hold customers than the system of souvenir or premium-giving. I have before me, Mr. Editor, a trade journal in which it is announced that this practice has been abolished in all the English centres, and that the merchants in the leading cities and towns in the United States are fast following the example set example set in England and are doing away with the coupon and premium-giving practice. The agitation was first started in England by the publication of a strong resolution passed by a labour congress in Manchester. In my opinion, Mr. Editor, as a wage-earner and wage spender the action of Gough Bros. is a wise one, and it is to be hoped that others who have adopted the system of premium-giving will fall into line with this firm.

Yours, etc.,
"TOILER."

Peterborough, May 16th.

A WHIFF OF THE PAST FROM FAR-OFF HAWAII.

A Former Popular Resident Heard From in the Pacific.

A gentleman in town has received an invitation to a wedding in far-away Hawaii, which recalls a former well known and popular resident of Peterborough. It refers to the wedding at Hilo, of Evangeline, daughter of Mr. Charles Post, who will be very pleasantly remembered by our citizens who were adults here a little more than a score of years ago. By the way, the invitation card states that the happy pair will be "at home" at "Volcano House" on a mentioned date. A Canadian would need a good deal of acclimatization to be "at home" in the midst of volcanic alarms.

Mr. Post, or "Charley" Post as he was known to his friends, was a resident of Peterborough for ten or twelve years from 1870. He was accountant in the Ontario Bank, and was very popular in town on account of his genial temper and many attractive qualities. He was a sport, in the good sense of the term—gunning, fishing, etc. He was quite a vocalist, and for a time a member of St. John's church choir. He was the pioneer summer resident at Chemong—not in the Park—but he leased a house in the village and drove in and out morning and night. From here he went to the Northwest, then to California, and now it seems he has turned up in the middle of the Pacific Ocean.

BABY'S HEALTH.

Mothers all over the Dominion will be spared many an anxious hour if they will keep always at hand a box of Baby's Own Tablets and give them to their little ones as occasion may require. These Tablets have saved thousands of little babies lives and grateful mothers everywhere acknowledge the good they have done their little ones. Mrs. E. J. McParland, Wylie, Ont., writes, "I cannot praise Baby's Own Tablets enough. When I got them my baby girl was very bad with whooping cough and cutting her teeth besides. With both these troubles at the same time she was in a bad way and slept but little either day nor night. After the second dose of the Tablets I found there was already a change for the better. She slept well through the day and nearly all night and this was a great relief to me as I was nearly worn out losing so much rest at night. She cried almost incessantly before I began giving her the Tablets, but in a short time the cough ceased, she cut six teeth, grew cheerful and began to gain wonderfully. In fact I believe I owe her life to Baby's Own Tablets, as I do not think she would have pulled through had it not been for them. I can recommend the Tablets to any mother, who has a cross fretful, sickly child.

These Tablets will cure all the minor ailments of little ones; they are guaranteed to contain no opiate, and can be given with advantage to the youngest and most delicate child. Sold by all druggists or sent by mail at 25 cents a box by writing to the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, of Brockville, Ont.

WORKING MEN!

1. 45 dozen workingmen's strong shirts, in flannelette, heavy cotton, striped and checked, black sateen, etc., to be sold at the very low price of 20 cents each.

2. Workingmen's pure all wool working pants, extra strong, to be sold at 90 cents each.

3. Splendid remnants in tweed, worsted and serge cloths; in lengths of from one to 3 1-2 yards. Just the thing for men's or boys' pants, or boys' suits, etc.

Rush sale now going on. H. LeBrun & Co.

The Garrett Baseball will be used extensively this season. Price $1.00 each at Salisbury's.

GENERALLY SPEAKING

AND NOW we have a crusade against vertical writing being taught in the schools. A few years ago this system was lauded as the ne plus ultra of caligraphy; at the recent convention of the Ontario Teachers' Association, it was denounced with vigour, and no defender raised his voice. Was it a fad—one of the fads that extremists push to absurd lengths? The disfavour into which the stiff formality of vertical writing has fallen, suggests the idea that innovation is not always improvement. If our individuality is expressed in our manner, our style of speech, and our deportment, why not in our writing? Unless vertical writing comes naturally to a man, one cannot argue that the man who employs vertical writing is an upright man. Take a class of school children, and teach the principles of penmanship in the same manner; when they come to apply these principles independently of the teacher all the pupils will relapse into their individuality, and express it in their writing. As a rule, a clear, legible writing is born, not made. We may deplore the unreadable and cramped character of the penmanship of educated men. That does not result from bad system, or ineffective teaching. A writer's hand is modified by numerous influences. The natural character of the writer will find expression, and necessity of speed necessarily produces sloppiness and illegibility. Given time enough, nearly every man writes plainly. This may account for the observation that nearly all Englishmen in clerical life write neat, plain hands. The English are deliberate and painstaking by nature, acting largely on the principle that what is worth doing, is worth doing well. This is the basic idea of teaching children writing, or in fact anything else.

• • •

SPEAKING OF FADS, there are other fads than educational—fads that come and go, that have their day. Whether it can be strictly called a fad, the practice of giving premiums and bonuses by business houses, so popular for some time past, has begun to grow into disfavour. It was an outcome of keen competition, and some business houses that have tried the experiment have learned that it has its undesirable features, and some are discontinuing it, as will be seen by the announcement made by Gough Bros. yesterday. No one questions the legitimate character of the practice; from an abstract point of view its desirability is a proper subject of discussion, but every business house will of course decide for itself. If the practice is profitable, it is desirable, otherwise obviously not. There are fashions in trade, and the premium, or bonus-giving fashion, seems to be going out. There is only one fashion that never changes, and that is a woman's perennial fondness for a "bargain," and a bargain, with a prize thrown in, is an irresistible appeal.

• • •

ANOTHER FAD—using fad as a synonym of fashion pushed to extremes—which has declined sensibly, especially for pleasure purposes, is wheeling. Not long ago the bicycle was "all the rage," and it was extensively used for pleasure purposes. Now, in Peterborough, at any rate, it is chiefly used for business purposes—for going between house and shop or office. This summer in Peterborough the organization of of the Trent Valley Canoe Club, has given wheeling a decided black eye as a pastime. There is a great revival of canoeing, and, every evening the lake and river are almost alive with canoes and their happy occupants. Tournaments are talked of and the present summer promises to repeat the good old days when Peterborough was so conspicuous in this sport. Peterborough is the natural home of canoeing; here the "Peterborough Canoe," now known and used in the waters of every quarter of the globe, had its origin. Here we have the best canoe factories in the country, and it is only consistent that canoeing in Peterborough should be a prominent summer pastime.

• • •

A WORD OF WARNING is timely. While canoeing is a glorious sport, it is one to be taken seriously. The accidents from canoeing are always very sad, but as a rule they are not a necessary incident of the pastime. They are, generally speaking, due to carelessness or inexperience. It would be wise for a new canoeist to go out with an expert a few times; if he wants to learn he will get "pointers" that will enable him to avoid the practices that make canoeing dangerous. As for the careless canoeist, "the fool who rocks the boat—the 'sharp aleck,'" there is no hope for him except a new equipment of brains, or the drowning he often brings on himself which would often be less of a calamity if innocent persons were not so often the victims of his tom-foolery or foolhardiness, and the fool who rocks the boat generally selects the presence of ladies to 'show-off" which he often does with fatal results. Canoeing is as safe as cycling if the same care to keep balance is exercised.

• • •

ANOTHER WORD OF WARNING. The canoe slide at the locks is intended as a convenience, but it is dangerous, especially when approached from below. A canoeist coming up the river needs to be an expert to negotiate the slide from below. The nose of his canoe is apt to be caught with the rush of a strong current and overset, unless the greatest skill and care are employed. The man to try this slide from below should in addition to being an expert paddler, be able to swim like a goose, and the goose who cannot swim is liable to die a goose by drowning if he attempts a feat which only an expert canoeist should try. At any rate a canoeist with ladies under his escort should avoid the slide; he had better make a portage than risk a funeral. Or if he wishes to personally negotiate the slide, let him land the ladies, who could walk round the locks and meet the m above or below the slide as the case might be.

• • •

WHILE CANOEING, with reasonable care, such as would be given to driving a wheel or a horse, is a safe pastime, yet the possibility of accident, should teach all who go in canoes or boats or in fact in any conveyance on water, to learn to swim. A knowledge of swimming, in case of of accident not only gives a better hope of reaching shore or a safe support, but it gives a confidence which tends to retain presence of mind, which often brings people out of dangerous situations, in which lack of presence of mind often means loss of life not only of self but of others who would be saved by a little coolness and timely assistance.

• • •

ON OUR SECOND PAGE will be found an interesting article upon "Civic Improvement," which should be read by every citizen possessing a home. Now is the time of year for improvement to this end to be made and by general co-operation we can have one of the most beautiful and attractive towns in Canada. By the way, the old dilapidated band stand in Victoria Park is — while a ruin—is too much of a wreck to be picturesque. Besides with its broken steps and dilapidated flooring it is dangerous to children playing in the park. The town originally built this platform, but did not put seats for the bandsmen, which were supplied by the kindness of a former President of the Horticultural Society at his own expense. Now the town might take steps to remove this eyesore, or if that is not thought desirable, to see that it is made less dangerous.

• • •

BY THE WAY, the Brown Memorial fountain, in the Central Park, is a broken cistern, which holds no water — as dry as Pharoah's dusty eyeball sockets. Why is not this beautiful fountain, on a busy thoroughfare, not put into commission? The town owns the water now, and no consideration of expense stands in the way.

• • •

BY THE WAY, again. A citizen has requested the Examiner to inquire why the drinking fountain in front of the town buildings, on Water street, is not prepared for summer use?

THE BAND CONCERT, with its large and appreciative attendance, was a decided compliment to the band, especially when one considers the almost irresistible attractions of out of doors these beautiful spring evenings. The band is a splendid organization, and deserves all the appreciation it receives. It furnishes first class music and does not stint the measure. All its music is marked "ad lib.," for the point of delighting the public.

• • •

THE PROMENADE concert, for the benefit of the Athletic Lacrosse Club, particulars of which appear in our sporting columns, is an opportunity for the public to assist in bringing another championship pennant to Peterborough. The boys are in the junior C.L.A. League, and will have to do considerable travelling to meet, and defeat, their antagonists in other towns, and travelling costs money. The Nicholls Oval offords no facilities for collecting a "gate," and an appeal is made, through a delightful promenade concert, to the generosity of the patriotic and sport-loving public.

FORMER PETERBOROUGH MAN NEW LISKEARD'S MAYOR.

Mr. John Armstrong First Mayor of Temiscamingue's Capital.

Mr. John Armstrong, the first Mayor of New Liskeard, came to Canada in 1868 from the County of Fermanagh, Ireland, resided at Peterborough, Ont., for about three years, and then took up a farm in the Township of Chaffey, District of Muskoka, where he cleared a holding of 160 acres. He was elected the First Reeve in the township and continued to hold that position until he was appointed Crown Lands Agent in 1893 for the Nipissing District, when he moved and built the first house in what is now known as the Town of New Liskeard. It was a condition in Mr. Armstrong's appointment that he take up land and become an actual settler, and since then he has cleared 150 acres of land, the greater part of which now constitutes the Town of New Liskeard.

In 1901 the Township of Dymond, in which this town is situated, was incorporated. Mr. Armstrong was chosen by a large majority as its first Reeve, which position he occupied until 1903, only a few months previous to the incorporation of the town, when he was elected first Mayor.

The Spring Medicine Physicians Select

Because of Its Extraordinary Power to Enrich the Blood, to Revitalize the Nerves and to Build Up the System.

If a committee of the most skillful physicians were to meet to formulate a tonic and restorative especially suited to the needs of the human system in the spring they could not do better than to use the formula for Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. As a matter of fact this is practically what was done when this great food cure was originated, for Dr. Chase not only followed the suggestions of his own experience, but made a diligent study of all the great formulas known to the medical profession.

MR. WHITE.

When the ills of spring discomfort and discourage you, and you drag yourself about with aching head, irritable, nervous and despondent, you can resort to the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with positive assurance that it is composed of practically the same ingredients which the most learned and skillful physician in the land would prescribe for you.

Mr. Matthew White, a retired farmer, living at 61 Elgin Street, St. Thomas, Ont., states: —"For some years I have suffered more or less from indigestion and nervous dyspepsia, and as a result I have been subject to dizzy spells and discomfort after eating. I got a box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and found that it improved my digestion, steadied my nerves, and made me rest and sleep very much better. I can truthfully recommend the Nerve Food to anyone who suffers from the above ailments."

Mrs. G. M. Brown, Cobourg, Ont., states: —"I was completely run down in health last spring and could not do one day's work without being laid up for about two days afterward. I felt weak, languid and miserable most of the time and was often blue and discouraged because of my continued ill-health. When in this state I was advised to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and did so with most satisfactory results. It built up my system wonderfully, strengthened and fostered my nerves and took away all feeling of languor and fatigue. I cannot say anything too good about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and hope that others may profit by my experience."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

So popular has this great medicine become that it seems as though nearly everybody was using it this spring. Ask your neighbors about it, ask your druggist, ask your doctor, and when you begin to use it do not forget to note your increase in weight from week to week.

50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50; at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.
To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box of his remedies.

We will forfeit $500.00 if these testimonials are not genuine.

MR. CARNEGIE'S DESIRE.

An Anglo-Saxon Union to Rule the World in Peace.

Sydney, N. S., May 16.—Mayor Richardson received the following cablegram from Andrew Carnegie yesterday morning:

"London, May 15.—Mayor Sydney: I am very sorry that a few detached words should have given offence. The word 'Mirage' was used in replying to the question as to whether Sydney's operations menaced the United States lead in steel production. I had no reference in my remarks to your patriotic efforts to develop your resources, in which I wish you abundant success. My wish is to restore union of North America and Great Britain instead of making two separate divisions. We would then rule the world in peace. If you come to Skibo Castle I could convert you sure. Meanwhile pray accept my expressions of deep regret at anything offensive that may have arisen.

(Signed) "Carnegie."

The Mayor sent the following reply: "Andrew Carnegie, Skibo Castle.—Your explanations are satisfactory. Canada is a young nation, but is impressing the world. Sydney's future is bright beyond peradventure. (Signed) A. W. Richardson."

The Life Giving Virtues of Paine's Celery Compound

Rescued a Lady Who was Drawing Near the Grave.

The Life Building Medicine That Wives and Mothers Need in May.

Paine's Celery Compound does a wondrous work for sick and half dead women in May. The conditions of winter have been detrimental to the health of women and girls everywhere; they have declined in nervous vigour, the blood is reeking with impurities, the excretory organs do not perform their work, and the digestive machinery is sadly out of gear. The human machine must be cleansed, repaired and strengthened in May. Paine's Celery Compound does the work surprisingly fast, and gives a guarantee of permanent health and long life. It is the one spring medicine that truly nourishes, regulates and invigorates the entire nervous system from the brain t othe minutest nerve filament. It gives a full, rich supply of energizing blood, it clears the muddy, unhealthy skin, it gives an increase in weight, and more refreshing sleep. Whatever be your condition unhappy sufferer, we give you a blessed assurance of a new and lasting health through the use of Paine's Celery Compound. Mrs. Flora S. Brantley, Levis, P. Q., writes thus:—

"Eighteen months ago I was terribly afflicted with daily headaches and was despondent, nervous and weak. Medical assistance and patent medicines failed to bring me relief. My sufferings increased, and I was told I would not get better again. I was suffering so much that I was satisfied to die if it was God's will. A neighbour kindly suggested the use of Paine's Celery Compound, and to please her, I consented to try it. The first few doses seemed to send a feeling of new life into my blood, and I went on using the compound. I have taken five bottles and can honestly say I am fully cured. I am sleeping well, appetite in good condition, getting back lost flesh, and feel as active as a girl of fifteen. I think my cure is a permanent one. I thank God for Paine's Celery Compound; it saved my life to my husband and children."

Two Lives Lost in a Fire.

Chicago, May 16.—Two lives were lost in a fire that destroyed the Westchester Apartment Building at 5,017 Cottage Grove avenue early yesterday. One other man is missing.

Shot Child For Chicken.

Scranton, Pa., May 14.— While shooting at chickens, W. H. Bushnell shot and killed four-year-old Andrew Boven, son of an Erie Company minor. Bushnell gave himself up.

Buffalo Fireman Is Killed.

Buffalo, May 14.—In a fire yesterday, Lieut. W. Clark was struck on the head by a piece of hose and knocked senseless. He died in hospital.

ACT OF PROTECTION.

Mr. Gibson's Bill to Keep Children from Crime.

NO JAIL BEFORE THEIR TRIAL.

Attorney-General's Bill Read a Second Time—Questions Answered by Ministers—No Fruit Experimental Farm For Lincoln County—No Dominion Subsidy Yet Given For Temiskaming Railway.

Toronto, May 16.—The Legislature held a short session yesterday and advanced a number of bills a stage.

Protecting Dependent Children.

Col. Gibson moved the second reading of his bill to amend the children's protection act. It provides for the appointment of a Children's Committee of six persons in each electoral district to co-operate with the Superintendent of Neglected Children and the Children's Aid Societies, to assist in placing and visitation of neglected and dependent children, the committee to be appointed by the County Judge, the Sheriff and the Warden. It also provides for the appointment of probation officers, to whose care will be referred children under sixteen years charged with offenses, and that no child under fourteen charged with an offense against the laws of the Province shall be committed to any jail or police station or lock-up pending trial.

The bill was read a second time.

Mr. Ross' bill providing that persons whose factory premises are exempt from ordinary taxation shall not be disqualified from being a municipal representative was read a second time.

A number of private bills were read a second time.

Third Readings.

The following bills were read a third time: To amend the Public Libraries Act (Harcourt); respecting the Necropolis Burying Ground, South Dorchester (Brown); respecting St. James' Cathedral, Toronto (Pyne).

In committee, the House agreed to several bills, with some amendments.

Questions by Members.

Replying to Dr. Nesbitt, Hon. Mr. Latchford said that J. A. McMaster was appointed overseer on Markstay and Warren road in May, 1902. The sum of $180 was sent to him on May 20, with a bond for execution. About one and a quarter miles of road were improved.

Replying to Dr. Jessop, Hon. Mr. Dryden said there was at present one experimental fruit station in the County of Lincoln, and one in Wentworth. It was, therefore, not the intention of the Government to establish an experimental fruit farm in Lincoln County.

Receipts of Algoma Registrar.

To Mr. Matheson, the Attorney-General said the receipts of the registrar of the District of Algoma at Sault Ste. Marie for the years 1900, 1901 and 1902 were as follows: $3,094.78, $2,043.24, $2,618.53. The registrar also receives a grant of $800, but the Government was considering the advisability of withdrawing the grant if the fees keep up to the figures of the last few years.

In reply to Dr. Barr, Mr. Stratton said the cost to the province of the smallpox epidemic of 1902 was $5,664.78.

No Dominion Subsidy.

Mr. Latchford informed Dr. Nesbitt that no subsidy had been granted by the Dominion Government to the Temiskaming Railway. There had been no correspondence betwee the Governments, but there had been personal interviews on the subject.

To Mr. Taylor, Mr. Dryden said John Darrach was still Clerk of Municipal Statistics.

VICTORIA RAILWAY TROUBLE OVER.

Drastic Bill Before the Legislature Made Strikers Knuckle Under.

Melbourne, Victoria, May 16.—Premier Irvine announced in the Legislative Assembly yesterday that he had received a letter from the officials of the Engine Drivers' Association, declaring the strike off and submitting unconditionally. The president of the Engine Drivers' Association in an interview, said the surrender was due to the drastic nature of the strike bill, which was sure of adoption.

Car Lines Tied Up.

Bridgeport, Conn., May 16.— The conductors and motormen employed by the Connecticut Railway and Lighting Company here went on strike yesterday, tying up all the lines in the city. At a meeting early yesterday the Trolleymen's Union refused to accept a proposition of the company, granting a slight increase in wages. The company refused to recognize the union. About 225 men are out.

1,000 Added to Denver Strikers.

Denver, Col., May 16.—The Joint Executive Committee of organized labor called out 1,000 additional union men yesterday, increasing the total number of strikers in this city to more than 4,000.

Go Back to the Factory.

Chicago, May 16.—Six thousand employes of the Deering Harvester Company, after a strike of three weeks, returned to work yesterday.

How to Ward off a Bilious Attack.

Bilious attacks may be prevented by taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets as soon as you feel the first symptom of the attack, which is usually a lack of relish for food, and headache. These Tablets quickly restore the stomach and liver to a healthy condition. Price 25 cents; at all druggists. c

Everyone Praying For Rain.

Kingston, May 16.—As a result of the forest fires in North Frontenac, the Catholic Church on the Snow Road, and adjacent to Ompah, was burned. Tales of narrow escapes with life and property come in from all sections of the country, and everybody is praying for rain.

Senator Busche Squeals.

Slater Shoe Advertising

Wearer's Satisfaction

—Because the "Slater Shoe" is widely advertised;

'because a hundred thousand dollars has been spent in making it known,

'the makers could not afford to risk the entire loss of this expensive reputation by turning out shoes which do not in every particular back up the makers' advertised claims.

So that the wearer secures through "Slater Shoe" advertising assurance that the shoe is not skimped in the hidden parts, that wear-worthy materials are used throughout, that the shoe must give entire satisfaction,

'because an advertised shoe which does not satisfy, is subject to ten times as much criticism as a shoe which merely wears but does not make distinctive claims of superiority, such as those made for the "Slater Shoe."

And this large advertising expenditure, besides forcing the makers to maintain the quality of the "Slater Shoe," reduces selling cost, increases factory out-put—permits specializing, with all that means in economy of making.

The Slater Shoe

Made in Canada 40 years. Goodyear welted. $3.50 and $5.00—for men and women.

CHAPTER XX.

It was half-past seven o'clock, on the tenth of June, when Sir Karl Allanmore left his home on business which he had explained to no one, and from that hour he was not seen again—there was no sign, no trace of him. He vanished completely, as though he had disappeared from the face of the earth.

He had said that he would be back by half-past nine at the very latest, and Lady Allanmore wondered how she should spend the time. It was the first evening she had been alone since her marriage; Sir Karl had never left her before, and she could not help wondering what this most mysterious business was; it was evidently something that engrossed his thoughts. But she would not trouble about it: he would explain when he came home. She took up a book; it was one of her favorites. But on that evening it had lost its charm. She could not read; she turned over page after page without even scanning their contents. She would go to the piano, she thought, and play away dull care. How strange it was that the first piece of music she opened was the song she had sung to Sir Karl, when in her own mind she had bidden him farewell for ever. How well she remembered having sung that to him—the pain in her own heart, the despair and reproach she had read in his eyes! All the anguish of those days came back to her.

"He is mine now," she said to herself, "and there will be no more parting."

She longed for his presence that she might feel the clasp of his arm around her, his kisses warm on her face; but he would soon be back. It was striking nine, and he had said he would return by half past. She put away the little song that was so closely associated with him, and played all the airs she could remember. She was startled when, mingling with the notes of the piano, she heard the clock strike ten.

He must have returned, she thought, and, owing to the music, she had not heard him. She rang the bell quickly and asked if Sir Karl had come in. Frodsham, the butler, said "No." Most of the servants had gone to rest; but he was sitting up for Sir Karl. He was dismissed with a graceful smile—nothing pleased Lady Allanmore so much as attention to her husband.

"I will never sit up at night alone again," she thought.

After a few minutes, her nervous fears increased so greatly that there was nothing left for her to do but go down to the old butler in the hall. He looked up in surprise at the beautiful vision of silk, velvet and pearls covered with white lace.

"My lady!" he cried, jumping up from the chair. "I am afraid I was asleep! Did you want me?"

"I am uneasy about your master," she said. "He was to have been back at half-past nine, and now it is past eleven."

The anxious face aroused the faithful servant. He went to the hall door and opened it, letting in a flood of moonlight.

"There is no cause for fear, my lady," he replied— "not the least. See how light the night is—it is as bright as day."

She looked down the broad steps; the moonlight lay on flowers and trees, on the grass and the statues. What could there be to fear on such a night? Nothing. There could be no accident, she reflected, such as was occasioned at times by losing one's way in the dark.

"May I ask, my lady, where Sir Karl has gone?" inquired the butler. "He very often tells me himself; but to-night he did not say a word of his intentions—indeed, my lady, I thought that he did not seem quite well."

"He was not well," she replied quickly; "it is that which has made me uneasy."

"I am sure, my lady, that there is no need for anxiety. Did you say where my master had gone?"

There was a look of distress and childlike bewilderment on her face.

"I do not know, Frodsham. He did not tell me." Even as she spoke, a cold thrill of terror passed over her, and a dreadful foreboding of sorrow made her tremble.

"I am quite sure, my lady, that you need not be anxious. No accident could have happened on a bright night like this. You see for yourself that it is almost as light as day."

"Yes, I see," she answered.

What she would have liked would have been to go out herself in search of Sir Karl.

"I should not like to leave you alone, my lady," said the butler, "but if you will permit me to call the housekeeper to remain with you, I will go to the lodge-gates. It would be better to call Mrs. Pickering than your ladyship's maid."

It occurred to him that, if there had been any little contretemps, it would be far better to have the staid old housekeeper present than the young maid.

The first thing that Mrs. Pickering did when she saw her mistress' white face was to get her some wine. The two stood together in the cold moonlit hall while the old butler went to the lodge-gates. Once Lady Allanmore gave a start, for they thought they heard the sound of voices; but when she went to the door she could see no one. It was some time before Frodsham returned, and then he brought no news. The woman at the lodge had seen nothing of the master. She told him that the outer gates were unlocked, and he had passed through: he had looked down the road, but there was no sign of Sir Karl.

Lady Allanmore wrung her white jeweled hands.

"Oh, Frodsham, I am afraid something has happened to him!" she cried.

But still the old man scouted the idea of danger. Sir Karl would come walking up presently, and would laugh at them for their pains.

"Take my advice, my lady," he said, "and do not get anxious. Sir Karl knows every step of the ground about here—he could not lose himself if he tried. He went on business, you say, my lady? Then he has been detained."

"But, Frodsham," cried his mistress, with tears in her eyes, "he would be so anxious. He would know my alarm. After promising to return at half-past nine, he would never have stayed out until eleven."

All the nervous forebodings of the last few weeks returned to her, and she trembled like a leaf.

"I will walk just a little way into the park myself," she said.

"But not alone, my lady. I will follow you."

The picturesque mansion, with its long terraces and magnificent gardens, lay bathed in silvery light. In the ivy near one of the towers an owl had made its home; and its hooting was the one sound that broke the silence of the night. The deep shadows cast by the trees and the melancholy cry of the owl made Lady Allanmore feel strangely depressed. She dared not walk far; innumerable shadows seemed to fall over her. Once she raised her soft voice and cried. "Karl," but no answer came.

"Sir Karl is nowhere in the park, my lady," said the old servant at last. "It will be better for you to come back to the Hall; and, if you still feel anxious, I will call some of the men, and they can go in different directions to look for him."

She grasped at the suggestion; and the butler gave a great sigh of relief when he left her to the care of Mrs. Pickering.

"Persuade her to lie down," he said in a low voice. "She will wear herself out; he may not be home for hours yet. I know what masters are! If every lady made as much fuss if her husband was not home by eleven, I do not know what servants would do."

Dolores followed the housekeeper's advice. She lay down and tried to compose herself, tried to believe that there was nothing wrong; but she sprung up with a sudden cry of alarm, when she heard the clock strike one.

"Call Frodsham!" she cried. "He must send all the servants out. Oh, how can they sleep when their master is perhaps in danger? We must not delay any longer."

A horrible feeling came over her that she would never see him again. If he had entered at that moment she would have almost died of joy.

"My lady," said the housekeeper, "if you would but let me speak! We servants see so much more than you ladies do. No harm can have come to Sir Karl. If you send the servants to look for him, he will not be pleased. People might talk and laugh about it, and he would not like it. If it should get known that, because Sir Karl was out until one o'clock, you sent servants to scour the country-side for him, it would not look well; and he would be angry. Gentlemen don't like everything exposed to the world in that fashion. Think of it, my lady, before the servants are called."

"Of course he will, my lady; and by this time to-morrow you will have had many a hearty laugh over this. There are so many things that could have detained him. Perhaps he has called in somewhere, found a gentlemen's dinner-party, and has not been able to get away. Do cheer up, my lady; there is nothing to fear!"

Lady Allanmore lay quite still listening to the stream of comforting words, until the clock struck four; then, with a white, dazed face, she looked at the housekeeper and cried in a voice the woman never forgot: "It is four o'clock. I tell you that he will never come home again! I feel it. You yourself—are you not anxious now?"

Frodsham was called in again. Then it was decided that the men-servants should be roused from their slumbers and sent out in different directions. The housekeeper had just remembered an anecdote of some gentleman, who, walking home quickly at night, had fallen and broken his ankle, and who lay on the high-road until his servants found him in the morning. Something of that kind might have happened to Sir Karl.

The idea was enough. The servants were called and came in, looking sleepy and wondering what was the matter. Sir Karl, they were told, had gone out at half-past seven the previous evening, intending to return at half-past nine, but nothing had been heard of him since. The men were all there, including James Ashford, the groom who had driven the Squire home. Dolores, whose wits were sharpened by suspense, felt sure she saw an expression of surprise pass over this man's face.

"James," she cried—"James Ashford, do you know where Sir Karl went?"

The groom's face flushed hotly as he answered—

"No, my lady," but to himself he muttered, "I shall have to tell."

No precise directions could be given to the men. Some went one way and some another. The rumor spread quickly in the house that something was amiss, and one by one the women-servants came down. Dolores, persuaded by her maid, went up to her own room and lay down.

"It will be all right now," the woman told her. "The men will be sure to come back with good news."

Notwithstanding her distress, she fell asleep; and that one hour's sleep made the awakening more terrible still. She dreamed that he came back, that she heard his hurried footsteps up the stairs, that the door opened and he entered, with the same bright, loving look on his handsome face. He went up to her, took her in his arms, and said, "My darling, have I frightened you? I am so sorry. I have been at White Cliffe. Your father was not well, and I stayed with him. My sweet Dolores, how pale you are, how you tremble! Let me kiss your fears away." Once more his strong, loving arms enfolded her, and he kissed her as though he would never in his life part from her again. He whispered sweetest and most loving words to her: she was his love, his darling. With her arms twined round him, she told him all her fears. He laughed at them. She heard the sound of his laugh so distinctly. "My darling Dolores," he said, "rest assured that while I am on earth, nothing will ever keep me from you."

But, alas, it was only a dream! The face bending over hers faded, the figure clasped in her arms was no longer there. She awoke. There was a cold, grey light in the room; and she was alone. No after-hours —not even when the truth was made known to her—were so terrible at this hour.

"Oh, Karl, Karl, where are you?" she cried; but there was no answer.

A SPECIAL OFFER

HOW TO GET A

Berliner Gram-o-phone

ON EASY MONTHLY PAYMENTS.

$1

"Love's Old Sweet Song."

$1

For One Dollar Cash and Two Dollars per Month

—less than Seven Cents a day—think of it—the most wonderful talking machine of the age is yours in eight months. This offer is open to every Canadian.

The Gram-o-phone is an entertainer and an amusement producer. It sings, talks and plays all instruments, such as the Piano, Violin, Flute, Cornet, Banjo, Mandolin, and reproduces perfectly a full Brass Band, an Orchestra, a Church Choir. It repeats a prayer or it will tell you a funny story, in fact it will do everything to amuse a household.

The Gram-o-phone is better than a Piano or Organ, for it requires no instruction or previous knowledge of music to operate it. A child of four years can do it as well as a grown person.

It is loud enough to fill the largest hall or meeting house, or it can be subdued to suit the smallest room.

Thousands of Berliner Gram-o-phones have been sold throughout the Domiinon, and only words of praise are heard from the purchasers. We publish below a few testimonials from disinterested people of the highest standing, whose opinion should be of value.

Gram-o-phone Records are HARD FLAT MAROON DISCS, and are not to be compared with the wax records (with the nasal rwang) which are so easily broken.

A Gram-o-phone Record will last for years. We have nearly two thousand different records in stock to select from. Write for full catalogue and illustrated price list.

Cabinet: Quartered oak; highly finished.
Motor: Standard—will play 7 or 10-inch records.
Turn-table: 7-inch, for 7-inch records, can be used for 10-inch records.
Sound box: New automatic.
Needles: 200 free.
Records: Three 7-inch records free.
Weight: Boxed, 25 lbs.

Rev. A. T. Burke, St. Joseph's College, St. Joseph's, N. B., says: "The Gramophone was received a few days ago, and is all right; the volume of sound produced by the instrument is a surprise to all who hear it, and I feel quite sure that you will receive orders for your machine from parties living in this part of the country."

Rev. B. Kiernan, P.P., Quyon, Que., says: "Your records are away ahead of those I used to get from the States. Please send me new catalogues as issued. Wishing you every success in Montreal."

Rev. D. Matte, Hospice St. Joseph, Levis, Que., says: "I bought a Gramophone from you a few months ago, and I would say it has all the good qualities you attribute to it. It is very loud and we can hear it from a great distance. It has been greatly admired by all who have heard it. It has given me entire satisfaction."

Rev. J. A. Hanlan, St. Augustine, P. Q. writes: "I received your Gramophone all right, and I am delighted and pleased with the instrument, as the tone is clear and distinct, and I take pleasure in enclosing my cheque for the amount."

Rev. J. Vaillancourt, College de Levis, Levis, Que., says: "I beg to thank you for the promptness with which you fill my orders, and for answering all my enquiries. I am pleased to state that my Gramophone is always giving me entire satisfaction. It is very difficult for one to purchase another machine which will produce a selection more distinctly. What I especially admire in the Gramophone is the fidelity with which it reproduces all musical instruments, even the human voice. It really makes me spend many an agreeable hour."

Rev. J. P. Kiernan, P. P., Montreal, says: "The Concert Gramophone has been delighting us all since its advent, I am pleased to say. One reverend friend distinctly says that he has heard no better reproductions from any instrument of its kind, and I may add that he is a competent judge. I consider the repeating mechanism a "God-send to city and country."

Rev. J. F. Biron, St. Omer, Bonaventure, Co., P. Q., writes: "The Gramophone helps to pass many agreeable moments."

Rev. F. L. French, Brudenell, Ont., says: "The Gramophone is excellent."

Rev. J. L. A. Sabrio', St. Vincent de P. Parish, Montreal, says: "I am perfectly satisfied with my Gramophone and records which I purchased from you some time ago. The Gramophone is more powerful and distinct than the other talking machines I heard. All the persons who have heard the Gramophone have admired the neatness and fidfidelity of the sound."

Rev. S. E. Wadel, St. Joseph's Hospital, Guelph, Ont., writes: "I am glad to say that the Gramophone I bought through your agent gives great satisfaction."

Rev. E. H. Basstre, Kutawa, Assa., writes: "The Gramophone arrived safely on Saturday last and gives satisfaction."

Rev. Father Conan, Indian Reserve, Enderby, B. C., writes: "We received the Gramophone in good order and it is giving complete satisfaction."

Rev. Maj. Marchand, Cantilly, P. Q., writes: "I am very well satisfied with the Gramophone I received from you."

THESE are only a few of the Testimonials we have received. There are hundreds more on our files, and all testify to the good qualities of the BERLINER GRAM-O-PHONE.

The weakness of Thursday was continued all day yesterday, further declines of about a point taking place in leading stocks. The market had one or two moderate rallies, but closed very near bottom prices in most of the active issues. Railroads the feature yesterday was a new low level for this movement in N.Y.C. I stated a few days ago that if it broke 129 1-2 it would go lower and again cautioned you yesterday saying that it would be dangerous if it broke 128 1-2. My advice on N.Y.C. is to sell it out on any rally that will carry it to 130 or 31. Do not sell it out below that price. St. Paul sold at 157 7-8 and really did not break its late low price 158 but I would not buy it even here as it is likely to go lower. If long sell it out on a rally to 160 or 161. U.P. and S.P. broke on the news of the serious sickness of Mr. Harriman. If long of these stocks hold for 90 1-2 and 56 where I would go out for the time. M.O.P. is not a purchase above 103 1-2 to 109, no matter how long it hesitates. Near bottom has been reached in Atch., Erie and Readings; they can be taken on any slight weakness but only for a few points. My lower price for other stocks are B.O. 89 to 90; Wab. prf. 46 1-2 to 47; C.O. 41 1-2 to 42; Ca. 129 to 130; R.I. 40 1-2 to 41. Do not buy N.Y.C. and Penna. at present.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Since 1863, with the exception of only one year Illinois Central has never paid less than five per cent. in dividends, and in some years the rate has been as high as 8 per cent. The rate was five per cent. for the 10 years preceding 1900, when it was advanced to 6 per cent. It is stated by certain outside interests that the management has now decided to increase the rate to 7 per cent. Of the ability of the company to pay such a rate there cannot be the slightest doubt. During the last five years Illinois Central has earned the following percentages on its capital stock: 1898, 8.5 per cent.; 1899, 8.5 per cent.; 1900, 9.5 per cent.; 1901, 10.5 per cent.; 1902, 12.4 per cent. From these figures it will be seen that the company is in a better position to pay 7 per cent. dividends now that it was to pay 5 per cent. dividends in 1898. In that year the company earned 3.5 per cent. on its capital stock, or 3.5 per cent. more than the 5 per cent. paid in dividends. Last year the company earned 12.4 per cent. or 5.4 per cent. more than a 7 per cent. dividend. It is claimed by interests identical with Illinois Central that the company is earning as much as St. Paul, and can afford to pay a 7 per cent. dividend as much as that company can.

New York Central and Pennsylvania are now selling at practically the same price. Judged strictly on their merits Pennsylvania ought to sell 15 points higher than New York Central. Pennsylvania pays annual dividends of 6 per cent., as against 5 per cent. by New York Central. The real earnings of Pennsylvania during 1902 were at the rate of 13.8 per cent. on its outstanding capital stock, while the actual earning Power of New York Central was not over 11 per cent. The Pennsylvania railroad has also a much better dividend record than New York Central, while its management is much more efficient and far-sighted. Even if the Pennsylvania was to receive no benefit whatever from the expenditure of the nearly $100,000,000 it will receive from the sale of its new stock the company would have no difficulty in maintaining its regular 6 per cent. dividends. But the company will derive the greatest benefit from the expenditure of this $100,000,000, both in the way of increased earnings and reduced operating expenses. The next change in the dividend rate on Pennsylvania will be an increase to 7 per cent. This increase may not be made in the near future, but it is safe to say that the Pennsylvania stockholders will receive an average of over 6 per cent. a year during the next ten years. At its present price Pennsylvania returns upon the investment nearly 4.6 per cent. It is a bargain at any such figure at 130.

The Isle of Man.

The Isle of Man, Hall Caine's island, was the subject of an interesting lecture recently at Trinity Methodist Church, Toronto, by Mr. J. R. Cowell, who for years was a member of the famous House of Keys, with which everyone who has read Hall Caine's books is familiar. The House of Keys consists of 24 elected members. The island itself could be dropped into one of our Canadian lakes, Mr. Cowell said, it being but 30 miles long and 9 wide. The climate of the island is superb, not being as hot as England in summer nor nearly so cold during the winter. Very often winters pass without any snow falling there, and ice seldom forms thicker than the thickness of a penny. The island is ruled by a Governor appointed by the British Government, several church officials, the House of Keys, and the Council. The House of Keys is of very ancient origin and dates back long before the British House of Commons.

"There is one thing in which we are ahead of you, even in Canada, in our conservative little island," said Mr. Cowell, "and that is, we have extended the franchise to the ladies. The ladies there vote for their members of Parliament. The island pays England £10,000 a year for protection, I presume, but I may say that if ever a foreign fleet got so far up the Irish Sea as that, it would be a bad thing indeed for Wales, or Ireland, or even England herself."

Speaking of home rule for Ireland, Mr. Cowell said that it was bound to come within a few years, as the natural course of events. The British House of Commons has such a vast amount of business to put through that it cannot attend to it all, and sometimes it takes years to get a private bill through. He believed that arrangements would be made shortly whereby Scotland and Wales would rule themselves, in a measure.

Out-of-Door Days.

These are the out-of-door days. The mind is in the fields even if the body is reluctant to leave the hearth. Man is just as much a thrall of the seasons as of circumstances. They bend him to their humor. To the witchery of their hypnotic suggestion, the touch of wind and rain, of sun and snow and twilight, he responds like an instrument. The lover of nature is he who is the perfect clairvoyant. He yields not like the boy with vague gladness, but understandingly and with awe. He turns to the woods as a man turns in at his own gate. The birds are truly his "little brothers of the air." The flowers, votaries like himself, have come forth to worship, dumbly answering a call, faint but clear as an astral bell. So the philosopher finds his joy, taking his worldly wisdom to the solitudes, "verifying his authorities," though not in the sense intended by the Oxford don, who died with the words on his lips.

These are the out-of-door days, but the young men would hardly accept the foregoing as a literal translation of their thoughts on the subject. Sport is a synonym for "the good old summer time" with thousands of Canadians. They eagerly look forward to the season, close at hand, when on the lacrosse field the ball shall be "faced" for the opening game, when the baseball umpire shall utter the terse command, "Play ball!" when the pistol shall start the sprinters and the scullers, or when the ear shall be deafened by the mighty shout, "They're off!"

Proportion Between the Sexes.

Statistics shows that the proportion between the sexes of the new born is 106.3 boys to 100 girls. Boys are therefore considerably in excess at birth, the male majority amounting to 63,000 in every million human beings. This seems to contradict the general observation to the effect that women are in the majority. This contradiction is, however, explained by the fact that the proportion at birth does not remain stationary, but is reversed in the later years of life. Until the age of ten there is still an excess of boys, but from the age of ten to twenty the proportion between the sexes slowly adjusts itself, and in the third decade of life the proportion becomes 100 males to 102.7 females. This excess of females grows continually, so that at the age of 70 the proportion becomes 100 males to 122.3 females.

HAMLETS OF ENGLAND.

The Unhistoried Folk in English Villages —Their Ways and Perquisites— Their Beer Capacity.

News from the great troublous world without takes a long while to reach our hamlet, or, at any rate, to impress itself upon our inhabitants. Hence the bulk of them know naught of the new Education Act and the county rate, and so forth. I doubt, indeed, whether it will affect us much.

All told, the inhabitants, including the folk at the little beer-house up the winding lane and the Scotchman and his family at the sixteenth century farm, number about a hundred. Of course we can count just under forty adults, of whom eight cannot write or read their own names.

The shepherd, for instance, cannot, though he is only thirty-six, and does not therefore belong to a dark age in education matters.

The hamlet, is, I should say, on the whole set in a fairly happy valley. There is nobody out of work with the exception of some calculations we have been making tend to show that the folk are not so ill-off. I believe that the weekly wage of the men, taking the year through, and making allowance for the perquisites and presents they get, is equal to about nineteen or twenty shillings.

They pay the farmer or the squire a shilling a week for their cottages, whereas the rent would be half-a-crown if their landlords were small and eager capitalists. The head dairyman gets sixteen shillings a week, with a quart of milk every day; the underdairyman get a shilling or so less, and also their quart of milk.

The shepherd has 16s., with 6d. for every lamb he tails—he has been very fortunate with his lambs this season, which, I hear, is not a universal experience. The carter has 15s., with "wagon money," i. e., so much for every wagon of farm produce that he takes to the nearest railway station, where it is despatched to the junction, and thence to the great city, of which he himself has only "heard toll."

Then there is the hiring money at Michaelmas, as much as £4, paid in a lump. At Christmas one of the farmers gave a couple of rabbits to every man who worked on the place; another always gave a joint of beef —the people look on a supper of beef and ham combined as the greatest treat possible, so far as eatables are concerned. Of course, we must not forget that there are certain considerable expenses.

There is beer. Some of the men say that they could drink four and a half gallons "of a hot day." That is exaggeration. But ten or twelve glasses of beer are not out of the way, and sixteen not by any means out of the question.

By about the tenth glass they often get talkative, so an expert in the trade tells me. After, say, the twelfth they are apt to be rude in language. So, now that the licensing laws are becoming very strict, the sixteenth glass of beer is not often to be reached, save by a man of proved capacity to drink it and not be drunk.—Correspondent of London Express.

Uncomfortable Reading.

The report of the chief constable of Edinburgh anent crimes and offences in the city is not comfortable reading. It goes to show that the punishment meted out to offenders does not reform them, the number of convictions is swollen by the same parties appearing again and again before the court. It thus appears that there is a class in our midst who have lost all moral control over themselves, and that it would not only be good for society, but for themselves, if they were deprived of their liberty for a sufficient time to reform them. The problem to be solved is how to do this without putting an intolerable burden upon the well-doing. They should not only be made to work for their living, but that that work should be under such conditions as not to be a temptation to the struggling poor to commit offences to qualify themselves for such constant employment, or to get rid of their national duty to their children. The saddest feature of all is the increase of juvenile crime in the highly educated City of Edinburgh—of the 10,903 persons convicted, there were 2,484 can be classed as juvenile offenders; besides these there were 2,066 arrested, and after being cautioned by the chief constable they were let off. When school boards were erected more than thirty years ago we were promised very different results—juvenile crime was to vanish and the school rate never was to exceed 2d in the pound. The code ordered for us from London does not seem to work well—how long will the people of Scotland put up with this?—The Scottish Nationalist.

Folding Staircase for Steamboats.

A staircase that can be folded up is the general title of a novelty for carriages and steamboats. It is composed of folding steps with handrails, of any desired length, which make ascent and descent easy. The device can be easily arranged to serve as a plank to walk from one place to another on the same elevation. It is the kind of thing that would be of great use in the event of fire, and it has the advantage of folding into a small compass.—Indianapolis News

FACE OF A CONDEMNED MAN.

'Tis Like a Dead Face on a Living Man and Is Gone.

Of criminal persons who have stood in the dock to hear sentence of death pronounced upon them in the form that obtains in this country, I can call to mind others besides Chapman. But the expression of their countenances in that very supreme moment has not dwelt lastingly in my recollection. White faces I can remember, but not whiter than I have seen other faces under the stress of quite different emotions — round the tables of Monte Carlo, say. Stolid faces, for the most part. When I have read, next morning, that "the prisoner was then removed, without manifesting any emotion," I have been inclined to think that the cliche about stated the case. Being tried for your life is an exhausting process, and when the end comes adversely, why, what looks like stolidity is just stunned acquiescence. The condemned man's first night, they tell you, is, almost invariably, a good one. It is when he wakes, recuperated, that the horror begins. With this last man, though, it was different. I did not see him till they were drawing toward an end. Quite calmly and dispassionately the rope, of which he could never have lost the feel, was being tightened round his neck. Outside, the day had darkened, and it was a grayish light that came through the window, on the free side of which he might have seen white flashes of the pigeons flying to and fro. His regard was not that way, however, nor anywhere but on the ground, when they took him down the steps, and when they brought him back; when the twelve had filed in, and the Judge was in his place again; when the foreman announced the verdict of them all, and the black cap was in position. There followed some quite usual and familiar words, the true inwardness of which you feel only when they are addressed to you. And then, the man in the dock lifted his face—so ghastly gray, in the gray light, so like a dead face on a living man, that it was there when he was gone, and I can see it here.—W. F. W., in London Pall Mall Gazette.

GENERAL STRIKE SOON.

Unionism Is Preparing to Branch Out in Australia Strike.

London, May 15.—In a despatch from Sydney, N. S. W., the correspondent of The Daily Mail reports secret meetings on the part of New South Wales trades unionists, notably the railroad and street car men. The official head of labor unionism in New South Wales, declared that all workmen would support the railroad men solidly, and that unless the Victorian Government surrendered the struggle would extend to the other States, the Victorian fight being only an outpost skirmish.

GAMEY TO GIVE UP.

Court Calls for the $1,200 Loan from Frank Sullivan.

NOTHING IN THE BANK BOOKS.

Cab Driver Mixes Up Stratton and Strathy—A Bad Memory—Commission May Meet Wednesday to Hear Rebuttal Evidence About This Drive—An Appeal to September's Weather Records.

Toronto, May 18.—During the sitting of the Gamey Bribery Commission Saturday morning the Chancellor said that he and his brother Falconbridge had consulted with one another as to Mr. Gamey's statement that he had borrowed $1,200 of the alleged bribery money from Mr. Frank Sullivan. Since it did not appear that the money had been returned, and since Mr. Sullivan denied the existence of such a fund, they thought it incumbent on Mr. Gamey to place the money in the hands of the court.

No reference was made to the matter by counsel on either side.

Nothing in Bank Books.

Geo. C. Bartlett, teller of the Ontario Bank, who has been in the witness-box on several occasions, was recalled by the prosecution Saturday morning to produce the results of the investigations into the bank's books. He submitted a statement of transactions in sums over $1,000, which was privately examined. Mr. Ritchie also asked some questions as to who had access to the treasury of the bank. Mr. Bartlett said that the general manager and himself had such access.

The Chancellor then recalled Mr. Gamey as to his memorandum book, which he had deposited with the court since his previous examination. It showed payments, but not receipts. The receipts were recorded by his bank book. It covered a period from October, 1900, to March 1, 1903.

"Then there is nothing to throw light on the enquiry!" said the Chancellor.

"Nothing, except with regard to the payment of $900 into the Crossin Company's account," said Mr. Gamey.

A Will o' the Wisp.

Mr. Henry T. Butler, a clerk in the Dominion Permanent Loan Company's office, was then called, and Mr. Ritchie asked him if during September last, or at any time there had been any enquiry as to the disappearance of a large package of money.

The witness denied knowledge of any such matter.

"What I am instructed is that while enquiry was being made, Mr. Stratton came in and said he had taken it out and neglected to put in a voucher. Does that recall anything to your mind?"

"No," said Mr. Butler.

Mr. V. Atkinson, paying teller for the Dominion Permanent Loan Company, could throw no light on the story either.

Mr. Wm. Northgrave, a clerk in the office of the Trusts and Guarantee Company, the office of which adjoins the loan company was also in entire ignorance of the matter.

Examined by Mr. Riddell, he said that Mr. Stratton was in the habit of signing blank cheques for use by the loan company in advance, and that because a cheque bore date of Sept. 11 it would not follow that it was signed that day.

The alibi of Sept. 11 was then reverted to once more.

Stratton Went Shopping.

Patrick Mahar, a livery stable keeper of Bloor street, was called. He testified that on Sept. 11 last a Victoria was ordered for Mr. Stratton for 9.30, and it was returned to the Parliament buildings at 11.30. On the same day a carriage was also ordered for Mr. Stratton, and it was used from 9.15 to 10.30 a.m.

Weston Green, who was a driver for Mahar in September last, and drove the rig that was out from 4.30 to 11.30, was called. Mr. Stratton was asked to stand up and Green identified him as a gentleman who had occupied the hack for two hours with two ladies. They visited several places, and he had a faint recollection, though he would not swear to it, that Mr. Stratton had returned to the Parliament buildings, arriving there about 11.20 a.m.

Memory Vague.

Cross-examined by Mr. Riddell, Green's memory of the morning proved vague. He remembered that they visited Bennett & Wright's and Rbbertson's Saw Works. He did not recall a visit to McConkey's, which, is recorded on Mahar's books.

Mr. Riddell said: "Mr. Green, let me tell you something. The persons who were driven on that day were three ladies. Do you swear that is not so?"

"Yes!"

Green could not fix the date as Sept. 11, except by what Mahar's books showed. He thought it was about a week after the Exhibition. Asked who he was driving last night, he said Mr. W. D. McPherson and Mr. Sam Price, but said that they had not told him what to say. He had been discharged by Mr. Mahar for being late, and now drove for G. W. Verrall.

Re-examined by Mr. McPherson, the witness testified that he had had no conversation with either him or Mr. Price until called into consultation with Mr. and Mrs. Mahar, to whose office he had driven the two lawyers. It was Mr. Mahar who first asked him if he had driven Mr. Stratton. He then told the story to the lawyers, substantially as he had told it in the witness box to-day.

Mixed Strathy and Stratton.

The witness showed himself to have mixed up Mr. Stratton with Mr. Strathy by mentioning the address 71 Queen's Park. He testified that he had been sent to the latter address once or twice, and had thought that it was Mr. Stratton's house. He didn't know Mr. Strathy to see him.

Hugh D. McCulloch, secretary of the Bennett & Wright Company, testified that last autumn and winter the firm was doing work under contract for Mr. Stratton at Peterboro'. He didn't recall whether the latter visited the warerooms in September last.

Mr. Hall, receiving teller of the Ontario Bank, was put in, and gave some technical evidence.

Thomas Horder, bookkeeper at the Walker House, was called, and produced the entries of Dr. Arthur of Sudbury. The latter swore that he talked to Gamey on two successive days at the Walker House in January. The books showed that he had registered an the morning of Jan. 13, and that Gamey left on the same evening.

Rebuttal Ended.

This ended the prosecution's reply, and Mr. Johnston called Charles Tweedie, a clerk in the Observatory, who produced the records to show that it was raining throughout the morning of September 9, when Robert Armstrong, of Gore Bay, swears that he was with Gamey at the Exhibition. Armstrong, in his testimony, was not asked as to the weather.

Cross-examined by Mr. McPherson, Tweedie said the charts showed that the heavy rain had been from 6.45 to 8.30, and from 12 to 1. From 8.30 to 12 it had been merely drizzling with the exception of a very brief shower about 10 o'clock.

Mr. Johnston also announced that he proposed to call some evidence in reply to the hackdriver Green' by bringing three ladies, two of whom were in Peterboro' and one in Winnipeg. To admit this evidence the court adjourned until Wednesday at 2 p.m., argument to begin at 10 a.m. Thursday.

CANADA ASKED TO AID.

In the Relief of the Jews Who Are Oppressed in Russia.

St. John, N. B., May 18.—The Jewish congregation here, with Mayor White as chairman, held a public meeting here yesterday afternoon to protest against the atrocities against Hebrews in Southern Russia, and to take relief measures. A resolution was passed, calling on the Government of Canada to represent to Great Britain that it use its good office with the Government of Russia to the end that protection be extended the Jewish inhabitants of that country, so that the horrors of Kishineff shall not be repeated. A copy of the resolution will be sent to the Prime Minister of Great Britain. Among the speakers were Senator Ellis and Hon. H. A. McKeown. The meeting subscribed $125.

Jews Must Be Defenceless.

St. Petersburg, May 18.—Lieut.-General Von Raaben, Governor of Bessarabia, the capital of which is Kischineff, has been summoned to St. Petersburg. A Ministerial circular forbidding the Jews to defend themselves has been issued. Three thousand suits for damages have been instituted against the state at Kischineff. The damages demanded amount to $2,500,000.

Palestine For the Jews.

London, May 18.—At a meeting of Jews, held in Shoreditch Saturday night, under the auspices of the English Zionist Federation, Israel Zangwill, the author, seconded a resolution declaring that the establishment of a home in Palestine was the only practical solution of the Jewish question. The resolution was carried.

Abandon Newfoundland Shore.

Paris, May 18.—The people of Brittany are excited over rumors that the Government is about to abandon the French Shore in Newfoundland to Great Britain in exchange for concessions in Gambia, Western Africa. The Breton fishermen will be ruined if the Newfoundland fisheries are closed.

EVA DINGLE'S DEATH.

Leland Dorr Kent Adjudged Guilty of Manslaughter at Rochester.

Rochester, N. Y., May 18.—Leland Dorr Kent was Saturday afternoon found guilty of manslaughter in the first degree, as charged in the indictment against him for the slaying of the beautiful young Canadian nurse.

The jury retired at 12.30 and at 4.10 o'clock filed into the courtroom and answered their names.

Asked for their verdict the foreman said "guilty." The young young medical student never stirred, and the hundreds of eyes fastened upon him could not discover a tremor of the eyelid or a flush pass over his pale face.

"Gentlemen, do you find the defendant guilty on all the counts of the indictment, or only on one count?" was the next question.

"On one count, the third count of the indictment," replied the foreman.

This count charges that Kent "assisted Ethel Blanche Dingle to commit suicide, and that for the purpose of carrying out her suicidal purposes, he, the defendant, inflicted the mortal wound, she consenting thereto."

After the jury was dismissed, Attorney Raines moved for a stay of proceedings pending application for a new trial. The argument will be heard to-day, after which Kent will be sentenced.

Six Years Hard Labor.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 18.—After listening to the appeal of counsel for former May or A. A. Ames for mercy, Judge Elliott Saturday sentenced the once-powerful political leader to spend six years at hard labor in the State Penitentiary for municipal corruption.

Bay Yields Up Its Dead.

Toronto, May 18.—The body of John Van Fleet was found floating on the Bay on Saturday afternoon, near the spot where he and his nephew were drowned about a month ago. An inquest at the Morgue has been ordered by Coroner Greig for to-night at 8 o'clock.

Raised Insurance Rates.

Ottawa, May 18.—The insurance agents of the city have been notified that the underwriters have raised the rates 50 cents per hundred dollars.

Rain in Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Man., May 18.—The weather throughout Manitoba was showery yesterday. The rain comes at a very opportune time, and will prove great good to the wheat fields.

Loss of $80,000 in Halifax.

GEORGE STREET,

GAMEY TO GIVE UP.

Court Calls for the $1,200 Loan from Frank Sullivan.

NOTHING IN THE BANK BOOKS.

Cab Driver Mixes Up Stratton and Strathy —A Bad Memory—Commission May Meet Wednesday to Hear Rebuttal Evidence About This Drive—An Appeal to September's Weather Records.

Toronto, May 18.—During the sitting of the Gamey Bribery Commission Saturday morning the Chancellor said that he and his brother Falconbridge had consulted with one another as to Mr. Gamey's statement that he had borrowed $1,200 of the alleged bribery money from Mr. Frank Sullivan. Since it did not appear that the money had been returned, and since Mr. Sullivan denied the existence of such a fund, they thought it incumbent on Mr. Gamey to place the money in the hands of the court.

No reference was made to the matter by counsel on either side.

Nothing in Bank Books.

Geo. C. Bartlett, teller of the Ontario Bank, who has been in the witness-box on several occasions, was recalled by the prosecution Saturday morning to produce the results of the investigations into the bank's books. He submitted a statement of transactions in sums over $1,000, which was privately examined. Mr. Ritchie also asked some questions as to who had access to the treasury of the bank. Mr. Bartlett said that the general manager and himself had such access.

The Chancellor then recalled Mr. Gamey as to his memorandum book, which he had deposited with the court since his previous examination. It showed payments, but not receipts. The receipts were recorded by his bank book. It covered a period from October, 1900, to March 1, 1903.

"Then there is nothing to throw light on the enquiry!" said the Chancellor.

"Nothing, except with regard to the payment of $900 into the Crossin Company's account," said Mr. Gamey.

A Will o' the Wisp.

Mr. Harry T. Butler, a clerk in the Dominion Permanent Loan Company's office, was then called, and Mr. Ritchie asked him if during September last, or at any time there had been any enquiry as to the disappearance of a large package of money.

The witness denied knowledge of any such matter.

"What I am instructed is that while enquiry was being made, Mr. Stratton came in and said he had taken it out and neglected to put in a voucher. Does that recall anything to your mind?"

Not Called Mr. Butler.

Mr. V. Atkinson, paying teller for the Dominion Permanent Loan Company, could throw no light on the story either.

Mr. Wm. Northgrave, a clerk in the office of the Trusts and Guarantee Company, the office of which adjoins the loan company was also in entire ignorance of the matter.

Examined by Mr. Riddell, he said that Mr. Stratton was in the habit of signing blank cheques for use by the loan company in advance, and that because a cheque bore date of Sept. 11 it would not follow that it was signed that day.

The alibi of Sept. 11 was then reverted to once more.

Stratton Went Shopping.

Patrick Mahar, a livery stable keeper of Bloor street, was called. He testified that on Sept. 11 last a Victoria was ordered for Mr. Stratton for 9.30, and it was returned to the Parliament buildings at 11.30. On the same day a carriage was also ordered for Mr. Stratton, and it was used from 9.15 to 10.30 a.m.

Weston Green, who was a driver for Mahar in September last, and drove the rig that was out from 4.30 to 11.30, was called. Mr. Stratton was asked to stand up and Green identified him as a gentleman who had occupied the hack for two hours with two ladies. They visited several places, and he had a faint recollection, though he would not swear to it, that Mr. Stratton had returned to the Parliament buildings, arriving there about 11.20 a.m.

Memory Vague.

Cross-examined by Mr. Riddell, Green's memory of the morning proved vague. He remembered that they visited Bennett & Wright's and Robertson's Saw Works. He did not recall a visit to McConkey's, which, is recorded on Mahar's books.

Mr. Riddell said: "Mr. Green, let me tell you something. The persons who were driven on that day were three ladies. Do you swear that is not so?"

"Yes!"

Green could not fix the date as Sept. 11, except by what Mahar's books showed. He thought it was about a week after the Exhibition. Asked who he was driving last night, he said Mr. W. D. McPherson and Mr. Sam Price, but said that they had not told him what to say. He had been discharged by Mr. Mahar for being late, and now drove for G. W. Verrall.

Re-examined by Mr. McPherson, the witness testified that he had had no conversation with either him or Mr. Price until called into consultation with Mr. and Mrs. Mahar, to whose office he had driven the two lawyers. It was Mr. Mahar who first asked him if he had driven Mr. Stratton. He then told the story to the lawyers, substantially as he had told it in the witness box to-day.

Mixed Strathy and Stratton.

The witness showed himself to have mixed up Mr. Stratton with Mr. Strathy by mentioning the address 71 Queen's Park. He testified that he had been sent to the latter address once or twice, and had thought that it was Mr. Stratton's house. He didn't know Mr. Strathy to see him.

Hugh D. McCulloch, secretary of the Bennett & Wright Company, testified that last autumn and winter the firm was doing work under contract for Mr. Stratton at Peterboro'. He didn't recall whether the latter visited the warerooms in September last.

Mr. Hall, receiving teller of the Ontario Bank, was put in, and gave some technical evidence.

Thomas Horder, bookkeeper at the Walker House, was called, and produced the entries of Dr. Arthur of Sudbury. The latter swore that he talked to Gamey on two successive days at the Walker House in January. The books showed that he had registered an the morning of Jan. 13, and that Gamey left on the same evening.

Rebuttal Ended.

This ended the prosecution's reply, and Mr. Johnston called Charles Tweedie, a clerk in the Observatory, who produced the records to show that it was raining throughout the morning of September 9, when Robert Armstrong, of Gore Bay, swears that he was with Gamey at the Exhibition. Armstrong, in his testimony, was not asked as to the weather.

Cross-examined by Mr. McPherson, Tweedie said the charts showed that the heavy rain had been from 6.45 to 8.30, and from 12 to 1. From 8.30 to 12 it had been merely drizzling with the exception of a very brief shower about 10 o'clock.

Mr. Johnston also announced that he proposed to call some evidence in reply to the hackdriver Green' by bringing three ladies, two of whom were in Peterboro' and one in Winnipeg. To admit this evidence the court adjourned until Wednesday at 2 p.m., argument to begin at 10 a.m. Thursday.

CANADA ASKED TO AID.

In the Relief of the Jews Who Are Oppressed in Russia.

St. John, N. B., May 18.—The Jewish congregation here, with Mayor White as chairman, held a public meeting here yesterday afternoon to protest against the atrocities against Hebrews in Southern Russia, and to take relief measures. A resolution was passed, calling on the Government of Canada to represent to Great Britain that it use its good office with the Government of Russia to the end that protection be extended the Jewish inhabitants of that country, so that the horrors of Kishineff shall not be repeated. A copy of the resolution will be sent to the Prime Minister of Great Britain. Among the speakers were Senator Ellis and Hon. H. A. McKeown. The meeting subscribed $125.

Jews Must Be Defenceless.

St. Petersburg, May 18.—Lieut.-General Von Reaben, Governor of Bessarabia, the capital of which is Kischineff, has been summoned to St. Petersburg. A Ministerial circular forbidding the Jews to defend themselves has been issued. Three thousand suits for damages have been instituted against the state at Kischineff. The damages demanded amount to $2,500,000.

Palestine For the Jews.

London, May 18.—At a meeting of Jews, held in Shoreditch Saturday night, under the auspices of the English Zionist Federation, Israel Zangwill, the author, seconded a resolution declaring that the establishment of a home in Palestine was the only practical solution of the Jewish question. The resolution was carried.

Abandon Newfoundland Shore.

Paris, May 18.—The people of Brittany are excited over rumors that the Government is about to abandon the French Shore in Newfoundland to Great Britain in exchange for concessions in Gambia, Western Africa. The Breton fishermen will be ruined if the Newfoundland fisheries are closed.

EVA DINGLE'S DEATH.

Leland Dorr Kent Adjudged Guilty of Manslaughter at Rochester.

Rochester, N. Y., May 18.—Leland Dorr Kent was Saturday afternoon found guilty of manslaughter in the first degree, as charged in the indictment against him for the slaying of the beautiful young Canadian nurse.

The jury retired at 12.30 and at 4.10 o'clock filed into the courtroom and answered their names.

Asked for their verdict the foreman said "guilty." The young young medical student never stirred, and the hundreds of eyes fastened upon him could not discover a tremor of the eyelid or a flush pass over his pale face.

"Gentlemen, do you find the defendant guilty on all the counts of the indictment, or only on one count?" was the next question.

"On one count, the third count of the indictment," replied the foreman.

This count charges that Kent "assisted Ethel Blanche Dingle to commit suicide, and that for the purpose of carrying out her suicidal purposes, he, the defendant, inflicted the mortal wound, she consenting thereto."

After the jury was dismissed, Attorney Raines moved for a stay of proceedings pending application for a new trial. The argument will be heard to-day, after which Kent will be sentenced.

THE REDISTRIBUTION BILL.

The Hamilton Herald, an Independent journal, which is growing in influence because of its impartiality has the following article on the Redistribution Bill:

According to the Globe's Ottawa correspondence, it has been decided that, in the new plans for the redistribution of the constituencies, the unit of representation is to be 25,000; that all counties with a population under that unit and up to a unit and a half are entitled to one member; that counties over a unit and a half and up to two units and a half are to be given two members, and that counties over two and a half units will be accorded three members. Ontario has to lose six members, and the parliamentary representations of this province for the next ten years will therefore be only 86. Toronto will gain a seat and two will be added to New Ontario, thus making it necessary to blot out nine of the old constituencies.

The principle of representation by population is observed in respect of the province; but it is impossible under the new plan to observe that principle strictly in respect of the constituencies. Some constituencies will have a larger representation than they are strictly entitled to, but most of them will have less. However this is unavoidable if the county boundaries are adhered to, and after all the grievances are too slight to base a grievance upon.

So far it would appear that the Government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier is acting in a liberal statesmanlike manner in this matter of redistribution. There does not seem to be any desire to retaliate upon the Tories for the shameful way in which the constituencies were gerrymandered by the Macdonald Government in the interests of the Conservative party.

CROOKED JOURNALISM.

(Hamilton Times.)

It was the Montreal Gazette, from which journal something better might have been expected, that falsely reported Sir William Mulock as saying, "When I first came to Montreal my symptoms were all with the shippers, but now they are all with you." The Montreal Herald declares editorially that Sir William said absolutely nothing of the kind, nothing like it, nothing that could be construed as showing him sympathetic to one side or the other. Again he is quoted as saying, "Had I been in your place, I would have done as you have done." Sir William did not say this, did not say anything that could by any possibility be given this meaning, did not once allude to the right or wrong, the policy or impolicy of the men's action. Upon the strength of this utterly misleading report in the Gazette, the Star of Saturday had the following editorial comment:

"That the efforts of the Ministers to settle the 'longshoremen's strike have failed is most regrettable, but not under the circumstances surprising. Sir William Mulock declared that his sympathies were with the strikers, that had he been in their place he would have done as they did, that failing an agreement, they might call upon the Government and that he would give them what assistance he could afford."

Here were two lies borrowed from the Gazette, and one made out of whole cloth added to them.

The Star's own report of Sir William's speech, written by its own reporters, present at the meeting, says Sir William made "a diplomatic address," and carries not one word confirmatory of the Gazette's report, one word upon which the Star's editorial utterance could be founded. Not one word. The Star's delight at the opportunity of taking a fling at a Liberal Minister, even when engaged in settling a strike which has disorganized the business of Montreal for two weeks, was so great that the trouble was not even taken to consult the reports made by its own staff.

KEEP AN EYE ON CANADA.

The Marine Review of Cleveland, O., in a recent article bearing the caption, "Keep an eye on Canada," refers to the Canadian marine as being very plainly in improved condition, and of giving promise of still better things as the special effort to foster it bears fruit. Regarding our Finance Minister's recent action it says that the throwing off of the Welland Canal tolls will certainly be a lesson to New York State, which is seriously considering the policy of restoring her canal tolls to enable her to meet the extra running cost of the new barge canal, which seems to be accepted as a certainty. "When we consider," it goes on, "the money that Canada has spent on her public works and note the cheerfulness with which these outlays are increased, we are amazed that a country with fewer people and much less wealth and developed resources than New York can do these things and yet not appear to feel the burden." Said a marine man the other day, "We are going to see and not very far away either, the day when Duluth as a grain shipping port will be eclipsed so far by Fort William that it will not be classed with it. I say this in spite of the fact that I am largely interested in Duluth and have no interests at Fort William. The tendency is all in that direction. Canada has seen it and is furthering it by building a great elevator system at Fort William."

The shifting of the grain receiving centre from Duluth to a Canadian port is a serious matter and may well claim the attention of the United States Customs authorities. So set is the governing power here (in the United States) against the admission free of Canadian grain, that it may be found impossible to meet the pretensions of Fort William by throwing off the duty.—Monetary Times.

EDUCATION AND THE FARM.

Goldwin Smith, in the Weekly Sun attributes the forsaking of rural life by the youth of England to the indiscriminate dissemination of education amongst the people, and warns Canada to heed England's experience. What would the worthy professor have us do? Does he desire that the benefits of education be denied rural communities in order that the youth of the country may be kept behind the plow? Must we accept as an argument in favour of ignorance and serfdom the fact that people are prone to leave the farm and flock to the cities? We think not. A much more logical and fair inference appears to be that if young men are to be kept on the farm, conditions on the farm must be made better. For many years the farm hand had laboured from sunrise till sunset for a salary which amounted to about the value of a suit of clothes was a year and his board. Consequently it was not wonderful that he looked to the city for relief. In the city the hours were shorter and more regular, and the remuneration much better—and the city got the farm hand. Education will injure no person. The farmer and the farm hand, as well as the employer of labour and the mechanic in the city must be educated to be successful. It will do no good to rail against free schools because people are rushing to the cities. Things will right themselves in time, and as people get to know the cities better, and as conditions on the farm are made better, the rush to the cities will cease. To-day the man on the farm is decidedly foolish to forsake the country for the city. Wages in the cities may be high, but the price of living is more than in keeping with the wages. Let him who is doing fairly well in the country stay where he is. The risks, financially, physically and morally, are not so great in the country as in the city.—London News.

REV. L. McKINNON'S CORDIAL WELCOME.

A Very Pleasing Programme was Presented.

The Examiner on Saturday received the particulars of an interesting ceremony which took place in the Gilmour Memorial Church.

The new pastor of the Gilmour Memorial and Selwyn Baptist churches, the Rev. L. McKinnon, began his pastorate on the first Sunday in May. He was tendered a very warm reception by the Gilmour Memorial church on Tuesday evening last. The attendance was large and the reception was exceedingly cordial. It took from eight to ten o'clock for the feast at the table. The spread was fully equal in excellence to those for which Gilmour church has acquired great fame and a very hearty social spirit was manifest in the intercourse of the people. Deacon Wm. Graham presided, and the programme of the evening consisted of opening devotional exercises, reading of Scripture by Deacon Graham, and prayer by Rev. J. Bastow. An address of welcome on behalf of the church was also made by Deacon Graham, and by Rev. J. Bastow on behalf of the ministry in this locality and of the Peterborough Baptist Association. The pastor made an exceedingly apt reply to these addresses. Excellent music was furnished by Miss Crowe, and by the two Messrs. Campbell, whose voices harmonised very sweetly. The meeting closed a little after eleven o'clock, with the very best of good feeling.

The outlook for Rev. Mr. McKinnon and his new field is certainly very hopeful.

OHIO SAVING SYSTEM IS BECOMING FAMOUS.

A Hint for Our Local Educational Guardians.

The fame of the penny saving system in the Columbus public schools has spread to the tropics and now the little children of Porto Rico are to be educated along similar lines. The movement is promoted by the People's Co-Operative Building & Loan Association of San Juan, through whose efforts a bill granting permission to install the system has passed the Legislature.

The principal provisions of the bill were suggested by J. J. Stoddart, vice president, and E. J. Swearer, secretary, of the Ohio State Savings & Loan Association, while on a recent tour of the island. Alfred A. Smith, secretary of the San Juan association, notifies Mr. Swearer that the preparations for installing the system are practically completed.

The Columbus children have been saving their pennies for eleven full school months and now have nearly $16,000 in the two depositories. At the central depository they have close to $12,800 to date. Of this amount $1,100 was deposited during the last four weeks. In the time last mentioned there were more canceled accounts than beginners, but notwithstanding this there was a net gain which indicates that the smaller depositors are withdrawing and those remaining are depositing more money than before. The first eight days of May there were 27 withdrawals from the central depository and 29 new accounts opened.

At the Park Building Loan & Savings Company, or the north depository, the children have $4,745.57 on deposit, and like those of the other sections of the city, seem to be very much interested.

THE EMPIRE'S TRADE

Canadian Views of Mr. Chamberlain's Latest Speech.

THE GOVERNMENT'S POSITION

Principle of Its Policy as Shown in Canada's Attitude at the Colonial Conference and in the Budget—In the Light of These Mr. Chamberlain's Speech Is of the Utmost Importance.

Ottawa, May 18.—Mr. Chamberlain's latest declarations on the subject of preferential trade have naturally excited keen interest in political circles here, and the speech is regarded as an epoch-making one. The members of the Ministry will not discuss the Colonial Secretary's statement for publication, but there is some reason to believe that they are not altogether surprised at the turn which events have taken. Canada's attitude in regard to preferential trade was clearly and explicitly stated, both at the Colonial Conference in London last summer and on the occasion of Mr. Fielding's budget speech on April 16th. At the former gathering Canada secured the adoption of a resolution urging on the Imperial Government the expediency of granting in the United Kingdom preferential treatment to the products and manufactures of the colonies, either by exemption from or reduction of duties now or hereafter imposed. Canada's representatives expressed themselves willing to recommend in return for preferential treatment in the United Kingdom an additional preference to British manufactures on a list of selected articles in either of the following ways:—

(1) By further reducing the duties in favor of the United Kingdom.

(2) By raising the duties against foreign imports.

(3) By imposing duties on certain foreign imports now on the free list.

Mr. Chamberlain's Answer.

Mr. Chamberlain, on behalf of the Imperial Government, was unable to agree to the proposal of the Canadian Ministers. He represented that the Imperial Government, while highly appreciating the good feeling manifested by Canada in the granting of preferential treatment, did not think the material results to the trade of the United Kingdom were as great as the Canadian Ministers claimed. He further said that the change desired by Canada would be an important departure from the established fiscal policy of the kingdom, and that if the proposals could be entertained at all, as to which he was not prepared to commit himself, it would be necessary for Canada to offer some material tariff concessions beyond those which she had already voluntarily given.

In the light of Canada's action at the Colonial Conference, and Mr. Fielding's budget statement, the Colonial Secretary's latest speech is of the utmost importance. Mr. Chamberlain has at various times announced himself to be in favor of free trade within the Empire, which, however, under conditions as they are at present, is regarded as impracticable. Now he seems, after a careful review of the situation and apparently influenced by Mr. Fielding's outspoken statement, to have become a convert to the policy of preferential trade. A distinguished authority was last night asked what would be the immediate outcome of Mr. Chamberlain's declaration. "There will probably be no immediate result," was the reply. "The seed has found lodgment and must now be left to germinate. I should judge that the idea animating Mr. Chamberlain is to become the originator of a new colonial policy."

The Conservative Leader.

Mr. R. L. Borden, the Conservative leader, said yesterday:

"Mr. Chamberlain's utterance, although important and significant, is not unexpected. We have long believed that there is in Great Britain a strong force of public opinion favoring preferential trade within the Empire, and the modification to that extent of the fiscal policy of the Mother Country. We have believed, whether rightly or wrongly, that the force of public opinion needed only to bring it into activity the sanction of a strong leader in the political world. At this distance, it is difficult to thoroughly appreciate the currents of public opinion in Great Britain, but it seems to us that the hour has come, and, with it, the man.

"For ten years the Conservative party in this country has been fighting the battle of preferential trade within the Empire. Going out of power in 1896, we, nevertheless, continued to advocate that policy as one calculated, not only to develop commerce within the Empire, but to bind more closely together by the firm ties of closer commercial intercourse, all parts of His Majesty's dominions.

"This policy has since been affirmed by resolutions which we have subsequently proposed in the House of Commons on several occasions.

"All such resolutions met defeat at the hands of the Liberal party, because the leaders of that party in Canada, up to a year ago, could never be persuaded that the realization of such policy was more than a dream. Happily, they are now enabled to see more clearly, so that all parties in Canada at the present time seem united, not only in affirming the wisdom, but the practicability of the great policy of inter-Imperial trade. Those who set their faces against Imperial preferential trade, and who also believe that Canada should base her fiscal policy upon free trade ideals, little realize that the adoption of such views by this country would undoubtedly result in its commercial and political absorption by the great neighboring Republic."

For a Certainty I am Cured.

Mr. Jas. Trensman, 536 Adelaide street, London, writes that for two years he was laid up with kidney disease and urinary troubles. ARE YOU A PRISONER?

THOUSANDS of men are prisoners of disease as securely as though they were confined behind the bars. Many have forged their own chains by the vices of early youth, exposure to contagious diseases, or the excesses of manhood. They feel they are not the men they ought to be or used to be. The vim, vigor, and vitality of manhood are lacking. Are you nervous and despondent? tired in the morning? have you to force yourself through the day's work? have you little ambition and energy? are you irritable and excitable? eyes sunken, depressed and haggard looking? memory poor and brain fagged? have you weak back with dreams and losses at night? deposit in urine? weak sexually?—you have

THROUGH A BRIDGE.

Great Northern Railway Freight Train Wrecked.

TEN CARS OF GRAIN BURNED.

Engineer McIntyre Killed in a Collision on the M.C.R.—Dead Engineer Ran His Engine at Full Speed Into the Rear of a Freight Train Near Perry, Ont.—Fireman Was Injured.

Quobec, May 18.—At about noon a freight train coming east over the Great Northern Railway, while passing over the Grand Mere bridge, went through the bridge, which was burning at the time. The train consisted of ten cars laden with grain. The cars were consumed and the engine totally destroyed. Engineer O'Brien is missing and was probably killed. The rest of the crew escaped injury. The bridge was a wooden tressel structure.

ENGINEER M'INTYRE KILLED.

Fatal Railway Collision About 90 Miles East of St. Thomas.

St. Thomas, May 18.—A serious and fatal railway collision occurred Saturday morning on the Michigan Central, about one mile east of Perry, a small station 90 miles east of the city. Engineer W. McIntyre of this city lost his life in the wreck, and Fireman Alexander Robinson, also of this city, had his foot badly crushed. A driver was slightly injured.

The wreck occurred at 3.44 o'clock, and was caused by Conductor Oatman's extra eastbound freight passing the block signals, and, while under a full head of steam, crashing into the rear end of Conductor Lucas' eastbound train. Conductor Oatman's train was manned by Engineer William McIntyre and Fireman Alexander Robinson. The latter saw the danger and jumped, but had his foot badly crushed. The former met death at his post of duty, and it was not until about 10 o'clock in the morning that his charred remains were found by the wrecking crew in the cab of the engine.

Charges Against Engineer Copeland.

Ottawa, May 18. — Instructions have been sent to the Attorney-General of Nova Scotia to prosecute Engineer Copeland, who is alleged to have been responsible for the train wreck on the Intercolonial Railway near Windsor Junction. The investigation conducted by the Government reveals a shocking state of affairs. It is charged that not only was Copeland himself asleep in his cab, as the result of a drinking bout the night before, but his fireman and the brakeman of the train were under the influence of liquor. In fact, all except the conductor are said to have been incapable of performing their duty. Mr. Blair has dismissed all the guilty parties.

COST MANY LIVES.

Misunderstanding Results in Killing of Albanians and Turks.

Constantinople, May 18.—The report that many men on both sides were killed or wounded during the engagement which constituted the Albanian resistance to the advance of the imperial troops on Ipek has been confirmed. The Albanian chiefs explain that the encounters were the outcome of a misunderstanding. In the course of an audience with the German Ambassador here last Friday, the Sultan said that with the occupation of Ipek a general pacification would ensue. A number of Albanian chiefs at Ipek, however, refuse to submit, and their families are being held as hostages.

Forty Peasants Shot.

Vienna, May 18.—Reports received here from Sissek, Croatiadoa, are that notwithstanding the denials of the Hungarian Government, the stories of fierce encounters between peasants and the military in the village of Krisewachsich have been confirmed. Forty peasants are said to have been shot.

Gave $51,900 in 20 Minutes.

Toronto, May 18.—In twenty minutes on Saturday afternoon subscriptions amounting to $51,900 were received to assist in the work of the Victorian Order of Nurses. There had gathered at Government House a number of the city's prominent citizens, who listened to Lady Minto as she outlined the workings and needs of the Victorian Order of Nurses and the Cottage Hospitals in connection with the order. Then the subscription list was passed with the above satisfying result.

Temiskaming Railway.

Ottawa, May 18.—Hon. Frank Latchford, who is in town, stated that great progress is being made by the Temiskaming Railway. The line has been graded for fully thirty miles from the south, and this summer twenty miles from the north will also be graded, something that was altogether unexpected.

Two Fishers Drowned.

Charlottetown, P. E.I., May 18.—Joseph Christian and Oliver Williams, lobster fishermen, each aged thirty, and unmarried, were drowned Saturday. The men were returning from their traps, when a squall struck their boat, and it capsized, and, as neither of them could swim, they soon sank.

Flimsy Frame Houses.

Ottawa, May 18.—Rev. Father Whelan, in St. Patrick's Church yesterday, delivered a stirring sermon on the big fire of last Sunday. While admitting that the lumber piles were a menace, he scored the City Council for allowing the erection of flimsy frame houses in the city.

How to Ward off a Bilious Attack.

These Tablets quickly restore the stomach and liver to a healthy condition. Price 25 cents; at all druggists. c

STREET CAR STRIKE RIOT.

Fifteen Men Injured by a Mob at Bridgeport, Conn.—Cars Were Stoned—Mayor Was Bruised on Head.

Bridgeport, Conn., May 18.—The attempt made by the officials of the Connecticut Railway and Lighting Company to run their cars with non-union men yesterday resulted in a riot, in which at least 15 men were injured. The Sheriff hopes that it will not be necessary to call out the State troops, but says that another such outbreak will make that step inevitable. At the present time it is possible that the County Sheriff will supercede the police in the control of the city.

Shortly before noon six trolley cars were started. There were large crowds in the vicinity of the car sheds when operations were commenced, but no violence was offered at this time. The cars were manned by twelve of the 180 strike-breakers brought here Saturday by the Trolley Company. There was no disturbance of any kind until two hours later.

The first car had completed its third round trip, and was directly in front of the Wheeler & Wilson factory, where a crowd of at least 1,000 persons had gathered. The car was running slowly owing to the crowd, when stones began to fly. Deputy-Sheriffs Hendrue and Plumz, who were on the car, saw a man in the crowd hurl a stone. They had the car stopped, and plunged into the crowd to get the offender. The stone thrower was a large man, and struggled so fiercely that a policeman went to the assistance of the Sheriffs.

Immediately Mayor Mulvihill went to the policeman and ordered him to keep his hands off the prisoner. He then went to the Deputy-Sheriffs, and told them that they had better let the man go. During the argument, the stone thrower wrenched himself free, and was soon lost in the crowd.

In the meantime the stones were flying in a shower, and one of them struck the Mayor on the head, causing a large bruise.

The two Sheriffs then jumped on the car, and ordered the motorman to proceed to the car sheds, a quarter of a mile distant. The bombardment did not abate. The stone-throwing soon became so furious that the Sheriffs drew their revolvers, and fired five shots in the air, and toward the ground. Five other cars received the same treatment before reaching the barns.

When the last car had passed within the doors, there was a crowd of 4,000 people gathered in a vacant lot opposite, and violence once more broke loose. Brickbats, stones and everything that could be thrown were hurled at the barns and anything that belonged to the company, in the vicinity.

The Fire Department was called out, and several streams scattered the mob. Not one of the twelve men operating the cars escaped injury. Another attempt will be made to run cars to-day.

Tension Is Very Great.

Toronto, May 18.—Friendly negotiations are still pending between the Toronto Street Railway Company and their employes. The tension is very great, but at the worst, no strike can come for several days. A mass meeting of employes, lasting until daylight Sunday morning, was held at the Star Theatre. Nine hundred employes were present. By a unanimous vote, a revised agreement was ordered drafted to be sent to the management. The men will hold a mass meeting Wednesday night and receive the report of the committee. The principal item wanted is recognition of the Union.

Hon. Mr. Tarte Quits.

Montreal, May 18.—Hon. J. Israel Tarte, having been notified by E. Marcil to the effect that F. Riopel had given notice of motion to the effect that the ex-Minister's name be struck from the list of honorary presidents of the Marcil Club, Mr. Tarte has written seconding the motion, and says he has not the least objection that he name should disappear from the association's roll.

Suicide at Brantford.

Brantford, May 18.—E. M. Pettibone, of New York, a stranger, who has been in Brantford since Saturday, committed suicide at the Commercial Hotel, late Saturday morning. He left nothing to show what had driven him to the desperate end, but there is every indication that he had his death most carefully planned. He had been drinking all week, and took an overdose of morphine.

Fatal End of Election Row.

St. John, N. B., May 18.—John Mangan, a fisherman of Musquash, St. John County, died from the effect of injuries received in a quarrel on municipal election day. Mangan got into an altercation with one Devine, a smaller man, whom he seems to have followed about with threats and attacks. Devine's brother, coming to the rescue, struck Mangan, who fell into a ditch.

Riel's Adjutant-General.

Gabriel Dumont, Riel's Adjutant-General in the Northwest Rebellion of 1885. Dumont was acknowledged to be the ablest and pluckiest of the rebel leaders. The portrait published herewith is from a photograph taken last February in the house of a relative of Riel's at Langdon, North Dakota. Dumont is 66 years of age, but quite hale.

Chosen by Proxy.

The man whose long suffering sister has always selected all his gifts for friends at Christmas, on birthdays and for weddings has recently passed through an experience which makes him feel that he must mend his ways.

Not long ago he went to pay a wedding call and expressed much admiration for the silver and china on the 5 o'clock tea table at which his pretty hostess was pouring tea.

"Which cup do you like best?" she asked him archly. "Tell me, and you shall have your tea in it."

He looked helplessly at her and then at the cups. "Oh, I don't know. I think that is the prettiest, perhaps," he said, indicating an eggshell cup.

"Your taste hasn't changed, then. That is the one you gave me when my engagement was announced," she said gayly. And he endeavored to appear comfortable, although he knew his face was growing red.

Later on, as he rose to go, his hostess said:

"What do you think of that picture over the mantel? I've seen you looking at it a number of times."

"I wasn't looking at that," said this luckless guest. "It's very fine, but I was looking at the smaller one on the left. It's a curious thing, isn't it? Yet there's a sort of charm about it."

"I fancied you thought so when you sent it to me for a wedding gift," said the bride.—Exchange.

An Autograph Copy.

The man who undertook to cross the continent "on the hurricane deck of a donkey" and earn his expenses as he went was sure to have experiences worth something to himself if not to any one else. He had photographs made of himself and the donkey. These he sold for 25 cents each. At Yonkers his purse was light, and his bills were heavy. He said:

I resolved to rise at dawn and sell enough pictures to pay my bills if I had to sell them at cost. I set to work. By 1 o'clock I had visited every shop, store and Chinese laundry and was talking hoarsely to a corner grocer, who sat on a keg of mackerel sampling limburger cheese. I offered a picture for 15 cents, but the reduction in price did not interest him.

"I vant not a picture at any price!" he declared.

"I lack 15 cents of the amount of my hotel bill," I urged. "I am in dire straits."

His reply was weak, but the cheese was strong enough to help him out. My mental magazine had but a single charge left, and I fired that.

"Isn't it worth 15 cents to know a fool when you see one?"

"Y-e-e-s, I dink it ees," answered the man, "and eef you vill write it on the picture I buy him."—Youth's Companion.

Sporting Requisites.

The Peterborough Bookstore is headquarters for the most popular supplies for out-door sports. In addition to being the sole selling agency for Spaulding's, New York, sporting goods, we also handle Wilson's, Love's and other reliable Canadian makers'. A. H. Stratton & Co.

Navigation Notes.

The many friends in Peterborough of Captain Anson-Cartwright will be pleased to know that he has taken command of the steamer Water-Lily, plying regularly on Otonabee and Rice Lake waters. Captain Anson-Cartwright is a sailor of many years experience, having navigated on salt water, and for many years he sailed Lake Ontario. He is well and popularly known and should build up a splendid trade for the Lily this summer.

George Street Methodist.

In the absence of the pastor Rev. J. P. Wilson, the services at George street Methodist church yesterday were conducted by Rev. Dr. Mettzler, of Smith. The morning anthem was "Fear Not O Land," and the offertory selection was an Easter carol "Rejoice." In the evening the choir sang the anthems "Conquering Kings Their Titles Take," and "Thou Who Like the Wind Dost Come," Mr. Mulligan taking the solos in the latter.

Are You Fond of Tomatoes?

Most people are—and if you like them early, smooth, hard and almost seedless, plant "Spark's Earliana,"—earliest and most prolific tomato that comes on the Boston market. I am selling these famous seedlings, well started, at the rate of three boxes for a quarter. Cabbage plants—Henderson's Reliable, and other high bred garden plants—the most for your money at my greenhouses. Flowering plants, ready for transplanting, cheapest anywhere. Sample Cobb's Asters, a special variety, the best that grows. Jos. H. Cobb, Aylmer street greenhouses; phone 132.

SUNDAY SCHOOL ANIVERSARY.

Interesting Service at Charlotte Street Church.

Rev. Mr. Jolliffe's Excellent Addresses —The Singing.

The anniversary services, in behalf of the Sunday School, at the Charlotte street church yesterday were very well attended. In the morning the church could barely accommodate the congregation. A feature of all the services was the singing of over 100 children, who had been most successfully trained by Mr. and Mrs. Killin-Keough. These were artistically arranged on the platform.

Rev. W. J. Jolliffe preached in the morning upon the manner in which children should be trained. In the course of his excellent address, the speaker said that many parents believed that their children must look after themselves and sow their wild oats and then be reformed by the church. This the preacher pointed out as a mistaken idea. He said that little children were members of the Church of Christ. They were that before the Christian dispensation and we have no right to stop them from holding the same office in spiritual affairs. Rev. Mr. Jolliffe said that children could not be too young to be baptised. While faith is necessary to salvation it is for those who are able to understand. The child belongs to Christ from its birth because He bought all when he when He died on the cross. The child if brought up in the proper way, if given a good Christian education, would turn out to be a good disciple of Christ. He gave an instance of a man he knew who had a very valuable race horse for which he cared more than he did for his own son. In course of time the son left home and was an utter disgrace to his family.

In conclusion he spoke of the tender consciences of children and said that no person should set a stumbling block in the way of a child wishing to join the church no matter how young. The service was brought to a close by the benediction which was pronounced by the pastor.

THE AFTERNOON SERVICE.

The open meeting of the Sunday school in the afternoon was a decided success, and favourable reports were heard on all sides on the excellent results achieved by Mr. and Mrs. Killin-Keough in training the school. The "Te Deum," and the "Processional Hymn" by the school were fine numbers while the solos by Mr. and Mrs. Killin-Keough, were as usual excellent.

Rev. Mr. Jolliffe's address on "Testing Character," was made especially interesting by apt illustrations. Not the least pleasing feature was the secretary's report, showing the school to be in a growing and prosperous condition.

Rev. Mr. Jolliffe's evening discourse was addressed particularly to the young people. The text was taken from Proverbs iv., 7, "Wisdom is the principal thing, therefore get wisdom; and with all thy getting get understanding." After pointing out the possibilities there were for making life a success or a failure, the reverend gentleman defined wisdom as fearing the Lord and departing from evil. The three great motives of young people at the present time seemed to be pleasure, fame and money. These were all right in themselves, but when pursued to the exclusion of everything else, and in a spirit contrary to the principles of Christianity, were bound to end in disaster. Rev. Mr. Jolliffe closed an excellent address with a fervent appeal to the young people to aim at forming character as seen in Christ.

Anthem, "Saviour, when Night Involves the Sky"

Solo, Mr. Davis.

Duet, "Day is Dying in the West"..... Mrs. Pearse and Mr. Keough.

Quartette, "Guard while I Sleep"..... Miss Belleghem, Mrs. Pearse, Messrs. Mitchell and Weir.

—The Chief of Police remarked this afternoon that the dog tag of 1903 can be distinguished at a glance from the last year's tag. He stated that there are dogs running about town with last year's tags on and in conclusion said the new double-barreled gun would soon come into use unless all canine pets wear this season's protective ornament.

—An amusing story is told in connection with the recent fire which took place in the early morning at the corner of Stewart and Hunter streets. A youngster had gone to a party the night previous and wearing his first white shirt for the occasion. The house was disagreeably near the burning buildings and the family made their exit on to the street. The boy was seen with a white bundle under his arm and on examination it was found that in the hurry he had saved his mother's white apron intead of his own new precious white "sark."

22 LITTLE ENGLISH GIRLS

Sent to Brighten Ontario Homes by Barnardo Authorities.

A Good Word for the Girls' Home in Peterborough.

Toronto World.

Twenty-two rosy-cheeked, bright-eyed little English girls were at the union station yesterday, awaiting trains which sent one here and another there, until the whole party were finally en route for future homes in various parts of the province. The girls ranged in age from 9 to 17 years, and were in charge of Mrs. Owen, wife of the manager of Barnardo Home for Girls at Peterborough, and Miss Davis. They arrived in Canada a week ago, and have been allotted to farmers and others.

Until the girls are 11 years of age their maintenance is paid for by the Home authorities, but after that age their services command a reasonable recompense. The Girls Home at Peterborough is Hazel Brae, the beautiful residence generously placed at the disposal of the Barnardo officials by Mrs. Geo. A. Cox. The little girls yesterday were sent to Brampton, Allanford, Port Credit, Burlington, Dundoon, Burford, Tilsonburg, Delhi, Cheltenham, Dumfries, Walton, Shelburne and Grand Valley.

This is the first party of girls to come to Toronto this year. Three more parties will be distributed throughout Ontario before the year is out. Requests for girls are pouring into the home at Peterborough. After leaving the Home the little girls are not lost sight of, for a lady inspector is constantly employed in visiting the homes where they are living to see that they are properly cared for and well looked after.

Note. — These are a part of the 130 girls, whose arrival at Hazel Brae here, was noted a few days ago. The 22 mentioned were sent from the home in Peterborough for distribution from Toronto for points west in Ontario.

TOMMY ATKINS ON THE MARCH.

Second March-out to be Held To-morrow Evening.

The second march-out of the season of the 57th Regiment will take place to-morrow evening, commencing shortly after 8 o'clock. Recruiting has been rapidly going on and the strength of the Regiment is better than it previously was. It is the opinion in local military circles that the turn-out will be even larger than last time, although that was considered exceptionally large for the commencement of the season. It is stated that the following route will be taken: George street to Charlotte street, east to Water street, north to London street, west to George street, south to Murray street, west to the drill shed. This will be followed by the ordinary weekly drill.

THE POLICE COURT THIS MORNING.

A Heated Argument Between Landlord and Tenant.

Nearly all morning was taken over a case between landlord and tenant at the Police Court this morning, before Police Magistrate Dumble, which arose out of the Chief summoning a local hotelkeeper for permitting unsanitary conditions on his premises. This charge was proved. Meanwhile the landlord had laid information against the tenant, whom the Chief had arraigned, charging him with not keeping the sewer connections, or whatever was at fault, in proper repair. The tenant disclaimed responsibility and sought to make the landlord responsible. The argument over this point which took place between the lawyers, Messrs. R. E. Wood and E. B. Edwards, representing the parties occupied a large part of the morning.

The Magistrate witheld his decision, and the case was enlarged till Friday in order to permit a compromise.

In the case of the charge brought forward by Chief Roszel, Mr. E. H. D. Hall, Town Solicitor, represented the prosecution.

A TELEPHONE BLUFF.

Toronto Globe.

Ottawa has had an amusing experience with the Bell Telephone Company. The city's contract with the company expired recently, and the former refused to renew it. The city authorities have two projects under consideration. One is to acquire the property of the Bell Company within the city; the other is to secure the services of another company with more moderate views as to profits. After the council had refused to renew the contract, the local manager of the Bell Company became unpleasantly aggressive. A number of city officials had free telephones under the agreement and the city was promptly notified that all these would be charged for at the usual rates. No exception could be taken to this for the company had clearly a right to withdraw any privileges that were granted under the terms of the contract.

But this was only a preliminary skirmish. It was immediately followed up by a notification to the municipal authorities that the company intended to make some extensions of its system within the city limits. As it had already been authoratively advised that it would not be allowed to extend its line, this bold declaration of the company's intention to defy the system and its officials occasioned somewhat of a senation. Mayor Cook, however, was quite equal to the situation and in turn apprised the company that the city engineer would be supported by the entire police force in resisting the aggressive policy of the company.

It was now the company's move, but it was a move backwards. Mr. Sise, the general manager of the company, intervened, disavowed the haughty tone of the Ottawa manager, and became accommodating. The net result is that Ottawa is, so far as the further extensions are concerned, the master of its own streets, and the company is revealed in the character of having the will but not the power to strike.

MR. MISCAMPBELL STEPS DOWN AND OUT.

Court Dismisses Appeal Against Judgment Unseating Him.

The Seat for Sault Ste. Marie is now Vacant.

(Special to the Examiner.)

Toronto, May 18.—The Court of Appeal to-day dismissed the appeal of A. Miscampbell, the Conservative, who was unseated for Sault St. Marie, for bribary and corruption by Morreault the Montreal lawyer. Mr. Miscampbell's majority was 198 and he appealed on the ground that there was not sufficient bribery and corruption to affect the election. The Court of Appeal is against him on every contention and leaves the seat vacant.

CHOIR BOYS' CONCERT

In St. John's School House, Friday, May 29th.

The choir boys of St. John's are preparing an excellent concert under the direction of Mr. Jos. Halpany. It will take place in the school house on Friday evening, May 29th. As good as the concert under the same auspices was last year, the boys assert that this year's will be better.

Sad Death of David B. Kerr, of Otonabee.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The community is greatly grieved at the death, under particularly sad circumstances, of David H. Kerr, of Otonabee, which occurred on Friday afternoon. Mr. Kerr had become convalescent from a severe attack of peritonitis and feeling comparatively well, exercised too much which threw him into a relapse with a complication of appendicitis. Dr. Harrison the attending physician consulted with Dr. Shaw, and they decided an operation was necessary to save the young man's life. The above mentioned doctors with the assistance of Dr. McWilliams performed the operation on Thursday morning with apparent success, but on Friday afternoon alarming symptoms developed and he gradually sank in spite of all medical help. He was the eldest son of James Kerr of Chicago, and well and favourably known by the community. He was buried on Sunday afternoon at three o'clock, from his late residence, when a large concourse followed his remains to the Methodist church, where the funeral service was held, and thence to his last resting place in the Keene Cemetery. He was a member of local Court of Foresters, under whose auspices the funeral was conducted. He leaves a wife and three little children to mourn his untimely death, and the Examiner wishes to convey to these its sincere sympathy in this trying time of their painful affliction.

Handsome Plate Book.

Mr. Van Dyke, travelling salesman for the Chase Bros.' Dominion Nurseries, is in town booking orders for the firm. He remains here for a few days longer, and anyone desirous of procuring reliable fruit trees, shade trees, flowers, flowering shrubs hedges, etc., will find him a competent and painstaking representative. The new plate book which the firm has forwarded to Mr. VanDyke, is a very handsome piece of coloured lithographic work. The beautiful illustrations which it contains of Chase Bros.' nursery stock are well worth seeing.

CANOEING.

Judging from public opinion expressed in the matter, the regatta which the T. V. Canoe Club intend to hold on May 25th should be a great success. The prizes, it is stated will be really magnificent. It is said that Mr. Chas. Whiten, secretary of the club may not be able to be present as he is going away for a month. However, the management has been left in good hands and the success of the regatta is assured.

CRICKET.

Glory and honour to the Junior Colts Cricket Club! They have played two matches and have won both, which is more than the senior Colts can say. On Saturday last they played Grove school at Lakefield and defeated them by 15 runs, the totals being Peterborough, 75; Lakefield, 60.

In the first innings for Peterborough, B. Carmichael made the highest score of 22. The fielding, especially behind the wicket, was excellent. The Junior Colts' scored 8 extras, while the Lakefield cricketers only got 4.

FOOTBALL.

OMEMEE TIED MILLBROOK — 1-1

On the Agricultural grounds at Millbrook on Saturday, a closely contested game of Association football took place between a team from Omemee and the Millbrook eleven. The game throughout bristled with excitement, both teams being quite evenly matched. The referee, Rev. L. White, of Millbrook, called the teams together at 3 o'clock, and after giving them a few words of advice, blew his whistle and the game began. After considerable body-checking and neat passes on the part of players of both teams, Woods secured the ball, kicked it to Reynolds, who passed to Norman Henry, who made a neat rush on the goal, scoring the first goal for the home team.—Time 10 minutes.

Both teams were on the alert and some good work was done, although the boys on both teams seemed to be in hard luck. After 15 minutes of brisk play one of the Omemee forwards secured the pigskin and kicked it through. No more scoring was done in this half and the tally was 1—1.

After a rest of 10 minutes the game started again in earnest. The Omemee lads were out to win, and it looked as if they would do so, for they seemed to have the home team on the go. After a couple of throw-ons, an Omemee forward secured the ball and kicked it through.—Score 2—1. Time 10 minutes.

After five minutes more play the boys from Pigeon Creek again scored.

It was time for Millbrook to be up and doing, and they did. After about three minutes play, Wood passed to Henry, who kicked to Forsythe, who lost it but again secured it, this time with more effect, scoring the second goal for Millbrook. Score 3—2 in favour of Omemee.

The Millbrook boys had just wakened up, and thought it was time they were doing the scoring act. Time was nearly up and it would never do for them to be beaten on their own grounds, so A. Wood did the trick, making the score three all. Time one minute.

Both teams tried hard to score again before time was up, but failed to do so. After the teams had had a rest they played 5 minutes each way, but neither team scored.

Woods, of the Millbrook eleven, was knocked out for a few minutes from a kick in the stomach, but finished the game.

The Millbrook team lined up as follows—Goal, D. Armstrong; backs, J. Armstrong and Joe Thorndyke; half backs, J. Reynolds, W. Henry, H. Reynolds; centre, H. Wood; right wing, W. Laing, A. Wood; left wing, N. Henry, W. Forsythe.

Y.M.C.A. VS. BETHANY.

Before a crowd of about 300 people, the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. I. team defeated Bethany in a Midland League match at the oval on Saturday afternoon by a score of 2—1. It was a hotly contested game from start to finish and both teams had to work hard.

The Bethany eleven arrived on the grounds a little before two o'clock, and immediately prepared for the game. They were dressed in red and black striped sweaters, which made it quite easy to distinguish them from their opponents.

The Y.M.C.A. boys arrived on the grounds about twenty minutes after two. They wore white sweaters with blue stripes around the neck and waists and they certainly looked neat and fit. After some friendly handshakes the boys got together, and Mr Hartshorn of Bridgenorth, was chosen as referee. He immediately started for the centre of the field, got the teams lined up, blew his whistle and the game began. The ball travelled up and down the field several times, until Ben Simpson gave it a lift over to McPherson, who passed it to Schneider, and he gave it to Crough, who after passing a couple of Bethany backs, scored. Time 10 minutes.

Some neat combination work was done, and Manager McPherson showed that he hadn't forgot some of his old tricks. The boys in white were quite jubilant and seemed full of confidence.

The game was again started, and the ball was taken near the Y.M.C.A. goal, but Hal. Burnham had to be in the way so it got a jar, which sent it overt o the left wing, where it got several vicious kicks from players of both teams, and after some hard checking on both sides Art Noble thought it high time for a scrimmage, so he walked in, secured the ball and—it landed outside the line. Bethany had a throw-on and Art again got it, passed it to Gordon Lee, who sent it on to McPherson. Of course once Mac had it in his mit it had to be moving. He chased it up the field for a hundred yards and passed it to Schneider, but Brown got in its way and put it into the Bethany right wing's territory, where it got a few warm ones, and after some neat combination play, went rolling toward Percy McFadden, who stopped it and kicked it to Ethelbert Moore. He hadn't been doing much before, so he gave it a lift to Schneider who kicked on goal, but Alf Price was there about the same time, and he relieved his goal, but sent the ball near Crough's feet, and as he didn't mind trying again, he did, and scored the Y.M.C.A.'s second goal. Time seven minutes.

Bethany then woke up tot he fact that they had played and won a few games before, and had better get into the game. They had the wind against them, but managed to start a combination which seemed to bewilder the boys in white with the little strips of blue around the neck. Bethany centre forward certainly was on, and he did some good work and was ably supported by both of the wings. The ball was kept near the Y.M.C.A. goal until he got a chance to send it through, which he did after seven minutes of play. Score, 2—1 in favour of Y.M.C.A. I.

Handsprings were in order just then, and hats ware hurled into the air. Bethany had come to. In fact so great was one of the Bethany boys' joy that he actually took off his pretty sweater and laid it aside, remarking, "That will fool them!"

Both teams worked hard to score before half time was up, but neither succeeded, although he ball was dangerously near both goals at times. The teams had a five minute rest, after which the ball was again started on the move. The wind was in Bethany's favour now and it looked as if they were playing better ball than the Y, but they didn't do any scoring—at least not yet. Geo McDonald took after the ball once and being closely followed by a Bethany half back, when he accidentally tripped the fellow and put him in the air. It was comical to hear the lad call the referee's attention to the "dirty" foul, as he called it. He was given a hearing and a free kick was given Bethany, but the Y's backs were on the alert and relieved their goal, and sent the pigskin up the field again. No scoring was done in this half, and when time was called the score stood 2—1 in favour of the Y.M.C.A. I.

NOTES.

Hal Burnham can certainly lift the ball.

McPherson knows the game, and did some very effective work.

Crough and Schneider worked very well together.

McDonald and Noble were in the game several times, and one could see that the latter was eager for a scrimmage.

McFadden hadn't much to do, only having two really dangerous shots to stop, one of which he missed.

Some neat drops were made from corner kicks, but none were effective.

Bethany played well out to the wings and their combination work was good, but luck was against them.

The teams lined up as follows:

Bethany — Goal, Alf Price; backs, R. Brown and F. Preston; half backs, T. Jackson, D. W. Clark and W. Price; centre forward, W. J. Jack; right wings, R. Clark, W. Brereton; left wings, R. Kearns, C Burgess.

Referee, Mr. Hartshorn, Bridgenorth.

ANGLING.

Three young men paddled down the river Saturday evening and at a little tributary creek landed a number of beautiful fish not unlike "shiners," with characteristic red fins. They quickly paddled to town with their "strong arms," and enjoyed a delightful breakfast under the impression that they were eating trout. But, alas, a "chub-by" young fellow who knowns a thing or two about it says their impression was not "true."—Com.

MERCHANTS OF OLD ENGLAND.

The land it boasts its tilted hosts—they cannot vie with these,
The Merchants of Old England, the Seigneurs of the Seas,
In the days of Queen Victoria, for they have borne her sway
From the far Atlantic Islands to the Islands of Cathay;
And o'er one-sixth of all the earth, and over all the main,
Like some good Fairy, Freedom marks and blesses her domain.
And of the mighty empires that arose, and ruled, and died,
Since on the sea, his heritage, the Tyrian looked in pride;
Not Carthage, with her Hannibal, not Athens when she bore
Her bravest and her best to the Syracusan shore,
While the words of Alcibiades yet echoed wide and far,
"Where are cornfields, and are olive grounds, the Athenian's limits are,"
And in each trireme was many a dream of the West and its unknown isles,
Of the maidens of Iberia, and the feasts of Sybaris—
Not in those younger ages, when St. Mark's fair city ran
Her race of fame and frailty—each monarch's courtesan;
Not Lucia in her palmier hour, in those commercial days,
When Vasco sailed for Calicut, and Camoens sang his praise;
Nor Spain with all her Indies, the while she seemed to fling
Her fetters on the waters, like the Oriental king;
Not one among the conquerors that are or ever were
In wealth, or fame, or grandeur, with England may compare.

Far Better.

CRIME OF THE TRAMP

By Leo Crane

Copyright, 1903, by McClure's Newspaper Syndicate

It stood upon the banks of a gentle river, a fishing village of great modesty. The morning sun would toss its beauties out upon the waters of a mild lagoon. The roadways were of shells that had been pounded into powder of the whitest. Old fashioned cottages lined the streets, their porches festooned with climbing roses whose sweet scent wedded the lavish perfume of wandering honeysuckle and set forth to meet the fresh smell of the bay.

Upon the shore was a little shipyard all covered with chips and darkened driftwood. Rotting ways bathed their feet in the greenish water, and about them played the children they had given birth, a myriad of small boats upon the sleeping waves. One of these belonged to a higher caste than the others. There was a clean coat upon it, and proudly it rode to a well made mooring. When the breeze would swing it slowly, the old man seated upon a last stretch of the ways could read its name.

"Mary!" he commented slowly, removing the pipe from his mouth and puffing out a cloud of grayish smoke. Then, turning to a man close by, he asked:

"D'ye s'pose why 'tis named Mary?"

"He's sweet on Mary Harte," said the other without displaying a bit of interest in anything save the chip he was whittling.

"Oh!" remarked the old one, grinning to himself and sticking the pipe back into his mouth, proving a bit of sentiment could not lure him from the habit. "Yere he comes now."

"He's got his oars along," said the other, looking across the quiet space of water. "D'ye s'pose he's goin' out?"

"Reckon so, but 'tain't lookin' much out there on the bay. Gittin' a pesky fog up, I'm thinkin'." And the old man grunted at the foolishness of it. "Why in thunder don't he stay at home for onct? O' late he's out on that stream most o' his time."

"S'pose he wants to git married," suggested the companion, cutting a large section off the chip with a contemptuous flourish of the knife. "He's another one o' these danged fules. But these youngsters won't listen to no reason. There's that feller breakin' his back summer an' winter, sunshine an' bad weather, come better or worse, all so's he can scrape enough together to buy a peck o' trouble."

"I can't understand it," said the old man, smoking up on his pipe.

"Well, I can see through it in a way," admitted the whittler meditatively, "'cause when I was young an' necessarily foolish I had the same thing in mind fer quite a spell. But Hank Jordan—ye know Hank—well, he gotter ahead o' me an' married the woman. Then I says to myself, 'I'll see what's in this game,' says I. So, by jing, Hank starts in to make a livin' fer a fambly o' two, me havin' a quiet, peaceable time all the while, but 'fore he was through he was workin' like a plow horse in a muddy furrow, tryin' to swim with six kids' store bills on his back. The on'y things I had to owe fer durin' that same space o' time was my terbacker an' one shirt, 'cause, ye know, I'm not bard on clothes. But Hank Jordan bought enough clothes to cover a regiment, an' while they'd be showin' 'em in the street Hank'd be sittin' in the back yard, with a bit o' chalk an' a board, tryin' to figger out how to stave off the rent. I never could see the sense o' it. In the las' nine years I've on'y had the chilblains an' the quinsy, but Hank Jordan had everything from mumps to milk rash—not him, ye know, but them as he was mainly responsible fer."

The man across the way tossed a pair of oyster tongs down into the clean boat and whistled for a ragged looking dog playing about the town's edge. Then, with it beside him at the tiller, he ran up the small sail and steered out into the mist of the river marshes. An hour's run brought him over the ledges, where with a sounding splash the stone anchor was dropped, and down, down, down, went the hungry tongs for the first clutch. Down on the sandy ledges he hoped to find his happiness and wrench it from the bottom. There was a scissorslike motion of the long arms, a twisting, tearing, sucking grapple of the teeth; then up, up, up, came the swaying poles, the water trickling back over the hands that hauled, and with a noisy clatter the catch of grimy things was dumped into the boat's bottom, and so on through the long day, sometimes staring stupidly out over the gray shifting desert at a passing steamer slowly plodding up the channel or eying in silent wonder a yacht sweeping silently and swiftly by his little craft.

It was in the afternoon. The boat was half filled with muddy shells.

"Lemme see, Regs," said the man. "What's the date terday? The 10th? So it is. 'Tain't agoin' to be very long now, Regs." He slowly counted a number of deep scratches upon the thwart. Some of them were crossed over with a counter scratch. There were nine not tallied. He got out a knife and rudely crossed another. "Eight more days to wait," he muttered—"eight more days."

"Then won't there be a fine time, Regs?" he commenced gayly. The dog cocked his head sideways and whined an appreciation. "The whole village 'll talk o' it, an' the place 'll be fine. Goin' to have Sam Lawder's house—that new un—an' there'll be a sea scene over the door an' a raft o' curiosities on the mantel, 'sides rockin' chairs an' sofeys an' all that sort o' thing. But say, Regs, derned if I ever see such a fog as is gittin' up." The man peered off into the dense yellow cloak that had shut down upon him silent and awesome. He pulled up the anchor and started to row home.

The dull, monotonous clang of a lighthouse bell came at intervals from somewhere. He knew not exactly where. He was getting bewildered in this smoky cloud of fog. Then he rested upon the oars, letting the boat drift, and listened intently for the mysterious note of the bell. It was farther off—it seemed so—and which way?

Suddenly a strange, humming noise reached him—wind or— He fished hurriedly into a side locker for a horn and sent two long, harsh blasts across the unknown waters. A loud, swishing sound could be heard, growing nearer, above a babble of impotent noise. A bell rang, and the hoarse cry of a siren brought him terror. About the boat were only the moving mass of cloudland and a few feet of lapping water—no heaven, no other thing but that, motionless, and the sobbing noise. The man screamed shrilly, feebly, "Aboard there!"

Then a great, dense shape loomed up out of the sea like a ruthless grasping hand to crush him. Immense, terrible, it towered a moment over the boat. There was a crunch of splintering wood, a weak excited bark of a frightened dog, a despairing wail from a man, and a white wave of foam dripped back from the beak of the monster. It passed on with a rushing roar, satisfied. A burst of clanging and clanking came from the silence and died away again. A belch of reddish fire lighted for an instant the yellow pall and then left it as before. The thing dissolved like a ghost in the mist. The waves churned for a moment à rag of canvas. Then everything disappeared, and the silence settled down as the quiet of eternity.

The whitecapped waves raced and tossed for a time, worrying some little bits of splintered wood. Then they began again the old, old chant, sighing mournfully in tune with the twilight breeze, slowly lifting the fog. Off in the distance a single point of light glimmered mistily, pointing the way home. The winds told the tale to the shores in the black watches of the night.

An old man who had once again claimed his seat by the rotting ways fished from the tossing lips of the water a bit of board.

"What's this?" he asked of another who occupied himself cutting a piece of chip. They examined it curiously together.

"Looks like the thwart o' a boat," said the man.

"Here—here! What's them marks?" pointing at a number of rude scratches in the wood.

"I dunno," said the other, slowly shaking his head in doubt. "Never saw them on a boat's thwart before. There's eight o' 'em not tallied. See! Wonder if that's got anything to do with it!"

Nerve Sufferers Need Sympathy

And More Than That, the Nerve Cells Must be Restored and Revitalized by the Use of

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Too many doctors have no sympathy with the sufferer from diseases of the nerves. They do not understand the nervous system, and when the victim of nervous exhaustion or prostration appeals to them he is told to "brace up," forget his trouble, and he will soon be all right.

Anyone who has had nervous prostration, been scarcely able to drag about, felt energy and vitality growless, and been in constant dread of paralysis, or even insanity itself, knows how utterly useless and discouraging is such advice.

Nervous diseases cannot right themselves. Exhausted, shrivelled nerve cells can never revitalize themselves without assistance from outside. If the blood is weak and watery, and fails to afford proper nourishment, restoratives must be used. Recovery is bound to be slow, but it is none the less certain, and there is no combination of ingredients which has proven so successful as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This famous food is not a stimulant to arouse false hope, but a true restorative, reconstructing wasted cells and tissues, and instilling into the blood and nerves the essential principles of life and vigour.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food soon wins the confidence of all who are pale, thin, weak or exhausted, for by noting your increase in weight while using it you can prove that new, firm flesh and tissue are being added to the body, and realize that weakness and disease are giving way to strength and vigour. Fifty cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. 1

The Chickens Roosted Early.

During a visit to the South with an eclipse expedition some years ago an eminent Canadian astronomer met an old negro servant whose duty it was to look after the chickens of the establishment where he was staying. The day before the eclipse took place the Canadian savant in an idle moment called the old man to him and said: "Sam, if to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock you watch your chickens you will find they will go to roost."

"Sam" was skeptical, of course, but when at the appointed time next day the sun in the heavens was darkened and the chickens retired to roost the negro's astonishment knew no bounds. He approached the Canadian in awed wonder. "Massa," he asked, "how long ago did you know dat dem chickens would go to roost?"

"O, a long time," said the scientist airily.

"Did you know a year ago, massa?"

"Yes."

"Then dat beats de debil!" exclaimed the astonished old man. "Dem chickens weren't hatched a year ago!"

The Ideal and the Real.

Uncle Joe—This is a queer world.

City Man—What makes you think so?

Uncle Joe—Well, a painter feller came down to my place last summer and while he was loafing about painted a picter of my dog. I heard afterward that he sold it for $50, so I brought up the dog, thinking I could get at least a cool $100 for him; but, by jingo, I can't even give him away!

OIL FOR THE BODY

You can't lose an atom without feeling it. The body is like an engine, a watch, a machine; must be kept in good order to run right.

FOR WARMER DAYS.

Smart Toques of Tulle — Unlined Wraps of Moire.

Cape collars are charming and will take the place of stoles, which in many cases have been very unbecoming. They look most effective over blouses or on tailor made coats. In fact, they are adaptable to nearly every costume of the day and will be as much a feature of the early spring fashions as the wide, pointed belt.

A smart toque of folded plain gray net was seen recently at an afternoon tea. It was trimmed with a large gray ostrich feather paling to white and at the very farthest tip touched with black.

It was further adorned with a scarf of the new gray lace.

Unlined coats of moire will be both picturesque and useful spring garments made with the three shoulder capes and a stole effect down the front.

Homespun in pale shades is smart for spring walking suits. White serge and all white wool goods will have a greater vogue than ever this season.

Montreal, May 17. — (Special). — The case of George Robertson, of 392 James street, this city, is looked upon by those interested in medical matters as one of the most interesting on record. Mr. Robertson was a sufferer from Dropsy and was so bad that tapping was resorted to. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him.

Interviewed regarding his cure, Mr. Robertson said: "I was troubled with Dropsy and Rheumatism for five years. I was a total wreck before I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Before I got out of bed in the morning I could hardly put my feet on the floor, they were swollen so much from Dropsy.

"My arm used to swell at times so that I could not put my coat on. Before I had taken two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills I felt greatly relieved. Seven boxes cured me completely. I also had Lumbago, but since I used Dodd's Kidney Pills I don't know what it is to be sick."

Origin of "Budget."

It is difficult to realize that the term "budget," now so often in every one's mouth, is a term less than 200 years old, the earliest mention of the word dating no further back than 1733. We borrowed it from the old French language—bougette, meaning a small bag, in which in former times it was the custom to put the estimates of receipts and expenditures when presented to Parliament. Hence the Chancellor of the Exchequer, in making his annual statement, was formerly said to open his budget. In time the term passed from the receptacle to the contents, and, curiously, this new signification was returned from this country to France, where it was first used in an official manner in the early part of the nineteenth century.

MISSISSIPPI LEVEES.

How the Mighty River Is Kept Within Its Banks—Imprisoning Father of Waters Within Earthen Walls.

Many Canadians, who read from time to time of the terrible destruction caused by the Mississippi River breaking down the levees, realize the method and the magnitude of the task nor the necessity of holding in check a great stream at flood tide varying in width from half a mile to a mile and a half, from 80 to 150 feet deep, its volume swollen so that the stakes mark forty feet above low water and the great torrent moving grandly at a speed of five or six miles an hour, twice the usual velocity of the stream.

From Cairo to the gulf the Mississippi flows through a flat land generally at a mean level above that of the surrounding country. Along the left or east bank there are bluffs here and there, with lowlands between that have to be protected, but on the west side of the river the land lies low and at places really falls away, so that you have to go up hill to get to the river.

Originally the Mississippi formed its own banks with mud which it washed up and deposited and wasn't at all particular where those banks were, changing them at will to suit its fancy. The aboriginal dwellers in the valley didn't mind this much, but when the white man began to settle in the Mississippi valley and cultivate its deep, rich, red, alluvial soil it speedily became apparent that something must be done to keep the erratic and changeful river within bounds. So for a century the building of levees has gone on until now earthworks have been thrown up against the spring invasion of the waters all the way from Cairo to the delta, a distance of about 1,500 miles.

The levees have been partly built by the Federal Government, partly by the abutting States, but chiefly by the plantation owners adjacent to the river, who formed levee districts, with boards empowered to levy taxes for the work of construction and maintenance. Within the main levees are often private levees constructed by plantation owners or by towns, and sometimes one will find places which resemble a fortress, with a series of earthworks.

It is difficult to estimate the cost of the Mississippi levees by reason of the fact that the work has been done by so many different interests and paid for out of so many different funds. Some ten years ago it was estimated by Government engineers that the lowlands could be protected from the delta to Cairo at a cost of $36,000,000 for construction and $2,000,000 a year for maintenance Between these points there are 1,775 miles of levees. The levees are now controlled and policed by the Mississippi River Commission, created by act of Congress in 1879.

These levees are mere banks of earth thrown up several hundred feet from the river at low water, the low water mark being the zero or datum from which the rise of the river is marked up to the danger line, which represents the point beyond which more water would destroy life and property.

In building a levee a trench is dug three or four feet deep and about 100 feet wide, and on this earth is heaped until a continuous ridge is formed 100 feet wide at the base, 25 feet high and 25 feet wide at the crown. The earth crushes down into a compact mass, and the surface is held by Bermuda grass. On the top of the levee there is usually a wagon road. This earthen wall is all that protects the plantations and the towns along the lower Mississippi from the terrific force of the water at flood tide.

From season to season weak spots develop in the levee from various causes, and for the purpose of promptly repairing these the United States Government keeps a number of patrol boats on the river which carry supplies. The boats are very powerful and are equipped with pile drivers and large crews of laborers.

Breaks in the levees are of two kinds—the sudden giving way of a sodden bank, turned to mud by the gradual slope of the water, and the slow but insidious mining of crawfish, the greatest enemy the levee has because it is impossible to combat them.

Gardening For an Invalid.

Several years ago I found myself too much of an invalid to be out in the garden sowing seeds and with no one at my service who in my opinion could be trusted to do it for me. A summer without flowers was too dreary a prospect to be contemplated.

I secured a half dozen wooden boxes about the size of common soap boxes and had them sawed so that they were each four inches deep. These boxes were so small that when filled with soil they could be easily lifted about. I had the boxes filled with soil from the garden, and now imagine my comfort as I sat at a table sowing my seeds! There were no cramped limbs and aching back, as was usually the case when I had sowed my seeds in the seed bed. I had that year as fine a display of annuals as I ever had when the seeds were sown in the garden, in spite of the fact that the weather did not get warm enough for it to be prudent for an invalid to sit on the ground to transplant them until between June 9 and 16.—Country Life In America.

CHAPTER XXI.

One by one the men servants returned; but none of them had any news of Sir Karl. No one had either seen or heard anything of him. When the clock struck eight, Lady Allanmore came downstairs, looking the ghost of herself. The servants gazed at her in wonder, as at one over whom a great calamity hung. She sent for John Frodsham.

"Have you no news for me?" she said.

"No, my lady, no news," and the old man's face was pale and worn. He did not look at her; he shrunk from meeting her eyes.

Quick as thought she cried out:

"You know something, Frodsham, and you are keeping it from me!"

"I know nothing, my lady," he answered; but, if I may make a suggestion, it is that your ladyship should send for some friend — some gentleman—the Squire perhaps, or Lord Rhysworth."

"I will send for both," she said, "Give orders, Frodsham, at once!"

John Frodsham did so; and she felt some little relief. But she could not rest. She wandered from room to room, through the grounds and gardens, and along the terraces, always with the vague idea that she would find Sir Karl or hear of him.

Then she became conscious of something that annoyed and perplexed her Wherever she went in the house she found groups of servants whispering. They broke off abruptly when they saw her; and in each face she perceived a peculiar expression as though they knew something, but would not, or could not, impart it. She felt as though an atmosphere of mystery surrounded her. Ah, if he would but come—the sight of him would dispel all this! Once she spoke to the women-servants more sternly than she had ever spoken to them before.

"Is there anything kept from my knowledge," she asked, "that you whisper together and look so strange?"

"No, my lady," was the answer; but one by one they stole away lest she should ask them more.

Lord Rhysworth was the first who came. He looked in surprise at the beautiful, white face—the face he had always seen so bright and radiant, but which was now so full of terrible pain. Lady Allanmore held out her hand to him in greeting, and clung quite unconsciously to him. It was as though she had found a friend in the midst of her distress.

"I am in great trouble, Lord Rhysworth," she said. "Sir Karl left me last evening at half-past seven to transact some business, and nothing has been heard of him since."

"So your groom told me, my dear Lady Allanmore, and most grieved and distressed am I to hear it. You know you may rely upon me. I am entirely at your service. What would you wish me to do?"

"I cannot tell. It is a trouble so new and bewildering that I cannot determine what to do."

"Do you know in what direction Sir Karl went, or the nature of his business?" asked Lord Rhysworth.

"No, I do not; and it is that which distresses me so. He told me that he would explain all to me when he returned."

Looking up suddenly, she saw Lord Rhysworth's eyes fixed upon her with the same expression that she had seen in the servants, and which had so greatly annoyed her.

"You know something," she said, "and you are keeping it from me!"

Before he had time to answer, the door opened, and the Squire entered.

"Dolores, what is this I hear?" he cried. "Sir Karl gone! What in Heaven's name does it mean?"

"Gone, papa!" she repeated in helpless bewilderment. "No one said he was gone! He is missing, and I am afraid some accident has happened to him."

"Missing! He must be somewhere, child! How ill you look, my darling! What a trouble this is to fall upon your dear head!"—and the Squire took his daughter in his arms and kissed the sweet, pale face over and over again. "My poor pretty darling, I can hardly comprehend that such trouble should come to you."

"My very name means sorrow," she replied.

The Squire looked at her piteously. His face wore the same expression that she had seen on Lord Rhysworth's; and she cried—

"You know something, papa, and you are keeping it from me!"

"Sit down, my darling," returned the Squire, "and tell me all that passed after I went home. I left you talking to your husband on the lawn; he was telling you that he could not drive me home because he had a business appointment. Where was that appointment, and with whom."

"I do not know; he said that he would explain it all to me on his return."

Then quite unexpectedly she caught the glance that passed between the Squire and Lord Rhysworth. It was one of secret intelligence.

"If you know anything of Karl, oh, tell me!" she cried. "Do not keep me in suspense."

Neither of the men answered her; but the Squire drew her closely to him.

"My darling, we will do all we can," said the elder man, after a few moments. "There shall not be a place unsearched to which it is probable he has gone; let that assurance comfort you."

"But, papa, tell me whether you know anything of him? Has anything been heard? Why do people look so strange? Why do they whisper to one another?"

"They are all puzzled, my dear, I should imagine," he replied; "and it is a puzzle."

She clung to him with weeping eyes.

"Do you think any accident has happened to him?" she asked; and the Squire gravely shook his head.

"No, Dolores, I do not."

"Then where can he be? Oh, papa, bring him back to me—do bring him back! I must see him! You have been kind to me all my life; be doubly kind now; bring him to me. I—I cannot live without him!" She turned her miserable face to Lord Rhysworth. "Help me," she cried—"help me to find Sir Karl!"

"My dear lady, we will do all that we can," he answered.

She flung up her arms in despair.

"He will never come back again!" she wailed. "I have felt it in my heart all along, it was too bright to last—too bright! I told him so, and he laughed at me. Papa, it will kill me!"

"Nay, my darling, you must live for me and for the children," replied the Squire. "Besides, you must not give up hope yet. Lord Rhysworth will drive me over to Deeping, and we will get men to search the woods. Take courage."

But her heart was heavy with dread. They left her, and were absent many hours. She looked so white and wan, so fragile and heart-broken, when they returned, that tears came into Lord Rhysworth's eyes. The children were with her. She raised her pallid face, but it seemed as though all power of speech had left her. The Squire spoke first.

"We have no news, Dolores—neither good nor bad; we have not heard or seen anything of him."

With a faint sigh she laid her head on his breast.

"My darling," cried the Squire, "you must not give way in this fashion; you must not, indeed! Try to rouse yourself. Suppose an accident has happened to your husband, and he wants careful nursing; you will be quite unfit to help him. Promise me now to take some nourishment, and then I will tell you something."

"I will," she gasped.

In silence the Squire poured out some wine, and in silence she drank it. Was it her fancy, or did she hear the Squire whisper to Lord Rhysworth, "We had better tell her. She must know it; I fear it is true?"

She turned to him quickly; he did not know how her senses were sharpened by pain.

"I hear you, papa," she said—"tell me at once: hide nothing from me. Take my hands in yours and hold them fast; that will give me strength to listen to what you have to say."

"My dearest Dolores, some of it may be mere surmise, but what we know to be true I will lay before you; and, although it goes to my heart to do it, I must. First, do you remember that Karl received a letter yesterday morning which seemed to distress him very much? He declined to show it to you, although you asked him to do so. The reading of that letter completely changed him, if you remember; he was not himself all day, he neither spoke nor smiled. We both remarked it; even the servants noticed it, and thought that he was not well. I want you to bear all this in mind; it is one link in the chain of evidence. Then, after looking miserably unlike himself all day, he told us that he could not drive me home at night, because he had an appointment. When we asked him about it, he seemed distressed and anxious. The inference that I draw from all this is, that the person who wrote the letter is the person he went to see. I do not think there is any doubt about that, do you, Rhysworth?"

"No, I do not," was the reply.

Dolores raised her fair head with a look of relief.

"That seems clear, papa. I wonder I did not think of it before. As you say, that letter completely changed him I remember his face as he thrust the letter into his pocket; he was not like himself after that. The note troubled him, I am sure."

"What we want to discover," continued the Squire, "is the writer of the letter, and the person that he went to see. I am afraid, Dolores, that we have a clew. Whether it will pain you or not, my child, I cannot tell; but I am afraid—nay, I may say that I am quite sure that the person your husband went to meet was Lola de Ferras."

She sprang from his arms and cried out; but her words were unintelligible. Her ghastly face frightened them.

"I will not believe it," she said, after awhile. "My husband would not go to meet Lola de Ferras, the woman who hates me, and who has sworn vengeance against me. Papa, why do you say that?"

"My dear, it is true. As I was driving home along the Deeping road last night with James Ashford, I saw a lady walking. Her eyes were cast down, and she seemed buried in thought; but I recognized her in a moment as Lola de Ferras. Wishing to be sure, I said to James, 'Who is that?' He looked and answered immediately, 'Miss de Ferras, sir.' But I noticed that the moment she saw my attention drawn toward her she pulled down her veil over her face and walked on swiftly. She evidently did not want me to see her. I drove past her and took no notice. I saw that she was going toward Scarsdale, and I wondered at that, because I knew you had not parted on good terms. You had told me so. Now Lord Rhysworth will tell you what he saw."

"I do not know, Miss de Ferras," said his lordship. "But last evening I went for a walk through the woods. You know where the Deeping Hurst woods join yours? A path branches off there, and leads to the palings that skirt your portion of the woods. I followed it, and, when I reached the palings I stood for some moments leaning against them. Looking toward the further end, I saw Sir Karl walking with a lady. She was crying, and seemed to be pleading to him. I could see that she was tall, with a graceful figure, and a dark beautiful face, over which she drew her veil. She presently said something to Sir Karl, and he turned and looked in my direction. Whether he saw me or not I cannot tell; but as he turned I walked away quickly, as I had no wish to appear intrusive. That is all I have to tell you, Lady Allanmore."

She raised her despairing eyes to her father's face.

"There is one person more who can give information," said the Squire; "and that is Ashford, the groom. He, I think, saw the last of Sir Karl."

He rang the bell, trying to hide from his sight his daughter's colorless face.

"If I were but twenty years younger," he said, to himself, "I would follow him to the end of the world and thrash him! Send James Ashford here," he said, to the servant who answered the summons.

In a few minutes the groom stood before them. He looked pale and agitated.

"Don't ask me, sir," he said, "to distress my lady I cannot speak before her." Like every other servant in the house, he almost worshiped his beautiful, gentle mistress, who never spoke sharply, and who was so unexacting. "I cannot distress my lady," he said again; but the Squire answered him sternly:

"You must speak the truth. Where did you see Sir Karl last?"

"My lady," cried the man, in great trouble, "I would rather be killed than pain you."

"Speak," she said, in a faint voice; "I must know. Do not be afraid. Where did you see Sir Karl last?"

"At the end of the wood, my lady, at the white gate. I had put up the ponies, and was going, where I do go sometimes to smoke my pipe, to the lodge. At the white gate I saw my master standing talking to a lady. I could not help seeing that her hands were clasped round his arm, as though she was begging of him to do something. He was talking very earnestly to her. After a time she smiled and looked pleased; then they walked away together."

"In what direction?" asked the Squire.

"Toward the Deeping road; and I thought that perhaps the master was taking the lady to the station."

"Who was the lady, James?" asked the Squire.

"It was madame's daughter, the young French lady who lived at Beaulieu."

"You are quite sure?" said Lord Rhysworth.

"Quite sure, my lord. I have often driven her home from Deeping Hurst to Beaulieu. I was groom there, my lord, before I came here."

"That will do; you may go," said the Squire; and the three were left alone again.

They looked at one another for some moments in silence. The Squire was the first to speak.

"I am afraid," he said gravely, "that this is a bad case. I hate to sit in judgment upon any man, much less a man whom I loved so well as Karl. Dolores, your best plan will be to go to your husband's rooms, and see if there is any trace of that letter."

"I have not the strength to walk up stairs," she replied; and her pallid face showed how true the words were.

"Then I will go for you," said the Squire.

He was not absent long; and he returned with the letter in his hand. He had found it just as Sir Karl had thrust it into the pocket of his coat. He held it out to his daughter

"I have read it, Dolores," he said; "and, my dear, I am afraid the simple but shameful truth is, that Lola de Ferras has persuaded your husband to go away with her. Read the letter yourself."

Could Not Lie On Her Left Side.

WAS TROUBLED WITH PAIN IN HER HEART FOR SIX YEARS.

Expected Her Friends Would Find Her Dead.

Mrs. C. Bondreau, Campbellton, N.B., was completely cured by MILBURN'S Heart and Nerve Pills.

She tells of her experience in the following letter: "I was troubled with a pain in my heart and weakness for six years. Most of the time I could not lie on my left side. I consulted a doctor but got no relief and was completely discouraged. I did not think I would live long and expected my friends would find me dead. A friend brought me a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and I took them to please her, not thinking they would do me any good. I had not used half the box when I commenced to feel myself getting better and by the time I had taken two boxes I was completely cured and can recommend them to all sufferers from heart trouble."

Men who look much older than they are never appear to such disadvantage as with the wife who keeps her matronly beauty. The secret of health and the manly vigor which goes with health is nutrition. When the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition are diseased there is loss of nutrition, and corresponding physical weakness.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and its allied organs, which prevent nutrition, and makes men healthy and vigorous.

"I was a great sufferer from dyspepsia for over two years, and was a complete physical wreck," writes Mr. Preston E. Feaster macher, of Egypt, Lehigh Co., Pa. "I also suffered much with constipation. I tried many different medicines which were recommended to me the trouble but these only made me worse. I had such a weak and debilitated appearance that it seemed as if I had hardly any blood in my whole body. At last I came across an advertisement of Dr. Pierce's. I at once tried Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets.' I used about eight vials of the 'Pellets' and ten bottles of the 'Discovery' which brought me back to my former state of health."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets cures constipation.

Discharged Himself.

An amusing story is told of a young Scotch lad who in a very quiet, determined way made his exit from a house in which he had been but a little while installed as a domestic help. He had been told that he would be dismissed if he broke any of the china under his charge.

On the morning of a great dinner party he was intrusted, rather rashly, with a great load of plates, which he was to carry upstairs from the kitchen to the dining room and which were piled upon his two hands.

In going upstairs his foot slipped, and the plates were broken to atoms. He at once went to the drawing room, put his head in at the door and shouted:

"The plates are a' smashed, and I'm awa'!"

The following market letter has been received by Messrs. McMillan & Maguire, stock brokers, Hunter street:

May 18th, 9.00 a. m.—A disturbing influence all last week was the speculative boom in cotton market and the reported cut in the price of steel billets which has now been denied, has been used to depress the security market. The reduction in prices in some lines in the iron and steel industry cannot be twisted in to a bear argument on stocks inasmuch as the decline still leaves prices above last year's level and encourages a cessation of the heavy import demand and increases the home and foreign inquiry from customers. In the most trustworthy circles of information no confidence is placed in the reports heard in some quarters that the iron and steel business is on the down grade. The iron industry is watched keenly, for it is there that one of the first indications of the ebb of prosperity is expected to be discovered.

In conclusion it may be stated that a city of N.Y. 3½-2 p.c. bond issue of $3,000,000 has been subscribed 10 times over at prices averaging one p.c. better than last previous sale of bonds and this event has been spoken of as a sign of a returning demand on the part of capital for bond investments. The bond market has suffered severely from high rate of interest. It became more profitable to lend money at prevailing high rate of interest than to invest it in bonds having lower rates. The effect of this is shown in the records of the Stock Exchange bond sales. Thus far this year sales have been $245,000,000 against $394,100,000 last year.

H. & S.

New York, May 18th, 9.45 a. m. — Saturday bank statement considered unfavourable but the prevailing tone of newspapers comment bullish. Crop conditions satisfactory. Harriman condition favourable, no operation considered necessary. Reported B.R.T. earnings show gain about $4,000 a day. Good borrowing demand in loan crowd. Banks gained since Friday $233,000.

DOW, JONES & CO.

Chief interest to-day will centre in foreign exchange as to whether there will be gold exports arranged for to-morrow's steamers. From what we hear, we would not be surprised if over a million were engaged. Foreign exchange in favour of such movement. Bear element probably use this news as an offset this morning to the London stronger markets and while general sentiment is depressed from recent disappointing action of market and continued labour trouble and Saturday's unfavourable statement market will probably continue narrow but do not expect to see any material further selling or important weakness develop at the moment. There has been great deal of liquidation during past week which has strengthened condition of market and we rather expect to see somewhat steadier market.

IN AUSTRALIA.

South Africa Losing Her Supremacy for Feathers Since Establishment of Ostrich Farms in the Antipodes.

Ostrich farming in Australia is fast booming to the front and sending out a feathery product which is far superior than any ever derived from Africa itself. In speaking of this subject, the manager of a big ostrich feather house, said:

"A South African visitor traveling through Australia suggested a few years ago the feasibility of ostrich farming in that country. The right sort of country and the right sort of climate obtained there, he said, to make the venture a success even beyond that of sheep farming. Within the following year the first Australian ostrich farm was started in a Sydney suburb.

"The farm is located near one of the immense headlands guarding the entrance to Port Jackson, and commands a magnificent panoramic view of the waters of the broad Pacific. Kraals were built, exactly as the animals are housed in Africa, and twenty-two fine, healthy birds were imported and fed on maize and vegetable matter. The supply of water on the farm is limited, but it is found that ostriches require but little water to thrive.

The Birds Thrive.

"The experience in raising the birds and gathering their feathers is practically the same in Australia as it is elsewhere—the animals thrive even better under their new conditions than they did in their native land—and it's safe to say Africa is not going to have a monopoly in plume harvesting. One of the ostriches on the Sydney farm yielded a feather 27 inches long and 15 inches wide and of the purest white. In South Africa the animals mature at three years, but in Australia two and a half years is their full time. The feathers, of course, are most valuable when the bird is matured.

"After the feathers are clipped, they are carefully strung and dried, after which they are graded for the workshop. Owing to more favorable climatic conditions and to better care and food, the feathers are superior to any sent from Africa, and there is a ready sale for them in the open market where the supply just now is unable to meet the demand.

Hatching Young Ostriches.

"The same advantage found in arriving at speedy maturity and in securing superior feathers is likewise obtained in the matter of hatching young ostriches. The old birds as a rule breed three times in two years, usually in the cooler months, when they lay as high as twenty-eight eggs, out of which it is safe to count on 50 per cent. hatching. The young birds grow amazingly fast, and within a few years a farm, starting with only ten birds ought to number several hundred.

"During the breeding season the life of the ostrich expert is not a pleasant one. The mother birds are exceptionally vicious, and must be approached with care. Their weapons of offense are their short wings and their wonderful legs. A kick from an ostrich would break the leg of a strong man as if he had been struck with the iron-shod heel of a vicious mule."

"The Plough and Harrow."

The quaint little hostelry known as the Plough and Harrow, King street, Hammersmith, is shortly to be demolished, to be replaced by a modern drinking palace. The date of its establishment as recorded over the entrance in 1419, and if this be correct it is probably one of the oldest licensed houses in London. Being situated on "the road to the west," it is not unlikely that the date is correct, but in the absence of corroborative evidence the statement must be received with a caution. The London Daily Graphic, however, says there is undoubtedly evidence pointing to a respectable antiquity, for in the churchwardens' accounts the following entry relating to a burial occurs:—"1669, for the man at the ploughe, 02. 06." The sign is suggestive of the time, not so very long ago, when Hammersmith was a rural hamlet whose chief inhabitants were farmers and market gardeners. No "romance of the road" is associated with the house, which was doubtless largely used as a halting place by the wagoners of bygone days, who traveled the Great Western Road, of which King street forms a part. In the rear there is a large yard with stables and coach-house, which, having outlived its original purpose, has been used as a farrier's shop for many years. The front of the building is severely plain, having apparently been refronted at some recent date, the only redeeming feature being an ancient "ale-pole," with a swinging signboard, the ironwork of which is very good.

His Weight in Gold For the Poor.

—"A Hindoo stood in a scale, and his weight was measured in goldpieces. That," said a traveler, "was the strange spectacle that I once beheld in India. There was a great crowd looking on, and it took a great many goldpieces to equal the Hindoo's weight, for he was fat. Finally, though, the big scale balanced, and then everybody began to shout: "Tulabhara! Tulabhara! Tulabhara!" The fat man got out of the scale. He and his friends took the gold, and, going through all the poorer quarters of the town, they distributed it among the destitute. This, I was informed, was a kind of religious ceremony among a certain sect. Every male at the time in his life when it was thought his weight would be greatest was put in a scale, and gold to equal him in bulk was measured out and distributed in alms. As a rule, each man was forty-seven when his weight was taken. They hold in India that at forty-seven a man is at his fattest."—Philadelphia Record.

A Story With a Bad Moral.

In a prosperous town in Mexico lives a merchant whose wealth grew out of a combination of good luck and drunkenness. An uncontrollable desire for drink cost him position after position, and he drifted down to Mexico and became a news agent. He sold lottery tickets. He had to report on drawing day what unsold tickets he had and forward them. He got drunk the day before one of the big drawings. Two days later he sobered up and found himself in possession of several hundred dollars' worth of unsold tickets. He did not possess $10 in the world. He examined the list and found that a number of the unsold tickets had drawn prizes aggregating $35,000 in gold. He collected the winnings, paid for the unsold tickets and took an oath of perpetual total abstinence. That was years ago. He has never touched liquor since and is today a wealthy man. The moral is bad, but the story is too good to suppress.

Deeper Meaning.

"I went to the church fair last night, and I think I see a new meaning in that old adage now."

"What's that?"

"It's my idea that none but the brave have any business there."

LINKED TO THE PAST

LIKEWISE TO BRITISH CROWN BY OFFICE OF LIEUT.-GOVERNOR.

Some Governors Ontario Was Known—Our Military Governors Before Confederation of the Dominion—A Slave-Owning Governor—Curious Incidents That Give Sidelight on Authority Exercised by Early Incumbents.

By the office of Lieutenant-Governor, Ontario is linked to an interesting past, and also to the British Crown. On ordinary occasions the Lieutenant-Governor of the province represents the Dominion Government, but there are times when he becomes the direct representative of the Sovereign. Such an occasion is the opening or closing of the Legislature, the celebration of the King or Queen's birthday or the holding of an official levee. All bills are assented to "in his Majesty's name." In recognition of this viceregal character it has been decided that the Lieutenant-Governor is entitled at the times mentioned to have six bars of the National Anthem played.

The office of Lieutenant-Governor as we have it to-day is a continuation and a modification of that of Governor as administered from 1792 by various incumbents. The prerogative of mercy was withdrawn at Confederation from the provincial Governors, and their powers were limited to those specially conferred by statute. For their official conduct they are responsible to the Dominion Government, at whose pleasure they hold office.

Our Military Governors.

In the early days of Ontario, or Upper Canada, as it was then known, the Governor was generally a military officer. His principal duty was that of commander-in-chief of the militia. If he could spare the time he would devote some attention to civil affairs, but it was not uncommon for the Governor to treat them as minor matters to be dealt with by subordinates. The Governor was sent out from England, or called to Canada from some other colony. This system resulted in frequent interregna, when the office fell to the hands of an administrator, or President, as he was known, because he was president of the Privy Council. With only a few of the names of our early Governors and presidents is the average citizen of Ontario now familiar. The subject has been dealt with exhaustively by Mr. D. B. Read, K.C., in his book entitled, "The Lieutenant-Governors of Upper Canada and Ontario. Simcoe and Brock, of course, stand out pre-eminent. The latter, who did not bear the title of Governor, but of president, is enshrined imperishably in the memory of all Canadians. Simcoe is distinguished because he was the first Governor of Ontario, and laid the foundation of British institutions in this province. To his good judgment we owe the fact that Toronto, then known as York, became the capital of the province. He saw in the situation of this city the prophecy of future greatness. Bu this enterprise a highway to Lake Simcoe was opened up and named Yonge street after Sir George Yonge, Secretary of War in 1791. Governor Simcoe combined the qualities of a soldier and a statesman better than any of his successors.

A Slave-Owning Governor.

Along with Simcoe came to this province Peter Russell, who was Inspector-General under Governor Simcoe. On the retirement of the latter Russell became administrator. Some years after his term of office he advertised for sale in the Gazette and Oracle: "A black woman named Peggy, aged 40, and a black boy, her son, aged 15." It seems strange nowadays that a British Governor should own slaves, but though there were anti-slavery laws even in those days, it seems that these particular individuals did not come within their scope, as they were imported prior to the enactments, and the law applied only to the future.

One obtains a curious sidelight on the authority exercised by the early Governors from incidents attributed to Governor Peter Hunter. There had been delay in issuing the patents for land to certain new arrivals. Governor Hunter called the Provincial Secretary, Mr. Jarvis, publicly to account for it. Mr. Jarvis said he had been unable to attend to the matter owing to pressure of business. "Then," said the Governor, "if they are not forthcoming every one of them by noon on Thursday next (two days hence), by George, I'll unJarvis you." Whatever this mysterious threat meant, it had its effect. The same Governor issued a notice requiring public officials to be in attendance every working day at their offices from ten in the morning till seven in the evening. It was during his regime that a shortage of lawyers was discovered in the province. Accordingly an Act was passed authorizing the Governor to license without examination persons of talent to practise law. D'Arcy Boulton was one of the appointees who were afterwards dubbed "heaven-descended barristers." Governor Hunter was the first Governor in Ontario to die in office.

His successor, who was merely a stop-gap, appointed to carry on the province until the next Governor arrived, got into an embarrassing trouble. On becoming administrator Commodore Alexander Grant found in 1805 that a number of salaries, amounting to about 43,000, were unpaid. His predecessor had had these formerly paid out of the balance in the hands of the Receiver-General after other expenses had been paid. As he was only temporarily in office, Mr. Grant followed that precedent, and ordered payment without authority of the Legislature. It caused an uproar and led to a formal demand by the Assembly that the money be replaced in the treasury. The difficulty was finally got around by the Legislature voting the money spent. We are quite familiar with the process now which is carried on by a Governor's warrant. The agitation against the expenditure was, curiously enough, promoted by Mr. Justice Thorpe, who, though on the bench, led the Opposition. For a long time he filled the dual positions. Finally he was removed from office as judge, and appointed to the bench as Chief Justice of Sierra Leone, whether he went, abandoning his Canadian political prospects.

A Governor's Libel Suit.

When Francis Gore arrived from Bermuda Mr. Grant's term of office as president expired. Mr. Gore enjoyed the distinction of serving two terms as Governor at separate times. He enjoyed another distinction which was less gratifying. One of the high officials, Surveyor-General Watt, had sided with Mr. Justice Thorpe in his agitation against the Government. Mr. Gore accordingly had Mr. Watt, an appointee of the Imperial Government, removed from office. Some time afterwards a libelous pamphlet appeared, attacking Mr. Watt. It was charged that the Governor was the instigator of the pamphlet. A libel suit was entered against him by Mr. Watt. It was not shown that Mr. Gore had either written the document, or had it printed, but he was accused of circulating it, inasmuch as he had handed a copy of it to Attorney-General Boulton. The judge declared that the delivery of the pamphlet constituted a libel, and the jury found for the plaintiff. Out of this quarrel grew the attack upon Mr. Gore which was made in the Imperial Parliament on the basis of discontent and oppression in the province. Mr. Gore retired to face his accusers in England. The attack was a failure. In those days the Governors had great powers, but they had many drawbacks, not the least being that they had to defend themselves and their administrations both in Canada and in England.

Wit at a Theatre.

A provincial theatre is the east of Scotland is much tormented by a wit who is a regular attender, and who insists on keeping up a running commentary on the play. Sometimes his remarks enliven a dull piece, and so the audience does not object to his presence. His latest hit occurred the other evening, when a beautiful and thrilling melodrama was being enacted.

The principal actor was laid aside suddenly by illness, and his part fell to be taken up by his understudy, who was talented but slender. At a critical moment in the play the Princess faints and falls, when the hero, coming to her assistance, lifts her in his arms and carries her out. The Princess on this particular occasion was as substantial as she was lovely, and the slender understudy realized the magnitude of the task that was put upon him. When she fainted he loaned over her, but hesitated perceptibly.

The hesitation was not lost on the wit, who, from his seat in the gallery, broke the stilled hush by exclaiming in a thin, tremulous voice—

"Just tak' what you can, my man, and come back for the rest!"

TO SETTLE STRIKES.

A New Board of Conciliation is Proposed.

HON. MR. LATCHFORD'S BILL.

The Old Law Extended—Compulsory Reports on Certain Difficulties—Large Demand For Fishing Leases of Small Lakes—Discussion on Smallpox and Vaccination—Private Bills Advanced a Stage.

Toronto, May 19.—Yesterday was private members' day in the Legislature, and half the members duly observed it by staying away from the Parliament Buildings. It required only an hour's time to get through the order paper, and there was hardly a discordant note in the chamber during that time.

To Settle Strikes.

Hon. Mr. Latchford introduced a bill to create a Provincial Board of Conciliation and Arbitration for the settlement of difficulties between employers of labor and employes.

The board will consist of one employer of labor, one employe, and the the two will select a third arbitrator. The secretary of the Bureau of Labor will be secretary of the board.

In case of disputes, the secretary is authorized to proceed to the scene and try to arrange the difficulty. If he does not succeed, the board will then intervene. A request for intervention must, however, come from both the parties directly interested. If the board makes an award, it shall be binding for two years, but can be terminated at the end of one year, on 60 days' notice from either party.

The bill provides for a penalty of $500 in the case of an employer breaking the award, and $50 in the case of an employe.

When a strike is deemed to be one that affects the general public, such as a street railway strike, the board may intervene, of its own motion, but the parties are not bound to accept the award.

Mr. Hoyle introduced a bill respecting lien notes and other like contracts.

A number of private bills were advanced a stage.

Smallpox Epidemic of 1902.

Mr. Barr moved for a return of papers concerning the smallpox epidemic during the year 1902, also, concerning vaccination during the same period. The doctor said he did not think that everything had been done that should have been done by the Board of Health during the past year to prevent the spread of the disease. He spoke against vaccination, and favored the appointment of a commission to enquire into the subject.

Mr. Stratton did not know whether it would be wise to bring down all the papers, but he promised to give Dr. Barr every assistance in obtaining all the information in the hands of the department. There was a variety of opinion among medical men themselves, and he believed that the best opinion was that vaccination was efficacious in preventing the spread of smallpox. He did not know of any province or state that has handled the smallpox epidemic as well as the Ontario Board of Health.

Dr. Barr withdrew his motion.

Mr. St. John moved for a return of copies of the reports of Inspector of Apiaries, for the last five years, provided for, under the Act for the Suppression of Foul Brood among Bees. The order was granted.

Lakes Leased For Net Fishing.

Mr. Latchford replied to Mr. Hendrie that Lake Manitou was leased to the Manitou Fish Company. The lakes the Government were considering the advisability of leasing were Rabbit Lake, Nipissing; Black Sturgeon Lake, Thunder Bay; Lake Wahnipitae, Nipissing, and Lake Geneva, Algoma. Leases for several other lakes have also been applied for. Rod fishermen have the right to fish in Lake Nepigon and Manitou and in Lake Nepigon the Government has reserved the right to grant licenses or permits to bona fide settlers to take fish for domestic purposes with nets. The rights of rod fishermen would be protected in all future leases.

Replying to Dr. Nesbitt, the Premier furnished the House with a statement of the balances to the credit of the province in the current accounts in each month of the year 1902 in the Commerce, Ontario, Traders and Union Banks.

Mr. Latchford read, at the request of Dr. Nesbitt, a statement of the moneys remitted on colonization roads account during April and May, 1902.

In reply to a question from Mr. Lucas, the Attorney-General said Hon. A. M. Ross, County Clerk of York, died Sept. 30, 1900, and the office was still vacant. H. E. Irwin, Clerk of the Peace, was acting County Clerk.

The net income received from both offices was as follows: 1900, $5,652.53; 1901, $5,039.17; 1902, $4,926.74. The net income as Clerk of the Peace was: 1900, $3,029.18; 1901, $2,997.73; 1902, $2,878.10.

Mr. Gibson hoped the position would be permanently filled in the early future.

KENT'S LONG SENTENCE.

Application For New Trial Denied—Wife and Friends Expected Acquittal—Wife Has Gone Insane.

Rochester, N. Y., May 19.—Leland Dorr Kent was yesterday morning sentenced to Auburn Prison for twenty years by Judge Sutherland.

In sentencing Kent, Judge Sutherland said: "For myself I will say that I concur entirely in the conclusion which the jury arrived at as to the manner by which Miss Dingle met her death. Under the statute making the act of aiding another in the commission of suicide, manslaughter in the first degree, the supposition is that she was the principal actor and that your part in it was subsidiary and incidental only. But I have no doubt that her wish to die, her consent to die, and her participation to some extent in the preliminary preparations for death would not have necessarily absolved you from the graver charge of murder, because you wilfully and knowingly inflicted the mortal wound.

Wife Has Gone Insane.

Buffalo, May 19.—Mrs. Leland Dorr Kent has gone insane as the result of the conviction of her husband. Her physicians describe her condition as acute dementia, and offer no hope for her recovery. While her life is not in danger, it is extremely probable that she will spend the balance of her days in an asylum. The Kents had confidential hopes for acquittal, in which case Mrs. Kent had agreed to forgive her husband and resume their home life as it was before the Kent-Dingle tragedy.

G.T.R. Responsible.

Detroit, Mich., May 19.—The coroner's jury yesterday rendered a verdict, finding the Grand Trunk Railway responsible for the accident at the corner of Canfield and Dequindre streets, the night of May 8, when a Grand Trunk train ran into a number of Polish excursionists from Toledo.

A THOUSAND KILLED

Venezuela Has a Desperate Battle With Revolutionists.

GREAT GOVERNMENT LOSSES.

Revolutionists Inflict Heavy Damage on the Government Forces, But Are Forced to Retreat, Only to Come Back Again in a Few Days—Within Sixty Miles of La Guayra.

Washington, May 19.—Advices of a thoroughly reliable character received in Washington under date of May 1 show that the Venezuelan revolutionists are not only holding their own but are making considerable headway. The advices say: "Within 60 miles of La Guayra, in the Rio Chico district, the revolutionists are holding forth, and, although the Government a few weeks ago sent an expedition there to drive them out, they succeeded in only making them retreat, and in a few days they were back again. A battle took place in which the Government lost over 1,000 men, and about 300 wounded were brought back to La Guayra after a two days' fight. On the other hand, the revolutionists have not succeeded in ousting the Government or in winning any particular fight."

DISORDER IN DUBLIN.

Members of the Gaelic League Create a Wild Time at a Meeting in the Rotunda.

Dublin, May 18.—Scenes of extreme disorder were witnessed at a meeting of citizens here to-night in the rotunda in support of the Irish parliamentary fund owing to the presence of members of the Gaelic League who are opposed to giving King Edward a friendly welcome on his coming visit to Ireland. Timothy Harrington, Lord Mayor of Dublin, was in the chair.

While John Redmond was addressing the audience Mrs. McBride, formerly Miss Maude Gonn, advanced to the platform and interrupted the proceedings by asking Lord Mayor Harrington whether he intended, as head of the municipality, to oppose the presentation of an address of welcome to the King. Mr. Harrington replied in an evasive way. Mrs. McBride insisted on a direct answer, whereupon scenes of the wildest disorder occurred and prevented John Redmond from continuing his speech.

The members of the Gaelic League tried to storm the platform amid cries of "put them out." Fierce collisions between the Gaelic Leaguers and the other members of the assembly ensued. Chairs were hurled to and from the platform, and many persons were injured in the desperate efforts made to eject the disturbers and restore order.

John O'Donnell, member of parliament for South Mayo, was badly injured in the head during the scuffle. Many persons fled terror stricken from the hall.

John Redmond continued his speech and eventually a semblance of order was regained and a resolution in accordance with the object of the meeting was carried.

Railway Bridge to Canada.

Niagara Falls, May 19.—A new bridge is to connect Canada and the States at Niagara Falls. It is to be a 66-foot right of way, and the concession, in so far as the States are concerned, has been granted. The right to enter Canada at this point is considered very valuable by railway men, and in this case operations began in 1900 and have been conducted with the utmost secrecy.

Cut Down in Time.

Hamilton, May 19.—Miss Kelly, a young woman who lives at 57 North East avenue, is the latest victim of the suicide mania that seems to prevail in the city. Yesterday morning she tried to hang herself, but fortunately was cut down before she had finished the job.

CARNEGIE STIRS A HORNET'S NEST.

Out With Declaration That Washington is the Centre of English World.

London, May 18.—To-day's Daily News contains a sensational interview with Mr. Andrew Carnegie, who insists that Washington is the natural capital of the English-speaking world. He says: "The colonies are not increasing in importance. Australia is a mere rind around an empty interior. South Africa is not a white man's country. The English Government's policy of encouraging emigration there, especially of women, is a crime. Canada's only chance of a future is to throw in its lot with the Americans. Your colonies put tariffs against the Motherland. They contain virtually no manufactures. The Empire has lost in the industrial race to America, but England has produced a Shakespeare. His works are more to me than the Bible, and his birthplace is to me more sacred than the holy sepulchre itself."

This interview is provoking very heated comments.

Notes.—One can't see why Carnegie's utterances should "provoke heated comments." His opinion is only the opinion of one man, and that one, a man not very well adapted to utter ex-cathedra remarks that should command attention. Carnegie is simply a rich man to whom wealth has added neither brains nor breadth of view. He has for a long time been making a display of his wealth and now seeks some other way to attract attention. Canadians have not exactly tumbled over each other to get his money and there is no reason why his crude political opinions should be accepted either. There are thousands of intelligent American workmen who are not rich, though some of them may have helped to make Mr. Carnegie's money, who are better reasoners, better thinkers and better adapted by mental equipment and habits of thought, to give opinions that deserve respect than the multo-millionaire.

WEST COAST WRECKERS.

Try to Loot a French Schooner, But Are Driven Off.

St. John's, Nfld., May 19. — The Norwegian steamer, Norkap, Captain Loud, which sailed from Boston on May 21, for Tilt Cove, has arrived here. She was unable to reach Tilt Cove, where she intended to load copper ore, owing to a heavy ice pack. Other incoming ships report having met with enormous ice floes and bergs, extending 200 miles seaward. The French schooner Navarisse has been driven ashore by the ice on the west coast. A number of local craft tried to loot her, but the French cruiser, Trude, appeared on the scene and compelled them to surrender their plunder.

Drowned in a Well.

Kingston, May 19.—Robert, the five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Smith, Lansdowne street, was drowned on Saturday night. Parents and child visited relatives at Mallir's Corners. In the evening, they found the boy missing; his hat was picked up outside, and investigation showed that he had fallen into a deep well.

More than half the battle in cleaning greasy dishes is in the soap you use. If it's Sunlight Soap it's the best. 43

Miss Hapgood tells how she was cured of Fallopian and Ovarian Inflammation—and escaped an awful operation by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered for four years with what the doctors called Salpingitis (inflammation of the fallopian tubes and ovaritis), which is a most distressing and painful ailment, affecting all the surrounding parts, undermining the constitution, and sapping the life forces. If you had seen me a year ago, before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and had noticed the sunken eyes, sallow complexion, and general emaciated condition, and compared that person with me as I am today, robust, hearty and well, you would not wonder that I feel thankful to you and your wonderful medicine, which restored me to new life and health in five months, and saved me from an awful operation."—MISS IRENE HAPGOOD, 1022 Sandwich St., Windsor, Ont.

Ovaritis or inflammation of the ovaries or fallopian tubes which adjoin the ovaries may result from sudden stopping of the monthly flow, from inflammation of the womb, and many other causes. The slightest indication of trouble with the ovaries, indicated by dull throbbing pain in the side, accompanied by heat and shooting pains, should claim your instant attention. It will not cure itself, and a hospital operation, with all its terrors, may easily result from neglect.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I can truly say that you have saved my life, and I cannot express my gratitude to you in words.

"Before I wrote to you telling how I felt, I had doctored for over two years steady and spent lots of money in medicine besides, but it all failed to do me any good. My menses did not appear in that time, and I suffered much pain. I would daily have fainting spells, headache, backache and bearing down pain, and was so weak that it was hard for me to do my work.

"I used your medicine and treatment as directed, and after taking three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, menses appeared, my womb troubles left me, and I have been regular ever since. I used fourteen bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier together, and am now restored to perfect health. Had it not been for you, I would have been in my grave.

"I will always recommend your wonderful remedies, and hope that these few lines may lead others who suffer as I did to try your remedies."—MRS. T. C. WILLADSEN, R. R. No. 1, Manning, Iowa.

Such unquestionable testimony proves the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over diseases of women.

Women should remember that they are privileged to consult Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., about their illness, entirely free.

Daily Examiner.

London (England) office—168 Fleet street, E C., Central Press Agency Limited, Specia Agents.

TUESDAY, MAY 19, 1903.

THAT $1200.

(Toronto Daily Star, Friday.)

Mr. R. R. Gamey, on being called into the witness box yesterday by the Commissioners—the counsel for the prosecution not caring to recall him—stated that the $900 of which he said nothing in his previous testimony was part of $1,200 which he borrowed from Mr. Frank Sullivan, giving his I.O.U. therefor. He says the three thousand dollars was divided equally between them, and then he borrowed $1,200 of Sullivan's half. As Sullivan denies the money transaction entirely, he will deny this.

This evidence brings the public no nearer a knowledge of the truth. Mr. Gamey asserts; others contradict. But, why did Mr. Gamey say nothing about the borrowing of this $1,200 from Sullivan in his statement in the Legislature, nor in his evidence? Why did he not confide the fact to the prosecuting counsel? Three reports testify that he said, when in Buffalo, that the $900 had nothing to do with the $1,500. He testified yesterday that he did not think the borrowing of this money from Sullivan had anything to do with the case.

How could he think that? Here is a man who says he was bribed by a Cabinet Minister, and was determined to expose the rascality. He says he halved the bribe-money with the man who acted as the go-between, and then borrowed $1,200 of this criminal sum from this other man, and yet regarded it as a private debt, and in his evidence made no mention of it. One would think that in borrowing this money his object would be to secure possession of it so that it could be produced in evidence. If his share of the money was not his own, why did he regard Sullivan's half as Sullivan's own, which he could borrow and say nothing about? Did he still regard this as a purely personal debt to Sullivan, and did he expect the latter, after swearing in the witness box that no money had been divided between them, to come forward later on with the I.O.U. and demand payment? As he was not going to pay this $1,200 into court, was he going to pay it back to Sullivan, and let that man benefit to that extent from a crime that he (Mr. Gamey) was opposing?

The man from Manitoulin makes the public dizzy trying to follow the tortuous course of his service to the public. If his main story were true, why should he resort to all these twistings and turnings?

INFLUENCE AND INDEPENDENCE

The controversary between Mr. Willison, of the Toronto News, and Goldwin Smith, has a most interesting side for the public. Mr. Willison intimated that Mr. Smith had failed to reach the influence his ability deserved because he persistently gave expression to unpopular opinions. It was an unfortunate remark, to say the least of it, and Mr. Smith was quick to point this out.

Public opinion changes, and the man who finds himself out of touch with it occasionally may not be in the wrong. He may see more clearly than his fellows, and he may convert them to his way of thinking. This rapid change of public thought is due to the mental activity of the few, by their education, can lead the many to accept their views.

Perhaps there is no man in Canada who has done more to arouse public sentiment than Mr. Smith. Sometimes he is alone in his conclusions, but he states them boldly, clearly, emphatically. Sometimes he has created a feeling of hostility by the assertion of his views on political and national issues. Yet he is the writer whose contributions to the press has attracted the most attention. The pen of no one will be more missed when it has ceased its work.

The independent in journalism is not the man who aims at being odd or peculiar in his discussions of public issues. He is most influential who is in accord with his party when it is right and is not afraid to castigate it when it is wrong. Towards this method of treatment there is a tendency in the press, and it is the most hopeful sign of the times.—Kingston Whig.

GREATLY ALARMED.

By a Persistent Cough, but Permanently Cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Mr. H. P. Burbage, a student at law in Greenville, S. C., has been troubled for four or five years with a continuous cough, which he says "greatly alarmed me, causing me to fear that I was in the first stages of consumption." Mr. Burbage, having seen Chamberlain's Cough Remedy advertised, concluded to try it. "I soon felt a remarkable change and after using two bottles of the 25 cent kind was permanently cured. CANADA'S ENORMOUS RAILWAY SUBSIDIES.

How we Have Aided Development by Gifts and Grants.

With a new railway proposition impending, it is just possible that some among us may desire to know how much public money and public property we have so far expended or granted to railways. Curiosity on this point is natural, and when satisfied, as it ought to be, it helps to form opinion with regard to the subsidy question.

OUR LARGEST OUTLAY.

One of the largest of our railway outlays is that upon the Intercolonial and Prince Edward Island Railways. When Confederation was accomplished, the sum of $10,786,725 had been spent upon the former road. That liability was transferred to the national debt, and we proceeded to complete the line and to operate it. The cost up to the end of June, 1901, including the pre-Confederation expenditures, was $63,975,261. The railway does not pay interest upon the investment, and the $2,000,000 a year, which the borrowed money calls for, comes from the general taxes. Nor has the road paid its way. From 1868 to 1901, the cost of operating was $6,591,495 in excess of the revenue. The Prince Edward Island Railway is also under Government ownership. Since we have been operating it the loss has been $2,073,215. To these two Government railways we have devoted $75,763,798.

TO THE GRAND TRUNK.

The Grand Trunk system is made up of a number of amalgamated roads. We did not designedly bonus the main line; nor did we grant a cent to the Great Western, which runs from Niagara Falls west through Hamilton and London. But when the Grand Trunk main line was under consideration in the fifties, old Canada granted by way of loan £3,000 per mile. This aid is put down at $15,142,633 and as it is never spoken of now it stands really in the position of a gift. The amalgamated lines were aided by Dominion, provincial and municipal bonuses. The Dominion bonuses amount to $2,060,232. This includes $1,320,000 for the extension to North Bay, and $500,000 towards the rebuilding of the Victoria Bridge at Montreal. The provincial aid which came from Ontario and Quebec, aggregates $2,971,346, and the municipal aid from the same provinces has been $5,396,695. The total of the public grants to the Grand Trunk has been first the loan of $15,142,633, and then the Federal, provincial and municipal grants, which amount to $11,167,273. Altogether the Grand Trunk has received $26,609,906.

AID TO THE C. P. R.

The Canadian Pacific Railway was a special case. It was an enterprise of great difficulty and exceedingly hazardous to those who entered upon it. In order to carry it through, a very liberal offer had to be made. The original terms called for $25,000,000, all the mileage the Government had built, and 25,000,000 acres of land. The cost of the Government lines was $31,122,213. To this was added $25,000,000. We took over a certain portion of the land grant, 6,793,014 acres, and allowed $10,189,521 for it. This brought the cost of the Canadian Pacific to the country up to $66,311,734. Since then the Quebec Government railways, the North Shore and the Q.M. and O., have passed to the Canadian Pacific. This transaction cost the Federal Government $2,394,000. That is to say, Ottawa accepted as a liability, the difference between the original expenditure and the sale price. We pay five per cent. to Quebec on the amount named. The Crow's Nest Pass subsidy was more recently granted. It stands at $3,321,740. As with the Grand Trunk, so with the Canadian Pacific, a number of existing lines were incorporated into it. Most of these were bonused by the Federal, provincial and municipal authorities.

THE CANADIAN NORTHERN.

A new candidate for public favour is the Canadian Northern, commonly known as the Mackenzie and Mann line, which is making its way across the continent. This railway includes the Manitoba and Northern Pacific, which received $641,000 from the Province of Manitoba. For other parts of the work the bonuses have been $2,543,200 from Ottawa, $1,375,571 from Ontario, and $40,000 from municipalities. In addition, there are large land grants—9,907,000 acres—upon the value of which bonds aggregating $3,660,000 have been issued, with the guarantee of Manitoba. This road has received so far $4,599,741, and the land. Further grants are expected for the Western and Eastern ends, as well as for the prairie division.

HOW MUCH WE HAVE GIVEN.

The sum total of railway grants in money, as reported by the Dominion Railway Department, amounts to a very large figure. It is thus set forth:

Federal bonuses	$168,586,736
Federal loans	16,964,533
Ontario bonuses	3,623,578
Ontario loans	26,000
Quebec bonuses	13,977,080
Quebec loans	3,722,956
New Brunswick loans	4,344,439
New Brunswick subscriptions to stock	300,000
Nova Scotia bonuses	2,619,316
Manitoba bonuses	941,953
Manitoba loans	900,000
British Columbia bonuses	47,500
Ontario Municipal grants	10,006,353
Ontario municipal loans	980,301
Ontario municipal subscriptions to stock	1,211,500
Quebec municipal grants	879,574
Quebec municipal loans	2,434,000
Quebec municipal subscriptions to stock	1,563,000
New Brunswick municipal grants	301,500
New Brunswick municipal subscriptions to stock	60,000
Nova Scotia municipal grants	435,595
Manitoba municipal grants	595,600
British Columbia municipal grants	27,500
Ten Territories	25,000

The figures add up thus:—

Government bonuses	$189,041,502
Government loans	20,612,489
Government subscriptions to stock	300,000
Municipal bonuses	12,821,086
Municipal loans	5,414,211
Municipal subscriptions to stock	3,139,300
Total	$228,539,590

OTHER GRANTS.

These figures do not tell the entire story, for as has been pointed out, we drop $2,000,000 a year as interest upon our investment in Government lines, and we lose in operating these roads. Nor do we take into account the subsidies in the form of annual grants, of which there are several. One of these is $186,000 a year for the short line railway to St John, and another is $80,000 par annum for the line from Regina to Prince Albert. They omit also the land grants. By such grants the Federal Government has aided railways to the tune of 46,377,334 acres. Ontario has given away many millions, Nova Scotia has contributed 150,000 acres, and British Columbia 5,396,490. The various companies have received from the sale of lands $31,103,5-7. It is to be borne in mind that the figures are those only of actual grants. There are millions authorized as bonuses not yet earned, but payable when the railways are built.—Mail and Empire.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Cures When Physicians Fail.

A Tara, Ont., Gentleman Says "After I had Finished the Third Bottle of the Compound I Considered Myself a New Man."

For years, men and women in every rank and walk of life have been sounding the praises of Paine's Celery Compound, and telling of its victories over disease and death. Those who were most heavily burdened with disease, victims of suffering pronounced incurable by doctors, and who stood on the brink of the grave, are the people who most gratefully remember Prof. Phelps, of Darmouth College, the eminent physician and scientist who discovered Paine's Celery Compound, the medicine that never fails to conquer blood diseases, dyspepsia, rheumatism, neuralgia, liver and kidney troubles. Mr. T. Young, of Tara, Ont., happily rescued from a complication of dagerous ailments, writes:—

"After suffering for years with dyspepsia, sleeplessness, nervous prostration, loss of appetite, and a weak and tired feeling, and after consulting the best physicians in my locality, and having tried a great many so-called cures advertised in the papers, and receiving no benefit from any of them, I was persuaded to try a bottle of Paine's Celery Compound. I noticed an improvement before the first bottle was finished; and after I had finished the third bottle I considered myself a new man; all this was done by Paine's Celery Compound. I can now go about my work with my old time life and vigor; my sleep is sweet and sound and my appetite good."

Barbarities Not Exaggerated.

London, May 19.—Dr. Herman Adler, the chief rabbi, in the course of a pastoral charge to his congregation last night, referred to the "Jewish riots at Kischineff." The accounts published by the press, he said, had not exaggerated the extent of the barbarities committed. He had to-day received a letter, sent by a number of leading citizens of Kischineff, which fully corroborated what had been published. An indignation meeting of East End Hebrews was held last night.

Cheaper Postage to Australia.

Ottawa, May 19.—Sir William Mulock has received a cablegram from Sir Edmund Barton, agreeing to allow Canadian newspapers and periodicals to enter Australia at the Canadian rates of postage. Australia has thus fallen into line between Great Britain, Bermuda, the Bahamas and New Zealand. This is an enlargement of the Canadian publishers' field of enterprise which should bring considerable profit to him.

COULDN'T PUT HIS COAT ON.

Remarkable Cure of Dropsy by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

George Robertson, of Montreal, a Physical Wreck, Restored to Splendid Health by the Great Kidney Remedy.

Montreal, May 17. — (Special). — The case of George Robertson, of 392 James street, this city, is looked upon by those interested in medical matters as one of the most interesting on record. Mr. Robertson was a sufferer from Dropsy and was so bad that tapping was resorted to. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him.

Interviewed regarding his cure, Mr. Robertson said: "I was troubled with Dropsy and Rheumatism for five years. I was a total wreck before I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Before I got out of bed in the morning I could hardly put my feet on the floor, they were swollen so much from Dropsy.

"My arm used to swell at times, so that I could not put my coat on. Before I had taken two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills I felt greatly relieved. Seven boxes cured me completely. I also had Lumbago, but since I used Dodd's Kidney Pills I don't know what it is to be sick."

Dropsy, Lumbago and Rheumatism are all cured by diseased Kidneys. There can be no diseased Kidneys when Dodd's Kidney Pills are used.

Mr. Barr Deposed.

Winnipeg, May 19.—At a meeting of the Barr Colonists at Battleford a resolution was passed deposing him from the leadership and later he handed in his resignation in writing. The colonists will ask the Government for a commissioner.

May Wear Straw Hats.

Ottawa, May 18.—A militia order today notes that units performing their annual drill in camps may bring to camp and wear a straw hat, with puggaree, in accordance with a pattern approved and deposited in the Quartermaster-General's Department.

Weight-distributing.

Shoe soles are level and unyielding.

Foot soles bear upon them at four spots only, viz: at ball and heel, great toe and outer edge.

These are the calloused places, the tired, painy, overworked surfaces.

Nature intended that the whole area of the foot sole should support the body, as a child's foot on sand, an Indian's in a moccasin.

The RESILIA is the only shoe which distributes pressure evenly over the foot sole.

It supports the arch, eases the tired spots, and reduces greatly the labor in walking, as well as minimizing the strain on upper leather and sole of the shoe.

Observe foot sole, lower shoe.

FIELD DAY FOR M. P.'S

Many Topics Handled by the Commoners on Monday.

INSOLVENCY BILL DEFEATED.

Another Debate on Organized Labor With the Result That Mr. Puttee's Bill as Amended Stands For Third Reading—German Convicts Will Not Be Allowed to Land in Canada—Bills Advanced.

Ottawa, May 19.—Yesterday in the House was a field day for private members and all the private bills upon the order were advanced a stage.

Preferential Trade Question.

Dr. Sproule brought up the subject of Mr. Chamberlain's speech in the matter of preferential trade between Great Britain and her colonies. He wanted to know what were the further offers of preference from Canada to which Mr. Chamberlain referred. He also enquired whether there had been any recent correspondence with the Imperial Government regarding threatened retaliation by Germany.

The Minister of Finance replied: 'We have already taken the House into our confidence on the subject for the offer which was made for further preference is published in the conference blue book as an Imperial paper to which access is easily had, and the memorandum was fully read by myself in the budget speech. My honorable friend will find in that speech the offer made to the Imperial authorities at the Colonial Conference.

"That is the only offer?" Dr. Sproule asked again.

"Yes," Mr. Fielding replied. "With regard to the second part of my honorable friend's request we have had no recent correspondence with the Imperial Government on the action of Germany."

The Convicts of Germany.

Mr. Charlton asked whether the attention of the Government had been called to the alleged intention of the German Government to unload upon this country a supply of ex-convicts.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied: "We have no official information that the German authorities contemplate any such policy. If we had we would take immediate action to prevent any such policy being carried out. My impression is that we have sufficient power under existing laws to deal with such a question, but if our powers should not be adequate, we shall have no hesitation in asking Parliament to supplement them."

A number of private bills were passed.

Case For Criminal Courts.

Replying to a question by Mr. Clarke, Mr. Blair said that the attention of the Government had not been called to the verdict of the jury in the West Lorne accident on the Lake Erie and Detroit River Railway, April 23, last, and by which it is said three trainmen were killed. But, if the facts are as stated, it would appear to devolve upon the Provincial authorities, as charged with the administration of criminal justice, to take any action which might be proper in the premises. The Government has not yet been able to select a person possessing the precise qualification for taking charge of investigations in case of railway accidents, but is on the alert to secure such a person as is required. In the meantime, a temporary appointment has been made, and an investigation held in the case of the I.C.R. Mr. Blair further said that he was informed the Lake Erie and Detroit Railway Company had submitted no rules for the approval of the Government.

Elections' Act Amendment.

Mr. Clancey's bill to amend the Elections Act was considered by the House in Committee. The Minister of Justice submitted an amendment which it was agreed would meet the objects of the promoter. It provides that any person who, by force, abduction or false pretense, interferes with or prevents anybody from voting, shall be liable to a penalty of $200, collectable by any person who takes action. A similar penalty is imposed on a person convicted of telling an elector, for the purpose of intimidation, that the Dominion ballot is not secret. The bill, as thus amended, was read a third time and passed.

Prevention of Cruelty.

The House went into committee on Mr. Brock's bill, providing that cattle cars be provided with partitions to separate smaller animals, such as sheep or hogs, from cattle or horses, and after some objections had been pointed out by the Minister of Justice, Mr. Brock said he would accept the suggestion of the Minister of Justice, to consider the re-casting of the bill. It was accordingly laid over.

Mr. Campbell's bill, to constitute a milk can a vessel of eight gallons, was referred to a committee.

Insolvency Bill Rejected.

On the second reading of Mr. Monk's insolvency bill, Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that some of the provinces had amended their insolvency laws so as to make them satisfactory, and he hoped the other provinces would do likewise. He sympathized with the object of the measure, and said the subject of insolvency was under the consideration of the Department of Justice, but he could not promise to take any action even next session. Under the circumstances, if Mr. Monk insisted upon pushing the bill he would ask the House to vote it down.

Mr. Monk replied that the commercial classes were anxious for a uniform insolvency law throughout the Dominion. He had a letter from the secretary of the Board of Trade of Montreal, strongly urging the matter upon the attention of the House. He had also a set of resolutions to the same effect passed by the Chambre de Commerce. "I do not think," said Mr. Monk, "that under the circumstance I would be justified in abandoning the bill at this stage."

Mr. Guthrie thought the bill was not wide enough in its application, as farmers should be included as well as traders within its purview.

Mr. Lennox said that in the absence of a Government measure he would favor the passage of the bill now before the House. The absence of an insolvency law had hampered our trade with Great Britain.

Mr. Monk asked if the Government would not take the bill over as a Government measure.

The Prime Minister declined to do so. He said the Government had the matter of an insolvency act under consideration. A vote was then taken. The bill was knocked out by 74 to 41.

The Labor Question.

The House went into committee on Mr. Puttee's bill to amend the Conciliation Act, 1900.

On Sir William Mulock's suggestion the second clause was amended to replace the word arbitrator by the words conciliator or board of conciliation. The next clause was amended to provide that the fair basis of settlement, suggested by the conciliators shall only in cases when it is not accepted be published in The Labor Gazette.

The sixth clause as amended reads: "In no case shall a conciliator stipulate, nor shall it be stipulated in any agreement promoted or recommended by a conciliator that any employe shall relinquish his membership in any trades union or labor association, nor shall an agreement subject any employe to a penalty on account of such membership or discriminate against persons who are not members of trades unions or labor associations."

The discussion in committee lasted about two hours and at times waxed warm, but the bill as amended went through and stands for third reading.

To Amend Railway Act.

Mr. Guthrie's bill to amend the Railway Act was read a second time, and referred to the Railway Committee. It is designed to place railroad employes in the same position as ordinary citizens in regard to accounts, and to prevent the railway companies from contracting themselves out of their common law liability to their employes.

Mr. Bickerdike's bill, respecting incorporated companies, was withdrawn.

Anti-Cigarette Bill Killed.

The bill fathered by Mr. Bickerdike to prohibit the importation, manufacture and sale of cigarettes was declared out of order by the Speaker, and so goes by the board.

"I have to declare in regard to this bill," said Mr. Speaker Brodeur, "that I do not consider it has been properly introduced.

"By Sec. 41 of our rules it is provided as follows: No bill relating to trade or alteration of the laws concerning trade is to be brought into the House until the proposition shall have been first considered in the committee of the whole House, and agreed to by the House."

Mr. Walter Scott's bill to regulate the sale and provide for the inspection of textile fabrics was ruled out on the same grounds as the Anti-Cigarette Bill.

Mr. Charlton's bill to amend the Alien Labor Act so as to permit the importation of skilled labor whenever such labor is unobtainable, was talked out in the House last night, but may come up again. Sir William Mulock expressed the opinion that it would be liable to abuse.

A Real, True Food and Good To Eat.

The best people in every town and city of Canada are users of Malt Breakfast Food; they begin the day with a steaming hot dish of delicate and delicious nourishment. The thousands who now use Malt Breakfast Food each morning instead of oatmeal, preparations and cheaply prepared fad foods, have found Malt Breakfast Food to be a real food—satisfying, appetizing, energizing and nutritious, supplying perfectly all the elements necessary for vitality and physical strength. Malt Breakfast Food has the endorsation of the most noted food experts and the most eminent physicians, because it is according to nature's plans. All Grocers sell it.

Killed by a Wagon.

Aylmer, May 19.—Toddy Shepherd, the five-year-old son of Frank Shepherd of Aylmer, was run over by a wagon on Saturday afternoon in front of his father's house. He suffered severe internal injuries, and died within a few hours.

Shot on the Street.

Thibodeaux, La., May 19. — A shooting affray, which resulted in the death of Former Lieut.-Governor Clay Knoblock, occurred yesterday. The shooting was done by James Garault, a barber.

SUFFERED FOR THREE YEARS.

HEADACHES AND RUSHING OF BLOOD TO THE HEAD.

APPETITE WAS GONE.

TRIED MANY DIFFERENT REMEDIES BUT

MRS. WALTER MANTHORNE, BROOKLYN, N.S.

She says: "I suffered for three years with terrible headaches and rushing of blood to my head. I lost my appetite and became very thin and weak. I tried many different remedies and consulted doctors, but all in vain until I started to use Burdock Blood Bitters. I had not taken more than two bottles when I began to feel better, my appetite improved wonderfully and I increased rapidly in weight. I took altogether four bottles and am now as well as can be, for which I owe my thanks to Burdock Blood Bitters. I can recommend it to all those suffering as I did."

THE NATIVE QUESTION.

Lord Milner's Broad-Minded Views on the Difficult Subject.

Johannesburg, May 19.—Lord Milner, High Commissioner of South Africa, addressing a meeting yesterday on the native question, contended that natives who raised themselves to a civilized level with the whites were entitled to equal privileges. He sympathized, he said, with the feeling in South Africa against an influx of Asiatics, but that influx could be resisted on social economy grounds, and not on the score of color.

Will Augment Permanent Force.

Ottawa, May 19.—Legislation will be brought down providing for the creation of two new military depots, one at Montreal, and one at Edmonton, N.W.T., of mounted infantry. Provision will be made for the increasing of the permanent force from its present establishment, one thousand men, all ranks, to fifteen hundred.

Russia, China and Manchuria.

Pekin, May 19.—China, in reply to further representations of the United States and Japanese Ministers, has again pointed out the impossibility of including in the commercial treaties the opening to trade of Manchuria towns on account of Russian opposition.

Dismissed From the Empire.

So far, Australia has cost Britain practically nothing for defence. It has involved Britain in no war, and has brought it no fresh enemies. It has helped Britain materially in one war with which Australia had no concern. It has provided convenient headquarters for the fleet that is employed to protect British shipping in these parts and to spread the terror of the British flag through Polynesia. It has paid something towards the maintenance of this fleet. It has supplied Britain with about £30,000 a year of the profits arising from the silver coinage fraud. And it has received notice from Joseph Chamberlain to quit the Empire unless things are placed on a more definite footing.—Bulletin, Sydney.

MINISTERIAL SESSION OF THE DISTRICT MEETING

Held This Morning in George Street Church.

Rev. J. P. Wilson Presided—Characters and Qualifications Were Passed.

The Ministerial Session of the Peterborough District meeting of the Methodist churches, was held this morning at 9.30 o'clock, in the George street Methodist church. Rev. J. P. Wilson, the District chairman, presided. On the roll being called the following notified their attendance:—Rev. Dr. Metzler, secretary; Rev. H. B. Kenny, assistant-secretary; and the following reverend gentlemen: Messrs. C. L. Thompson, financial secretary; Dr. Marvin, Pontypool; J. E. Robeson, Bethany; H. McQuade, Warsaw; T. Leggott, Lakefield; H. V. Mounteer, South Cavan; N. D. Drew, South Monaghan; L. S. Wight, B.A., B.D., South Cavan; C. Reddick, Apsley; W. J. Jolliffe and Kilgour, Peterborough.

Mr. J. N. Clarry of Victoria College, was recommended to be received into full connexion and be ordained at the coming conference at Oshawa on June 3rd.

Mr. W. A. Jones passed a satisfactory examination and was recommended to be received as a candidate.

The following is section 152 of the Methodist Discipline: "The Ministerial District in session assembled shall examine the characters and qualifications of all ministers and probationers for the ministry belonging to the district in accordance with the discipline."

This was done and the characters and qualifications of all ministers were deemed perfectly satisfactory.

Mr. C. Reddick, a graduate of four years, was recommended to be received into full connection, and ordained. Rev. Dr. R. Cade, D.D., and Rev. Mr. Kilgour, were recommended to continue superannuated relations.

The matter of increasing the efficiency of the ministerial labours, was discussed at some length.

The Ministerial session adjourned at 11.30 o'clock, to meet in general session this afternoon with the laymen and discuss schedules and other business pertaining to the district.

There will be a public meeting this evening at eight o'clock in the George street Methodist church, which will be addressed by Rev. Dr. Metzler, D. W. Dumble, Esq., and others, the subject being "The Wesley Bi-Centenary." All are cordially invited to attend.

THE GEORGE STREET EPWORTH LEAGUE.

A Pleasant Social Evening was Held Last Night.

A very pleasant social evening was spent by the members and friends of George street Epworth League last night in the school room of the church. The chair was occupied by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Wilson. An excellent programme was given, consisting of solos by Misses Bertha Parnell and Clara Belleghem, and Messrs. Doidge and Bowes; readings by Miss Allie Whiten and Mrs. (Dr.) Morgan; while a humourous address by Mr. F. H Dobbin, in his well known style was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. At the close of what proved to be in every respect a most pleasing programme, refreshments were served and a half hour of social intercourse ensued. The thanks of the Society are due the Social Committee for the very pleasant evening provided.

CHARMING AND DELIGHTFUL SATURDAY AFTERNOON

Down the River With the C. G. B. Benefit Society.

The Canadian General Mutual Benefit Association believe in mutual enjoyment as well as mutual benefit. This was the net result of their first excursion down the river on Saturday afternoon. The steamer City of Peterborough under the capable command of the affable and obliging Captain Lane, steamed down the river freighted with a happy crowd of young persons, who enjoyed themselves every moment of the voyage. Every arrangement possible to the energetic committee to contribute to the enjoyment of the excursionists, was successfully employed. A pleasant stay was made at Jubilee Point, the end of the voyage southward. Taken altogether the excursion was a most delightful success, and this success and excellent management will, it is hoped, be repeated at the subsequent Saturday afternoon excursions to be run under the same capable auspices. Keep the date of the next excursion open if you want an afternoon of first-class enjoyment.

STARTLINGLY SUDDEN DEATH OF AN INFANT.

Laughing and Crowing One Moment, the Next it Dies in the Mother's Arms.

Yesterday morning death came in its saddest shape—sudden death—which the Litany classes with such calamities as "battle and murder." Mr. Abner Collins mourns the death of his only child, an infant of six months. Mr. Collins who is a farmer living near Mathers' Corners, Otonabee, before he went afield, was playing with the little infant, which was laughing at him and chatting with him in its wordless way. Shortly after he was summoned from his farm to find the little prattler cold in death.

The mother, who is a sister of Dr. McClelland, Brock street, town, was giving her baby its usual morning bath, the little fellow was laughing and crowing and greatly enjoying the toilet. Suddenly without the slightest warning the little baby died on its mother's knees. No cause is assigned, or imaginable as the infant was a healthy child and seemed for a few hours preceding its death to be brighter, livelier and more winsome than usual. The funeral takes place to-day, conducted by Rev. E. A. Langfeldt.

OTONABEE RESIDENT HAS PASSED AWAY.

Death of Mr. Wm. Kent Occurred Yesterday.

The news of the death of Mr. William Kent, of Otonabee, will come as a severe shock to his many friends in Peterborough as well as in Peterborough county. Mr. Kent died yesterday morning at the mature age of 78 years. He was born and has lived in Otonabee where he made for himself a large circle of friends. Besides being an energetic worker in the Methodist cause the deceased took considerable interest in the Salvation Army work. The deceased has been ailing for the last few months and succumbed to old age. He leaves behind him six children, who, it is felt, will greatly deplore his death. They are:—Mrs. Martin, Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. Frank Henderson, Toronto; Mrs. John Counter, Cleveland, Ohio; Mrs. John Phelan, Toronto; George, Victoria Harbour, and Andrew, Otonabee.

The funeral will take place to-morrow from the residence of Mr. Andrew Kent, and proceed to St. Mark's church cemetery, Otonabee, where the interment will take place.

THE POLICE COURT THIS MORNING.

A Charge of Stabbing was Dismissed by the Magistrate.

At the police court this morning before Police Magistrate Dumbie, a boy was charged with stabbing another playmate. During the evidence it transpired that the two boys had a quarrel during a game which several of them were playing. During the fierce combat which followed it was alleged that one boy stabbed the other with a knife, making a wound an inch and a half long, below the knee. A well known local physician who tended the wound, said during the course of his evidence, that he did not see how it was possible that the wound could have been made with anything but a knife. However a piece of glass picked up on the ground after the fray was produced in court. The police magistrate deemed the charge unfounded and discharged the case.

ENTERTAINMENT IN AID OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Given in Charlotte Street Methodist Church Last Night.

Mr. and Mrs. Killin-Keough's Successes—The Choruses and Orchestra.

A musical entertainment of more than usual merit was given last night in the Charlotte street Methodist church in aid of the Sunday School, at which there was a large and appreciative audience, who seemed to be highly delighted with the whole programme. Much has been said about the singing of Mr. and Mrs. Killin-Keough on previous occasions, but perhaps they never scored such a complete success before a local audience as they did last night. One might almost say that had not the entertainment been given in a place of worship, the audience would have demanded encore after encore. The efforts of the orchestra were also laudable, and their selections were all successfully received.

The programme was opened with a processional hymn, "The Son of Man Goes Forth to War," by Whitney, and sung by a chorus of children over 100 in number, trained by Mr. and Mrs. Killin-Keough. After the procession was over the children took their places on the platform, which was very prettily decorated with palms and flowers. A Schottische entitled "Bright and Bewitching" was all its name promised and was moreover played without a hitch. The next number on the programme was a reading by Mr. M. A. Sorsoleil. His selection was entitled "How Canada was Saved," a stirring poem describing a fight with the Iroquois some 200 years ago. This was received with loud applause from the audience. The next item was from the chorus and the orchestra, and was a piece arranged from Pinsuti, entitled "Primrose Flower." The children sang with great success and were heartily applauded. The vocal solo by Mr. Keough entitled "Thy Sentinal Am I," composed by Watson, was well received. A selection from the orchestra entitled "Ave Sanctissima," was well played. Gaben Hoffmann's duet "I Feel Thy Angel Spirit," sung by Mr. and Mrs. Killin-Keough, was a marked success and was heartily endorsed by the audience. For an encore, which was literally demanded, they sang "The Old Canoe," a duet given in camera before local audiences with singular success. The recitations given by little Mabel Christy, a tot scarcely three feet in height, were very quaint. She was encored. Mrs. Killin-Keough's vocal solo, "Often Have I Seen the Swallows," was excellently rendered. Prior to the commencement of this selection the singer was presented with a lovely bouquet of flowers by Rev. W. J. Jolliffe on behalf of the teachers and officers of the Sunday School. A chorus entitled "The Miller's Wooing," by Fanning, was very well rendered. Miss Campbell ably accompanied. A duet "Killarney" arranged by Mr. J. P. Keough and sung by Mr. and Mrs. Killin-Keough was received with continued applause. The next item on the programme was a selection by the orchestra entitled "Victor March." This was perhaps the crowning glory of the evening of the orchestra. By special request the chorus again sang "Primrose Flower." The benediction, which was pronounced by Rev. Mr. Jolliffe, after the National Anthem had been sung, brought the very enjoyable evening to a close. It is only fitting that mention should be made of the excellence of the chorus singing. Every sylable was distinguishable in all portions of the auditorium while the tone of the singing was exquisitely sweet.

It is only right that some mention be made of the excellent manner in which Miss Brown furnished the piano accompaniments for Mr. and Mrs. Killin-Keough. Her work was sympathetic, appreciative and gratifyingly effective.

The programme, as has been shown, was a most entertaining one and the entertainment most successful.

BACK TO PETERBOROUGH FROM HIS WESTERN FARM.

Mr. R. J. Waller, the Charlotte street grocer, who joins farming to his commercial activities, has returned home from his farm in Souris, Manitoba, where he has his prairie estate. His venture in the Northwest has well agreed with him, and he has gained fourteen pounds in weight. He has put in 240 acres of wheat, 25 acres of oats and several acres of potatoes. With the help of two hired men he has ploughed 140 acres. It has been a splendid season for seeding int he Northwest and Mr. Waller left the country in good shape, with promise of an abundant harvest, if the season is favourable. While the farmer in Ontario in a "dry time" anxiously scans the heaven for signs of rain the Northwest farmer regards a season of drought that would be fatal to crops in this province, with equanimity. Grain is often sown in Manitoba with the ice in the ground, so near the surface that the teeth of harrows or cultivators grates upon it. But this ice, which goes deep into the soil, is a long time in melting, and in the process the moisture comes to the surface and strikes the rootlets of the grain, keeps them in vigorous growth independently of rainfall.

Plant Your Garden.

Mr. A. Blade, of the West-end Greenhouses, (at the residence of G. M. Roger) has ready a very fine collection of hardy seedlings and bedding-out plants. This is the time for planting your garden and flower-beds; and the West-end Greenhouses can be depended upon for exercising the utmost care to have everything pure and dependable. Parties having baskets, hanging pots and vases to fill will confer a favour by sending their orders in early for filling. Telephone 21b., to A. Blade, Manager.

57TH REGIMENT'S STREET PARADE

This Evening—The Church Parade May 31st.

The 57th Regiment will hold its second march-out of the season this evening, when they will be accompanied by both regimental bands. The previous march-out was a great success, and the streets were lined with crowds of people, who must have broken other engagements in order that they might watch the soldiers. To-night the turn-out is expected to be even larger than before. The route taken will be as follows:—

George street to Charlotte street, east to Water street, north to London street, west to George street, south to Murray street, west to the drill shed.

As many of the members of the battalion will be away on May 24th the church parade which was to have been held on that day has been postponed till Sunday, May 31st in order that the battalion might turn out to its full strength.

AN OBLIGING GIRL

Helps a Young Man Who Shows he can Take a Hint.

A young man took a girl buggy riding one evening last week, and during the ride the conversation turned to fortune telling. The young man asked her if she believed in palmistry, when she looked up demurely and said, "Well, I don't know; but I think I could foretell more enjoyment if I saw the lines in one of your hands." The young man, who was slow to comprehend her meaning, sat with bowed head and wrinkled brow until some distance had been traversed, when a great light broke upon him, and an expansive smile illuminated his features. He took the lines in one hand and grasped the situation.

BANQUET TO MR. PADDON BY HIS LINDSAY FRIENDS.

Farewell to Retiring Manager of Bank of Montreal.

Business Men Make a Handsome Presentation.

The Lindsay Post says: — Lindsay citizens have a reputation for hospitality and the ability to appreciate true worth, and they have good reason to feel that their farewell to Mr. J. A. Paddon, the retiring manager of the Bank of Montreal, was in every particular an occasion worthy of their traditions and the wide popularity of the gentleman honoured. The first announcement of the fact that Mr. Paddon was about to leave town for the City of St. John's, Newfoundland, was received with lively expressions of regret on the part of our business men and others, but this feeling was tempered and ameliorated by the knowledge that his impending transfer meant promotion. Then they decided to proffer Mr. Paddon a fitting mark of their regard for him as a fellow business man and citizen, and last evening he was the guest of honour at a banquet served in the spacious and well-appointed dining room of the Benson house.

During the course of the banquet which was attended by the most prominent business men of Lindsay, the Mayor read an address on behalf of the business men of the town, and at the appropriate moment presented Mr. Paddon with a memento of the esteem in which he is held, in the form of a beautiful table service of cut glass, numbering 7 5pieces.

Mr. Montirambert is the new manager in succession to Mr. Paddon, whose promotion involved his translation to Newfoundland.

The lady friends in Lindsay of Mrs. Paddon, presented that lady with three beautiful oil paintings as a mark of esteem and the office staff of the Lindsay Branch presented Mr. Paddon with a pair of field glasses.

THE LATEST NEWS OF LOCAL SPORT.

The T.A.S. Club Will Erect a Grand Stand.

Athletic Lacrosse Club Concert Friday Evening—Spicy Sporting Notes.

LACROSSE.

The junior schedule of this district as arranged at Port Hope on Friday appears to be perfectly satisfactory to both Athletics and St. Peter's T. A. S. It was better for the game that the two local teams were not grouped in the same section. It will keep up the interest in the game in town, and permit of the enthusiasts to witness contests galore while the schedule lasts.

* * * *

The Athletics are in Section A, and the T.A.S. in Section B. Referees for Section A are as follows:—Messrs. J. Bogley and Jack McCabe, Peterborough; J. H. Renwick and Thos. Tuer, Port Hope; Bert Harris, Oshawa. Section B referees will be appointed later.

* * * *

The following are the colours of the different teams:—T.A.S., red and black; Athletics, light blue and white; Hastings, navy and white; Port Hope, old gold and black; Oshawa, green and white.

* * * *

* * * *

The T.A.S. team met last evening and elected Jack McCabe captain. Jack wants a full line-up of all senior and II T.A.S. players on Wednesday evening.

* * * *

A committee from the T.A.S. was pointed last evening to select a site on their grounds for the grand stand, which will be erected during the next fortnight.

* * * *

The T.A.S. Club will hold a concert at an early date, an active committee having the matter in hand.

* * * *

The Athletics had a good work out last night, several men playing for the first time.

* * * *

The following Athletics are asked to turn out at the Oval to-morrow evening, sides will be chosen. If any who turn out or wish to play with the Athletics, are not on this list, they are asked to be on hand in order to make two full sides:—Best, Morgan, T. Glover, Dillon, Cavanah, Dumble, Patterson, Ketchum, Mein, R.Glover, V. Hamilton, McPherson, Robertson, Graham, Watson, Dobbin, Howell, Long, Galley.

MIXED SPORTS.

A BEAUTIFUL COLLECTION.

Some Artistic Photographs of Local Persons.

Mr. G. E. Whiten, the well-known photographic artist, Hunter street, has a very fine collection of life-like and beautiful pictures in his show case outside his studio. The collection is very artistically arranged and is perhaps one of the finest collections of photographs in town. Among other pictures is the one of the T.A.S. hockey team on the ice at the new rink, which photograph Mr. Whiten claims cannot be as successfully imitated by any other photographer in Peterborough. However, the photographs are only a few samples of Mr. Whiten's successes for all around his studio one comes face to face with life-like portraits of well-known Peterborough citizens.

VISIT OF TORONTO ENGINEERS' CLUB.

Mr. Culverwell's Optimistic Views Respecting More Industries for Peterborough.

The following communication has been addressed to the Mayor and Council of the town of Peterborough:—

Toronto, May 16th.

His Worship Mayor Roger and Council of Peterborough, Ont.:—

Gentlemen, — With reference to the two days' trip of the Engineers' Club of Toronto to Peterborough, which I had arranged for this spring, I am sorry to say that it has been postponed until the completion of the hydraulic lift lock, which I understand will be in a couple of months. It seems that when Mr. H. B Rogers the canal engineer, was arranging his lecture before the society, he unfortunately told them the lock was unfinished, which fact caused the postponement of the trip this spring.

When the time does come it is my intention to ask the council to give the society—which comprises leading engineers of Ontario—a formal reception and to arrange to show them the great manufacturing and engineering developments in Peterborough, it being my intention to invite them and yourselves for a trip per steamer on the back waters to show them how bountiful nature has been to our district. I may remark that your humble servant has the honour of being chairman of the Finance Committee of the Society.

My work during the past winter with American and Canadian manufacturers with regard to their building in Peterborough, is at last bringing forth fruit, and I expect during the next few weeks to have at least three deputations from manufacturers to lay their requests before your council. Two of these manufacturers intend employing 500 hands each, and the other 50 hands, mostly all skilled labour. I may add that I have also under way negotiations with some half dozen other American and Canadian manufacturers.

One of these manufacturers we are sure of landing in Peterborough, we having offered them electric power about 30 per cent. less than they can get it elsewhere, and with this revenue secured we intend starting development work at Burleigh Falls. You will understand, of course, it has been impossible heretofore to complete financial arrangements without revenue, and with such a number of developed and undeveloped water power in and about Peterborough. Nevertheless, I think that I can modestly assert that I have at least done something in stirring up the other power owners more conveniently located to Peterborough than ourselves, and possibly have done something in laying before this country's manufacturers and those of the States Peterborough's manufacturing advantages. Of course you can readily understand our Peterborough power competitors have not made it a bed of roses for me in the financial world.

Trusting to have your support in my earnest endeavours in this work I am,

Yours faithfully,
J. ALEXR. CULVERWELL,
Managing Director,
Central Ontario Power Company, Limited.

BATHS FOR MEN.

Large numbers are joining the Y. M.C.A. just now for the use of the baths during the summer months. There is still ample accommodation for at least two hundred more. Few associations are as well equipped as Peterborough with three shower baths, one tub, a needle and the plunge.

There is always a good supply of hot and cold water and every facility for the pleasure and comfort of men.

Their use is not confined entirely to young men for many who are older make constant use of them.

The dressing rooms are provided with lockers for those who wish them and afford ample accommodation.

When one considers the benefits to be derived by men who are engaged in office work, stores and factories, and in fact in all trades and professions, it is a great many more do not come in to enjoy these privileges.

The cost for a whole year (12 full months) dating from the time of joining is only $3.00 (Three dollars.)

This ticket also admits to the privileges of the social and reading rooms and many other of a general kind.

Do not wait to be asked to join, come in to-night and inspect the baths and secure a ticket.

TOKENS OF TOURIST TRAVEL.

Activity in the Line of Steamers Which Will Bring our Yankee Cousins to This District Holidaying.

Activity prevails aboard the steamers North King and Caspian in the Kingston harbour, where they have undergone extensive repairs during the past winter. Summerville, N. Y., port of Rochester, will again be the landing place on the American side, and the cars of the Rochester Electric railway will transfer passengers and baggage to the city. The service will be further perfected by the landing of the steamers just above the ferry and the car tracks, being run to the water. The following officers will be in charge of these popular steamers this season:— Steamer North King, Captain J. Jarrell; first officer, A. Hicks; second officer, M. Lawless, chief engineer, H. Dupere; second engineer, R. Vince; purser, A. Muir; steward, J. Tilton. Steamer Caspian, Captain, William Bloomfield; chief engineer, O. J. Hickey; second engineer, G. Sauye; purser, J. G. Dwyer; steward, H. Wemp. The steamer North King begins her weekly trips on the Bay of Quinte and Rochester route 1st May, and her daily trips on the Port Hope, Cobourg and Rochester route on 1st June, arriving and leaving at about the same time as last year. During July and August the Bay of Quinte and Rochester service will be daily, except Monday, when the steamer Caspian will be put into commission.—Guide.

A Familiar Name.

In the homes of Canada and the United States there are few names more familiar and none more reverently spoken than that of Dr. A.W. Chase, the great physician and receipt book author. He is blessed for the suffering he has relieved and the diseases he has cured; his remedies are used and endorsed by the best people in the land; they are popular because they cure when others fail.

MISCAMPBELL SHUT OUT.

Court of Appeal Unanimously Upholds Decision of Trial Judges.

Toronto, May 19.—The appeal of Andrew Miscampbell from the decision of the Judges who tried the petition against him and declared his election void, was dismissed yesterday, and Sault Ste. Marie is now vacant.

The learned Justices fully concur in the opinions of the trial Judges and express surprise at the appellant having any hope of convincing the court that the election should not be voided. They concur in the finding of the trial Judges, that there had been sufficient corruption to override any majority. This disposed of any hope from the saving clause. The payments to Roy and Delargey were held to have been proven, and the denial of Morreault regarding Roy is not credited.

Other Illegal Practices.

Several acts of bribery having been established, it lay upon the appellant to discharge the onus of satisfying the tribunal that, notwithstanding such acts, the election should not be voided. There were other illegal practices not of a personal nature which cannot be overlooked in considering whether the appellant has succeeded in discharging the onus. It is not possible to say that the acts of bribery were of a trifling nature in themselves. They were committed under circumstances showing deliberation and intent. The importation of Morreault from Montreal and his participation in this election contest in the manner in which he did participate are not satisfactorily accounted for. What has been shown as to the appellant's part in the supply of money increases his difficulties. His account of his dealings in regard to them demonstrate an entire disregard for the plain directions of the act. The moneys were not paid to his financial agent; no account was rendered to that gentleman, and they did not appear in his published statement.

We quite agree that the illegal practices of which they received such vivid impressions in the course of the trial makes it impossible to give the respondent the benefit of the saving clause of the act. The appeal must be dismissed with costs.

A Farmer Cured of Rheumatism.

"A man living on a farm near here came in a short time ago completely doubled up with rheumatism. I handed him a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and told him to use it freely, and if not satisfied after using it he need not pay a cent for it." says C. P. Rayder, of Pattens Mills, N.Y. "A few days later he walked into the store as straight as a string, and handed me a dollar saying 'Give me another bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm; I want it in the house all the time for it cured me.'" DERELICT RAILWAYS

SOME BRITISH LINES HAVE BEEN CLOSED FOR TWENTY YEARS.

Practical Refutation of Ruskin's Maxim That Steam Has Knocked All the Romance Out of Travel—Many Instances of Romantic Incident in Railway Building—A Line That Failed—Ingenuity in Ruins.

The fact that the District Railway has just re-opened its Hounslow Town station and a branch line, rather under a half mile in length, leading to it, the whole having been closed for a period of about twelve years past, is mainly of local importance. Nevertheless, it is in its way a practical refutation of Mr. Ruskin's maxim, to the effect that steam had knocked all the romance out of travel and robbed it of all incident; for surely both romance and incident must have something to say with a derelict railway. No very great depth of imagination is required to appreciate the subtle atmosphere of romance conveyed by such a state of up-to-date disrepair.

Truth to tell, however, there was far less of romance or incident connected with Hounslow's derelict railway than is the case with the few other railways in this country which have fallen into desuetude and been allowed to become derelicts. In fact, the most striking features about the former were the fact of its existence and almost complete obscurity in the heart of a metropolitan suburb. The rails, sleepers, and signals had all been removed, while the station itself, which is what may be termed a first-class station, stood absolutely dismantled. The fiasco was due to the London and Southwestern Railway constructing a line which cut out the District Company's route to Hounslow Town. However, the reopening of this long-derelict railway, with a half-hourly service of trains, has now been thoroughly carried out. The station and station offices look as though they had been built yesterday, while the permanent way, signals, and water crane are those of a new railway.

A Line That Failed.

One of the most remarkable instances of a derelict railway exists upon the borders of Shropshire and Montgomeryshire. As far back as the year 1861 a company known as the "Potteries, Shrewsbury and North Wales Junction Railway" constructed a line from Shrewsbury to Llanymynech, some eighteen miles in length. The idea of the ill-fated scheme was, as the title suggests, to connect the Staffordshire "potteries" with North Wales; but the why or wherefore has never been properly explained. However, the railway never got further east than Shrewsbury, while it practically expired at the little village of Llanymynech, which has a station on the Cambrian line from Oswestry to Welshpool. The "Potteries Railway," as the locals still term it, appears to have been constructed regardless of expense, and though laid with only a single track, the principal bridges which carried the latter over road and stream were built to accommodate a second track if needed, while the seven intermediate stations en route left nothing to be desired in the way of offices and sidings.

Then the permanent way was of the best, the latest refinements in signaling were adopted, and the massive iron girder bridge across the Severn at Shrawardine would have done credit to any great railway company. There were two branches also, one from a place named Kennerley to a Welsh mining hamlet named Criggion, about seven miles long, and a second, which is still worked by the Cambrian, from Llanymynech to the Llanyblodwel Quarries, two and a half miles long. For twenty years the "Potteries Railway" made a plucky struggle to keep its head above water, for from the outset it was conducted at a loss. In June, 1880, the line was closed for traffic, by order of the Board of Trade, owing to the rotten condition of the permanent way, which an empty exchequer could not repair, and has remained closed ever since, though one or two attempts have been made to resuscitate the company, which has drifted into the Ewigkeit of the Bankruptcy Court.

Ingenuity in Ruins.

Now, the most remarkable thing about this derelict railway is that, after the locomotives and rolling stock had been sold to pay pressing debts, the material was left just as it was, in the hope, of course, that any day might see its re-opening. Consequently a stroll along the embankments or through the cuttings of the deserted line is a veritable case of the "sleeper awakened." Practically all the technical details of a railway in full working order exist right enough, though they are crumbling away from the neglect of twenty years. The rails are hidden by a luxuriant herbage of grass and weeds; lower still, the ties lie rotting. No signal wires exist to trip unwary feet, but the posts themselves, as a rule, remain, leaning over with a half-mournful, half-tipsy air, their arms devoid of paint, and their spectacle frames mere skeletons, for all glasswork was soon smashed by the stones of village boys. Care is needed in traversing the bridges, for though the girders are in good condition, the space between them either shows daylight or is quite unsafe.

Very pathetic are the deserted stations, with their crumbling platforms, tumble-down offices, and occasionally still decipherable advertisements. Then one comes across signal boxes, with their costly equipment gone to rack and ruin; water towers, burst by many a winter's frost; notice boards threatening ghostly penalties, and warning one to "Beware of" non-existent trains, and level-crossing gates that stand forever open.

Ireland's Derelicts.

An extraordinary story is told of an Irish derelict railway which, as the "Birr and Portumna Bridge," was constructed some thirty years ago at an initial cost of £90,000. Originally this line, twelve miles in length, was worked by the Great Southern and Western system under an agreement with the Irish Board of Works. The two fell out after the arrangement had lasted for ten years, and to the everlasting shame of the Government Commissioners this well-equipped and fairly prosperous little railway was given over to wanton destruction; for neither party would give in, and while they quarreled in far-away law courts the spoiler was busy. Soon after the line had ceased working neighboring farmers set their men to work to remove every bit of woodwork in the shape of fencing, crossing gates, sleepers, posts, and rails. The rails, turntables, signaling plant and metal work generally all appear to have been clapper-clawed by a firm of Portumna Bridge blacksmiths who despatched them down the Shannon by steamer bound for some market. However, the climax of this extraordinary sack of a railway may be said to have been reached when the station offices at Portumna Bridge—all solidly built edifices and completely equipped—disappeared, "lock, stock, and barrel," in a single night.

A great battle raged over the fate of a six-span iron girder bridge across the River Brosnia, not far from Birr. The owner of the land on either side found the structure very convenient as an accommodation bridge, and decided to retain it for his own private use; but others residing in the locality wished to break it up and sell it. Accordingly the "wigs were on the green" in earnest, and after several pitched battles victory ultimately rested with the former party. To-day the "Birr and Portumna Bridge Railway" is a mere geographical expression. Its course may still be traced by reason of its grass-grown embankments and cuttings, and the under and over bridges where it crosses and is crossed by roads remain in ruins; but everything else has vanished. Surely, one of the strangest stories in the annals of railways.

Lastly, there exists on the Cardiganshire coast a little railway rejoicing in the grandiloquent title of the "Manchester and Milford Railway," though it does not go within many miles of either place. It originated in the forties, with a nominal capital of two and a half millions, and a list of eighty-six provisional Directors!

Sick Headache—Lack of Appetite.

Its glorious to feel right in the morning—ready for work. But how seldom one does. Sick headache, lack of appetite, disagreeable taste in the mouth—these are the usual morning feelings of most people—even of careful livers. This morning illness shows that the organs of digestion are not working properly. They need a tonic. Take a teaspoonful of Kidney Trouble and Lumbago.

Thirty Years of Backache and Rheumatism—Winter Season's Especially Severe—Attributes Cure to

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

This season of the year is especially trying on the older people. The pains and aches grow more severe in the cold and changeable weather, the kidneys get out of order, rheumatism and lumbago torture their victims, there are aching backs and limbs, stomach derangements, urinary and bowel disorders and serious, painful and fatal maladies.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are particularly suited to the needs of persons of advanced age. They regulate and invigorate the liver, kidneys and bowels and prove effectual when ordinary medicines fail. This letter from Mr. Robert Jackson gives some idea of what this treatment is accomplishing every day.

Mr. Robert Jackson, ship builder, Port Robinson, Ont., writes: "I was afflicted with kidney trouble and lumbago for about thirty years. The winters were always very severe on me, and I was many times incapacited with all the serious symptoms of both troubles. I had backache, biliousness, rheumatism, headache and constipation, and was wrecked physically. I used all sorts of medicines and have been treated by the medical profession to no purpose.

In the spring of 1902 I began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and from the start received great benefit. I continued the treatment until I fully recovered good health and vigour, my old trouble being a thing of the past. I am seventy-five years old, and if, at my advanced age, I have received such grand results from the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills after years of unnecessary suffering, there can be no doubt of their efficacy in the treatment of younger persons. I recommend them to everyone. I have tried to think of words to express my gratitude, but it is beyond expression for they have done more for me than I could have believed."

The line is 41¼ miles in length, and runs from Aberystwyth to Pencader, where it connects with the Great Western system between Carmarthen and Cardigan. The history of the line since its opening has been one of perpetual difficulty and bad luck, and in 1882 creditors swooped down and carried off the rails of several miles of track that had been constructed between Llanidloes and Llangurig, which section has since remained derelict.—H. G. Archer in London Mail.

"March Summer" in London.

"March summer, May winter" was the adage invented by our cheerful forefathers, and if there were any reasons to believe they knew what they were talking about householders would surely replenish the coal cellar. For there is no denying that we have the summer. The mean temperature that a decent and self-respecting March gave us in a week of its existence is about 44 degrees. On Wednesday the mean for the day was 57 degrees, and yesterday it was a bare half degree less. Neither day saw the thermometer go below 47 degrees, and yesterday attained a maximum of 66 degrees, as against Wednesday's 67 degrees. Yet the heat, thanks to a gusty southwest wind, was far less oppressive yesterday, and the evening saw the temperature fall in a decent and ordinary manner to 53 degrees, instead of staying stolidly at a midsummer height as on Wednesday. Spite of much clouds and some rain in the morning, London had another fine day, therein, as in its high temperature, being luckier than many places. Harrowgate caught a thunderstorm, and in the west and north there were showers in profusion. The barometer rose fairly steadily all day, but the evening reading of 29.48 is not enough to inspire great faith in the future. Moreover, the Bay of Biscay is suspected of hatching "something 'orrid," and the North Atlantic is in a revolutionary humor. In these circumstances it is not unlikely that our summer will soon find its end in a deluge, but the weather may very possibly remain fine for the immediate future.—London Telegraph.

THE AWFUL AGONY OF AN ACHING BACK.

There is nothing more excruciating than backache — can't turn, stoop, or move without suffering terrible pain.

THE PAIN SEVERE.

Mrs. George Inman, Carleton Place, Ont., said: "My husband suffered from an acute lameness in his back. To stoop or assume an upright position was excruciating. He tried various remedies, but said he never had anything come up to Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets."

TOOK HOLD IMMEDIATELY.

Mr. John Kinnee, Durham, Ont., gave the following account of his case: "For three or four years I suffered from good hard backache whenever I over-exerted myself. I got a bottle of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets and they took hold immediately, and by the time the bottle was finished I was cured."

NO REST AT NIGHT.

Mrs. Richard Meyers, Preston, Ont. says: "I had a severe pain in my back that gave me no release in the day time, and disturbed me at nights. Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets cured me of the pain, and I no longer have that depressing weakness in the mornings as formerly."

If you suffer from backache or any kidney, bladder or urinary troubles and are anxious to be cured quickly and permanently, see that you get Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets.

A Golden Heart

BY BERTHA M. CLAY

Author of "The Gypsy's Daughter," "Another Woman's Husband," "A Heart's Bitterness," "A Mad Love," "A Heart's Idol," "Gladys Greye," Etc.

The Squire, watching her as she obeyed, thought that it would have been easier to see her die than to witness such unutterable anguish creep into her face.

"I will not believe it," she cried—"not from any evidence, not from any person but himself or her! Why should he run away with her? He never loved her; he loved me." And then she recollected Lola's threat—"When he has grown tired of you and your washed-out, faded kind of beauty, his heart will turn to me, and then I shall take my revenge."

"And the children!" she cried aloud. "Do you think that even if Karl could leave me, he would leave them? Ah, never, papa! There is some treachery, some mistake! He has not left me, my darling, my husband, my love! Oh, come back to me, Karl, or I shall die!"

It was almost a relief to them when at length insensibility deprived her for a time of all knowledge of the trouble which had fallen upon her.

"I could almost pray that she might die in her unconsciousness," said the Squire, with a heavy sigh. "Great Heaven, how little did I ever think that such a fate would overtake my child?"

"Do you really believe that Sir Karl has been foolish and wicked enough to elope with that wretched girl?" asked Lord Rhysworth.

"Knowing what we do, I see little reason to doubt it," answered the Squire. "I would give my life to find that he was innocent, to see him come back the upright, honorable man I have hitherto believed him to be. I cannot help thinking him guilty. There is no doubt the girl loved him; and no one knows what a woman can persuade even the most sensible men to do."

But Dolores, who lay seriously ill, still retained her faith in her husband.

"I shall never believe it," she said, "until I hear it from his own lips or from hers."

In the meantime the news had spread that the baronet had disappeared. The whole neighborhood was in a commotion about it. No one would credit the story. It seemed utterly impossible that Sir Karl, whose marriage had been a perfect love-match, who had been laughed at for his adoration of the two children, should have left them deliberately.

They tried to keep the newspapers from Dolores, but she insisted on seeing them; and every line she read but added to the poignancy of her grief.

"Lola told me to remember that her heart was always aching," she said to herself. "Can it have ached worse than mine?"

The Squire took up his abode at Scarsdale; it was quite impossible to leave Dolores. The house, too, was besieged by visitors, old friends and new friends, some to console, some to gratify their curiosity. The Squire received them with great dignity; he would spare Dolores in every way that lay in his power.

In spite of the details she had heard, of the gossip to which she had been an unwilling listener, of the cruel newspaper reports, Dolores still entertained a glimmering hope that there might be some mistake. But, as day after day passed and no news came of Sir Karl, that hope grew less, and eventually died out.

One morning, when the Squire opened the letter-bag, he found it contained just such another thin, square envelope as the one which Sir Karl had received on that fatal day when he had disappeared. On this occasion the letter was addressed to Lady Allanmore. If he had followed his first impulse, he would have burned it on the spot, but he reflected that it might have some reference to the matter which was engrossing all their thoughts; so he took it up to Dolores, whose pale face grew paler as she recognized the handwriting.

"This is from Lola!" she cried. "Oh, papa, come to me while I read it!"

He sat by her side while she opened it, and all the light faded from her eyes as they traced the cruel words.

"I told you," the letter began, "that I should have my revenge—and I have had it. You won my lover from me, and I swore to you the time would come when you should suffer as you had made me suffer. I have kept my vow; my revenge is complete, great as was the injury I received. I knew the time would come when Sir Karl would tire of you. Women of your type, Dolores, but seldom retain love. The time for which I waited has arrived. You have looked your last on the man you stole from me. It is my revenge, Dolores. What do you think of it?"

Lady Allanmore's face grew deathly pale, and her lips trembled as she gave the letter back to the Squire.

"Let us keep that, papa," she said slowly, "with the other. They may be useful some day."

"He is with her then; there is no mistake."

"There can be no mistake; this is proof conclusive," she replied. "I wish," she continued sadly, "that he had written to me, even had it been only to say good-by."

"It appears to me," said the Squire gravely, "that you are entitled to a divorce."

"No," she replied with a shudder, "there is no need of a divorce. He is dead to me, he whom I loved so well; but I shall be true to him. My last faint hope is dead, papa, quite dead."

She lay back on the pillow, and a deathly pallor stole over her face.

"Dolores," cried the Squire, "my darling, you have the children, you have me!"

But she only wailed—

"Oh, papa, if I might die! Do you think that I can ever face life or the world again? Oh, dearest and best, let me die! Papa," she whispered, when she had grown calmer, "you may show Lord Rhysworth the letter, but no one else. He ought to know the truth."

"I wish I were younger; Lola's vengeance should be short lived," said the Squire. "I wonder if it be retribution? Is this the penalty? I wonder—Oh, Heaven! Oh, Dolores, Dolores!"

The name came from his lips with a long-drawn sigh as his head fell upon his breast—the bitter sigh with which he had, during the long illness of many years before, constantly reiterated the name while his unsuspecting wife knelt by his side and wondered who Dolores was. Whether he now referred to his daughter or not, who could say?

When they went to his assistance they found that the Squire was dead—dead, with the letter open in his hands. Was it retribution? Had it brought back to his memory some long-past sorrow of his own? Who should tell? Would time ever unfold the mystery?

CHAPTER XXII.

The city of Florence lay smiling in the golden light of the setting sun. Never perhaps had the home of the poets looked more lovely. The sunbeams fell upon its domes and palaces, upon its magnificent churches and bridges, upon its countless works of art. On the banks of the Arno, not far from the city, stood a house, known as the Villa Baira, surrounded by tall trees and brilliant flowers. No spot could be more favored. On one side of the villa rose purple hills—hills that were covered with vines and olives, and groves of orange and lemon trees, round the stems of which scarlet creepers clung in rich abundance, and masses of passion flowers of every hue, from deepest crimson to creamiest white. Red poppies peeped from among the grass, lilies grew in wild luxuriance, and the air was filled with a delicious perfume. The grounds of the villa sloped down to the river. There was no wall or railing at the brink, and some persons said it was not safe; but the mistress of the house had an artist's soul, and loved to see the water lave the bank. The trees by the river echoed with the liquid notes of nightingales, and birds of sweetest song haunted the orange groves. A long, sheltered walk led from the villa to the edge of the river, the trelliswork of which was covered with an enormous vine, which branched out on all sides, and just now was laden with hundreds of bunches of rich, dark, purple grapes. Oddly enough, not a rose was to be found in the gardens, neither white nor red. The mistress of the place was English, and had a strong repugnance to the odor of roses. If the surroundings of the house were attractive, the interior was a marvel of comfort and luxury. The rooms were large and lofty, the windows were framed in passion-flowers. The ceilings were painted, and the walls either paneled or harmoniously tinted. The furniture was English. There were Chippendale chairs and tables, superb marquetry work and fine old china. Italian art and English ideas of taste and comfort combined could scarcely fail to have a pleasing effect.

On this fair evening a lady stepped from the open drawing-room window, and slowly and thoughtfully wended her way through the gardens skirting the avenue of beech and chestnut trees. She passed down the long, vine-shaded path till she reached a spot where the river rippled over the grass, which was studded with violets.

She slowly looked up and down the Arno, flushing red beneath the last kiss of the sun. Time had dealt gently with Dolores. Sixteen years had passed since her father had died so suddenly, leaving her alone in the world. It had been a terrible shock to her. For many weeks they had feared for her reason as well as for her life. Lady Fielden had come to the rescue; she had gone over to Scarsdale and, as it were, taken possession of it. She had sent the two little children, Kathleen and Gertrude, to her own nursery, and attended to Dolores with her own kind, motherly hands.

The Squire's death had been all the more unexpected from the fact that for some time previously he had seemed in such excellent health. His daughter always believed that the shock of finding her husband guilty of a great wickedness had killed him, although she also wondered if it brought back to his memory some long-past sorrow of his own. From that day, now sixteen years ago, Dolores became an altered woman. She accepted the fact that her husband had deserted her for Lola. There was no other solution of the mystery; no news came from him. He was, of course, ashamed to write; he could have nothing to say to his deserted wife. A certain hardness and coldness that had been foreign to Lady Allanmore's nature gradually crept into it. Her father was dead, and she made up her mind to go away from the place where she had suffered the most cruel indignity that could fall to a woman's lot. Every one in the neighborhood of Scarsdale knew that she had loved Sir Karl—every one knew that he had deserted her, and for whom. She would go where none of her old friends would be able to find her. She would leave Scarsdale, never to re-enter it. Sir Karl would come back when he was tired wandering. She would not touch one farthing of his income—she was rich without that—and, furthermore, she would renounce his name. She would drop her title and call herself Mrs. Clifden.

Dolores had not intended to have one familiar face near her which could recall the unhappy past; but she could not refuse Frodsham, so she took him with her. She bade no farewells; she was tired of condolences, tired of sympathy, tired even of kindness. She longed to be away. She bore the brand—so shameful to all good and pure women—of a deserted wife, and she loathed it; she shrank from the sympathetic looks she saw on the kindly faces of old friends. If they would but leave her alone, let her suffer in silence, let her bear her own griefs undisturbed! She longed with an unutterable longing to be free, to go where no one knew her, to take her children where their sweet lips should never learn even to pronounce the names that had been of such evil omen to her.

Dolores was living in Paris when she heard that the Villa Baira was to let, and it occurred to her that Florence would be a very suitable place of residence for her. There she would have every opportunity of educating her daughters, and at the same time would find a haven of rest and the happiness to be derived from a lovely climate and beautiful scenery.

So to the Villa Baira, as to a haven of rest, she came, with her two little children and faithful, old servant, John Frodsham; and there for sixteen years she lived.

But she had never grown accustomed to her pain. It was as keen now as of old. If she woke in the middle of the night, her first thought was always this—why had Karl left her whom he loved for one whom he had not loved? She never grew reconciled to the loss—she never quite understood it. One other thing was a mystery to her. Sir Karl had never drawn any money; and she wondered from what source he derived his income, and decided in her own mind that it was merely a strong sense of justice on his part that had caused him to leave his money untouched for his wife and child. Then her heart rebelled against the notion that he was living on Lola's money. It was so unlike the brave, generous, manly husband who had been her hero.

Kathleen was over twenty now, and Gertrude was a beautiful, blooming girl of seventeen. They had not suffered by their mother's voluntary exile. They had received an excellent education. Masters came every day from Florence to instruct them. They could not fail to imbibe every pure, high, and holy principle from Dolores; and from her they inherited also that highest grace of manner and refinement of taste that made her one of the most charming of women. They moved in the highest society. Dolores made but one stipulation. They might make the acquaintance of Italians, Austrians, Spaniards—people of every and any nationality except English; they were forbidden, under the severest penalties, ever to allow any introductions to the latter, no matter what their rank or position.

As the golden-haired lady with the sweet, sad face stood looking over the Arno, the waves of which were slowly brimming over until they reached her feet, she thought of all those long years, and wondered if her peaceful rest from sorrow and shame must, on account of her dear children, come to an end. They would not always be content here.

Everything was so peaceful and calm. The crimson light was lying now on the river. The same thought recurred to her, which, like a poisonous snake, had stung her every hour of her life since her husband had left her—"What is he doing now? Is he standing by Lola's side, watching with her some scene as fair as this?"

She turned from the river with a cry of pain on her lips. She felt more lonely than usual this evening, for her children had asked for a holiday, and with a good-natured Neapolitan Countess for their escort, had gone to see the famous Pitti palace. Dolores had wished the old butler to accompany them—he was in her eyes a bodyguard in himself; but her daughters had laughed so merrily, and the countess had seemed so amused that she had been compelled to abandon the idea. Frodsham was always on the alert when there were any English about, and Dolores knew that. She was beginning to think that the children were rather late, when she heard the carriage stop.

Ah, what a difference those sweet, fresh, young voices made! She heard them in the distance, and her heart beat at the sound. "My darling!" she said to herself.

Presently Gertrude cried:

"Frodsham, where is mamma?"

"I saw her by the river, Miss Gertrude, not three minutes ago."

"Oh, Kathleen, there she is, under the vines! I can see the gleam of her golden hair. Come, Kathleen, quickly!"

But the elder sister drew back, as though reluctant which was something unusual.

"She will be so very angry, Gertrude, and we have never seriously displeased her before—never."

"Yes, I am afraid she will be vexed. The best way will be to tell her the truth at once. We have done wrong; but how could we help it? I almost dropped when that dear old lady caught hold of me. Why, Kathleen, it is quite an adventure! Come and let us tell our mother all about it."

They hastened to the vine-walk. Dolores' fair face brightened as she saw them, and the sadness died out of her eyes. Gertrude went up to her.

"Darling mamma," she said; "do not kiss us until you have heard what we have done."

Dolores was somewhat startled, and her face paled a little, but she answered quietly:

"I am quite sure, my darling, that you have done no wrong. But where is the Countess?"

She had to drive off at once; a message came to her at the palace. She left every possible apology and compliment for you, mamma. She has been very kind to us, and we have had a happy day. But, oh! mamma, how am I to tell you what has happened? Kathleen says you will be dreadfully angry. I feel that too, yet I cannot see how we could possibly have avoided it."

"My dear Gertrude, you forgot that all the time you are keeping me in suspense," her mother said, half smiling.

They made a striking group, those three fair women—Dolores in the fair splendor of womanhood, Kathleen with her pathetic beauty, and Gertrude in the freshest bloom of her girlhood, dainty, delicate, and lovely.

"I will tell you at once, mamma," she said, "and you must promise me not to be very angry."

FINALLY MADE A COMPLETE CURE.

Mr. Jacob Jamieson, Jamieson Bros., the well-known Contractors and Builders, Welland, Ont., tells of how he was cured: "For fourteen years I was afflicted with kidney trouble which increased in severity the last five years. My most serious attack was four years ago, when I was completely incapacitated. I had terrible pains across my back, floating specks before my eyes and was in almost constant torment. I could not sit or stand with ease and was a wreck in health, having no appetite and lost greatly in flesh. I had taken medicine from five different doctors and also numerous other preparations to no purpose. I finally began to take Doan's Kidney Pills and before I had taken five boxes the trouble left me and I now feel better than I have for twenty years. Those who know me know how I was afflicted and say it is almost impossible to believe that I have been cured, yet they know it is so. I have passed the meridian of life but I feel that I have taken on the rosy hue of boyhood."

SNAKE CHARMING

Is not a popular occupation. Most women shrink from the sight of a snake and would faint at the touch of one. But these same women run greater risks than the snake charmer. How many women allow disease to fasten on them and slowly to crush out their strength.

Womanly diseases should never be allowed to undermine the health. Female weakness, bearing-down pains, inflammation, ulceration, backache, headache, nervousness, and other womanly ailments, curable by medicine, are promptly and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

"I deem it my duty to express my deep, heartfelt gratitude to you for having been the means under providence of restoring me to health," writes Mrs. Oscar Brown, of Oxford, Granville Co., N. C. "For two years I suffered with female weakness, headache, neuralgia in various parts of the system, and after using four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, three of his 'Golden Medical Discovery,' one vial of 'Pleasant Pellets,' also 'Lotion Tablets,' and one box of 'Antiseptic and Healing Suppositories,' I am cured."

If you are led to the purchase of "Favorite Prescription" because of its remarkable cures of other women, do not accept a substitute.

QUOTATIONS ON THE WALL STREET MARKET.

St. Paul a Feature of To-day's Market.

The Quotations of the Leading Stocks —Market Letters.

The Wall street market opened this morning a shade higher than last night's close, and kept strong until the last half hour, when it began to sag and sold off rapidly. On the whole, however, there was a decided gain over yesterday's figures. The general opinion is that the lowest point of the present break has been struck and that all stocks will now begin to rise. A prominent feature of to-day's transactions was St. Paul which gained over a point. This stock opened up at 155 5-8, touched 157 3-8 and finally closed at 156 1-2. Missouri Pacific is still strong, and Sloss seems to be a general favourite.

MARKET LETTER.

New York, May 19th, 9.45 a. m. — There was further liquidation in stock market yesterday caused by announcement of gold shipment to-day. There is no important news of any kind to-day except possibility of further gold shipments on Thursday as foreign exchange continues strong and this will probably have a depressing sentiment. Trading continues highly professional and until there is better outside demand we look for an irregular traders' market, but it seems as though rally were about due, in which event we advise securing profits.

New York, May 19th, 9.45 a. m. — U. S. Rubber meeting to-day. Drought serious in Eastern states, otherwise crop reports good. Reported only $150,000,000, including underwriters proportion U.S. steel bonds taken. Understood March statement last of M.O.P. unfavourable showing. C.P.R. wanted in loan crowd; fair general borrowing demand for stocks. Banks gained since Friday $55,000. $2,250,000 gold goes to-day to Europe.

DOW, JONES & CO.

MARKET NOTES.

The earnings of Baltimore & Ohio for April, issued a few days ago, enable a fairly accurate calculation to be made as to the showing which the company will make this year upon its capital stock. Last year Baltimore & Ohio earned 10.4 per cent. on the common stock outstanding. In reality, however, the actual earnings were about 13 per cent., as a large proportion of the earnings were spent on betterments and improvements. The gain in net earnings for ten months for the current fiscal year has amounted to slightly over $2,000,000. Owing to the recent increase in the capital stock, however, the percentage earned on the common issue will not be as large this year as it was last year. The indications are that the surplus earnings will amount to about 8 per cent. on the common stock. To this must be added the earnings spent on betterments and improvements which raise the actual earnings of the Baltimoe & Ohio this year to about 10 per cent. as compared with about 12 per cent. last year.

Conservatives Fail in Appeal Against the Judgment.

PLENTY OF FRAUD PROVEN.

"So Much Illegality and Irregularity," Court Cannot Understand Appeal.

The appeal of Andrew Miscambeld, the Conservative candidate in the last Sault Ste. Marie Provincial election, and whose election was set aside, was dismissed on Monday morning in the Court of Appeal at Osgoode Hall, Chief Justice Moss presiding. The appeal judges held that the saving clause of the act as to the irregularities complained of not being sufficient to invalidate the election, did not apply in this case. The judgment sets forth, in part:—

In the result we are of the opinion that the judgment of the rota judges, before whom the case was tried, should be affirmed.

ROY CHARGES UPHELD.

With regard to the Roy charges, the rota judges, in spite of the difficulty they found in accepting Roy as a truthful witness, came to the conclusion upon the whole testimony that his employment and payment were based upon a request for his vote, and on the understanding that he would vote for the appellant or abstain from voting altogether. It is argued that this finding is opposed to the direct testimony of Parent, in whose veracity the rota judges expressed confidence. But Parent was not in a position to know all that transpired, and it is quite apparent more transpired than he was aware of. According to Morreault, he and Roy had been together and talking for some time before Parent came upon the scene, and Parent says that almost the first words he heard pass between Morreault and Roy were a request by Morreault for Roy to work for him for $3 or $4 a day, and that Roy's reply was "I don't intend to sell my vote." Why should he speak of his vote unless something had been said about it previously? Is it not likely that something had transpired to make him think that his vote was being sought for?

DOESN'T CLEAR IT AWAY.

The work done did not call for any great amount of knowledge or intelligence. One would have supposed that some persons could have been found among the appellant's supporters who could speak English and French, and was capable of performing the light labour that Roy was given to do. If money was to be spent for such purposes why should it be upon a political opponent? Money was paid by Morreault to Roy under circumstances calling for explanation. The explanation offered is that it was paid for services but this is not satisfactorily made out. On the contrary the testimony leads to the conviction that there would have been no employment if Roy had been an unfriendly voter.

The rota judges while taking a lenient view of Morreault and of his own account of his doings, were yet unable to accept his denial of Roy's statement that Morreault had asked him for his vote. And in that we concur.

CLEARLY PROVEN.

As to the other charges the case is even clearer. The payments to Delargey are clearly shown. One is admitted by Morreault and the other is scarcely denied. He can only say that he does not remember it. It is true he endeavoured to explain the admitted payment by saying that it was made in order to get rid of an importunate tramp. But it is singular that this man should have singled him out and insisted upon his giving him money, even following him to the railway station, repeating his demands. The real reason is explained by the other testimony.

These two men came to Morreault and asked to be supported until the election, and he told them they would be satisfied; he would give Roy the money to pay them. We think the promise and payments to Delargey and the promise to Daigle well established, and we concur in the rota judges' finding. In doing these acts Morreault was guilty of bribery under the Act as having promised money or valuable consideration to these voters in order to induce them to vote, and as having paid money to one of them first in order to induce him to vote and afterwards on account of his having voted.

These men intimated in terms not misunderstood by Morreault that unless they were supported until election day, they would not remain at the Soo to record their votes. Morreault thereupon promised them that they would be satisfied, and they said they would vote for the appellant. Afterwards Morreault made the payments which have been proved, in pursuance of his promise. These, as well as the bribery of Roy, were corrupt practices within the meaning of the Election Act sufficient of themselves to void the election.

THE ONUS NOT DISCHARGED.

Several acts of bribery having been established, it lay upon the appellant to discharge the onus of satisfying the tribunal that, notwithstanding such acts, the election should not be voided.

There were other illegal practices not of a personal nature which cannot be overlooked in considering whether the appellant has succeeded in discharging the onus. It is not possible to say that the acts of bribery were of a trifling nature in themselves. They were committed under circumstances showing deliberation and intent. The importation of Morreault from Montreal and his participation in this election contest in the manner in which he did participate in it are not satisfactorily accounted for. What has been shown as the appellant's part in the supply of money increases his difficulties. His account of his dealings in regard to them demonstrate an entire disregard for the plain directions of the Act. The moneys were not paid to his financial agent, no account was rendered to that gentleman, and they did not appear in his published statement.

There was so much illegality and irregularity in connection with this election that we are unable to see how the appellant could hope to convince the rota judges that the election should not be voided.

We entirely agree with the conclusion they have reached, that the illegal practices of which they received such vivid impressions in the course of the trial made it impossible for them to give the respondent the benefit of the saving clause of the Act.

The appeal must be dismissed with costs.

Directions as to Culture and Means of Support.

Sweet peas will not be troubled with the red spider, if the season is one of ordinary dampness. But if there should be but little rain, it would be well to apply water to the plants at least every other day with a sprayer, being particularly careful to have it get to the underside of the leaves, where the spider likes to hide himself away.

If the aphis attacks the plants he can be easily routed by an infusion of Ivory soap. Shave up half a cake of the ordinary size and pour water over it and set it on the stove until melted. Apply this solution freely to the plants daily and very soon the aphis will disappear.

The ideals upport of the sweet pea from the standpoint of the plant seems to be the brush. It takes to nothing else so kindly. This support is not attractive at first, but as soon as the vines cover it you will be delighted with it, for it does away with all the formality and primness which characterizes the ordinary support given the plant. Where it cannot be obtained, woven wire netting is as good as anything. Always choose that having a coarse mesh. Let it be at least six feet wide. Fasten it to posts about 8 feet apart, and let it be drawn tightly to prevent sagging. At first you may have to assist the young plants in taking hold. Wind them out and in among the meshes and they will soon take hold of the wires with their tendrils.

Be sure to prevent seed from forming if you want flowers throughout the season. It is a good plan to go over the vines daily and cut away every faded flower. If you do this and keep the plants well fertilized they will continue to bloom until the cold weather comes.—Ellen E. Rexford.

Note. — Rexford — he of the Ladies' Jornal—is a dab at giving advice, on almost any subject, and it may be less majestic to think that any suggestion he makes can be improved. However in regard to supporting sweet peas, a simple and effective device has been and can be employed. Granting that the row of peas is in a straight line, neat stakes, about five or six feet in height, according to the richness of the soil, may be firmly planted. Wind the cord around shingle or lath nails, driven home far enough to be firm, for when the peas are well grown, a high wind creates a strong force on the compact mass of foliage, and on this account the stakes should be strong and straight-grained, as they may easily be snapped near the ground. When peas are high enough to climb, stretch a line of common binder twine, the cheapest kind of cord obtainable, on the stakes, just a little below the tops of the peas. This will conceal the twine. Let the peas grow higher, and when they are four or five inches above the first line of binder twine, stretch another parallel witht he first, and about seven inches higher, and repeat as the peas grow upward. The young peas soon conceal each new line of twine, and its unsightliness, to which some might object. At the worst, each new line of twine is only visible for a day or two, if there is good growth. Binder twine is loosely spun and the projecting filaments for a good object for the grip of the sweet pea tendrils. Nothing cheaper than this; except brush, which is unspeakably hideous, and unsuitable for one of the most most beautiful and prodigal of bloom of our common flowers. Its bontanical name, Lathyrus odorata, worthy of its beauty of form, colour and perfume, deserves a better support than unsightly and staggering rows of dead twigs. By the way, it is well to remember that sweet peas need plenty of moisture, and if Jupiter Pluvius doesn't supply it, then resource will have to be had to the Water Commissioners, or the well or cistern.

SUBMISSION OF THE ALBANIANS.

Probably as Result of Heavy Fighting With Turkish Troops.

Constantinople, May 18.—The Turkish officials observe much reserve regarding the details of the fighting which occurred during the advance of the Turkish troops on Ipek, Albania, which was occupied May 15. Several hundred Albanians are now reported to have been killed or wounded.

The Albanians, it is declared, have telegraphed to the Sultan announcing their submission, and expressing their fidelity and readiness to accept the measures necessary for the pacification of Albania.

THE JEWISH MASSACRE.

Facts Have Not Been Mis-Stated—The Governor of Kishineff Dismissed by the Czar.

London, May 20.—The Under Foreign Secretary, Lord Cranborne, was asked in the House of Commons for information on the massacre of Jews at Kishineff, Bessarabia, a month ago. The Secretary, in reply, placed the total of killed at about double the number given in the official Russian report. Otherwise the facts did not differ from those already published.

Lord Cranborne added: "According to the Government's information the disturbances arose from the murder of a Christian lad, which was wrongly attributed to the Jews. The latter retaliated on their assailants, and the result was an attack on the Jews by a mob on Easter Sunday and Easter Monday, in which it is believed, about a hundred Jews lost their lives and many more were injured."

Governor of Kishineff Dismissed.

St. Petersburg, May 20.—The report that Lieutenant-General Raeben, Governor of Kishineff, Bessarabia, where the massacre of Jews occurred a month ago, had been dismissed by the Czar, is confirmed. The Imperial Ukase dismissing the general is dated May 17.

The Russian Government has received no representations from the Government of the United States in regard to the Kishineff massacres. To Ambassador McCormick's question if relief would be accepted, the Foreign Office has replied that, while it greatly appreciated the American generosity, there was no need for relief, as the wants of the inhabitants of Kishineff were being looked after.

A Sure Remedy.

"I am fixing up a surprise for John, but I am afraid that if he stays around the house he will discover me."

"That's all right. You just tie a towel around your head and ask him if he can't stay at home today and help you take up the carpets."

HOW MONEY IS TO BE APPLIED

Legislature Passes Nearly a Million in Estimates—Business Being Rushed at a Rapid Rate With Practically No Obstruction—Municipal Trading Committee — Rumors About Gubernatorial Residence.

Toronto, May 20.—Premier Ross disposed of the rumors that the Government intended to vacate the present Government House and build or buy a better home for the Lieutenant-Governor, closer to the Parliament Buildings. The matter was brought up in the House by Mr. Duff, who asked the Premier for a statement regarding the rumor.

Mr. Ross replied that the Government had not the remotest intention of doing away with Government House.

Mr. Duff pursued the subject by informing the House that he had heard that the Lieutenant-Governor did not intend to occupy the present building.

Mr. Ross—He'll be there in August.

Municipal Trading Committee.

Hon. J. M. Gibson brought down the names of the committee which will collect information on the success or failure of municipal ownership and municipal trading. The committee will be composed of Messrs. Gibson, Pattullo, Graham, Crawford, Hendrie and Murphy.

They will have power to engage the services of a secretary and to incur any expenditure that may be necessary in procuring material for publication.

The motion passed without discussion.

Financing the Temiskaming Road.

Mr. Latchford introduced a bill to amend the Temiskaming & Northern Railway Act. A new section replaces section 5, and provides for meeting cost of construction, equipment and maintenance by setting apart a tier of townships on each side of the road and other lands in Nipissing to the extent of 20,000 acres per mile.

The act is further amended by substituting bonds for debentures for the purpose of raising an unstated amount per mile for construction purposes. The bonds shall not bear more than 4 per cent., and are limited to forty years. They shall be a charge upon the franchise, roadbed and permanent fixtures and appurtenances, and on the proceeds of the sale of the lands, not including, however, the proceeds of the sale of timber or minerals, and the Province may by order in Council also guarantee payment of the bonds.

The income of the Commission from the railway is to be applied as follows—(1) Operating expenses, maintenance, extensions, and salaries of commission and officers; (2) interest on bonds; (3) sinking fund; (4) balance to be paid into consolidated revenue fund.

Bills introduced: To amend the Municipal Waterworks Act—(Morrison). Respecting the Lambton Central Railway — (Pettypiece). To amend Judicature Act.—(Lucas).

A number of bills were read a third time.

Mr. Harcourt's bill, to amend the High Schools Act, and Mr. Gibson's bill, to amend the Children's Protection Act, passed the committee stage.

Improvement of Niagara's Bank.

Mr. Ross moved the second reading of his bill, providing for the construction of works of improvement along the bank of the Upper Niagara River. The bill was read and sent to the committee.

Mr. Ross briefly explained his bill respecting circuses and traveling shows.

Another bill of the Premier extends the time till 1906 in which municipalities may avail themselves of the provisions of the act for the improvement of public highways. A long discussion ensued, in which all the road building experts in the House took part. The second reading was carried.

Only Gossip.

Just before the Legislature rose for recess, Mr. Whitney desired to know from the Premier if it was the intention of the Government to get through business and adjourn before the report of the Gamey commissioners shall have been received. There was a rumor to the effect.

The Premier answered that he had not heard it.

"But it is so reported," said Mr. Whitney.

"You musn't listen to gossip," was the Premier's reply.

The Speaker left the chair at 5.10.

Hearing in the Chamber.

On the House going into supply after recess last night, Hon. Mr. Gibson moved that an item of $800 for salary of the registrar of Algoma be struck out, the fees of the office being sufficient to recompense the officer. The motion was carried.

The accoustics of the Legislative chamber were discussed after the recess last night when the House got into supply.

The Premier thought it might be well to have architects look the chamber over and see what could be done.

Addition to Asylum Grounds.

While on the estimates of the public institutions, the Provincial Secretary informed the House that the Government had concluded the purchase on Saturday last of 71 acres west of the Mimico Asylum, the price being $7,100. Twenty-one acres of the land was available for the Industrial School farm.

Mr. Stratton also said that the Government proposed to purchase the Hatch farm, one mile from Woodstock, for the new hospital for epileptics.

Dr. Reaume brought up the question of the large number of insane committed to the jails of the country.

Mr. Stratton replied that before the next session of the House he expected to have accommodation for 500 more insane patients.

Will Survey 53 Townships.

The estimates of the Crown Lands Department showed a large increase over last year, the amount required for surveying new townships being $100,000, as against $20,000 last year. Mr. Davis said it was the intention to obtain 53 new townships for settlers.

Mr. Matheson said that a great deal of the money voted for surveys was wasted. There was gross mismanagement when lands worth thousands of dollars were practically given away. He objected to the item, and charged that the department did not keep informed.

The Commissioner of Crown Lands replied that it was not in order to refer to a matter which was being investigated by a committee. For the present, he would refrain from discussing the matter, but he promised to be able to defend himself at the proper time.

Nearly a Million Passed.

The estimates voted were: Hospitals and charities, $223,647.88; maintenance and repairs of Government buildings, $52,750; public buildings, $463,201; expenditure on account of outside service and surveys, $224,175; mining development, $23,400; parks, $10,600; refund account, $40,105.19.

The Shannon Matter.

Toronto, May 20.—The Public Accounts Committee of the Legislature had to go on yesterday without Capt. Sullivan. The Crown timber agent at Parry Sound will be instructed to have him here on Thursday.

Thomas Charlton stated that he purchased the limit from Capt. John Sullivan for $9,000, and had nothing whatever to do with Patrick Shannon. He had deemed it a good investment, but the cut had been a disappointment, as he expected to get two million feet. To Col. Matheson he said he would be satisfied if he came out even.

Patrick Shannon was called, but did not respond.

Railway Taxation Approved.

A large deputation of farmers appeared before the special committee of the Legislature on the new assessment bill on Tuesday and supported Mr. Pettypiece's bill to tax the railway corporations.

SIR THOMAS SHAUGHNESSY.

Tells What He Knows of Land Grants in British Columbia.

Victoria, B.C., May 20.—Sir Thomas Shaughnessy gave evidence yesterday afternoon before the Parliamentary Committee re the land grants scandal. He said certain lands were granted to the C.P.R. and afterwards cancelled. He was cross-examined by Mr. Duff as to the agreement entered into with shareholders who bought out the B.C.S. Nothing startling was adduced.

Body Found in Thames.

Chatham, Ont., May 20.—The body of Miss Annie Orr, who had been missing from her home since Sunday night, was found floating in the Thames yesterday afternoon by a Dover farmer, about a mile west of the city limits. Life had evidently been extinct for some considerable time. As Miss Orr was in ill-health and subject to fits of low spirits, it is supposed that she committed suicide.

Accidentally Drowned.

Fergus, May 20.—The body of Leonard Hueston, an inmate of the Wellington House of Industry, who disappeared last Thursday was discovered in the Grand River. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death. Deceased had been an inmate of the Home for 26 years.

ANOTTAWA MYSTERY

No One Knows How Mr. Allan Gilmour Was Shot Dead.

WAS A WEALTHY LUMBERMAN

Mr. Gilmour's Body Was Found by Mrs. Gilmour Lying in a Pool of Blood in His Attic Storeroom of Rifles. Shooting Apparatus, Etc. — Theory of Suicide Scouted by Coroner Baptie.

Ottawa, May 20.—Allan Gilmour, 270 Cooper street, a man of considerable wealth, accidentally shot himself yesterday afternoon while handling a rifle. The theory of suicide is scouted by Coroner Baptie, and no inquest will be held.

Mrs. Gilmour had gone out driving after lunch with her niece, Miss Hendry. They left the house about 3 o'clock and returned shortly after 4. Their attention was attracted by the strange actions of a collie dog, a pet of Mr. Gilmour. The animal was running up and down stairs in a frantic manner, and trying to attract their notice. Mrs. Gilmour followed the dog which led her to the door of a room in the attic used by her husband as a store room for guns, rifles, fishing tackle and other sporting paraphernalia. Entering the room Mrs. Gilmour found her husband lying on his back on the floor, his head in a pool of blood, and a magazine rifle lying near him. Death must have been instantaneous.

There was a rumor that Mr. Gilmour had lost heavily in stock speculations recently, but Mr. Gill of the Bank of Commerce says it would not impair his annual income more than $500. Mr. Gilmour was a man in very comfortable circumstances, and had retired from active business life. He dabbled in stocks to some extent, but did not speak as one who was at all worried about them.

Mr. Gilmour was a man of independent means, who had been for some years retired from active business life, although he retained an interest in Gilmour & Co., Limited, at Trenton, of which company he was formerly president. He was a childless man, but leaves two brothers, John Gilmour, Ottawa, and David Gilmour, Trenton, and one sister, Mrs. F. Fellows of Montreal. Arrangements for the funeral have not been completed yet, but interment will be in Quebec, the early home of the Gilmour family.

HUNDREDS HOMELESS.

Fire Has Devastated the Town of Little Bay, Newfoundland — Lumbering Section of Appleton Destroyed.

St. John's, Nfld., May 20.—Fire has devastated the town of Little Bay, where a large copper mine is being worked, three churches, with the clergymen's residences; the mining companies' stores; the Government buildings, and forty dwellings were destroyed. The total loss is estimated at $50,000.

Two hundred and fifty persons are homeless, and relief is being forwarded by the authorities.

Another fire destroyed the lumbering section of Appleton.

HOSPITAL SECRETS.

A Nurse Says: "Pe-ru-na is a Tonic of Efficiency."

MRS. KATE TAYLOR.

Mrs. Kate Taylor, a graduated nurse of prominence, gives her experience with Peruna in an open letter. Her position in society and professional standing combine to give special prominence to her utterances.

CHICAGO, ILL., 427 Monroe St.—"As far as I have observed Peruna is the finest tonic any man or woman can use who is weak from the after effects of any serious illness.

"I have seen it used in a number of convalescent cases, and have seen several other tonics used, but I found that those who used Peruna had the quickest relief.

"Peruna seems to restore vitality, increase bodily vigor and renew health and strength in a wonderfully short time."—MRS. KATE TAYLOR.

In view of the great multitude of women suffering from some form of female disease and yet unable to find any cure, Dr. Hartman, the renowned specialist on female catarrhal diseases, has announced his willingness to direct the treatment of as many cases as make application to him during the summer months, without charge. SOME HAPPENINGS IN THE NORTHERN TOWN.

Personal Mention and Other Happenings of Interest at Lakefield.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Lakefield council met on Monday evening, May 11th. Present,—Reeve Fitzgerald, in the chair, and Councillors Kidd, Tanner, Northey and Burgess.

The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and confirmed.

The treasurer presented his monthly statement showing a balance on hand of $53.55.

A communication was received from J. A. Brooks, asking permission to build a siding for unloading freight, also one from Mrs. Chamberlain referring to the roaming abroad of cattle, and the bad condition of the drainage on Smith street.

Moved by Councillor Kidd, seconded by Councillor Northey, that the communication from Mrs. Chamberlain and the treasurer's report, be received.

Moved by Councillor Tanner, seconded by Councillor Burgess, that the G.T.R. be allowed to construct a siding as suggested by them, provided that their plans are acceptable to the general committee of the council.—Carried.

The Finance Committee presented the following report:

Gentlemen, — We, your Finance Committee, have examined the following accounts, and having found them correct, would recommend payment of the same:

J. Hendren, teaming, etc...	$13 75
W. Gurd & Co., dog tags.....	3 30
J. Griffin & Son, handles	1 35
J. Cooper, teaming...	10 20
C. J. Blomfield, insurance	80
Pay sheet No. 2.....	23 75
Pay sheet No. 3.....	1 88
Lakefield News acct.....	2 25
	$56 28

All of which is respectfully submitted.

E. A. Tanner, chairman.

The report was on motion received and adopted.

Moved by Councillor Burgess, seconded by Councillor Tanner, that the council act as a court of revision on May 28th, at 8.30 p.m.

Moved by Councillor Kidd seconded by Councillor Northey, that Councillor Tanner go to Toronto to oppose section one of the act applied for by the town of Peterborough.

Applications were received from Messrs. Wm. Doidge, John Freeman and Robert Finlay for the position of assessor, collector, constable, etc.

Moved by Councillor Tanner, seconded by Councillor Kidd, that Robert Findlay be appointed constable, assessor, collector of taxes, etc., at a salary of $400 per annum, provided his bonds and bondsmen are satisfactory to the council, and that the clerk be authorized to prepare a bylaw sanctioning the appointment.—Carried.

The council then adjourned.

The new sawmill erected by the Lillicrap-Tate Lumber Company is now completed and commenced operations on the 4th inst, sawing railway ties for the firms lumber sidings. These are now completed and the mill will begin the season's operations this week. The mill has a fine appearance and is built on concrete foundations and equipped with machinery of the most modern design supplied by the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Company of Peterborough. The boiler and engine room is a fireproof structure, built of stone and roofed with iron. The firm have spared no expense in making everything in and about the mill up to date in every particular. The mill equipment is what is known as a circular saw mill, supplied with a complete system of rollers for conveying the lumber from the circular to the edger and then on to the trimmers and sorting platform or boardway. Sawdust is used for fuel and is carried from the saws to the furnaces by an endless chain carrier. The logs are taken from the river in the same manner—in short everything is arranged to insure quick work and swell the output. The situation of the mill is especially noticeable, with a fine natural log pond on the river at the end of the mill, and the G. T. R. dock and siding at the other, making everything most convenient for receiving the raw material and shipping the manufactured product. We understand that the mill will be run throughout the season, the firm having over 1,000,000 feet of lumber and a large number of railway ties to saw. They have also contracted to saw for the Rathbun Company.

The body of Master Russell Lennox, who disappeared from home on Saturday, May 9th, was found in the river above dam No. 4 on Monday. The body was taken to Norwood for interment on Tuesday.

The junior cricket team of Peterborough, drove to Lakefield on Saturday and played a friendly game with the Grove cricket club. The visiting team were the victors, the score being Peterborough 75, Lakefield 60.

The Presbyterian church are giving a tea and concert on the evening of May 25th—Victoria Day—in the town hall, Lakefield. No pains are being spared to make this a great success and visitors from Peterborough and surrounding country will be cordially welcomed.

SPRINGVILLE.

(From a correspondent.)

Miss Armstrong, of Garden Hill, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. R. Robertson.

We regret to state that Mrs. S. Grandy is suffering from an attack of paralysis.

Mr. J. Ellison, of Campbellcroft, spent Sunday with friends here.

Miss Lily Cathcart has returned home after visiting friends in Millbrook.

The carpenters are making fine progress on the new manse. The bricklayers are expected this week.

Quite a number of the farmers in this neighbourhood are engaged in planting sugar beets.

Mrs. Ellison of Brantford, is visiting with friends here.

OMEMEE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The farmers are rejoicing over the refreshing showers. Seeding now completed, and good vegetation.

The sugar beet seeding has been successfully performed by the farm drills of different makes.

Our doctors are not very busy just now, as everyone has been too busy, seeding, house cleaning and gardening, to get sick.

Our churches were all well attended last Sunday and profusely decorated with May flowers. Rev. Mr. Langfeldt of Peterborough, occupied the pulpit of Christ's church, his former place, and was attentitively listened to by a large congregation.

The Presbyterians were delighted with Rev. Mr. McPherson, late of Halifax, a travelled and experienced preacher of twenty years. We have not been in the habit of hearing such a style of setting forth the truth, calculated to arouse the most thoughtless.

The 25th of May promises to be a gala day here. There will be football and other sports.

The football match between Millbrook and Omemee on the grounds of the former, was a tie.

Mr. O'Neil of Peterborough, has assumed the proprietorship of the Bradburn House here. Mr. Clancy goes to Peterborough. His family will be missed here in social and musical circles.

COULD NOT WALK.

A Young Lady Tells the Torture She Suffered From Rheumatism.

Miss Myrtle Major, Hartland, N.B., is one of the thousands who have proved that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will cure rheumatism. Miss Major says: I suffered from the trouble for nearly a year. I had the advice of a doctor and took his medicine, but it did not help me. The trouble was located chiefly in my ankles, and the pain I suffered at times was intense. As a matter of fact at times I was quite unable to walk across the room, and for some six months I was confined to the house. I used liniments and other medicines prescribed for rheumatism, but they did me no good. Then some of my friends urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I acted on their advice and before I had used three boxes I began to feel better. I took nine boxes of the pills altogether, and before I finished the last box not a trace of the trouble remained. It is now nearly two years since I took the pills and as there has not been a symptom of the trouble since it proves that the pills make permanent cures."

Rheumatism is a disease of the blood and can only be cured by treating it through the blood. That is why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills always cure this trouble. Good blood makes every organ in the body strong and healthy, and as every dose of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make pure, rich blood, it follows that they cure such troubles as anaemia, neuralgia, indigestion, heart trouble, kidney ailments, erysipelas, the after effects of la grippe and fevers, etc. They also relieve and cure the ailments from which so many women constantly suffer. See that you get the genuine pills with the full name, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," on the wrapper around every box. Sold by all medicine dealers or sent post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ontario.

A FINE YOUNG HORSE

Has Been Bought by Messrs. Milburn Bros., of Smith.

It is understood that Messrs. Milburn Bros., of Smith have bought the imported Clydsdale stallion "Dumbarton" from Messrs. Graham Bros., of Claremont, Ont. This horse was sired by "Mains of Aires" and his dam by "Sir Everdt." "Dumbarton" will travel through the Township of Smith and will appear at Rountree's Hotel, Peterborough, every Saturday throughout the season, all conditions being favourable.

TO TEACH FARMING IN THE SCHOOLS

The Education Department has Decided to Institute a Court.

Travelling Instructors Will be Appointed and Schools Grouped in Districts.

The education Department have come forward with another radical change, this time regarding the rural communities. It is the establishment of a course in scientific agriculture.

The plan is to provide two or three acres of land adjacent to the most important school in several districts in each county, and with the addition of six other schools there will be formed one garden centre in each district. The County Council will then engage travelling instructors, who must be graduates of the Guelph Agricultural College. Upon the day appointed for the visit of the instructor the boys from the seven schools in the district will meet at the central school, where special practical instruction will be given in elementary forestry, elementary horticulture, entomology, and its relation to agriculture and horticulture, and physics and chemistry of the soil. The value of this instruction, it is pointed out, lies in its practical characteristics, each pupil being brought in contact with the actual work in the particular branches of study.

The instructors will visit one district each day, and it is expected that with two competent men engaged by the County Councils, each county will be covered in a week. Each year the different schools will be permitted to exhibit the result of their work at the county fairs and prizes will be donated to the schools making the best showing. By this feature it is expected that keener interest will be taken in this special branch of study and a friendly rivalry will be stimulated.

It is expected that before a year passes at least two counties will be thoroughly organised for this special work, and assurances have been given that the Legislature will grant an appropriation to assist to bring the work to a high standard of perfection. It has also been stated that this is just the beginning of a broad plan to improve the education system in rural communities, and that in addition to this special course for boys, a domestic science course will be introduced for the benefit of the girls upon a similar plan, where schools will combine, and where there will be one centre to which girls from several schools will come.

A number of our members of the I. O.O.F. went over to Havelock on Sunday to attend a special service, preached to the I.O.O.F. of Havelock, in the English Church.

Mr. Robert Cannon, of Asphodel, died on Tuesday, May 12th. He was 75 years old and had lived in this vicinity over 70 years. He being born in England He was buried in the Norwood cemetery on May 14th by the Norwood Masonic Lodge A.F. & A.M. A large number of the brethren attended the funeral, Norwood being his mother lodge. Bro. Rev. McKee McLennan officiated as clergyman. The Masonic burial service was conducted by the Worshipful Master Bro. Dr. Ford, after which the secretary dropped the scroll into the grave while the lamb skin apron was deposited by the Worshipful Master. The members of the lodge marched around the grave dropping in the evergreen, after which the grand honors were given. The bearers were J. B. Rearal, Thos. Fraser, W. A. Hanson, J. Johnson, Robt. A. Scott, J. McMillan. The deceased leaves six children—Wellington and Washington, of Peterborough, Robert, Thomas and Elden, Norwood and Mrs. Richart, Arkansas, U.S. His brother, Mr. Wm. J. Cannon, of Sharbot Lake, attended the funeral.

MANUFACTURERS' PLIGHT.

Cannot get Sufficient Employees in Ontario.

Compelled to Raise Wages so High that There is no Profit Left—Export Trade Threatened.

Toronto Globe.

"It is not the farmers only who are badly in need of employees," said a gentleman yesterday, whose business has taken him to nearly every town in western Ontario during the past month. "The manufacturers are in even a worse plight. People talk about the times being prosperous, but the fact is that manufacturing has reached a critical condition owing to labour troubles. Scores of manufacturers told me that they had been compelled to raise wages so often and so much that there was no profit left. I know a maker of lawn mowers who actually loses 25 cents on each machine he turns out. But even at these figures it is impossible to secure a sufficient number of workmen.

"Never anticipating such difficulties manufacturers months ago accepted orders right and left, but now they cannot fill them. Naturally they will pick out the most profitable and let the others go. This will have a very bad effect on Canadian credit abroad. We have been struggling for years to get a foothold in the foreign market of the world and now when our manufacturers have made a beginning they are obliged to back out because of these labour difficulties. We will receive in this way a blow from which it will take us a long time to recover.

"To make matters worse employees, instead of showing any sympathy with the employers, are acting in the opposite way. The loading of a foreign shipment is often the signal for another demand to increase wages. I know one man in London who was obliged to conceal the fact that he was shipping a carload to the Northwest. I know two other firms, one in Guelph one in Brantford, who received demands for more wages as soon as they had shipped abroad. The ordinary labourers in most of these towns are getting over $2 a day, so that you can imagine how expensive in proportion are other kinds of labour.

"Some Detroit manufacturers have advertised in Ontario papers for workmen at attractive rates and have sent agents here to gather them in. This movement is already of a serious character. One firm in Galt has imported thirty-five Scotch mechanics, who are of a superior class and will make excellent citizens. It is probable that other firms will be obliged to do the same thing. Berlin seems the only town where the manufacturers have succeeded in holding their own. They had to fight, but by standing together they won. Everyone who has travelled through the country as I have will tell you that I have not exaggerated. Manufacturing in Ontario is in a critical state."

The Tallest People.

In a comparative table of stature, arranged according to nationalities, the United States Indian stands higher than any other race of the world, though the Patagonian runs him very close. The white citizen comes next. The United States negro ranks fourteenth in the scale, and of all the countries of the world considered the Portuguese are found to be the shortest. It has always been proverbial among anatomists that blond nations are greater than their darker neighbors. This is due to the geological positions of the blond races. They are characteristic of the north and on account of the lower degree of temperature are induced to take more exercise, which throws them more in the open air. At the top of the list of countries, arranged in order of stature, the first seven after the United States white men are Norway, Scotland, British American, Sweden, Ireland, Denmark and Holland, all northern nations.

Naming a Yacht.

The naming of a book is no holiday task, and authors particularly proud of a title are tolerably sure to discover that it has been already used. But the naming of a yacht is almost a greater perplexity. Plagiarism may in this case result in practical confusion carrying the most awkward consequences, and not all titles to which, in search of variety, recourse has already been had are satisfactory from all points of view. Not long ago, for instance, a very grave British cabinet minister, perhaps wishing for once to be sprightly, called his yacht Flirt. He had not consulted his family, who were, however, quite sure, he thought, to delight in his outburst of gayety. However, his daughters naturally remarked how very disagreeable it would be to go ashore with that label around their hats.

Followed His Advice.

One day a couple of girls went to the Roper livery stable and asked for a gentle horse, as they wanted to drive out in the country a few miles. The man gave them one and told them the horse would be all right if they kept the rein from his tail. When they returned in the evening he asked them if they had any trouble. "Oh, no," said one; "there was one little shower, but we had an umbrella and we took turns at holding it over the horse's tail, so that there was not a drop of rain touched it, and we got along all right." That explains the dazed look the liveryman has been wearing.

Copper Came From Cyprus.

The word copper is generally admitted to be deprived from Cyprus, as it was from that island that the ancient Romans first procured their supplies. In those remote days Cyprus and Rhodes were the great copper districts, and even in our own day new discoveries of copper ore, especially the beautiful blue and green ores, from which the metal is so much more easily obtained than from the copper pyrites and other sulphureted ores of Cornwall, are made nearly every year in the islands of the Mediterranean.

THE TREADGOLD CONCESSION.

Scope of the Commission to Investigate Will Be Broad Enough—Classification of Freight on Railways—Port Colborne Harbor—Improvements at Sorel, Que.—A New Cigarette Bill to Be Introduced.

Ottawa, May 20.—Monday saw the quietus given to the bill, which was to prohibit absolutely the manufacture, importation and sale of cigarettes in Canada. Next week, however, a less drastic measure, but one which will equally meet the expressed views of the promoters of that measure, will be introduced by the Minister of Justice. The bill will be brought in as an amendment to the Criminal Code, and will make it an offence throughout Canada to sell cigarettes to boys or girls under sixteen years of age. This is already the law in Ontario and Nova Scotia.

In the House yesterday Mr. Prefontaine introduced a bill to amend the act respecting the safety of ships, the object of which is to assimilate the Canadian deck load law with the British law.

Sir William's Bill Passed.

The bill of Sir William Mulock to aid in the settlement of railway labor disputes was read a third time and passed.

Mr. Marcil (Bonaventure) said the Atlantic and Lake Superior Railway Co., which has taken over the Baie Des Chaleur Railway, had received $96,000 subsidy for 50 miles of road, and was asking as much more. The Baie Des Chaleur Co., he said, still owes $226,276 for material, labor, etc., and for payment of their debts, about $10,000 was available. He asked that laborers having their time checks should be paid first, also that if further subsidy is granted, the amount to be given to these preferred creditors be distributed directly by the Crown.

Mr. Kemp (East Toronto) asked whether the latest classification of railway freight rates had been authorized by order in Council.

Mr. Blair could not say whether the classification was authorized, but promised to look into the matter.

To Investigate Treadgold Concession.

Mr. Borden read a telegram from Dawson, saying: "Official organ here says Commission has been appointed to investigate Treadgold." The Opposition leader asked what foundation there was for the report.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied: "The statement is premature, but the committee will be known in a very few days."

Mr. Borden asked whether the terms of the Commission would be submitted to the House, and whether the interests of the public would be represented by counsel.

Sir William Mulock was unable to answer in detail. He could say, however, that the investigation would be thorough; it would deal not only with all existing concessions, but also with the hydraulic needs of the district with respect to mining. As to producing the instructions so that they could be discussed in the House before the Commission was sent out, the point had not been considered, but he would make it known to the Government.

The House in Supply.

The House got into supply at 3.30 upon the items on capital account of $515,800 for the River St. Lawrence ship channel between Montreal and Quebec, and $100,000 for Quebec harbor improvements. A desultory debate took place upon these items, which were considered jointly. The chief topic of discussion was the capacity of the large dredge J. I. Tarte and the equipment of the Government shipyard at Quebec for constructing dredges and other craft. The Opposition also exhibited a consuming thirst for knowledge as to the cost of operation, the places where they would be employed, and the exact amount of material which it was expected that each dredge in the Government service would remove this year. One ground upon which the Opposition protracted the discussion was that the dredge J. I. Tarte, it was alleged, cost $500,000, the original estimate having been $800,000, and there were many inquiries as to the reasons for the increased cost. Hon. Mr. Tarte said there were some slight changes and improvements made in the dredge after construction, but they were of quite an ordinary description. At 6 o'clock Hon. J. I. Tarte was plying the Minister of Public Works with questions regarding the progress of various projects which he had under consideration when he left office.

Shortly after the opening of the House this evening the Chairman declared the item about which the whole afternoon's debate had centred carried, and an item of $100,000 for increased berthing accommodation at Quebec was taken up. Mr. Sutherland explained that the increased dockage will be 402 feet, and the cost $198,000. This item passed after a brief discussion, and the appropriation of $50,000 for dredging the channel at Port Arthur to twenty-one feet was taken up. Mr. Tarte strongly urged that the breakwater at Port Arthur should be repaired immediately. The item passed. Capital expenditure items were then taken up and passed.

On an item of $142,000 for harbor improvements at Port Colborne, Mr. German said that the breakwater, now almost completed, provides an absolute shelter from the western storms.

The item passed.

Mr. A. E. Kemp criticized the item of $47,000 for deep-water terminal facilities at Sorel, the total cost of which, he said, would be $935,000. He could not see what good it would ever be to the country.

Hon. Mr. Sutherland replied that the total cost of the work in progress would be $273,500, and the vote was to pay the balance due under the contract.

Mr. Tarte said that the rates of insurance on the Canadian Pacific Railway fleet had this year been reduced to as low a figure as to any American line.

Hon. James Sutherland pointed out that the works at Sorel were undertaken because strong representations had been made to the Government of the probability of a great business being done there, but the railway company which made the proposition to the Government had met with a mishap which sometimes prevented undertakings of a similar nature being carried to success. The item was allowed to stand.

Quite a debate occurred in reference to the item of $5,000 for St. Joseph's wharf. Hon. Mr. Sherritt moved that the item should be struck out.

Mr. Sutherland promised that before any of the vote was spent he would make careful inquiry into the whole matter. On this understanding the item was carried, and the House adjourned at 12.10 a.m.

THE EMPIRE'S DEFENCE.

Sir William Mulock Deprecates Any Action Tending to Promote Militarism in the Dominion of Canada.

Ottawa, May 20.—The attendance at the annual meeting of the British Empire League meeting held here yesterday was disappointingly small, but this was perhaps due to the fact that a number of committees of the House were in session at the same time. The address of the President, Lieut.-Col. George T. Denison, dealt largely with the question of Imperial defence. The meeting was also favored with speeches by Hon. J. Israel Tarte, Sir William Mulock and Sir Sanford Fleming. Mr. Tarte caused applause by dwelling upon the success with which King Edward played the role of a peacemaker among the nations. Sir William Mulock's attitude was rather one of protest against any union of the Empire for military purposes. He laid stress on the fact that Canada should spend its available resources in populating its lands and developing the country. He moved a resolution hoping it might be possible to find a basis for reciprocal trade throughout the Empire, which was unanimously carried. Sir Sanford Fleming proposed the appointment of a Government Commissioner to go out to Australia and endeavor to clear up the misunderstanding on the Pacific cable question.

WILLIAM HAIR KILLED.

Nitro-Glycerine Explodes in Petrolea and Causes Death.

Petrolea, May 20.—William Hair was instantly killed yesterday by an explosion of nitro-glycerine, his head being blown to pieces.

William Bedal, a workman, who was some feet away, and was walking towards the place of the accident, was blown some distance back, and through the door of a stable beyond, but was unhurt.

The deceased leaves a wife and three children. Dr. Calder holds an inquest to-day.

TAPS FROM THE WIRES.

Hamilton.—During a severe storm Monday, John Oliphant, a Glanford farmer, and his son, were stunned by lightning.

Toronto.—The body of a man supposed to be that of Tobias Prince, who left Hamilton despondent on the 21st March, 1902, on account of a quarrel with his family, was found in the bay here Tuesday morning. On May 25 last year Prince told his mother-in-law that he had been robbed of $50, but that he had $300 left. She was the last person who reports having seen him.

BRIDGEPORT RIOTERS.

For Obstructing Car, One Gets 90 Days in Jail.

Bridgeport, Conn., May 20.—The company operated 26 cars on five lines without experiencing any trouble from rioters yesterday. Several lines are still closed.

In the City Court yesterday, Michael Kelly, charged with throwing missiles in the rioting of Sunday, was held under $1,000 bail for trial, and Edward Handley, charged with obstructing a street car by stopping his team on the track, and with resisting arrest, was sentenced to 90 days in jail. Four others were fined from $5 to $10 apiece for shouting offensive names at car crews.

When Life is not Life.

"Without health life is not life; it is only a state of langour and suffering—an image of death." The use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food gives the weak, languid and discouraged a new hold on life. It makes the blood pure and rich, creates new nerve force and instills new energy and vitality into the whole being. It makes weak and sickly people strong and well by building up the system.

Real Enjoyment.

"I suppose," said Mrs. Oldcastle, "that you have arranged to attend the grand opera?"

"Oh, yes," replied her hostess. "Josiah says there's nothin' like grand opera to show real culture, so he's bought a box for every night, and we're goin' to take Daisy's German teacher with us to explain what they're sayin'."

A Natural Conclusion.

Teacher—Tommy Brown, tell me the shape of the earth.

Tommy—Round.

Teacher—How do you know?

Tommy Brown—You told me.

Teacher—Well, how do you suppose I know?

Tommy Brown—Oh, I s'pose somebody told you.

Advertising.

Editor—Does it pay to advertise in my paper? Well, I should say it does. Look at Smith, the grocer, for instance. He advertised for a boy last week, and the very next day Mrs. Smith had twins—both boys.

An Imperial Endowment Policy

Is the contract par excellence. While it embraces the life assurance feature its strongest point is the excellent return made to the assured himself at the expiration of the endowment period.

To indicate the many valuable features of this contract, take the case of a policy for $5,000 issued on the life of a man aged 30, with an Accumulative Surplus Period of 20 years:—

The premium would be $247.60 per annum for 20 years only, or $126.00 half-yearly.

The Company guarantees to pay to the beneficiary $5,000 in the event of the death of the assured during the 20 years.

At the end of the 20 years, the assured, being then alive, receives the entire cash value of his policy, consisting of—

The face value of the policy...$5,000
20 years accumulated surplus, estimated at... 1,696

Total cash value $6,696

(Being a return of $1.35 for every $1.00 paid, and in addition, the protection of $5,000 life assurance for 20 years.)

DELIGHTFUL PROGRAMME PRESENTED

By Miss E. Pauline Johnson and Mr. W. McRaye.

THE LEGEND OF QU'APPELLE

Some Excellent French-Canadian Poems.

A Gratified Audience in Local Opera House—Some Humorous Selections.

A fashionable and eminently appreciative audience greeted Miss E. Pauline Johnson, the Mohawk Indian poetess and Mr. McRaye, who appeared in the local Opera House last night under the auspices of the Girls' Guild of All Saint's church.

The programme with which the audience seemed delighted, was an excellent one, and although Miss Johnson and Mr. McRaye were the only contributors, it was far from wanting in variety. What added to its pleasure was that instead of the contributor coming on the stage, making a bow and beginning, each item was prefaced by a few very appropriate remarks or an original anecdote. The programme was thoroughly "Canadian" from the beginning to the end and the Yankee and the Englishman were cleverly caricatured. Miss Johnson, who is very graceful, during the execution of her selections, scored a great success while Mr. McRaye ran in a parallel direction. Mr. McRaye's French-Canadian selections were excellent. One great merit of this style of poetry is that it is free from obscurity and can be easily followed and thoroughly comprehended by persons who are not acquainted, in the slightest, with the French language.

The programme was opened by a poem entitled "The Englishman" from Miss Johnson, who throughout the evening honoured the audience with her own compositions. This selection was as well received as it had been rendered which, on its part, was excellent. A very interesting sketch was that by Drummond, "Le Vieu Temps," delivered by Mr. McRaye, with true warmth and feeling. This item was followed by one which sent a thrill of wonder and of sadness through the hearts. It was a romance entitled "Legend of Qu'Appelle" and was very effectively rendered by Miss Johnson. The Legend, which is a true Indian one, tells how the town of Qu'Appelle, which means "who calls," is so named. The story is that where the town now stands an Indian maiden bade her lover good-bye, telling him she would await his coming on the shore of the lake. After some time had elapsed the lover returned, swiftly paddling his canoe over the waters, calling the name of his love aloud. Once, as the silvery moon burst between the clouds in the east, he heard his own name softly called over the waters. On reaching the dwelling place of his love he was told that she had called his name before being claimed by his only rival—death. So runs the legend which Miss Johnson ably put into verse, and as ably delivered last night. A humourous sketch, which sent the audience into "fits of laughter," was that entitled "Gertrude," by Mr. McRaye. Perhaps Miss Johnson's most successful poem of the evening was "The Riders of the Plains," a poem of great merit, giving an accurate description of the worth and quality of the flower of Canada's fighting men—the Northwest Mounted Police. It was written in defiance to an American man, (for he scarcely could be tarmed gentleman), who sneered at the Canadian militia. Mr. McRaye's next selection, which concluded part I. of the programme, was "The Stovepipe Hole," which piece kept the audience bubbling over with mirth. It was only right that after such a humourous piece, which was heartily applauded, an interval of a few minutes should elapse before the beginning of Part II of the programme.

The latter half of the programme was opened with a playlet entitled "At the Ball," in which Miss Johnson acted he part of Clara Manners, while Mr. McRaye took the part of Captain Fielding. The scene of this selection was a ball given in Kensington lunatic asylum for patients who were not very violent. Miss Manners and Captain Fielding were the guests of Dr. Adams. The two guests seek refuge from the throng of dancing maniacs, and meet in a small room. Here each takes the other for a lunatic and acts as such. They, however, discover their mistake prior to the conclusion of a very clever little piece of acting. The next item, a comediette, entitled, "The Success of the Season," by Miss Johnson, which was a clever "take off" of the "objectionable Canadian." The piece was heartily applauded. In lieu of the National Anthem, Miss Johnson recited one of her stirring poems entieled "Canadian Born." The poem tells how Canada must and always will hold her own. The two lines—

"And the Yankee to the south of us, Shall to the south remain."

caused loud applause, owing to Mr. Andrew Carnegie's recent statement that Canada would soon be absorbed by the United States. This selection was received with rounds of applause on the part of the audience who left highly gratified with the excellence of the programme.

Plant Your Garden.

Mr. A. Blade, of the West-end Greenhouses, (at the residence of G. M. Roger) has ready a very fine collection of hardy seedlings and bedding-out plants. This is the time for planting your garden and flower-beds; and the West-end Greenhouses can be depended upon for exercising the utmost care to have everything pure and dependable. Parties having baskets, hanging pots and vases to fill will confer a favour by sending their orders in early for filling. Telephone 21b., to A. Blade, Manager.

THE PETERBOROUGH BOARD OF HEALTH

Met in Active Discussion This Morning.

Two Hours of Talk Led up to Action—The Hospitals.

It was moved by Mr. Eyres, seconded by Dr. McNulty, that the Mayor be requested to call a meeting of the Town Council on Tuesday evening next to confer with this Board with respect to letters from both hospitals regarding contagious diseases.—Carried.

The letters will appear in full in to-morrow's Examiner.

After some further discussion the Board adjourned.

SECOND MARCH-OUT OF THE SEASON.

A Fine Set of Men Paraded the Street Last Night

The second march-out of the season of the 57th Regiment was held last evening. There was a large turn-out of the men, who looked very smart. The route taken was from the drill shed south to Charlotte street, east to Water street, north to London street, south to Murray street.

On the conclusion of the drill the battalion was lined up and the following orders read:—

Headquarters, Peterborough.

No. 2. The following are taken on the strength of the regiment: 2 Co., Pte. W. J. Ballantyne and C. E. Morrison.

No. 3. The regiment will parade at the drill hall on Sunday, May 31st, at 3.45 p.m., for the purpose of attending divine service at St. John's Church.

No. 4. The Commanding Officer has been pleased to make the following promotions: F Co., to be Sergt., Corpl. W. Mather; to be Sergt., (provisionally) Prov. Corp. R. Elliott.

By order,
D. WALKER, Capt.,
Adjutant.

The rest of the evening was taken up with company drill.

AN OLD RESIDENT PASSES AWAY.

Death of Mrs. Eugene Sullivan Occurred Yesterday Afternoon.

The death of Johanna Murphy, wife of the late Eugene Sullivan, took place yesterday afternoon, at the House of Providence. The deceased, who died of old age, was 79 years old, and leaves a family of three daughters, Miss Hannah Sullivan, Montreal; Miss Mary Sullivan, Milwaukee; and Sister Desalis, Palmetta, Florida. One son and one daughter are dead. For the last two years she has been practically confined to her bed.

The funeral will take place from the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. Edward Flaherty, 710 Water street, to-morrow morning at 10.30 o'clock, and will proceed to the Ennismore cemetery, where the interment will take place.

THE INVESTIGATION OF THE GAMEY "CHARGES."

The Argument Will Commence To-morrow.

The Ladies Will not be Summoned—May Conclude Friday.

(Special to the Examiner.)

Toronto, May 20th. — The commission in the Gamey-Stratton case will not sit this afternoon, but will sit to-morrow at ten o'clock for commencement of the argument, which, it is hoped, will be concluded on Friday night, so that the report may be laid before the Legislature at once.

When the commission adjourned on Saturday last, it was with the understanding that to-day's sitting would be held if Mr. Johnston considered that the evidence of the cab-driver, Green, was of sufficient importance to require an answer. Such an answer could be made only by calling Mrs. Stratton and two other ladies, one from Winnipeg. It has not been considered worth while to do this.

SUMMER RESORTS OPEN.

Unusual Preparations in Anticipation of a Busy Season.

The different summer resorts in the County of Peterborough are already open and undergoing preparations for an unusually busy season. The general opinion among all the managers is in favour of getting ready for crowded houses. The Kawartha Lakes region, as well as well as Rice Lake and vicinity afford ideal and perfectly satisfying summer resorts, along with the facilities for most of the modern necessaries and conveniences. A larger influx than ever of American tourists and health seekers is expected this year to these waters this season, and our own people are already planning for their summer outing.

The Victoria House at McCracken's Landing, was opened this week. Considerable improvements are going on, among which is an enlargement of the house by building additional rooms in the rear. Mr. Fred Morgan was in town to-day purchasing lumber and building supplies for the purpose. Fred will be glad to see as many of his old friends as will be likelyt o be in the vicinity of the Victoria House on Victoria Day.

Idyl Wild was opened the end of April by its new proprietor, Mr. J. W. Hutchison. He has spent a busy month, overseeing the work of putting the breezy little island into spic and span shape for the season. The house has been thoroughly renovated and furnished in a first class manner. Already several private parties from Peterborough have been entertained by the host and hostess.

Jubilee Point Hotel was opened this week, with Mr .Dan Foley again "at the bat." This popular resort is working for bigger business than ever. Several important local events are already slated for Victoria Day at Jubilee, and Dan is certain to have his hands full all season.

Chemong Park Hotel summer resort, is ready for incoming guests at any time. The attractions at this favourite resort are growing more numerous every year. The new booklet and tourist guide issued this season by Mr. Brown, is bringing good results already, and the season promises to be the largest under the present popular management.

FOR STOMACH TROUBLES.

Something That is Better Than a Doctor's Prescription.

Mr. J. W. Turner, of Truhart, Va., says that Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets have done him more good than anything he could get from the doctor. He recommends them to everybody. This medicine is being sold in almost every town and city in the United States and this is only one of the hundreds of testimonials being received from people who have been benefitted by them. 7a

DISTRICT MEETING OF METHODIST CHURCHES

General Session Held on Yesterday Afternoon.

The Laymen Present—The Evening Session Scantily Attended.

The General Sessions of the District Meeting of the Methodist churches was held at 1.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the George street Methodist church, was well attended by both ministers and laymen. District chairman, Rev. J. P. Wilson, presided, while the following Rev. gentlemen were present, Messrs. Dr. Metzler, secretary, H. B. Kenny, statistical secretary; C. L. Thompson, financial secretary, J. N. Clarry, assistant secretary; Dr. Marvin, Pontypool; J. E. Robeson, Bethany; H. McQuade, Warsaw; T. Leggott, Lakefield; H. V. Mounteer, South Cavan; N. D. Drew, South Monaghan; L. S. Wight, B.A., B.D., South Cavan; C. Reddick, Apsley; W. J. Jolliffe and Kilgour, Peterborough. The laymen present were Messrs. D. W. Dumble, George street; Jas. Rev. Mr. Jolliffe and Mr. D. W. Dumble were appointed a committee to draft a resolution re the "Wesley Bi-Centenary."

It is important that all accounts of ministers and laymen attending the conference, for moneys, be sent to O. Hazelwood, Oshawa.

The invitation that the next district meeting be held in Millbrook, was accepted.

The session was closed with appropriate devotional exercises.

EVENING MEETING.

Owing to other attractions in town there was not a large attendance at the public session of the District meeting of the Methodist churches, which was held in the George street church last night. Rev. J. P. Wilson presided.

Mr. D. W. Dumble read a paper on Wesley, his life, religious character, and influence; the growth of the society of people calling themselves Methodists, and the final establishment of a Methodist church. He dealt with the growth of the Methodist cause in the British Isles and its transference to the American continent. During his remarks, Mr. Dumble stated that there are to-day over 30,000,000 of Methodists, it being the largest Christian denomination under one name in the world. He said that every day over three Methodist churches were dedicated.

This paper was followed by an excellent address by Rev. Dr. Metzler, M.A., Ph. D., on spiritual matters. He remarked the chief thing for individual welfare was to cultivate purity of heart, holiness of life, and proper trust in Christ. These, he said, were all necessary for personal salvation.

The meeting was brought to a close with devotional exercises.

KEENE IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION CONCERT

Long Letter From our Special Correspondent.

Excellent Programme Arranged—A Scarlet Fever Case.

Mr. R. Skinner is having his house painted. Mr. J. McNeil also is having his house retouched. Mr. Thos. Clithero, of Ashburnham, has charge of the work.

Messrs. William and Thomas Wedlock spent a pleasant day Sunday with their cousin, Jas. Wedlock, at his picturesque home on the Otonabee.

Miss Isabella McCarthy is home from Rochester, N.Y. She will reside with her brother, Vincent, for the future.

Mrs. Brough has removed to Laing.

Miss Theresa Doris is home after spending a term at the Peterborough Business College.

Miss Kate Bolin, of Rochester, N. Y., visited her brother, Patrick, a few days last week.

We are pleased to learn that Miss Annie McIntyre is almost well again.

Quite a scare was created on Sunday morning, when it was discovered that Mr. James Drummond's son had scarlet fever. This district has been happily free from that dread disease up to this time, and it was hoped we would escape. Mr. Drummond unthinkingly conveyed the boy to his grandmother's, at Mathers' corners, next door to the public school, but the residents would not permit that, and requested him removed. He was removed to a tent, and on Tuesday evening taken to the hospital in Peterborough.

Our Civic Improvement Concert on Friday evening is deserving of the patronage of all. The effort on the part of those who are directing the entertainment and of those who are contributing to the programme is commendably unselfish and voluntary. The programme is sure to please the music-loving public and the cause appeals direct to all. The village of Keene from its romantic and picturesque situation will respond most readily to the hand of improvement and our citizens are beginning to realize that "a thing of beauty is a joy forever," and that "pleasure is not all in gold," but real pleasure is derived from doing good. Help the good cause and come to our concert.

All interested in the welfare of our young boys and men are asked to consider the ways and means to afford them the recreation they need and desire, in the evening when the day's work is done. Man is a social animal and needs must congregate to interchange ideas and be sociable. We work in the cause of temperance and close the bar room to our young men, but open no other room for them. So we find them on the street corner, or dangling their legs from the counter of some store. In the towns and cities the concert hall, the theatre, the club room and the Y.M.C.A. meet the exigency, but in the country village there is nothing. The young men will drift in their morals because they have none to follow. Nothing improves one like good company and if the boy is out till ten o'clock what a relief it would be to the mother to know he was in good company. A movement is on foot to provide the required set of rooms and all interested should give their aid. Such rooms could be used as a public library, a smoking room, a meeting room for athletic clubs and a class room for night school in winter. It is what our boys want to bind them together.

The following is the programme of the Keene Improvement Association

KEENE IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION CONCERT.

God Save the King.

FROM MT. PLEASANT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

S. G. Best, land agent at Magnetawan, a former resident of this place, on returning from the meeting of the Synod at Toronto, paid a flying visit to his mother, who is 98 years old, and who has a wonderful memory of what transpired in the past.

Crops are looking well, taking into consideration the want of rain.

The speech as reported in the Globe of the 16th inst., made by Mr. John Charlton, M.P., in reference to the "Ragging" System in the British army, is well worth reading, especially that part which says, "Mr. Charlton referred to the case of Sir Hector Macdonald, who although a man is supposed to be innocent until proven guilty, and who was a man with a magnificent military record, was treated in a manner little better than a dog before he died, "May set their Highlan' blood a-ranklin'."—Burns.

Our cheese factory is booming now in charge of Mr. S. Casey, who is highly esteemed for the quality of cheese made by him.

The Presbyterian pulpit has been occupied on the last two Sundays by Rev. Mr. McPherson.

Rev. Mr. White of South Cavan, delivered an excellent educational sermon in the Methodist church on the 10th inst.

A heavy storm passed over Cavanville on the 18th inst. The lightning injured some telephone poles near Ida. Heavy rain accompanied the storm. The rain did not come as far north as this, although we had heavy thunder and lightning.

The drainage of the Cavan swamp and the Gamey case have been the most important subjects of discussion here lately.

We are glad to hear that Mr. S. Grandy of Millbrook is recovering.

As usual the pastor of the Methodist church delivered a very interesting discourse last Sunday, the text chosen by him being "Quit you like men."

A QUEER BUSINESS.

The Way Houses on Fire Were Bought In Ancient Rome.

One of the strangest businesses in ancient Rome is mentioned by Juvenal in his satires. It consisted of buying houses on fire. The speculator hurried to the scene, attended by slaves carrying bags of money and others carrying tools, judged the chances of salvage and made a bid to the distracted house owner, who was glad to accept anything, as a rule. The bargain struck in all haste, this earliest of fire assurers set his slaves to work and secured what he could. Sometimes even he put out the flames and so made a coup.

It was a business for capitalists, but the poorest who speculated in a small way could hardly lose if he had presence of mind enough to grasp the chances. Thus Cato the Elder, as well as Crassus, laid the foundation of his great wealth. He gradually collected a force of carpenters, masons and such artificers—slaves, of course—which reached 500 men. Not only did he buy houses on fire, but also, enlarging upon the common practice, be made a bid for those adjoining which stood in danger. His proposals were commonly welcome, we learn, so helpless were the people and so great the peril. By this means Crassus became the greatest owner of house property in Rome.

Rulers by Divine Right.

Charlemagne was the first great ruler who proclaimed himself king and emperor by divine right. He did not allege, however, that the divine right had come to him direct from heaven, but based his claim on the fact that the bishop of Rome, then the spiritual ruler of the Christian world, had anointed him and placed the crown of the holy Roman empire on his head.

The term "Del Cratia" ("by divine right" or "the grace of God") was thus used to express the right to rule as coming from the head of the church until the days of Luther and the reformation. Then the power of the church was so shaken that rulers no longer felt sure that they could rest unchallenged on their right to rule as given to them by Rome. So the term "by divine right" became construed as meaning that the kings ruled by right of God's will as expressed in the Old Testament, in which God is recorded as having chosen kings himself to rule the people.—Exchange.

The Term "Greenhorn."

The term "greenhorn" originated in this way: The pioneers of the west were much given to hunting deer. It was a fact known to the early settlers that when the horn of a fawn began to grow there was a ring of green hair around the spot where the horn was coming out. It was considered a disgraceful thing for a hunter to kill a fawn, a cruel act, and the killing time was regulated by the growth of the horn. There was a sort of unwritten law that no one should kill a male fawn before its horns could be seen.

A person who was so unthoughtful as to kill a deer under the proper age was called a "greenhorn." He was so named because the young horn of the deer and the hair around it were still green. The use of the appellation gradually spread until it was applied to all raw or inexperienced youths or persons easily imposed upon.

Has Its Teeth In Its Stomach.

There is a curious snake (Hydraci yeti) in South Africa that lives wholly upon birds' eggs. It has no teeth or signs of teeth in the mouth, its whole dental array being located in the stomach. Buckland says that they are not true teeth, but that they serve all purposes. They grow from the center of each vertebra. They pass through the walls of the stomach and are covered with enamel, just like true teeth. This is nature's provision for breaking eggs without running the risk of losing the precious contents, as would be the case if this egg eating serpent had its teeth in the proper place. When the egg is safely inside, the abdominal walls contract and crush it against that long row of vertebral teeth.

Queer British Place Names.

There are some places with curious names in the United Kingdom, as will be seen on reference to the Post Office Guide. The following places with names significant to our readers will be found in the issue of this year: Hospital, Orphan Homes, Hydropathic, The Ward, Bath, Nursling, The Chart, Great Chart, Cotton, Sheet, Wobl, Screen, Shelf, Pill, Glass, Swallow, Lancing, Sound, Salt, Steel, Rum, Burn, Gravel, Stones, Scales, Mumps, Knocks, Great Snoring, Healing, Back, Hand, Ham, Leggs, Eye, Tongue and Coldbackie Tongue, which last sounds like complicated symptoms in "pidgin" English.

Canadian Woman Wins First Place and $200 from 1,000 Competitors.

Nearly one thousand short stories were submitted in The New York Herald Prize Competition, which closed on February 21. As a whole, they represented a general average of merit that was unusually high. There were few which fell below the acceptable magazine level. There were some which any editor of any magazine would be glad to accept.

They ranged over the entire gamut of human emotions. They represented the tragedy, the comedy, the romance and the melodrama of real life, the horror or the weirdness or the mysticism of the unreal.

MRS. GUY CARLETON JONES.

All the MSS. were submitted under pseudonyms, according to the terms of the contest. The identification envelopes were opened as soon as the awards had been made.

Mrs. Guy Carleton Jones, winner of the first prize, is one of the best known and most popular society women of Nova Scotia. Her husband, Major Jones, is private secretary to his father, Lieutenant-Governor Jones of Nova Scotia. He saw active service in the South African war as officer commanding the Canadian Field Hospital Corps. Her maiden name was Susan Morrow. Her father was the late Robert Morrow of Halifax.

Mrs. Jones has been married some ten years. She has no children. She is bright, vivacious and good looking, an expert horsewoman, a lover of dogs and all outdoor sports, and a favorite in the most exclusive social circles. Her talent for short story writing is shared by her sister, the wife of Major Paske, of the British army, and her sister-in-law, Miss Jones, both of whom are well-known writers of fiction.

Court of Temple of Isis Afloat.

When the mammoth irrigation dam at Assouan, Egypt, was built, a great many things which have since come to pass were not thought of. One of these was the effect upon the low country above of the vast accumulation of water. Had the matter been given any fore consideration it must have been seen that the "backing" of the waters of the Nile would cause damage. That is precisely what has happened to the temple of Isis on the world famous island of

COURT OF TEMPLE OF ISIS.

Philae. The water has inundated the courtyard, until now sightseers visit the place in native boats or dahabeahs and some of the finest Egyptian remains extant are covered by the flood. Philae is only 400 yards long, but it has four temples, a long colonnade, several obelisks and a Roman triumphal arch. The island, which is just above the first cataract, is one of the most interesting places in the valley of the storied Nile and has long been a favorite resort of visiting tourists.

Remarkable Cure of Dropsy by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

George Robertson, of Montreal, a Physical Wreck, Restored to Splendid Health by the Great Kidney Remedy.

Montreal, May 17. — (Special). — The case of George Robertson, of 392 James street, this city, is looked upon by those interested in medical matters as one of the most interesting on record. Mr. Robertson was a sufferer from Dropsy and was so bad that tapping was resorted to. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him.

Interviewed regarding his cure, Mr. Robertson said: "I was troubled with Dropsy and Rheumatism for five years. I was a total wreck before I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Before I got out of bed in the morning I could hardly put my feet on the floor, they were swollen so much from Dropsy.

"My arm used to swell at times so that I could not put my coat on. Before I had taken two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills I felt greatly relieved. Seven boxes cured me completely. I also had Lumbago, but since I used Dodd's Kidney Pills I don't know what it is to be sick."

South African Wafels.

South African "wafels" vastly differ from our waffles merely in being made with wine as a "moistener" rather than with milk for the principal liquid ingredient. In South Africa when they are going to make "wafels" they take a pound of flour, three-quarters of a pound of butter, half a pound of sugar, eight eggs, half a pint of wine and a teaspoonful of sifted cinnamon. The butter and eggs are creamed; then they mix in alternately one egg and one spoonful of flour, add the wine and spice and bake in a waffle iron.

How Northern Indians Secure Venison For Their Larders.

A New Yorker who lives a small fraction of the time in the city, being usually long distances away in pursuit of game, tells of the method pursued by the Indians of British Columbia in taking deer. They have evolved a system, this huntsman says, that shows practical skill and sympathy and knowledge of natural conditions. He says:

"The Indians, to begin with, do not hunt deer for the pleasure of hunting. They go for deer as a housekeeper goes to market for beef, and, what's more—in British Columbia, at any rate—they don't go often. Salmon is plentiful in the rivers and is easily caught, so why chase animals when they can secure fish? It is something as it is in Newfoundland, where I went a couple of seasons ago. There the prevailing fish, as you might say, is cod, and, though there is no end to the variety of edible fish that can be taken, the natives never think of eating anything else. Cod is plentiful, and they form the habit, I suppose. This is so ingrained that they call codfish 'fish' simply. The genus is divided into cod and the rest of fish.

"Well, when the British Columbia Indian makes up his mind for venison, he goes at it systematically and without sentiment. A group of half a dozen or ten men split and take either end of a valley. Then they proceed along the mountain slope from the two ends to the center. They choose the sheltered side of the valley on which the deer seek to escape the wind. Each party covers the mountain side, some near the foot and some at the top and others between the lines, keeping abreast by an imitated owl hoot. The deer, on 'winding' pursuit, have the trick of leaping away down the slope, unlike the goats, which go up, and thus between the two approaching parties they are swept together at the middle of the valley. A good sized herd will thus be killed off and the Indians supplied for many weeks by two or three days' exertion."

Chloroform.

The first child born under the influence of chloroform was the daughter of a doctor friend of Professor Simpson, who is credited with the discovery of the drug, and she was christened Anæsthesia to celebrate the circumstances of her birth, as the first child to be vaccinated in Russia was christened Vaccinoff. The beginning of the new era of chloroform was on a night in November, 1847, when three men sat around a supper table in an Edinburgh dining room with glasses charged with—chloroform! They were Dr. Simpson himself, with Dr. Keith and Dr. Duncan, and as they sat talking all three began to inhale the fumes from the glasses. Suddenly the talking ceased, and three senseless men fell like dead bodies on the floor. For some minutes the room was as still as a grave, and then Dr. Simpson awoke. "This is good," he said as he found Dr. Duncan snoring under the table and Dr. Keith creeping on to his feet. Eleven days later the first public trial of chloroform was made at the Edinburgh infirmary.

Muffling In Spain.

Never in my life have I seen such wrapping and muffling as I have seen in Spain. The men here wear very heavy cloaks—heavier than any outer garment we have in America except fur coats. These cloaks are usually lined with colored plush; the insides of the front flaps are often lined with red or green or yellow plush, and often with two colors. Sometimes the men have pointed hoods to their cloaks, but even when the cloaks are not hooded the wearers wrap the capes around their throats and mouths and even around their heads. I have often seen a Spaniard going along wrapped in a cloak and with a muffler bound around his head, so that only one ear, one eye and one nostril were exposed.—J. A. Hart in Argonaut.

"Whuppity Scoorie."

The ancient custom at Lanark, Scotland, of "Whuppity Scoorie," the origin and meaning of which are lost, is celebrated annually and watched by a crowd of grown ups. The town bell is rung nightly at 0 o'clock from March to September and then lies dumb for six months. On the first night of the ringing all the young folk congregate at the cross, and after parading three times round the parish church the Lanark lads meet the New Lanark boys in a free fight, in which the only legitimate weapons are their caps tied at the end of pieces of string.

Too Much Lungs.

One of the greatest pugilists that America ever produced, John Dwyer of Brooklyn, quit his regular occupation to enter the counting room. He died within a year from tuberculosis. The explanation in this case was simple enough. The immense lungs which were necessarily an advantage in the prize ring fell into disuse in the counting room. Disuse meant degeneration, and degeneration meant a lack of resistance, of which tubercle bacillus was not slow to take advantage.

INSPIRED BY A SKELETON.

The Story of How Chopin Composed His Funeral March.

Late one summer's afternoon, said Ziem, Chopin and I sat talking in my studio. In one corner of the room stood a piano and in another the complete skeleton of a man with a large white cloth thrown, ghostlike, about it. I noticed that now and again Chopin's gaze would wander, and from my knowledge of the man I knew that his thoughts were far away from me and his surroundings. More than that, I knew that he was composing.

Presently he rose from his seat without a word, walked over to the skeleton and removed the cloth. He then carried it to the piano and, seating himself, took the hideous object upon his knees—a strange picture of life and death.

Then, drawing the white cloth round himself and the skeleton, he laid the latter's fingers over his own and began to play. There was no hesitation in the slow, measured flow of sound which he and the skeleton conjured up. As the music swelled in a louder strain I closed my eyes, for there was something weird in that picture of man and skeleton seated at the piano, with the shadows of evening deepening around them and the ever swelling and ever softening music filling the air with mystery. And I knew I was listening to a composition which would live forever.

The music ceased, and when I looked up the piano chair was empty, and on the floor lay Chopin's unconscious form, and beside him, smashed all to pieces, was the skeleton I prized so much. The great composer had swooned, but his march was found.

The Origin of the Diamond.

The diamond is still one of the mysteries of geology. When the South African fields were discovered there was much astonishment to find the gem in a series of minerals quite different from those in which it had been hitherto found in India and Brazil. Instead of lying beside tourmaline, anatase and brookite it was mingled with a breccia of magnesian rocks which had evidently been pushed up from below, and a great variety of minerals, such as diopside, mica, sircon and corundum, were imbedded along with it.

Some have supposed that the diamond was originally formed where it is now picked up, and the presence of carbureted gas and carboniferous rocks is in favor of the idea, but, on the other hand, the broken condition of some of the stones and other facts make it far more probable that the diamond has been ejected from a deeper source.

Considerate Johnnie.

"Johnnie," said his mother threateningly to the incorrigible, "I am going to have your father whip you when he comes home tonight."

"Please don't, mamma," replied Johnnie penitently. "Pa is always so tired when he comes home."

The Best Sort.

Pa—A preferred creditor, my son, is one who doesn't bother us much with his bill.

His Business Qualities.

"What sort of a man is he?"
"A good debtor and a bad creditor."

Pitch a lucky man into the Nile, says the Arabian proverb, and he will come up with a fish in his mouth.

He is the happiest who renders the greatest number happy.—Desmaius.

Bronchial Colds and Chest Pains

Croup, Bronchitis, Asthma, Coughs and Colds Yield Promptly to

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

There are many reasons why you should use Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in preference to any other treatment for diseases of the throat and lungs. Of these the most important one is the fact that it has been tested for years and absolutely proven its right to first position.

Nearly everybody knows of the remarkable value of turpentine and linseed as remedial agents. They have been so combined with half a dozen other ingredients in Dr Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine as to form a most thoroughly effective and at the same time pleasant medicine.

As is frequently the case with an unusually successful article, Dr Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is imitated. There are now hosts of preparations with names similar to this, and some even go so far as to imitate the bottle and wrapper. It therefore becomes necessary for you to be very careful when buying. Insist on seeing the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase on the wrapper.

We know that Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine will not disappoint you, because it has stood the test of time, and the sales, which are at least triple that of any similar preparation, are steadily increasing year by year.

As a positive cure for croup, bronchitis, asthma, throat troubles, and severe cough and colds, Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has a reputation which cannot be stolen by the cheap and oft injurious cough mixtures which are offered in place of it by some dealers.

Even the consumptive, who has reached the latter stages of his insidious disease, finds ease and comfort in the use of this preparation, while it is impossible to estimate the countless number of less severe cases which it has actually cured. Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, 25 cents a bottle. Family size, three times as much, 60 cents. At all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. 3

CHAPTER XXIII.

Mother and daughters walked down to the water's edge.

"If you have a long story to tell me," said Dolores, "let us sit down here; these bamboo chairs are quite inviting."

She did not feel alarmed. Her children had not hitherto caused her any uneasiness. Still it was plain that something out of the usual current of events had happened. Kathleen had grown pale, and Gertrude rosy red.

"Mamma," began Gertrude, "it is better to tell you the truth, though I am afraid a great deal of mischief has been done. You know that Kathleen and I have not asked you any questions about England; we both knew that if there was anything to tell you would tell it in good time. But, mamma, to-day, for the first time, we have heard that there is something strange—"

"Strange, Gertrude?"—and Dolores' face was troubled.

"Yes, but, darling mamma, never mind what comes of it. Kathleen and I are your devoted children; if you say that we are to forget this, and never ask any questions about it, we will do so."

"I know that you are the best children in the world," said Dolores; "but what is it you have heard, my dear?"

"You knew we went with the countess to see the Pitti palace, and one room in it delighted us above all others. Some of Raphael's most beautiful Madonnas are there, and a lovely 'Dolorosa'—ah, mamma, how like your name—by Fra Angelico. Kathleen and I stood before it for a long time. Other people were in the room; and at last I saw a group that I felt sure were English. Presently we heard the sound of their voices. I was right in my surmise, for they spoke pure, beautiful English. The young gentleman walked away to look at a picture at the other side of the large saloon, so that he was at some distance from his mother. I think she had grown tired, for she sat down in one of the great chairs and sighed. A few minutes afterward she dropped her purse, and it slid along the polished floor until it came to my feet. Now, mamma, in common politeness, could I help picking it up?"

"No, my dear," said Dolores, gently—"certainly not." She had always taught her children to be attentive to the aged.

"I did pick it up; and as a matter of course, handed it to the owner. My face flushed, and I felt very uncomfortable. I knew that she was English, and that you had forbidden us to speak in such a case. 'Madam,' I said, 'I think this is yours.' They were very simple words, but the effect upon her was something marvelous. She sprang up and caught me by both hands with a cry that rang through the great saloon. But, mamma, you are growing paler and paler!"

"Go on, my dear," said Dolores—"never mind me."

"She caught me by both hands and cried out, 'Child, who are you, who are you?' She was a beautiful lady, mamma—quite old, with a fine face that had many lines on it—not fair and smooth like yours—and white hair. When she held me and looked at me, her eyes flashed. 'Who are you?' she cried. 'What is your name—you with Karl Allanmore's face?' That was the name, I am sure, mamma—Karl Allanmore."

She stopped abruptly, for with a little cry, her mother had suddenly buried her face in her hands.

"Mamma—" began Gertrude.

"Go on, my dear," said a faint, low voice, that she hardly recognized.

"'You have—you have indeed,' she said. 'You have Karl Allanmore's face. What is your name? Harry, come here.' 'My name is Gertrude Clieden,' I said. 'Clieden!' she repeated. 'Oh, Harry, we have found them at last.' The young Englishman came up and stood looking with the utmost bewilderment at us. 'Harry,' she cried, 'is it not marvelous? I have found them! Is it possible that you do not recognize them?' Mamma listen. He went up to Kathleen and looked at her— a long, steady gaze; then he said, 'I believe this is my old friend and playfellow, Kathleen Rhysworth,' Kathleen shook her head. 'I am Kathleen Clieden,' she replied— 'not Rhysworth. He looked with a puzzled air at the lady, and then again at my sister. 'You are certainly my little playfellow Kathleen,' he said, 'I remember your face. Your eyes were always sad, and you had dark curls on your forehead,' 'A Rhysworth face,' said the lady—'she always had it. You know, Harry, the dear lady gave up everything, even her name. Clieden was her maiden name. Then she seemed to think that she had spoken imprudently, for she looked at me with her quick eyes. 'It may be,' she said, 'that you know nothing of your own or your mother's history,' 'I know nothing whatever,' I replied, 'except that my mother is living and my father is dead.' She repeated the word after me. 'Dead!' Oh, then he is really dead, is he?' she asked. 'Yes,' I said, 'He has been dead ever since I remember. My mother is a widow.' 'I understand, she said, with a deep sigh. Then the young Englishman came round to me. He has such clear, honest eyes. I liked his face so much. He held out his hand to me and said, 'Is it possible that this can be baby Gertrude?' Imagine—baby Gertrude! I tried to show him that I was no baby, and to look over his head; but I could not. He is much taller than I am. Then we both began to laugh. 'I am not baby Gertrude now,' I said

"I must be close to you where I can kiss you every time that you want comfort," she said; and a fair smile crossed the pale face of Dolores. Gertrude's loving, coaxing ways were very sweet, yet they always gave her pain—they were so like the ways of her lost Karl.

"I have a story to tell you, my children," she began, "and it pleases me to tell it to you out here in the sweet air under the light of heaven. But, before I begin, I want you to remember that we know only the half of people's lives; we judge of what we see, while there is One to whom all things are known. You said the other day, Gertrude, that you had never seen me angry but once, and then it was because, knowing how I hate roses, you brought me some. Do you remember that, when you gave them to me. I flung them into the river, and that my action made you cry?"

"I remember, mamma," said Gertrude.

Her delicate features quivered with emotion, while Kathleen sat perfectly still, her fair face bent over her folded hands.

"I will tell you," said Dolores, "why I hate roses. When I was quite young, I had a friend. I believed her to be a friend, but I found her to be a rival and a foe. She was very beautiful, graceful, accomplished, but not good, I fear. She thought, chiefly of gayety, of balls and fetes and picnics and parties; she thought the only thing in life to be lived for was the making—oh, children, I hate to say the words to you!—the making of a good match. She was unlike other girls; she impressed everyone with her own vitality. No one ever forgot her who had once seen her. She was beautiful, after the fashion of Titian's women—with a splendid color, richly-fringed, dark eyes, white eyelids, masses of rich, dark hair. Some one named us the 'rival roses.' She was the red rose, I was the white. We knew our friends and admirers by the color of the roses that they wore at the different balls which we attended; we had the red-rose quadrille and the white-rose quadrille. It was only friendly, pleasant harmony then, friendly rivalry, and out 'war of the roses' caused great amusement. It is sixteen years since her name has crossed my lips, but I do not think she has been one moment out of my mind. Her name is Lola de Ferras, and she lived with her mother at a place called Beaulieu, near our home. They were French exiles, and madame was very highly connected, I want to make my story short. I married Lord Rhysworth—" the girls both started and Kathleen looked with piteous eyes into her mother's face—"a nobleman who was greatly esteemed in the county, and we lived at a beautiful mansion called Deeping Hurst. You were born there, Kathleen, and your kinsman the present Lord Rhysworth, lives there now. My father, Squire Clieden, lived at a pretty old-fashioned house, called White Cliffe." She would not tell why she married Lord Rhysworth; there was no need to do so. "We were very happy for some time, until your good and dear father, Kathleen, took cold, and his illness ended fatally. You must understand quite clearly, children, that at his death, Lord Rhysworth left me an ample fortune. He left Deerhurst Manor to you, Kathleen; and, of course, Deeping Hurst, with all its revenues, went to his heir, the present Lord Rhysworth."

Gertrude looked up.

"Was he not my father, mamma?" she asked, quickly.

"You will hear all in time, my Gertrude," answered Dolores. "When Lord Rhysworth had been dead two years, I married Sir Karl Allanmore, your father, Gertrude. I had been acquainted with him before my first marriage. He loved me very much indeed, and I loved him. Now comes the part of my story," Dolores continued, "that I do not care to tell. Lola de Ferras loved Sir Karl, and always hoped that one day she would become Lady Allanmore; but Sir Karl had never thought of her in that way. She was very angry about my marriage. She came to see me, and she insulted me very cruelly; she said that I had stolen her lover, and that, if I had not come between them, he would have married her. It was a most unpleasant scene, and at its termination she made a terrible vow that she would have her revenge, even if she waited years for it. Ah, my children, she had it. No home was ever happier than ours; no wife was ever so blessed, so beloved! You, my Gertrude, were born; and I do not think that the sun ever shone on such a household. I could never tell you what Sir Karl was to me. He loved you both so dearly; he never made the least difference between you. It is Sir Karl whom you remember, Kathleen, not your own father. Our home was an earthly paradise; my father spent the greater part of his time with us. I always had a strange dread that our happiness was too great to last. I told Sir Karl so, but he laughed my fears away. I must inform you that in the meantime Lola had gone away. After awhile news came that madame was dead, and after that her very name seemed to be forgotten in the neighborhood. One morning—oh, my children, just as the serpent entered Eden!—a letter came from Lola de Ferras to Sir Karl. I was seated at table with my husband, my father, and you, my two children, happy—ah, Heaven, who so happy as I? I have never been so happy since, and I never shall be again. Sometimes," added Dolores, "I am wicked enough to think that unless Sir Karl is with me in heaven, I shall never be happy even there. Oh, my children, what am I saying? But I loved him so!" And her fair head dropped on her child's, the child who was so inexpressibly dear to her because she had her father's face. "The sunlight has never appeared so bright, the flowers have lacked their perfume; everything has seemed changed to me since that day," she said, with a bitter, long-drawn sigh.

"When my father died," she continued, "I could bear the disgrace no longer. I gave up Scarsdale, my home, my friends, even my name, and came hither, where I hoped to be able to forget my sorrow and live in peace—forget the shame that in England was ever present with me. You will find the shame and sorrow follow you as it did me, and that people will regard you with kindly pity. Ah, give me anything rather than that."

"But, mamma," said Kathleen, "we have no cause for shame; we had nothing to do with what happened."

"It falls and rests on us just the same," she replied. "A deserted wife! Ah, children, when you know more of the world, you will understand all that that means! A deserted wife is branded even by the pity and compassion she excites."

Then Sir Karl's daughter rose from her mother's side and stood erect in the white moonlight. She raised her clear, delicate face to the sky. She had been a child when she knelt in the long grass two hours before; she was a woman now, with the light of a high resolve on her face.

"Mamma," she said, "have you the two letters written by this—woman? Will you show them to me?"

"I will. I have your father's portrait, too. I have not looked at it for sixteen years; but I will show it to you."

"Thank you. And during these years you have not heard one word of the man who loved you and his children so dearly?"

"No—not one, Gertrude."

Gertrude lowered her childlike face to her mother.

"And you believe, mamma, that for sixteen years he has been with—with this rival of yours?"

"I must believe it, Gertrude. Surely, if he had been anywhere in the wide world but with her, he would have written to me. Why should he not? We parted on the most loving terms."

"But, mamma, that argument cuts both ways. If you parted on such loving terms, so much the less reason is there for deserting you in such a fashion."

Dolores looked in bewilderment at the child; she had never viewed the matter in that light before.

Had to Give up and go to Bed.

Several Doctors Attended But Did No Good.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills CURED.

Read what Miss L. L. Hanson, Waterside, N.B., says: "I feel it my duty to express the benefit I have received from Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. A year ago last spring I began to have heart failure. At first I would have to stop working and lie down for a while. Then I got so bad I had to give up altogether and go to bed. I had several doctors attend me but they did me no good. I could get no relief until urged by a friend to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. Before I had used three quarters of a box I began to feel the benefit and by the time I had taken three boxes I was completely cured."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills cure nervousness, sleeplessness, palpitation of the heart, skip beats, and all troubles arising from the heart or nerves.

Yet, mamma, the words had such a sweet homely ring—I loved them."

"I have not told you all yet," Gertrude continued. "Lady Fielden bade me deliver this message to you. She wished me to tell you that she thanked Heaven for having found you; that she longed with her whole heart and soul to see you, but that she respected your seclusion so entirely that she would do as you wished about it. She will come here to-morrow at noon, and then, if it be still your wish not to meet her, she will go away content. Oh, mamma, do see her! If you could have seen her tears, if you had but known how she loved you! She said that she hoped there was no imprudence in revealing what she did, but that there was a story in our lives which we should have to know at some time. Tell it to us now, mamma. We are grown-up girls, Kathleen and I. We are old enough to be trusted; and we would much rather hear the story from you. Do tell it to us yourself, mamma."

"I must think, my dear children," said Dolores, with an expression of anxiety on her fair face; "I must reflect. You have almost become women, while I am still thinking of you as children. There is a story in our lives which concerns all three of us, and I have thought lately that I should have to tell it to you at some time. You could not always live in this fashion. Kathleen has her own estate at Deerhurst; and it is quite time she saw that place. But, my children, I have dreaded to revert to the past. From time to time I have put off all disclosure, and now I cannot decide." She raised her hands and placed them on her temples, as if to steady her thoughts. "I will see you again later on," she said. "Tell Berrita to prepare some tea for you, and then come down here to me in an hour. By that time I shall have decided what to do."

Somewhat awed, the girls stole away softly, and Dolores knelt down in the violet-studden grass, and prayed Heaven to help her. She had no friends on earth to consult, no one to advise her or guide her; but she had a childlike trust and faith in One who had never yet failed her.

CHAPTER XXIV.

The moon was shining on the Arno when the two girls returned; all the towers and cupolas of the city had caught the silver light, the river was like a silver stream, the nightingales began to sing in the olive grove. It was a night full of rest and peace. The bells of many a tall church spire were ringing, for it was a festa day, and the music came chiming softly over the water; but to the beautiful, fair-haired woman, whose tears fell upon the grass, it seemed as though all peace, all hope, all tranquility were of the past. She who had been sailing on a smooth sea was now being tossed upon a stormy ocean; the terrible tragedy of her life was beginning again after all these years of rest and sweet repose. She trembled at the prospect; she turned coward and would fain have died.

With the song of the nightingale and the music of the bells around her she turned from the river to her daughters who were standing beside her—Kathleen with her sweet, sad eyes fixed anxiously on her mother's face, Gertrude with every nerve quivering.

"Come away from the river," said Dolores; "there is something I do not like about it to-night."

They seated themselves on the bamboo chairs in the vine-shaded walk. But Gertrude found it impossible to rest on a chair, and she slipped upon her knees among the violets at her mother's feet, her arms clasped round her graceful figure, her head on her breast.

are simply kidney disorders. The kidneys filter the blood of all that shouldn't be there. The blood passes through the kidneys every three minutes. If the kidneys do their work no impurity or cause of disorder can remain in the circulation longer than that time. Therefore if your blood is out of order your kidneys have failed in their work. Despondency

Is often only a sympton of dyspepsia. In dyspepsia there is a loss of nutrition which is felt by brain as well as body; the mind grows morbid as the body loses vigor.

Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures dyspepsia and other diseases of the stomach and associated organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the proper nutrition of the body and restores mental cheerfulness as well as physical strength,

"For about two years I suffered from a very obstinate case of dyspepsia," writes R. E. Record, Esq., of 13 Eastern Ave., Toronto, Ontario. "I tried a great number of remedies without success. I finally lost faith in them all. I was so far gone that I could not bear any solid food on my stomach for a long time; felt melancholy and depressed. Could not sleep nor follow my occupation. Some four months ago a friend recommended your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' After a week's treatment I had derived so much benefit that I continued the medicine. I have taken three bottles and am convinced it has in my case accomplished a permanent cure. I can conscientiously recommend it to the thousands of dyspeptics throughout the land."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach, blood, and lungs.

Old Age Pensions in Australia.

The payments of the Australian old age pensions amount to 5 per cent. of the entire revenue. In New Zealand last year it amounted to 8¼ per cent. and in Victoria to 4 per cent. In New South Wales this year the payments will amount to $2,750,000. The Colonial Treasurer in his last statement said that the result was little less than appalling. While the pension list is steadily mounting higher, and the cost of administration increasing proportionately, the saving on subsidized institutions is almost nil and the Government asylums have not been affected in the least. In effect the law has created a new class of State dependents at an enormous additional expenditure.

QUOTATIONS ON THE WALL STREET MARKET.

A Violent Attack Made on Dominion Coal.

The Quotations of the Leading Stocks —Market Letters.

Another grand drive was made today by the bears on the Wall street market and there was a general "killing" all along the line. The feature of the stock market to-day however, was the onslaught on Dominion coal and Dominion steel on the Boston market. Coal, which last night closed at 102 opened this morning at 101, and fell quickly to 87 taking a jump of 7 points fownward at one time. It recovered slightly and closed at 83 1-2. Steel opened at 21 1-4 and closed at 19 1-2.

Gold exports, the operation on Harriman, and another move in cotton, were too much for the market. Another very unsettling feature was the continued selling of Atch., which is taken to mean a new bond issue, notwithstanding denials to the contrary. The bears have made a lot of money and are emboldened by success, and some big holders of stocks have been liquidating. The Gould stocks held well.

New York, May 20th, 9.45 a. m. — Announcement of settlement of U. P. strike expected to-day. Crop conditions satisfactory. Fair demand for stocks in loan crowd. London bought at least 120,000 shares stock last eight days. Reported Harriman will be operated on to-day. Banks lost to sub.-treas. since Friday $1,219,000.

DOW, JONES & CO.

The principal cause of slump yesterday in the market was selling on sentimental influence on report that Mr. Harriman decided to have operation performed. London comes steady this morning but the market is so narrow and professional that we advise taking profits on rallies. It is not expected at this writing that any gold will go on Thursday on account of slightly easier foreign markets. We believe good stocks a purchase on all declines but only for a moderate turn. And therefore narrow trader's market will probably be rule for present.

M. & M.

New York, May 20th, 1.50 p. m. — A good deal of this selling based upon demoralization of Boston market. Mr. Harriman operated on this morning, turned out very successful. There is not slightest doubt from what we hear that violent raise in cotton market has caught a great many stocks operators short of that market and losses so heavy that it is believed they have been forced to liquidate stocks to make good and further protect their interest on short cotton. In some quarters liquidation in stocks regarded as explanation of selling of stocks and weakness Monday. It is now thought that there will be some further gold shipments Thursday and from what we hear would not be surprised if two or three millions of gold goes unless there is radical change in foreign exchange.

M. & M.

BLAIRTON.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Owing to the continued heat and drought farmers around here are much concerned about their crops, which look anything but promising.

Mr. William Houghton, one of our oldest settlers and a respected farmer, has just passed away at the age of 85 years.

Mr. Jas. Russell has just recovered after a short but very severe attack of illness.

Mr. E. Cooper has bought land from Mr. John Boyd. He is building and going to move over from the island.

Mr. David McQuaig has just been bereft of an interesting and sprightly daughter. Great sympathy is felt for the family.

Mr. Charles Dodge, having recently bought the farm of the late B. Johnson, is erecting a large and commodious dwelling house thereon.

WOULD IT BE WISE?

Lord Rosebery Speaks of Mr. Chamberlain's Latest Plan.

London, May 20.—In a speech at Burnley, Lancashire, last night, Lord Rosebery, referring to Mr. Chamberlain's speech at Birmingham, on May 15, in which the Colonial Secretary made an appeal for trade reciprocity within the British Empire, said that, before the tariffs were changed, the colonies ought to be represented in the Government of the country, and he did not think that that idea was so impracticable as it was sometimes considered.

He did not regard free trade as a part of the "sermon on the mount," but the question arose, whether it would be wise, without long and deep consideration, to change the fiscal system under which Great Britain had achieved her commercial success.

Lord Rosebery dealt with Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's scheme in a very judicial manner, being careful neither to approve nor condemn it, but, on the whole, showing that he had no great sympathy with it.

THE TRIGGER.

The Peterborough Gun Club will hold their fortnightly shoot at Riverside Park to-morrow afternoon at 3.30 p.m.

LACROSSE.

The Port Hope Guide says:—The "Vics" go to Peterborough on the 25th to cross sticks with the T.A.S. The T.A.S. team went to Campbellford on Friday and won by a score of 4 to 3, so the Victorias are beginning to realize that they will be up against the real thing.

CANOEING.

Each night last week some person had the misfortune to be tipped while paddling, the accident generally occuring near the locks, in the rapids. An up-river capsize held the boards last evening and a young gentleman "went under" not far from the "bonk."

FOOTBALL.

Cordova won its first game with Warsaw, in the Midland League series. The next game will be with Havelock, and is booked for May 22nd.

In the Midland Football Association games on Saturday, the Quakers will play the Auburns, at 2.30 o'clock, at 5 o'clock Y.M.C.A. II will play Bridgenorth. Y.M.C.A. I will play Omemee; Bethany will play Millbrook.

THE DEATH OF SIR ROBERT MENZIES, BART.

Venerable Chieftain of a Highland Clan.

Edinburgh Scotsman.

The announcement of the death of Sir Robert Menzies, Bart., of that ilk, in his eighty-sixth year, will be received not only in Perthshire, but through out the Kingdom, with feelings of general regret. By his death a unique personality has been removed. He died from the effects of a chill on Wednesday afternoon. For well nigh sixty years Sir Robert's tall figure and commanding presence was most prominent at county and district meetings. He was a member of almost all the county Boards, and for years took a large share in county business. He is survived by a son, Captain Neil James Menzies, seventh Baronet of that ilk and twenty-seventh chief of the clan Menzies in regular decent, was born at the family seat, castle Menzies, Weem, on 28th September, 1817. He was educated at Edinburgh University, from which he proceeded to the University of Oxford. Whilst there he was considered and proved himself to be one of the best athletes of his period. He was a splendid oarsman. On leaving Oxford he became a Captain in the Perthshire Highland Rifle Militia, and on the 16th August 1844 he succeeded to the family estates. In his prime he stood six feet two inches in height, and was possessed of an iron constitution. As a pedestrian he had few equals, and many good stories are told of his adventures with and chases after poachers. At Perth, on returning from the Tay on one occasion, he found on enquiring at the Royal George Hotel that all the seats had been taken on the Aberfeldy coach. He immediately set off and walked across the hills, reaching Aberfeldy as they were unyoking the coach horses in the stable yard, a distance of fully thirty miles.

He was for a number of years Colonel Commanding the 5th V.B.R.H. (Black Watch.) In 1900 Sir Robert was elected president of the Royal Caledonian Curling Club. Sir Robert has had almost lifelong connection with agriculture, and at the time of his death he was a director and perhaps the oldest member of the Highland and Agricultural Society. He was an enthusiast agriculturalist, and as convener of the Forestry Committee in the Highland Society he did much to secure the institution of a forestry lectureship in Edinburgh University. Sir Robert will be intered in the family burial vault at Weem.

SPRINGVILLE.

Springville, May 20th.

The Rev. Mr. Yule exchanged pulpits with Rev. Mr. McIntosh, of Centreville on Sunday last. Rev. Mr. McIntosh preached a very acceptable sermon from Matt. 12 ; 50.

Rev. Mr. Thompson, of Hastings, will conduct the anniversary services there on May 31st. Services at 10.30 a.m. and 7 p.m. Special collection on behalf of manse fund.

The Ladies' Aid Society held their regular monthly meeting on Thursday last. Mrs. Waddell, of Peterborough, favoured the Society with her presence. She pointed out many ways of aiding the church in a very instructive address. It is understood a public entertainment, in the near future is anticipated, in keeping with her suggestions.

The manse is being pushed in a way unprecedented in building in regard to speed and workmanship through this section. Mr. Johnston, the contractor is a hustler—necessarily so to keep up with his work. He commences the foundation of a palatial residence for Mr. Albert Sanderson next week, costing in the neighbourhood of $3,000, a very creditable addition to the beauty of the vicinity.

Mrs. Ellison, of Brantford, accompanied by her son, Mr. J. Ellison, of Garden Hill, spent Sunday with Mrs. Trew.

A Familiar Name.

In the homes of Canada and the United States there are few names more familiar and none more reverently spoken than that of Dr. A.W. Chase, the great physician and receipt book author. He is blessed for the suffering he has relieved and the diseases he has cured; his remedies are used and endorsed by the best people in the land; they are popular because they cure when others fail.

LORD MINTO TO REMAIN A YEAR.

The Governor-General's Term of Office Extended.

Lord Minto received notice yesterday that his term of office as Governor-General of Canada would extend until November, 1904.

The popular impression has been that the King's representative in Canada is appointed for five years, but the term is really twelve months longer than that. Most of the former Governors-General have only remained five years, and it was generally supposed that Lord Minto was making his arrangements to leave in October next.—The Globe.

A FIRE'S DIRE WORK.

Two Hundred Dwellings Burned at St. Hyacinthe, Quebec.

2,000 PEOPLE ARE HOMELESS

Scene of Devastation, Desolation and Ruin—Factories Destroyed — Busiest Portion of the City Wiped Out—Help From Montreal—Deficient Water Supply — Total Loss Placed at $250,000.

Number of houses burned, 250.
People rendered homeless, 2,000.
Estimated loss, $250,000.
Seriously injured, one.
District laid waste, three-quarters of a mile.

St. Hyacinthe, Que., May 21.—A terrible fire raged in St. Hyacinthe yesterday afternoon. It was the most destructive that has ever occurred in the history of the town, or in any of the communities in the district. Fire broke out during lunch hour, and by 4 o'clock in the afternoon three-quarters of a mile of the business and busiest part was laid waste, and was a scene of devastation, desolation and ruin.

Two hundred and fifty houses have been reduced to shapeless heaps of ashes, which, with live embers, line the thoroughfares. Three hotels, two flour mills and several of the largest business houses have disappeared as completely as if they had never existed. The market place, the principal rendezvous of the country round, is no longer recognizable, and the St. Genevieve Hospital is destroyed.

Two Thousand Homeless.

Two thousand people are homeless. A quarter of a million is the computed damage, but the extent of the loss to such a community cannot be calculated by mere figures expressing dollars and cents.

What added vastly to the possible magnitude of the disaster is the fact that the river is low, and that the water supply practically gave out early. Water was being pumped from the wells, which did not hold out for any length of time.

Conspicuous by their indomitable efforts to cope with circumstances was the Montreal brigade, which reached here at 2.45 p.m. Within a quarter of an hour of its arrival it had its reels playing upon the flames. The burned district extends along the river front south of St. Antoine street, from Cote Bros. boot and shoe factory on the west to where the river turns at the east.

Three Hotels Gone.

Included in the 250 buildings burned are three hotels, the Frontenac, the Union and the Ottawa. Among the business places in ruins are Cote Bros. factory, the establishment of J. Bourgeers, Hudon & Co., and Dusseau & Lamoureux. The loss thus far is estimated to exceed $250,000. It will, of course, be much larger before the flames are finally subdued.

The gale carried huge flaming embers hundreds of yards, and where they found lodgement a fire started, and in a few minutes was burning fiercely.

One man was seriously injured. His name has not been learned. It is not known whether any lives have been lost.

Explosion of Powder.

At 4 o'clock a loud explosion of powder occurred in Bourgeois' hardware establishment. The flames soon afterwards shot high into the air and the structure was quickly razed. Huge clouds of smoke rose from the burning district, and spread all over the surrounding country for a distance of four miles. The fire was got under control about 7 o'clock.

Crackers Proved Their Merit.

Galt May 21.—The contents of a store on Main street, known as Graham's Fair, suffered damage by fire yesterday afternoon to the extent of probably $500, caused by fire crackers. Mr. Graham was attempting to show a possible customer the merits of a bunch of lady firecrackers by lighting them, when one fell into a table of giant crackers, which exploded in all directions. The damage to stock from water is also considerable.

FUEL OBJECT OF SEARCH.

Itinerary of the Summer Mining Class of Bureau of Mines.

Toronto, May 21.—The summer mining classes of the Bureau of Mines will this year be directed by Dr. W. L. Goodwin, Director of the School of Mining at Kingston, and J. G. McMillan, B.A.Sc., Toronto, and this program is arranged: Black Donald Graphite Mine, Brougham Township, May 26; Olden Zinc Mine, Long Lake P.O., June 3; Belmont Gold Mine, Cordova P.O., June 11; Copper Cliff, June 20; Massey Copper Mine, Massey Station, June 29; Big Master Gold Mine, Gold Rock, July 9; Elizabeth Gold Mine, Port Arthur, July 20; Tip Top Copper Mine, July 28; Helen Iron Mine, Aug. 8; Rock Lake Copper Mine, Aug. 19. Prof. Coleman has gone to Sudbury district to continue his nickel investigations, and Prof. Miller will resume his investigations into limestone in Ontario. Special investigation into the possibilities of peat, lignite and other fuel in Northern Ontario will be a feature of the work.

Tons of Ice Lost.

Woodstock, May 21.—The Woodstock cold storage warehouse collapsed at 7 o'clock yesterday morning. Several hundred tons of ice were lost, while the structure, valued at $5,000, is a complete loss.

MONTREAL CONGRESS OF CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE.

Influential Representatives and Delegates From British Cities and Colonial Centres.

The following circular has been received by T. Q. Quartermaine, Secretary local Board of Trade, from the Secretary of the Montreal Board of Trade:—

Advices from Great Britain and other parts of the Empire indicate that this gathering will be of a most representative character. Among the British cities which have already indicated their intention to send important delegations are London, Liverpool, Glasgow, Manchester, Dublin, Sheffield, Aberdeen, Bristol, Swansea, Cardiff, Falmouth, Exeter, Huddersfield, Derby, Bradford, Bury, Ossett, Folkestone, Greenock, Wolverhampton, Yeadon, Walsall, Goole, Dover, etc.

The British Chambers of Commerce of Paris; of Kimberly, S.A.; Masern, Basutoland; Port Elizabeth, Cape Colony; Colombo, Ceylon; Aden and other points will be represented.

The names of many prominent delegates have been already forwarded to the Montreal committee, among others those of the Right Hon. Thos. Sinclair, P. C.; Sir W. H. Holland, M. P. of Manchester; President Wilson of the Glasgow Chamber; Joseph Walton, M. P. of Barnsley; Sir J. J. Jenkins, Vice-President of the Swansea Chamber; William Jacks, Vice-President of the Glasgow Chamber; W. F. Beardshaw, of the Baltic Steel Works, President of the Sheffield Chamber; Mayor Gratewick, Chairman of the Exeter Chamber; Amos Crabtree, President of the Bradford Chamber, and E. P. Arnold-Foster, Vice-President of the same; Edgar V. Jobson, of the Derwent Foundry Co., Vice-President of the Derby Chamber; Alderman G. H. Wilson of Ossett; E. D. Crane, President of the Wolverhampton Chamber; John H. Ives, President of the Yeadon Chamber; Joseph A. Lockie, President of the Walsall Chamber; John Marden, President of the Bristol Chamber; W. T. Anderson, President of Kimberley, S. A., Chamber; G. R. Hobson, President of the Masern, Basutoland, Chamber, and R. Beramjee, of the firm of Dadabhoy & Co., coffee merchants of Aden.

The Boards of Trade, at points in Canada which will be visited by the British Commercial party after the Congress, are vieing with one another in extending courtesies; in some cases the entire cost of entertainment will be borne by the authorities, in other cases, banquets, luncheons, receptions, drives and other hospitality will be extended. The official itinerary of the tours will be definitely given out about 15th June.

As to the Canadian deputations who will visit Montreal to attend the Congress, the railways announce that they will grant a single fare for the round trip on the certificate plan, good to arrive three days before the Congress and to remain three days after its close. This reduced rate will be given only to duly accredited Canadian delegates and their wives when accompanying them, for a continuous passage (without stop over) going and returning over the same route.

CANADA'S ANTHRACITE COAL.

A Large Quantity Discovered Four Miles From Cumberland, B.C.

Washington, May 17.—In a report to the United States State Department, American Consul A. E. Smith at Victoria, says that a large quantity of anthracite coal has just been discovered four miles from Cumberland. Although none of this coal has been brought to market sixty men are employed in developing it and a railway is in progress of construction thereto.

OSHAWA WAREHOUSE CAUGHT ON FIRE.

The Fire Started From an Oil Stove and Spread Rapidly.

At 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon fire broke out in the warehouse in the rear of the Wm. Davies' butcher shop, in the centre of the business district of the town. The fire started from an oil stove, and burned up the side of a wooden partition and through the ceiling into the hay loft overhead. The loft contained a quantity of hay and soon the interior was in flames. The flames downstairs in the warehouse and stable were extinguished before the fire brigade arrived, and the fire in the loft was kept inside, owing to the building being covered with sheet metal. The interior of the building was badly burned and the contents damaged by smoke and water.

Mrs. Fairbanks tells how neglect of warning symptoms will soon prostrate a woman. She thinks woman's safeguard is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Ignorance and neglect are the cause of untold female suffering, not only with the laws of health but with the chance of a cure. I did not heed the warnings of headaches, organic pains and general weariness, until I was well nigh prostrated. I knew I had to do something. Happily I did the right thing. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound faithfully according to directions, and was rewarded in a few weeks to find that my aches and pains disappeared, and I again felt the glow of health through my body. Since I have been well I have been more careful. I have also advised a number of my sick friends to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and they have never had reason to be sorry. Yours very truly, MRS. MAY FAIRBANKS, 216 South 7th St., Minneapolis, Minn." (Mrs. Fairbanks is one of the most successful and highest salaried travelling saleswomen in the West.)—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, leucorrhœa, displacement, etc., remember, there is one tried and true remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

PLAIN TRUTHS FOR AMERICAN PEOPLE.

Lynching of Negroes Strongly Denounced.

A New York Clergyman Says There's Savagery in States as in Russia.

New York, May 18.—The Rev. Dr. Robert S. MacArthur preached last night at Calvary Baptist church on the dual theme of "Savagery in Russia and Savagery in America." Though he began with a bitter arraignment of Russia for the massacre at Kishineff, he devoted quite as much time to a denunciation of the lynching of negroes in this country. He said that a mob which killed negroes in this country was as bad as a mob which killed Jews in Russia. The only distinction which he noted was that the outrages in Russia were the natural development of the policy of cruelty systematically pursued by the Russian Government and encouraged by the authorities of the Greek church through many centuries. In ending, he said that he had himself been born under a corner of the British flag, and that while he loved the American flag with every drop of blood in his body, there was no flag in the world so fair to men of all colours and all faiths as the British flag.

Regarding the proper attitude for the United States to take in the present emergency he said: "We have all been startled by the unspeakable atrocities inflicted by the Russians upon the Jews. Russia is the great bear in the international menagerie. It is the mediæval barbarism in the modern world. The United States Government must protest in the name of humanity against such cruelties. Jews are slain, women are dishonoured, children are slain. Why? Because they dared to be true to their ancient faith. To say that the United States Government has no right to address a remonstrance to the Russian Government is to mistake the functions of our Government to-day.

"If Great Britain and the United States will join hands, they can stop atrocities in all parts of the world."

A Farmer Cured of Rheumatism.

"A man living on a farm near here came in a short time ago completely doubled up with rheumatism. I handed him a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and told him to use it freely, and if not satisfied after using it he need not pay a cent for it," says C. P. Rayder, of Pattens Mills, N.Y. "A few days later he walked into the store as straight as a string, and handed me a dollar saying 'Give me another bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm; I want it in the house all the time for it cured me.'" For sale by all druggists.

WEST PETERBOROUGH FARMERS' INSTITUTE

Will Hold Annual Meeting on June 6th.

The annual meeting of the West Peterborough Farmers' Institute will be held in the town council chamber, Peterborough, on Saturday, 6th of June, 1903, at one o'clock sharp, for the election of officers, when the following programme will be followed:

1—President's report.
2—Discussion thereon.
3—Report of Executive Committee and financial statement by Secretary-Treasurer.
4—Auditors' report.
5 and 6—Suggestions of points at which to hold regular and supplementary meetings.
7—Election of directors and auditors.
8—Suggestions as to how the Institute can be improved and made more useful.

It is also understood that the Institute will give a picnic to Guelph on June 11th, when Professor Harcourt will deliver an address on "The Sugar Beet."

THE GOLDEN JUBILEE OF RAILROADING IN ONTARIO.

Fifty Years Ago the First Passenger Train Left Toronto.

(Montreal Herald.)

Saturday was the golden jubilee of railroading in Ontario. Just 50 years ago, May 16, 1853, the first passenger train was run on the first railway in the province from Toronto to Aurora. It was known as the Ontario, Simcoe & Huron Railway, and shortly after was extended to Barrie, and then to Collingwood.

Mr. John Harvie is the only survivor of the company who travelled by rail on that May morning, half a century ago. He is now secretary of the Upper Canada Bible Society. The first bride and groom to travel by rail were Mr. and Mrs. Alex. McCracken, of Newmarket, who are still living in that town.

ONE MINISTER'S WAY OF STIMULATING COLLECTIONS.

Jefferon, Pa., May 19th.—The girl with the persuasive smile and the memorandum book, will be given a chance to win a ministerial husband. Rev. E. L. Dowd, has publicly announced that he will wed the most successful solicitor of church funds in his congregation.

Rev. Mr. Dowd is determined to raise a debt that has been hanging over his parish for years, and with this in view he has determined upon a novel step. He is very popular with the women of his church,, and as he is single many matrimonial traps have been laid for him, but without success.

In discussing his plans before a committee the pastor said that he believed that every young minister should have a wife, but the only hindrance with him had been his inability to arrive at a selection from among so many eligible young women any one of whom would make an ideal wife.

He then proposed to offer the young woman member of his congregation who secured the largest number of church subscriptions, his heart and hand if agreeable to her. He wanted it understood that winning the prize did not necessitate its acceptance on the young woman's part.

THE HAWK AND THE CHICKENS.

(Rev. James G. Potter.)

One of the most interesting and instructive lessons one can learn during these early weeks of spring is that taught by the hen in charge of her brood. Whether in town or country the law is the same. Just as soon as there is any danger from the hawk hovering over the little family, the signal is given and instinctively shelter is given and received. The greatest problem facing this country to-day is the training of the boys and girls of this province to a true regard of what is true, what is honest, what is just, what is pure, what is lovely, what is of good report. Never was there a louder call to the parents and teachers of our young people to devote themselves with strenuous attention to furnish those under their charge with qualities that shall enable them to promote righteousness and help stamp out wrong and violations of law.

We are face to face with agencies seeking to break down the sanctity of the Sabbath in trains and excursions; constantly attempted efforts for the violation of liquor laws; a commercial spirit by which physical moral and spiritual manhood is being crushed out of our growing youth, and many other evil practices more or less open. Above all there is the need of the building up, and fostering of a healthy nationhood, which can only be done by the application of the means ordained.

National life never rises above the home life, and never sinks below it. The downfall of every character is traceable to some defect in his home life. Every drunkard; every murderer; every thief was nursed on a mother's lap, learned the mother's tongue, and partook of the mother's life. Uncontrolled and unguided children at six or seven years will be outlaws at twenty.

A poor young man stood before the judge to be sentenced to death, when the judge asked him, if he had anything to say why the sentence of death should not be passed, he bowed his head and said—"Oh, if I had had a mother."

God has made it possible for every father and mother to take all their children to heaven. The greatest power for good in this country to-day is the Christian church, with its Sabbath school work, and its band of Christian men and women adapting themselves and their teaching to the various ages and needs of the children. Their Christian experience is a guarantee of their instruction and help. It is the purpose of the Peterborough County Sabbath School Executive to bring the very best help possible from year to year so that teachers and parents may be encouraged and assisted.

Township Conventions are being arranged for next month, June 21 to 28, when addresses will be given by General Secretary J. A. Jackson and Rev. W. E. Hassard, B.A., B.D., besides prominant local workers. Mr. Hassard's one address, "The Worth and Winning of a Child," will be worth travelling miles to hear. Keep the date in mind and arrange accordingly.

CORDOVA'S PROGRESS AND PROSPERITY.

Building Operations Growing Rapidly.

Changes Among Mine Employees—School Accomodation—Personals.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Real estate is active in this town and several transactions have been reported during the past two weeks.

Building operations are a prominent feature, several new houses being under construction as well as additions to some erected last year.

Painting and finery are general and in a few weeks the town will have changed its appearance entirely— and for the better we are happy to say. If any exception can be taken to the improvements under way it is to the undue prominence given to one colour. The residents of Cordova would resent with scorn the imputation that they were an overly bibulous lot yet at the present time they are—literally—"painting the town red."

A surveying party under charge of Capt. Bogart, of Kingston, is working on the proposed line of the B. & N. R.R. northward from Cordova.

The following changes are noted among the employees of the Belmont gold mine: E. Croft becomes day foreman at shaft No. 3 in place of Geo. Avery, who takes charge of shaft No. 5; H. R. Hunt goes to the stamp mill and is succeeded as night foreman at shaft No. 3 by S. Milligan; Thos. Smith comes to the mine from the power plant and is succeeded by Wm. Hawley; Jas. Campney formerly blacksmith at shaft No. 3 has returned to his old love the C.P.R. and is stationed at Peterborough—Wm. Pearce of Deloro, fills the vacancy at No. 3.

Mr. Ed. Goodwill, of Charlottetown P.E.I. paid a brief visit to his brother Rev. T. W. Goodwill last week

Messrs. Bruce Strachan and Cyril Knight of Kingston, and John Dunkley of Picton, students of Queen's University, are putting in their long vacation at the Belmont gold mine getting some practical experience in underground work.

The incumbent of the Church of England at Havelock, Rev. W. R. Tandy, is conducting a class of instruction for candidates for confirmation at Cordova.

Miss S. Stephenson and Mr. J. Johnston, of Norwood, spent Sunday in town the guests of Miss G. Houston.

Rev. T. W. Goodwill has returned from Toronto where he was in attendance at the meeting of the synod of Toronto and Kingston.

Mr. Wm. Nobes is recovering from a severe attack of la grippe. He is also rejoicing at the advent of a little daughter. Mrs. Nobes and babe are progressing favourably.

A good criterion of the progress of this town is furnished by the state of things at the public school. The new building erected less than a year ago and thought then to be sufficiently large for the requirements of the place for some years to come is already overcrowded and the trustees will soon be face to face with the problem of providing increased accommodation.

Cordova football club won its first game with Warsaw in the Midland League series and is now preparing for its second game on May 22nd with Havelock.

GREATLY ALARMED.

By a Persistent Cough, but Permanently Cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Mr. H. P. Burbage, a student at law in Greenville, S. C., has been troubled for four or five years with a continuous cough, which he says "greatly alarmed me, causing me to fear that I was in the first stages of consumption." Mr. Burbage, having seen Chamberlain's Cough Remedy advertised, concluded to try it. "I soon felt a remarkable change and after using two bottles of the 25 cent kind was permanently cured. Sold by all druggists.

Near to Death by Dynamite.

St. Hyacinthe, Que., May 21. — When Proprietor Gauthier of the Yamaska, the best hotel in the city, went down to open the sample room yesterday morning, he found four boxes of dynamite cartridges under a step ladder which was so arranged that the slightest pressure would discharge the explosive. No doubt it was an attempt to destroy the hotel. An investigation is being made by the police.

A Familiar Name.

In the homes of Canada and the United States there are few names more familiar and none more reverently spoken than that of Dr. A.W. Chase, the great physician and receipt book author. He is blessed for the suffering he has relieved and the diseases he has cured; his remedies are used and endorsed by the best people in the land; they are popular because they cure when others fail.

Slater Shoe Advertising

Shoe Externals

Short talks by the Slater Shoe ad man, No. 5.

External Shoe beauty is simply a matter of perforation and polish—in most shoes.

Permanent beauty of form and finish are results of the same methods which secure to the shoe length of wear and shape retention viz:—invisible perfection of internal workmanship.

The "Slater Shoe" with the prestige of years of systematic advertising can afford to take no chances by skimping the internal economy of its make up—can not risk tampering with the fixed rules of standard workmanship.

The "Slater Shoe" has a name and the prestige of a valuable trade mark to maintain—they represent much cold cash in the assets of the makers—therefore both name and prestige are sustained by making the "Slater Shoe" in every particular equal or better than the claims its makers advertise for it.

Again proving the protection which "Slater Shoe" advertising gives to the wearers of

THE MARKSTAY ROAD

Opposition Insinuate a Corrupt Motive For Payment.

JUST BEFORE AN ELECTION.

Small Tempest Raised by Dr. Beattie Nesbitt in the Legislature—The Premier's Hot Shot—Motion For the Papers Carried After a Sharp Passage—Discussion on Recent Fishing Leases.

Toronto, May 21.—In the Legislature yesterday afternoon, Col. Gibson introduced an act to give police villages a chance to carry out their own local improvements. At present the township has to pass a bylaw and do the work. Under this act the police villages will construct the sidewalk and be responsible for its maintenance.

John McMaster's Appointment.

Dr. Nesbitt moved for a return of correspondence and papers relating to the appointment of John McMaster, in May, 1902, at overseer of work to be performed on Markstay and Warren road, in Algoma or Nipissing, and to the work done, security given and money advanced or expended in connection therewith.

Dr. Nesbitt made the complaint that McMaster had received $180 in bills in a letter from the Treasury Department on May 26, three days before the general Provincial election. He read a number of letters concerning the appointment of McMaster, with a view to showing that McMaster received the grant for the purpose of influencing his vote.

Mr. Latchford Explains.

Mr. Latchford replied that he had investigated the matter personally a few days ago, after it had been brought up by a question by Dr. Nesbitt. He found that a recommendation had reached the department about May 20 from the present representative for West Nipissing (Mr. Michaud). He did not think he was then a candidate. He sent a recommendation in favor of the appointment of John McMaster. The amount of the grant was a very small one. The custom was to ask for the bond and receive it before a grant was sent out. He believed however, that it was sometimes the case that when the grant was small it was sometimes sent out before the bond was received. He understood that the report of the inspector was that the work was well done. In any event, there was no objection to the papers asked for in the motion being brought down.

Mr. Matheson said that McMaster, being a Conservative, probably spent the money very well, but the point was that three days before the election, without any application from McMaster, he received the appointment. Mr. Cockburn, a colonization road inspector, sent his son to canvass him. The Public Works Department was using road money to try and corrupt the electors, and McMaster had been asked for his vote. He refused. He was then told to go to the postoffice and the money for the road would be there.

Where a Mistake Was Made.

Mr. Ross replied that the objection seemed to be that the man who received the grant was a Conservative. He supposed a Conservative might be employed in building a good road.

Mr. Matheson—Three days before the election?

Mr. Ross—Well, that is the time in which the good road was wanted. What is the harm in building a road three days before an election? You could not expect a man to build a road without money. The vote was given for the express purpose of building the road. Perhaps we made a mistake in asking a Conservative to build a road. There is no charge that the money was misapplied. You could build roads three days before elections without any corrupt intent. This is merely a suspicion. My hon. friend puts two and two together and makes five of them.

Mr. Matheson—There were two other cases.

Mr. Ross—Were they corrupt?

Mr. Matheson—I don't know.

Mr. Ross—No, it is a will-o'-the wisp, and my hon. friend has been chasing it and has not found it. And if he did find it, it would be a Conservative. It was just a money transaction. The only mistake was in asking a Conservative to do the work. Now, I protest against this narrowness in politics. If a Conservative is the only man who can build a road, give it to a Conservative to build. (Applause.)

Done by His Secretary.

Mr. J. J. Foy (South Toronto) repeated the accusation of irregularity.

Mr. Latchford explained that he had been out of the city at the time, and the matter had been attended to by his secretary. He had been assured by the hon. member for West Nipissing (Mr. Michaud) that McMaster had requested to be appointed overseer on this road.

Mr. Whitney said a well-understood rule of the department had been deliberately and intentionally broken by the Minister's secretary. The Premier differed from his predecessors. He said, "What are you going to do about it? You cannot prove it?" It was not the only thing they had done their best to prevent being proved. The Commissioner of Public Works had said if an Opposition member would publicly declare that he would support the Goverbment he would receive good treatment. All those things fitted in together.

The Premier's Hot Shot.

Mr. Ross said that what he had said was that it could not be proved that there was any corrupt bargain. His hon. friend know that, if he would only be fair. Dr. Nesbitt had suggested that there was a corrupt bargain. It was merely a suspicion. "I said he could not prove there was a corrupt bargain. He cannot prove it now. This mode of conducting political warfare is most inimical to respectable and reputable politics. Cannot we do anything in the world without being suspected of minister motives? Are we to assume that every man who discharges political duty has a corrupt motive? I would repudiate any political party, headed even by a Gladstone or a John the Baptist, who proposed that no man could engage in public transactions without his motive being impugned. It drags politics into the mire, and I pity the miserable soul of the man, whether in the House or out of it, who is seeking in a snivelling, sneering, in a critical way, his own hands not being too clean sometimes—(Loud applause.)

Mr. Whitney—I would like to say one word in reply.

Mr. Ross—I have no reference to my hon. friend.

Mr. Whitney said the Premier knew perfectly well Dr. Nesbitt had said if there was not a corrupt bargain there was a corrupt intention.

"My Hands Are Clean."

Dr. Nesbitt—I said there was no doubt there were corrupt intentions, for when the Minister sends letters to be delivered by the son of the Crown lands agent he asks him to support the Ross Government. When he says anything about my hands, there has never been a charge proved against me, and this is no time to say my hands are not clean, when he says that a letter addressed to him by Mr. Gamey did not pass through his hands.

Mr. W. R. Smyth (Algoma) said he defied anyone to state where there was one Conservative in Algoma employed as road boss, and 99 per cent. of the men employed on the roads were Reformers, or loaned to the Government.

Mr. James Conmee (Port Arthur) said the instruction given to road foremen was to employ settlers, without respect to their politics. That was done in his district, at any rate.

Mr. Milton Carr said his observation in 27 years in Parry Sound was that the money was spent somewhere about the 20th of May each year—(Opposition laughter)—between the 25th of May and the 15th of June.

Mr. J. H. Carnegie (West Victoria) said a grant had been sent to his riding in October, 1900, the Dominion election being in November, and was not spent till a year later.

The motion was carried.

Fishing Leases.

Mr. Hendrie moved for a return of correspondence between the department and any applicant for fishing rights for commercial purposes in Lakes Nepigon, Manitou and other lakes in Ontario since May 1, 1902. Before this order was reached, however, Mr. Hendrie asked: Has the Government entered into any agreement with any person, persons or corporations—other than those mentioned in the report of the department for the year 1902—granting fishing concessions in Lakes Nepigon, Manitou, or other Ontario lakes, and if so, are any such agreements and those named in said report, to be laid before the House at the present session, for ratification, or otherwise?

Hon. Mr. Latchford replied that the Government had not. The concessions were granted by an order-in-Council, which did not require ratification by the Legislature.

On moving for the return of correspondence, Mr. Hendrie urged that the Government should keep the chain of lakes from Ottawa to the Lake of the Woods for anglers who come to Ontario for the fishing and who spend a large amount of money here.

Mr. Latchford, replying, said no country in the world was more richly endowed with sporting fish than Ontario, and it annually attracted thousands of Americans who spent large sums of money. The Lake Nepigon license would not interfere with the anglers' or the settlers' rights in any way, and the agreement would secure a supply of fish in districts which were not otherwise served. Perhaps the Canada Fish Company's capital of $1,000,000 contained some water, but a fish company would perhaps need more water than any other company. (Laughter.) The Government safeguarded the leases with strong restrictions, which would yield a good rental and not interfere with the sporting fish in any way.

Mr. Whitney contended that the agreements should have been made public before signed, or submitted to the Legislature.

The motion for the papers was agreed to.

A number of bills were read a second time.

Life is not so short but that there is always time enough for courtesy.—Emerson.

DEFEATED MULLAH'S FORCE.

British Abyssinians Had Hand-to-Hand Conflict With Dervishes.

London, May 20.—An official War Office despatch from Aden, Arabia, under yesterday's date, gives details of the desperate encounter which took place at Burrilli, Somaliland, May 4, between an Abyssinian force, operating in conjunction with the British against the Mad Mullah, and a large force of the latter's dervishes.

After a hand-to-hand fight lasting 45 minutes, the dervishes were driven off, with the loss of 300 men killed and 2 wounded. The Abyssinians had 21 men killed and 10 wounded. Subsequently, the Abyssinians raided the wells northwest of Burrilli, and captured several prisoners.

The latter said the Mullah was at Ubertake.

A Breakfast Relish for the Strong and Weak.

In thousands of homes there are fathers mothers and children who cannot use oatmeal in any form, as they find it has a tendency to irritate the stomach, excite heat and redness of the skin and produce eruptions. Tutu again cracked wheat, hominy and other cereals contain too much insoluble starch which hampers digestion. Malt Breakfast Food comes to the rescue of weak and strong stomachs. It does not contain a particle of insoluble starch; it is partially prodigested, therefore requires little effort to digest it. Malt Breakfast Food is the most delicious of all cereal foods. It pleases every palate and becomes a fast favourite wherever it is tried. Ask your grocer for Malt Breakfast Food and take no other make of food.

Hon. Clifford Sifton Refutes Idea of Absorption of Canada.

London, May 20.—The London Chamber of Commerce last night gave a complimentary banquet to the Canadian Minister of the Interior, the Hon. Clifford Sifton, the guests including the High Commissioner for Canada, Lord Strathcona. Mr. Sifton devoted his speech mainly to refuting the idea that Canada was likely to be absorbed by the United States. He declared that Canada had successfully waged a fight against geography for fifty years, and it would continue in the same course. There was more pro-American feeling, he said, in London, than in Canada.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

Dr. McWilliams, Keene, was in town yesterday.

—Mr. Thos. Blezard, ex-M.P.P., was in town yesterday.

Mr. W. T. Bletcher, of Port Hope, on the custom house staff, is in town, the guest of Mr. H. Rush.

Mr. A. R. Bell, of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, San Francisco, is visiting with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Bell,t own.

Mr. George Wilson, of the Evening Guide, Port Hope, was in town to-day on business, and honoured the Examiner office with a call.

Mrs. Jas. Sisson of Mount Pleasant, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Wm. Batten, McDonel street. She is accompanied by her little son, Harry.

Prof. O'Brien, palmist and phrenologist, and Madame O'Brien, are at present in Smith's Falls, having just arrived there after a successful visit to Ottawa and Montreal.

Mr. Walker Hagel, of Winnipeg, formerly in the employ of the Peterborough Bookstore, is home on a visit after an absence of 18 months. Mr. Hagel has nothing but praise for the West where he intends to return before very long.

Mr. Edward P. Stone, manager for Messrs. Joseph Cowan & Co., bankers and brokers, New York, is in town. He is on an official visit to the local offices of Messrs. McMillan & Maguire, who are the Canadian representatives of Messrs. Cowan & Co.

The friends of Mr. J. A. Cameron, commercial traveller, Stewart street, will regret to learn of his sudden and severe illness. He had gone out of town in his customary health on Tuesday, and during the day became alarmed about his condition, and returned home the same evening. He has since been under medical care, with symptoms of appendicitis.

The executors of the will of the late John Bailey are offering for sale by Public Auction on Saturday evening, 13th of June, at six p.m., on the grounds Two Quarter Acre Lots, on Bonacord street. The lots adjoin the residence property of Mayor Roger, and are very suitable for pleasant homes. See posters. 3d119

FORMER PETERBOROUGH RESIDENT'S SAD DEATH.

Mr. R. Munro of Minden, Passed Away Yesterday.

It is with profound sympathy for relations and friends that the Examiner records the death of Mr. Robert Munro, of Minden, which occurred last evening at the Nicholls Hospital, from heart failure.

The deceased, who was formerly a resident of Peterborough and was once in the employ of the Examiner Printing Company, died at the age of 36 years. He leaves behind him a loving wife besides a family of three young children. The late Mr. Munro was attacked with paralysis two years ago May 24th, next, and was taken to the hospital on Monday last. Up till 4 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon he was as well as he had been during the last six months, but had a relapse from which he never recovered.

There are four brothers and three sisters of the family remaining:—Mrs. John Carlisle, Ashburnham; Miss Jessie K. Munro, town; and Mrs. Thos. Porte, Grand Forks, North Daketa. The brothers are,—Mr. J. W. S. Munro, of Collingwood; Mr. Nihil Munro, town; Mr. George K., Grand Forks, North Dakota, and Mr. Charles C., of Ashburnham.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from his brother's residence, No. 343 McDonnel street, and will proceed thence to the Little Lake Cemetery for interment.

SMALL BONFIRES ON THE STREETS.

A Very Dangerous Practice of Young Children.

Complaints have been received at this office concerning the practice young boys have of starting bon fires on the public streets. It is alleged that one of these small blazes was started in the vicinity of a wood yard, which, it is reported, might have developed into a more serious blaze had it not been for the prompt action of a passing lady. Children are not allowed to play with matches or fire in the house, and there is no reason why bonfires should be started on the streets. This is a matter which cannot be dealt with by the police; it should be attended to by the parents of the offending children.

ATHLETIC LACROSSE CLUB'S CONCERT.

Expected to be a Great Success.

The Athletics' promenade in the rink promises to be a success. The building is being put in readiness; the ground levelled and covered with a light sprinkling of fresh saw dust, and a band stand built at the south end. Mr. Horace Ayres is putting up his rings and arranging his apparatus in the centre, so that the programme can be seen by all. The gallery and hockey room are being fitted up with a piano and a little wax.

The programme promises to be unusually interesting. The 57th band has been practicing hard of late in view of their trip down the river, and will be in good form. Eight of the senior boys of the Y.M.C.A. under the leadership of Mr. Ayers, assisted by Mr. Black of Montreal, will appear three times during the evening and give an entirely new class of work. Besides this a number of local artists will contribute.

Everything has been arranged to make it interesting, especially for the ladies. For the benefit of those who do not know who the Athletics are, it might be said that they are the Hockey Boys playing Lacrosse.

NEW ELEVATOR IN ADDITION TO MILL.

The Central Milling Company's New Enterprise.

It is understood that the Central Milling Company will erect an elevator in connection with their mill near the C. P. R. station. The dimensions of the elevator, the capacity of which will be 40,000 bushels, will be 40 x 40 feet, while it will stand 50 feet above the ground. Tenders for the construction of the building will be received by Mr. G. F. Ward, secretary-treasurer of the company, up till May 30th. The foundation will be of stone and cement while the rest will be made of lumber laid face to face, which in its turn will be covered with iron.

Peterborough Will not be Visited by Ringling Bros.

It will be disappointing news for the small boy, and many older heads for that matter, to learn that in all probability Ringling Bros' Circus will give this town the go-by this summer. This circus is conceded to be the cleanest and best on the road today. They visit Belleville on June 6th, and it is said they will go right through to Barrie.

Walter T. Main's circus and the Pan-American circus are at present in Canada, and neither one of these it is thought will enter town.

POLICE COURT.

Two Cases Were Disposed of by the Magistrate This Morning.

At the police court this morning, before Police Magistrate Dumble, a man was charged with not having obtained a tag for his dog. He was made to pay the extra 85 cents.

Joseph Pogue was charged with being drunk and disorderly. His case was quickly disposed of the Police Magistrate fining him $2 and costs, amounting in all to $8.55. The court then adjourned.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS.

A Council to be Instituted in Peterborough on May 25th.

The Knights of Columbus, a semi-religious organization in connection with the Roman Catholic church, is to establish a Council in Peterborough, and the initial proceedings will take place here on Monday, May 25th.

This institution, which is practically a new one in Canada, is of a fraternal nature, and is very strong in the United States, having among its members the most influential and prominent men in the Catholic church in that country. The society, as its name denotes, is called after the great navigator Christopher Columbus, and is recognized as a power for good in the social and religious world.

The proceedings attending the institution of a Council in Peterborough will take place in the Oddfellows' Hall and it is expected that fully two hundred delegates will flock into town on the morning of May 25th, in fact it is said that two special trains will convey the visitors to town, and among the gathering will be a few Knights prominent in the Order across the line.

The proceedings proper will open with high mass in St. Peter's Cathedral at 9 o'clock which will be attended by the visitors as well as representatives from the local Catholic Societies.

Plant Your Garden.

Mr. A. Blade, of the West-end Greenhouses, (at the residence of G. M. Roger) has ready a very fine collection of hardy seedlings and bedding-out plants. This is the time for planting your garden and flower-beds; and the West-end Greenhouses can be depended upon for exercising the utmost care to have everything pure and dependable. Parties having baskets, hanging pots and vases to fill will confer a favour by sending their orders in early for filling. Telephone 21b., to A. Blade, Manager.

METHODIST WOMAN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY

Held Annual Convention in Town Today.

The annual convention of the Peterborough District of the Woman's Missionary Society, was held this morning in the Charlotte street church, beginning at 10.30 o'clock.

Mrs. Kilgour, the District Organizer, presided, while there were representatives from George street and the Mark street churches, besides delegates from Lakefield, Warsaw, Millbrook, Bridgenorth, and Pontypool.

Very favourable reports were presented by the representatives of the different auxiliaries—Mrs. Pentland, George street; Mrs. Taylor, Mark street; Mrs. Payne, Warsaw; Mrs. Walsh, Millbrook; and Miss Sherin, Lakefield.

Mrs. Walsh read an excellent paper on "How to Increase our Membership."

Favourable reports were received from Mrs. Mann, re the George street Mission Band, and Mrs. Leggot re Lakefield Mission Band.

The evening meeting at 8 p.m., to which the public are generally invited, is expected to be of unusual interest. An excellent programme has been arranged, including addresses by Rev. J. P. Wilson, Mrs. (Rev.) A.R. Campbell and Mrs. H. L. Platt.

Special music will be given by the choir of the church and by Mr. and Mrs. Killin-Keough.

DROWNED BOY'S BODY WAS FOUND

On Monday Afternoon at Four O'clock Near the Spot Where he Fell in.

The body of young Lennox, the boy who was drowned about a week ago, was found on Monday afternoon about four o'clock. About 3 o'clock in the afternoon his hat was found at Nassau, and a search immediately commenced, resulting in the discovery of the body a short distance from where the child fell into the water.

It will be remembered that the boy went out with a net, fishing for suckers on Saturday, May 9th, after which he was not seen alive.

It is understood that one of McDonald's men found the body, which was taken to Norwood and interred on Tuesday.

A Business Whirl.

Our Shoe Sale Success.

The voice of the people has spoken, and in unmistakable tones, that the Big Store is pre-eminently the people's great shopping centre for Shoes, as it is for every want of man, youth and boy. Wednesday the Great Men's Store was crowded continuously from the moment the doors opened at 7 until closing time. Men, wives and their families answered to the attractions of our Dollar Shoe Bargains, and they did it splendidly. Thanks.

Just as surprising will be our Great Sale of Summer Suits for the balance of the week in preparation for

VICTORIA DAY.

Prices of SUMMER SUITS ought to make business fairly hum until the close of the store Saturday night.

The astonishing feature of this sale will be—

Men's Blue and Black Serge Suits for $4.95
Instead of $8.00, as elsewhere,

Light Fancy Worsted Suits for $5.90
Instead of $11.00 as elsewhere.

There certainly seems to be no limit to the aggressive policy of this Big Store. It would seem utterly impossible that Suits of such splendid make could be sold at such prices, no matter what the object or cause.

In addition to these phenomenal offerings in Summer Suits, we will also hold a great Holiday Sale of—

HATS AND CAPS
Come and share in the benefits. Men's $2.50 Hats, for $1.95. Men's $1.75 Hats, for $1.00. Outing Hats and Caps, 25c, 35c, 50c and 75c.

LETTERS RECEIVED BY LOCAL HEALTH BOARD.

Laudable Action of the Local General Hospitals.

What will Happen After Nov. 1st? —The Need of an Isolation Hospital.

The local Board of Health have received the following communications from the Nicholls and St. Joseph's Hospitals:—

FROM THE NICHOLLS HOSPITAL.
Peterborough, April 28, 1903.

To the Board of Health,—

Gentlemen, — Having been waited upon by a deputation from your body, concerning accommodation for infectious cases, I beg to say that the Nicholls Hospital is prepared to take in and nurse patients suffering from scarlet fever, until November 1st. For indigent patients the town shall be expected to pay a daily per capita of 40 cents, as well as to provide serums. St. Joseph's Hospital has agreed to take diphtheria patients during the same time, and under the same conditions.

After November 1st, we can have nothing whatever to do with any of these cases. We have been advised to take this step for the following reasons:

1. Such cases do not come under general hospital work.
2. Such cases thrust on a general hospital entail a great amount of useless and unnecessary work and expense.
3. Such cases under the same roof as other wards is in principle at least a menace to the well being of the other patients.
4. The Government holds this town responsible for proper provision for its own infectious patients.

Respectfully yours,
(Signed) S. M. COLEMAN,
Supt. Nicholls Hospital.

By order of the Chairman of the Board.

FROM ST. JOSEPH'S HOSPITAL.

To the Board of Health, Peterborough.

In consideration of the continued negligence of the town in providing suitable civic buildings for the housing and treating of the sick, St. Joseph's Hospital will undertake to provide accommodation and nursing for all cases of diphtheria that may seek admission during the next six months.

For indigent patients it is expected that the municipality will grant a daily per capita allowance of 40 cents and in addition provide the necessary amount of "Antitoxine." The idea of finding accommodation for infectious patients in a hospital devoted to general work is so contrary to the first principles of isolation that it is with the greatest reluctance, and only to provide for an urgent emergency that the above privilege is granted. While our infectious apartment is [illegible] removed from the general wards, and the danger of contagion spreading reduced to a minimum, still to have the two class of cases under one roof, is wrong in principle, and such a state of affairs will not be allowed to exist here after the expiration of six months from this date. It is to be hoped therefore, that the Town and County authorities will convene at their earliest opportunity and enter into such negotiations as will lead to a speedy erection of an Isolation Hospital, and to have the same suitably equipped and provided with all the necessaries that go to ensure modern and efficient treatment of all infectious diseases.

Very respectfully yours,
SISTER M. AGATHA,
Superior, St. Joseph's Hospital.
April 30, 1903.

EVANGELISTIC SERVICES IN LONDON A SUCCESS.

600 Persons Begin to Live a New Life.

Messrs. Crossley and Hunter have been in London for a six weeks' evangelistic campaign. The night services were all held in the Dundas street Methodist church but even this large edifice was often too small. Five Methodist churches, one Baptist and one Congregational church were united in the services and emulated one another in hearty co-operation. About 600 names were received by the Secretary of those who started in the new life. The meetings closed last Friday night in London, and the evangelists began union services with the Presbyterian, Methodist and Baptist churches last Sunday in Campbellford, where they expect to stay four weeks.—Globe.

Six Doctors Failed to Cure Him.

ERYSIPELAS AND SALT RHEUM WAS THE TROUBLE.

Burdock Blood Bitters

DID MORE THAN SIX DOCTORS COULD DO.

Mrs. Theo. Newell, Argyle Sound, N.S., expresses her opinion of this wonderful blood remedy in the following letter:

"It is with the greatest gratitude that I can testify to the wonderful curative powers of Burdock Blood Bitters. For years my husband suffered terribly with Erysipelas and Salt Rheum. He was so bad at times that he could no sleep on account of the itching and burning. He had been under the care of six different doctors, but they failed to do him any good. I had read different times of the wonderful cures being made by Burdock Blood Bitters, so advised him to give it a trial. He did so, and after taking five bottles was cured without a doubt. I would strongly advise any person troubled with blood disorders to give B.B.B. a fair trial for I am sure it will cure them."

INTEREST ON BONDS

Possible Guarantee For Grand Trunk Pacific.

THE PREMIER'S DISPOSITION

Government Policy Not Decided, But Sir Wilfrid Laurier Personally Seems Disposed to Advise an Interest Guarantee on the Road's Bonds—Land Subsidies Are Out of the Question.

Toronto, May 21.—(Globe Special).—Ottawa, May 20.—The Government's supporters from Ontario and Quebec had conferences with the Prime Minister to-day on the subject of the aid to be granted the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. They did not go collectively, but in two separate groups. In both instances the discussion was frank and free. The Government have not decided upon their policy, but Sir Wilfrid enlightened his supporters as to his own personal views. Apparently the Prime Minister favors guaranteeing the interest on the bonds of the proposed transcontinental line.

Land subsidies are out of the question, and it would appear that there will be no Government-built line. Sir Wilfrid Laurier's statement as to his own views met with hearty approval, and a sagacious solution of the question is likely at an early date.

FRANK AGAIN DESERTED.

Dominion Surveyors Report Great Mass of Rock Overhangs Town.

Blairmore, Alberta, May 21.—R. McConnell and R. W. Brock of the Geological Survey, who have been at Frank for the past 10 days, making an investigation of the recent disaster, for the Dominion Government, have completed their work. By observations made, they ascertained that the most western peak of Turtle Mountain had moved about six inches during the period of their observations. This peak is a massive block of rock, as great in extent as, if not greater than, that which originally fell away. It directly overhangs the town, and in falling would destroy a part, if not the whole, of what remains of the town. Frank has been re-occupied and business generally resumed during the last nine days, but, as a result of the geologists' report, Premier Haultain posted a warning Tuesday, notifying all of the danger to life in remaining, and the town is again depopulated.

Calgary Man's Rich Find.

Calgary, N.W.T., May 20.—A. M. Parken, clerk in a furniture store here, was made $6,000 richer by a decision in the Supreme Court yesterday. Some years ago, Parken received from a dying man named Solten a savings bank account, with instructions to pay the funeral expenses, and keep the balance, but the Bank of Montreal refused to give up the money. The court gave Parken an order for the money.

ALMOST A DYING WOMAN.

Mrs. Jassia L. Sellars Shouts Aloud her Praises of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets—Brought Her Almost Frym Death to Life.

I believe Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have made a sound cure of me after being for seven years almost a dying woman. Now, thank God, I am able to do my daily work as usual.

This is what Mrs. Jessie Louisa Sellars, of Western Bay, Newfoundland, writes, and she wants all the world to know it. She feelsa s all others do who have cast off the pains and despondency of Dyspepsia—who feel again that life is worth living.

"I cannot praise Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets too much," continues Mrs. Sellars. "They have brought me almost from death to life. You may use my name to recommend them. I am only too glad that I cam do so."

It is cures like this that give Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets their popularity. They not only relieve but cure permanently Indigestion and Dyspepsia of all stages.

A WORD TO THE WISE.

Heart Disease the Most Sudden and Dangerous of Ailments.

Dr. Agnew's Cure.

Stealthy as a thief in the night, Heart Disease heralds its coming only by the deadly grip it lays upon its victim—the distressing symptoms of Palpitation and Short Breath, Smothering Spells, Vertigo, etc. Nothing will remove their fatal grasp save Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart. Totally unlike all other remedies, it acts on the nerves through the heart. It has saved thousands of lives—will save yours. A. Du Berger, Waterloo, Que., writes: "Alfred Couldry, who lives at Geo. Bell's, in West Shefford, has suffered from terrible heart trouble for the last four years. He has been completely cured after using eight bottles of Dr. Agnew's marvelous remedy."

Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder is universally recognized as a specific for Catarrh, Cold in the Head, Sore Throat, Influenza, Hay Fever, Tonsilitis and all the distressing results of a neglected "bad cold." No. 30

Bronchial Colds and Chest Pains

Croup, Bronchitis, Asthma, Coughs and Colds Yield Promptly to

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

There are many reasons why you should use Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in preference to any other treatment for diseases of the throat and lungs. Of these the most important one is the fact that it has been tested for years and absolutely proven its right to first position.

Nearly everybody knows of the remarkable value of turpentine and linseed as remedial agents. They have been so combined with half a dozen other ingredients in Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine as to form a most thoroughly effective and at the same time pleasant medicine.

As is frequently the case with an unusually successful article, Dr Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is imitated. There are now hosts of preparations with names similar to this, and some even go so far as to imitate the bottle and wrapper. It therefore becomes necessary for you to be very careful when buying. Insist on seeing the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase on the wrapper.

We know that Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine will not disappoint you, because it has stood the test of time, and the sales, which are at least triple that of any similar preparation, are steadily increasing year by year.

As a positive cure for croup, bronchitis, asthma, throat troubles, and severe cough and colds, Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has a reputation which cannot be stolen by the cheap and oft injurious cough mixtures which are offered in place of it by some dealers.

Even the consumptive, who has reached the latter stages of his insidious disease, finds ease and comfort in the use of this preparation, while it is impossible to estimate the countless number of less severe cases which it has actually cured. Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, 25 cents a bottle. Family size, three times as much, 60 cents. At all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. 3

BY BERTHA M. CLAY

Author of "The Gypsy's Daughter," "Another Woman's Husband," "A Heart's Bitterness," "A Mad Love," "A Heart's Idol," "Gladys Greye," Etc.

"Mamma," said the girl, with a grave solemnity, that startled Dolores, "I do not believe it—I will not believe it. If my father was the good and honorable man you describe him, would one hour's interview with a person for whom you say he had little affection or respect make him false to his whole life—false to you and to us? A thousand times no! If the whole world swore to me that my father was guilty, I would maintain his innocence as I would maintain the truth of Heaven. He is innocent, mamma," continued Gertrude, "as surely as the stars shine in the sky above us. Oh, how could you who loved him have believed him otherwise?" She turned and pointed to the river. "You might as well say that suddenly and without cause that water could become black as ink. Oh, mamma, how could you believe that my father was false?"

"What else could I do, Gertrude, my child?"

"Do? Trust him! I am only his child, and I do not remember one line of his dear face, but I would scorn to believe him guilty on the word of such a woman as that."

"Oh, child," said Dolores, faintly, "you have a golden heart!"

The depths of her soul were stirred; it was as though an angel stood before her and spoke for the long-lost man. From the hour in which she had received Lola's letter she had accepted her husband's guilt as a matter of course.

"But, Gertrude," she said piteously, "do you not see that is the only possible explanation of his absence? If he is elsewhere, why has he not written to me? He must have known that, loving him as I did, every hour of his absence would be torture to me; and, if he is not under baneful influence, I repeat, why has he not written to me?"

"I do not know. You will say, mamma, that reason or judgment does not enter into my counsels. I go by my instinct, by my feeling, by the voice of my own heart, and I know he is innocent—innocent as you or I."

Dolores' fair head drooped on her breast; she felt rebuked by the firm faith of her daughter.

"I am sure of this," said Gertrude, her fair face glowing with excitement—"that the truth will be discovered one day. If murder will out, innocence will be vindicated. My father's name will yet be as unsullied as the stars in the heavens. Rely upon it, mamma, there has been somewhere or other a terrible mistake."

Could it be possible? A terrible mistake! In what way? Dolores knew Lola's writing only too well. Her husband had vanished—there was no doubt about that.

What mistake could there be? Was it possible that she had allowed her jealousy to be too easily aroused, that she had been quick to judge and condemn? But every one else had judged Sir Karl in the same manner. Almost before she had time to form a thought herself, she had read the story in a dozen different journals, in a hundred different faces, had heard it in a hundred different voices. How could she be mistaken?

"Innocence will be vindicated," repeated Gertrude. "I know there are people so weak of faith that they think Heaven does not interfere with the concerns of this lower world. If the falling of a sparrow be a matter of moment, of how much greater importance is the character of a man? Mamma, I believe most solemnly that what we thought chance — the dropping of that lady's purse—was the very finger of Providence. For sixteen years men and women have believed my father guilty; but something tells me that the terrible mystery will be cleared up. I will devote my life to the task of clearing my father's name."

And again Dolores murmured:

"You have a golden heart, Gertrude! You are so like him!"

She was startled and unnerved by this sudden change; it seemed like a new atmosphere, a new world to her. She could hardly believe that she was the same woman who had come down to see the sun set over the river while overwhelmed by the sense of her husband's guilt. It was as though a young and vigorous defender had risen for him; as though fresh light were thrown upon this dark mystery.

"I pray Heaven," cried Gertrude, with sudden passion, "that I may never lie down to die until I have accomplished my end! Mamma," she continued solemnly, "show me my father's portrait. I shall know him better when I have seen his face. And you say he loved me, mamma—loved me very dearly?"

"He did indeed, Gertrude."

"Then I am the most fitting person to work for him. Do you mean to say that of all those who loved him there was not one to defend him or believe in him?"

"Not one," replied Dolores.

"Poor papa! Well, I believe in him; and I vow that I will establish his innocence, be he living or dead! Oh, how have you lived, mamma, with this terrible cloud hanging over you? Some in-doors quickly; I long to see papa's face!"

CHAPTER XXV.

In silence Lady Allanmore unlocked the drawer that had not been opened for sixteen years, and took from it a little parcel tied with faded blue ribbon. Opening it, she gave Lola de Ferras's two letters to Gertrude. In silence the girl read them.

"People say it is possible to tell character from handwriting," she said then. "If I were to judge from this, I should say that the woman who wrote these letters was a combination of good and evil. There is about this writing nothing open, frank or free. I should never have trusted her. In these letters, in which you find a certain proof of my father's guilt, I read his perfect innocence. She does not say, 'Sir Karl is with me.' He was not. She writes, 'You will never see him again.' She triumphs over you. She tells you that she has her revenge; but she does not tell you in so many words that my father has deserted you. After reading her letters, I am the more certain that he is quite innocent."

Dolores could not take her eyes from the fair, flushed face, so bright, so eager, so full of proud defiance.

"If the whole world," she cried, "had told me that my father was guilty, I would have disputed the statement. Put the letters back again, mamma. They are like venemous snakes. I could fancy that even the paper was full of poison. Put them away; perhaps some day I may ask for them again. Now, mamma dearest, show me my father's portrait."

With reverend fingers Dolores placed it in the girl's hand.

"Do not let me see it," she said. "I think it would kill me to look at his face again."

But Gertrude studied it eagerly; and Kathleen, coming to her side, looked over her shoulder.

"That is the face I remember!" she cried. "Oh, mamma, it comes back to me so vividly. He had a soft, kind voice too. I thought he was my papa. I should know him in a moment if I saw him. What a handsome face it is, and how like Gertrude's! Why, mamma, any one would know that Gertrude was Sir Karl's daughter!"

But Gertrude gazed on in silence.

"Mamma," she said at last, "a man with a face like that could not have done what you think papa has done. How could you doubt him? Those eyes are clear, true and honest. They have never drooped with shame. What a noble face! Every line of it is full of goodness and honor. I pray Heaven that I may see him! Oh, mamma, if I might but hope some day to see him, to hold his hand, to hear his voice!"

"You must remember, my dear," said Dolores, with gentle dignity, "that your father left us; we did not leave him."

"I shall never believe anything wrong of him, mamma," replied the girl—"never, while I live! His disappearance was mysterious—I acknowledge that—but I am convinced that my father's name is untarnished. Do you not think so, Kathleen?"

"I always think as mamma thinks,' answered Kathleen. "I could not pretend to judge. Mamma knows best."

"Mamma is a darling; but this time she has made a mistake!" cried Gertrude. "And some day she will acknowledge it. I wish I had been grown up when the trouble came. I would never have left the place. I would have employed the cleverest detectives in England and France."

"My dearest Gertrude," said Dolores, "there was not a stone left unturned. My father and Lord Rhysworth did everything that could be done."

"I am not reproaching you, dearest," returned Gertrude. "You would have worked harder and longer if it had not been for that false, treacherous letter which made you abandon your efforts in search of the truth when they were most needed."

But the girl began to see that not even her firm faith in her father could influence her mother. She was startled, but still unconvinced. Gertrude read that in her mother's face. It only strengthened the resolve that had changed her from a child into a woman.

"Let me keep the portrait, mamma," she said, "for a short time, will you? If ever the dream and hope of my life are realized, I will give it back to you framed in diamonds. One look at the pictured face will give me strength to do anything and everything."

So, far into the night, they sat talking of the same mystery which sixteen years before had thrilled all England. Gertrude, although full of hope and faith, had no satisfactory answerd when Dolores asked—

"Where can he be? If he did not go away with her—at her request—where can he be? Ah, Gertrude, who shall answer my question?"

"I will, mamma. Some time or other before I die I will answer it without fail."

Then Gertrude kissed her mother and said they must all go to rest.

"Have you decided, mamma?" she asked. "Shall you see Lady Fielden to-morrow?"

"Yes, I think so. She was very kind to me, and I liked her very much; I cannot refuse to see her. And yet it will be a terrible trial to me."

"You must not look at it in that way, mamma. You must believe that the hand of Heaven has sent Lady Fielden hither, and that perhaps through her coming my father's innocence may be established."

So the girls and their mother parted, but not to sleep. Dolores was too excited. She trembled at the idea of seeing her friend again. She knew the rush of pain, the bitter, burning memories that would come over her at the sight of the well-remembered face. Years before when the blow had just fallen on her, she had met it on her knees, praying for health and strength. So she prayed now. Heaven had taken pity on her, and would do so again. As for Gertrude, with flushed face and burning eyes she paced up and down her room, talking vehemently to Kathleen. Once she threw her bare, white arms round Kathleen's neck.

"To think," she cried, "that after all we are only half-sisters. How strange it seems!"

"But we shall love each other just the same," returned Kathleen. "It will make no difference. We are both mamma's children, you know; and, Gertrude, when I was little I loved your father very much indeed. I can remember him quite well, so that you must love me even more on that account."

"I do not think I could love you better," said Gertrude; and then she talked of her father, and of what she intended to do.

"I thought only last week, Kathleen, how pleased I should be when we went to more balls and parties, and saw more of life; and when I saw that handsome young Englishman to-day in the Pitti Palace, I pictured to myself how pleasant it would be to have such a lover—so young and handsome. Did you see his eyes, Kathie? But now I shall never give a thought to anything of the kind again. I feel as though one single night had changed me from a girl to a woman, with a great wrong to set right."

"But, Gertrude, you are not serious? You do not mean that you will give your life to clear up a mystery which has puzzled older and wiser heads than yours?"

"My dear, I will. I shall live for it. Do you not love the memory of your father, Kathleen?"

"Yes; but I never saw him. I have only the instinctive love that I suppose every child has. I think—nay, I am quite sure—that I love your father best. But, Gertie darling, do not fix all your hopes on fathoming this mystery. Depend upon it, mamma knows best. It would be a pity to spoil your life. Remember, three have been ruined already; do not add yours to the number. What a strange story it is! And we have lived here sixteen years in happy ignorance of it all."

"It is like a romance," said Gertrude; "but you must recollect something of it—the names and the faces. Do you remember Harry well?"

"Yes—him and your father best of all. And I remember a large house full of pictures, and with great trees round it."

"If I had known Harry when I was four years old, I should never have forgotten him," declared Gertrude. "Did he really love me so much when I was only a weak, little baby? How good of him! Kathleen, how little we know what a day will bring! How little we dreamed, when we started for the Pitti Palace, that all this would result from our visit! And mamma must have told us soon. We could not have lived here until we were old women. I have never complained; but in reality I am just a little bit tired of the monotony, sweet as it is, of the Villa Baira. Kathleen, what a dear English name that friend of yours, Harry, has! He is the ideal Englishman one reads about—fair, honest, and true!"

"You take a great deal for granted, Gertie," laughed Kathleen Rhysworth; and Gertrude turned away with an impatient gesture.

Doan's Kidney Pills

He tells about the cure in the following words: "I cannot recommend Doan's Kidney Pills too highly. I never took anything that did me so much good. I had a severe pain in the small of my back and could scarcely get up or down without help. I could hardly urinate, but when I did the pain was terrible. I was in the Hotel Dieu, Kingston, last winter and when I came out I was some better but not cured. It was then I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised. Since taking them I have been completely cured and have not had any trouble with my kidneys since."

Blood Disorders

are simply kidney disorders. The kidneys filter the blood of all that shouldn't be there. The blood passes through the kidneys every three minutes. If the kidneys do their work no impurity or cause of disorder can remain in the circulation longer than that time. Therefore if your blood is out of order your kidneys have failed in their work. They are in need of stimulation, strengthening or doctoring. One medicine will do all three, the finest and most imitated blood medicine there is

BACKACHE

Is only one of many distressing symptoms which point to the presence of womanly diseases. If women thoroughly understood the relation of the local womanly health to the general health, they would understand that backache, headache, nervousness, sideache, dizziness, faintness and similar feminine ailments, cannot be cured until the womanly health is established.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures diseases peculiar to women. It establishes regularity, dries the drains which weaken women, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. In curing these local diseases, it cures the ailments which they cause; backache, headache, sideache, dizziness, faintness, nervousness, and other ills peculiarly feminine.

"I wrote you for advice February 4th, 1896," writes Mrs. Loma Halstead, of Claremore, Cherokee Nat., Ind. Ter. "I was racking with pain from the back of my head down to my heels. Had hemorrhage for weeks at a time, and was unable to sit up for ten minutes at a time. You answered my letter, advised me to use your valuable medicines, viz., Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and 'Pleasant Pellets,' also gave advice about injections, baths and diet. To my surprise, in four months from the time I began your treatment I was a well woman and have not had the backache since, and now I put in sixteen hours a day at hard work."

Weak and sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter free. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

The Common Sense Medical Adviser, is given away. Send 31 one-cent stamps, the expense of customs and mailing only, for the book in paper covers, or 50 stamps for the volume bound in cloth. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

The following despatches have been received by E. M. Poussett & Co.:—

New York, May 21, 9.45 a.m. —The U P strike should be settled to-day. Harriman's condition satisfactory. Harriman interest supporting Union Pacific in the market. Montreal market seriously disturbed by break in Dominion Iron and Coal. Banks lost to the treasury since Friday $1,623,000. Iron Age says tone of market easier and the tendency downward in many branches of steel trade. Easier money in London makes further gold shipments unlikely after Saturday's goes out.

THE LATEST NEWS OF LOCAL SPORT.

The Gossip in Peterborough Lacrosse Circles.

The Athletics Concert – T. V. Canoe Club's Coming Regatta May 25th.

LACROSSE.

The Oshawa lacrosse club can boast of two grand stands, and it is proposed to hang out the "no smoking" sign on one of them.

* * * *

The Oshawa Reformer is in a quandary over the number of juveniles playing the national game, and asks through its sporting columns, just what is to be done for them. By all means encourage them, and form them into clubs, and in a few years be in a position to point to the fact that at least one or two "home-brews" play the game.

* * * *

The Toronto papers state that Fred Lynch, formerly of Peterborough, is at present in Montreal, and will take Hobin's place on the Shamrocks. The person who fathered that sporting item certainly has a bat in his belfry. Fred Lynch is at present in Westminster, and as for Hobin, it is safe to wager dollars to doughnuts that he will be with his old love before many moons.

* * * *

Lacrosse is booming in Lindsay this season as it never did before, and the citizens are taking a deep interest in the team which will represent the Scugog town this season. There is no reason why the game should not boom in that town, and the management of the club should be given every assistance in their efforts to build up a team.

* * * *

Mr. Leo Primeau, of Lindsay, was in town last evening, and he stated that the Lindsay club was in excellent condition, and would put up a good game with the T.A.S. at Lakefield on May 25th. He further stated that a big crowd would accompany the boys on that date.

* * * *

"Toney" Roach, it is said, will field captain the Vics., of Port Hope, in their game with the T.A.S. II on the Murray street grounds on the morning of May 25th. Frank McCoy will likely referee the game.

* * * *

Belleville is credited with having a pretty husky line up. In the Athletics they will find an aggregation that will keep them thinking.

* * * *

Port Hope will have no senior game in that town on May 25th, as was expected.

* * * *

Mr. Fred McGrath, of the T.A.S. club, will not be able to handle the stick this season. In fact he will be obliged to give up all field sports, as his physician has advised him to abstain from all contests and events for the season. This information will be received with regret among Fred's friends.

* * * *

Thirty players turned out with the T.A.S. last evening and Jack McCabe lined the bunch up. The spectators enjoyed the practice immensely. There will be another line up on Friday evening, after which the team will be picked to battle with Lindsay on May 25th.

The Ladies' Reading Circle of St. Peter's T.A.S. is requested to meet a committee from the lacrosse club in the T.A.S. Rooms on Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

The T.L.C. is said to be trying to induce "Mary" Curran to leave his sunny Orillia home and play with the Torontos. And no one would blame "Mary" a bit for accepting such a golden chance to shake the dust of the graveyard of the north off his feet.—Telegram.

Lindsay Post.—Citizens of Lindsay, you should see the boys in green and white practice—then you will be convinced that we have a winning team. They say Rollie Glover and Jack McCabe, of Peterborough Athletics, and last year with Port Hope, will be in the game for T.A.S. on Monday. Rollie is a great shot on goal. The team's trainer, Billy Craig, is getting the locals in fine shape. Billy knows his work well and every night after practice he is to be found at the rubbing boards, busy as a bee. It is recognized abroad that Lindsay has a fast junior bunch and should win its district. However, on Monday the boys will be up against a strong aggregation, and the game will be fast.

* * * *

Millbrook wants a game with a Peterborough junior aggregation for the afternoon of May 25th, and have written to the T.A.S. II team inviting them to the village on that date.

* * * *

The Lindsay lacrosse colours are green and white and it is said that the team has a very natty uniform.

* * * *

The T.A.S. II team will be picked this evening for the game with the Vics., of Port Hope, on May 25th.

CAPTAIN OF THE ATHLETICS.

After last night's practice a meeting of the Athletics was called for the purpose of electing a captain and Mr. Edward Dillon was unanimously chosen for this office. Mr. Dillon deserved the appointment as he has been one of the most enthusiastic lacrosse exponents in town both on and off the field for some years. He knows the game and with the hearty co-operation of the officers and players the Athletics should turn out an article of lacrosse the town need not be ashamed of and in keeping with the other teams in the league.

Last night's practice was a good one. The players appearing to get into much better shape each practice. President Kenner and Secretary McPherson were on the grounds last night watching the practice.

RUGBY.

Mr. T. J. Begley, Secretary of the T.A.S. Athletic Section, has received a communication from Mr. Frank D. Woodworth, secretary-treasurer of the O.R.F.U., re the organization of a T.A.S. club in the senior series, to be grouped with Ottawa and Kingston. With the thermometer dancing around eighty-five, and the air full of lacrosse, the mention of Rugby comes like a cold chill. The communication, however, will be dealt with in good time, and it might also be stated that the T.A.S. will be heard from in Rugby circles.

BASEBALL.

The Excelsiors play their second game in the league next Saturday when they run up against the Pullman, an aggregation of "used to was" players. The knowing ones sniff victory in the air for the Excelsiors.

The Shamrocks play Lakefield at Lakefield, on the morning of May 25th.

TURF.

Campbellford holds a demonstration on May 25th and several racing contests are down on the programme. It is said that one or two fliers at present stabled in Peterborough have entered the events.

CANOEING.

The young canoeists are evidently getting into shape for the upset race which will be a feature of the Trent Valley Canoe Club's big race day. The long string of accidents is still unbroken, and yesterday afternoon two young men were to be seen struggling in the water near the cemetery point, and their canoe was not far away.—Com.

A meeting of the Trent Valley Canoe Club will be held this evening in the Y.M.C.A. parlours. Arrangements will be completed concerning the sports and races which will take place on May 25th. A large attendance is requested.

MISCELLANEOUS.

KINGSTON LIQUOR DEALERS IN THE POLICE COURT.

Hint to any Local Dealers who may not Comply Strictly With the Law.

Nine liquor dealers of Kingston, were charged at the police court there yesterday with violating the liquor license act by neglecting to uncover the windows of their places of business on Sunday last so as to afford a clear view of the interiors. The charge was made by Inspector Ghidden, on complaint of two ladies who had made a tour of the hotels on Sunday last and noted those who were not complying with the law. The case was adjourned, and it is the intention of the liquor men to fight it through.

THE GAMEY ENQUIRY

Mr. Blake Suggests Sending the Evidence to the King.

THE PROSECUTION ARGUMENT

Responsibilities of a Minister of the Crown—Counsel Speaks of Forgery, Perjury and Subornation—The Court Refuses Protection From Frank Sullivan If Gamey Gives Up the $1,300.

Toronto, May 22.—The Gamey Bribery Commission opened promptly at ten o'clock yesterday morning.

The Chancellor—Now, Mr. Blake, will you proceed.

Mr. Blake—Mr. Du Vernet wishes to say something.

Mr. Du Vernet, on behalf of Mr. Gamey, stated that his client was willing to pay the money into court if the commiesioners would order that Frank Sullivan produce the I. O. U. given therefor. The commissioners said they could not do so, as Mr. Sullivan denied its existence. The matter then dropped.

Mr. Blake's Argument.

Mr. Blake opened his address by remarking that no time could have been better spent than that spent in conducting the investigation, if, as a result, public opinion became roused to a determination that a higher standard of morality must be lived up to by public men, and that uprighteousness and honesty should be the main requisites of those who made the laws.

He felt it had been of great satisfaction to those he represented—the people of Ontario—that so wide scope had been given, and that all the tendered evidence, virtually, had been received. In this course the Commission had been fully justified.

An important question was whether the Commission was competent to report a finding on the facts, or whether it was simply to present the evidence with explanatory or implementary evidence, without an absolute finding. Reference to the acts governing the Commission, he submitted, particularly chap. 19, Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1897, showed that the Commission could only take evidence on oath, compel the attendance of witnesses, and report to the Legislature for it to take such action as it deemed proper.

"Then we are simply an examining board?" enquired the Chancellor.

"That is my position."

"There's a strong temptation on us to give effect to it," the Chancellor observed.

"Yes, but of course, the Court never gives way to temptation."

Mr. Blake continued to say that the Court could make something in the nature of a charge to the jury, but not a charge on the evidence. But, in case the Commission decided to report its findings, he would suggest certain conclusions that could reasonably be arrived at. He would first present that portion of the case as to which there appeared no reasonable doubt. He would then deal with the matters that he conceived to be open to question.

Interested in the Truth.

All through the statement he would like it to be borne in mind that he was not treating the matter as a political question, but as an inquest by the people generally, who desired that the truth should be ascertained in connection with the charges against the good Government of the Province.

The first thought that struck him was: "What were the circumstances that preceded the main matter in issue?" An election had been fought so close that a coalition had been looked to as a solution of the difficulties. From July 8 to October 22, according to Mr. Stratton himself, the Government had a majority of but one. Each vote was of importance to the members, and there was a common danger, interest, desire and motive, and means suggested in which one of those interested was the chief actor, but which were known according to the evidence of Mr. Stratton to every one of the members of the Government, for he stated that on September 10 he told them what he was doing. Where there was a common motive, a common interest, a common danger, and a common desire, and one means to carry it out then very slight evidence, indeed, if it did not follow as a matter of course, would suffice to show that these people were interested in that which they were desirous of accomplishing, and in respect of which a means of accomplishing was present. There is no doubt that, according to their notions, the means were successful. That Gamey agreed to sell himself and his constituency was no question, nor that the price to be paid was, to a certain extent, actually paid, and that the balance was in the process of liquidation, so to speak.

Took Up the Bargain.

He was not at this moment dealing with the question of money. He was leaving that to the other branch of the case. He was dealing with that written so plainly that he who ran might read, that Gamey was elected as an opponent of the Ross Government after a long and bitter fight, and that, as a result, the seat was protested. There was no use trying to minimize that now. Any talk of independence came at a later date.

It was utterly immaterial who made the first approaches. But was the answer to Gamey: "We spurn power at the price of wrong-doing; we spurn it on any bargain; we spurn to buy not only yourself but the constituency at Manitoulin. We spurn it"? No; the only question was: "What's your price?"

He would deal first with the letter sent to the Premier's office, dated Sept. 10, 1902. He would deal with how it came there later on, and would for the present deal with as it stood, written by Mr. Stratton, signed by Mr. Gamey, and addressed for some reason to Mr. Ross. He would point out the line; "I have decided to give you my support." That was what the Government wanted. Then, further down was the piece: "I wish to be treated as if I had been elected to support your Government." Here was an absolute bargain of purchase and sale, made on the 10th day of September. Obviously he had not been elected to support the Government. The bargain was stated concisely. Mr. Blake then referred to the letter of Oct. 27, which virtually reiterated the same statements.

The Newspaper Interview.

Then came the document of Jan. 29, 1903, the newspaper interview. There were two bye-elections, Centre Bruce and North York, and it was stated that it would be of advantage to get a public declaration. Why not publish the letters? Because they were prima facie evidence of a bargain, of a transfer of support for value received. Therefore, they had to get it toned down to something which they could publish. What could be more misleading than that interview? The deed of bargain and sale was in the Premier's private drawer, the goods to be delivered in March. "There is a rumor that you are inclined to be friendly to the Government," ran the interview.

"The Government is now safe," said the interview, when it was in reality on the ragged edge, with a starvation allowance of support.

On those three documents and the facts undisputed, he thought that the branch of the case relating to patronage was proven.

The Protest Was Dropped.

On Oct. 4th the petition was dropped. Previous to that date the patronage was applied for and every letter after that date was in pursuance of the carrying out of the bargain entered into. There was no doubt that Gamey was alarmed about the protest against him. He had been alarmed as early as August 7, the date of the meeting with Capt. John Sullivan at Allandale. They would pardon him for naming him "the old man of the sea," and likening him unto "Sinbad the Sailor." Mark how insinuating the old gentleman had been; they were going to unseat Mr. Gamey and disqualify him also. Then after all the pipes were laid, there was the Captain's journey, all the way to Manitoulin and his midnight visit to Mr. Gamey's home. In the May previous there had been the Shannon deal, whereby the Captain had profited to the amount of over $8,000. Men who could obtain such large concessions from the Government were willing to work for it. And he further wished to draw the attention of the court to the fact that the same man had been reported for bribery. There had been the threats and the fear aroused in Mr. Gamey.

It was quite clear that Mr. Stratton was aware of all this by his consultation with Mr. Aylesworth as to how Mr. Gamey could be bound. Mr. Aylesworth's suggestion was a letter, and he told Mr. Stratton to prepare it himself. There was no question as to Mr. Stratton's interest in the matter and his desire to get such a letter. He hunts up Mr. Aylesworth in Osgoode Hall and waits an opportunity to speak to him. He hands him the letter and arranges an appointment for Mr. Gamey. Mr. Aylesworth very soon saw what every one else saw, what any man would have been blind not to see, that the transaction was an improper one. He adopted the course of an honest man and threw back his letter, telling him to go elsewhere. Mr. Aylesworth couldn't give Gamey what he wanted; he had to go direct to the Minister for that.

Mr. Aylesworth's Suggestion.

Their Lordships would note that, according to Mr. Aylesworth, the suggestion of a letter had come not from Mr. Gamey, not from Mr. Stratton, but from him (Aylesworth). "How can we hold him?" Stratton had asked, and the suggestion was made. Then Mr. Stratton had said practically, "I'll send him down about the petition—(that was the drawing card)—but you get the letter." The visit to Mr. Aylesworth would also reassure Gamey from the lips of the counsel for the Government that if he was to support them the petition would not be pressed. The evidence threw light, moreover, of the relations with the Government of the persons pretending to act for Mr. Fraser, the petitioner. The matter was wholly in the Government's hands to dispose of as it saw fit.

The letter turns up in the Premier's private drawer. It was put in that place and remained there for use when the Government saw fit.

Mr. Stratton had testified that the dealings between Mr. Gamey and himself were told to four members of the Government on the same day and to the others on the next. The letter had been kept as what he might style as one of the muniments of the Government's title on Mr. Gamey. There had been the jocular discussion among the Ministers of the Crown at the breakfast table on Sept. 11 which Mr. Stratton described. He could not understand why Ministers of the Crown should mock at a public sin, unless they had for years been dragged down into the pit of political exigency so as to lose their sense of right and wrong. It was remarkable how quickly Mr. Gamey and the Government understood each other; the strangers up to Sept. 10 became bosom friends. On Sept. 29 it is, "My dear Stratton," and "My dear Gamey," and there is a request for the appointment of Mr. Flesher. Why does he write to Mr. Stratton when the appointment is in another Department? Was not a recognition that the bargain of which Gamey was asking a part of the price was made through Mr. Stratton?

Gamey's Recommendations.

Mr. Blake continued his analysis of the documents. On November 4th Mr. Gamey proceeded to make further use of his friends and asked for a loan of $2,000. Mr. Stratton was out of town at the time, but his secretary said the matter would be attended to. No other answer was ever made, but the fact that Mr. Stratton did not express his surprise tended, in counsel's mind, to confirm the suspicion that there had been some previous monetary arrangement. On November 10th Gamey recommended the appointment of Jackson. On December 18th he urged the Swanson appointment. The Attorney-General did not repudiate

A TWO-EDGED WEAPON.

The conflict between capital and labour has witnessed some curious turns. It is not many years since unionism first became an aggressive factor in the industrial world. Union on the part of the employees was followed by the formation of employers' associations. Injunctions against labour unions have been employed by capital against the unions, and now the unions are beginning to retaliate by securing injunctions against employers. The trade unions of Omaha are the first to obtain an injunction from the courts, and it is as sweeping in character as anything ever granted against a union. The action was the logical outcome of events. The courts do not distinguish between capital and labour, between employer and employee. The unions appealed for protection against a combination of business men who had agreed not to sell goods to employers of union labour. They have no reason to complain of the result of the application to the courts, for they secured an injunction as comprehensive and binding as any ever issued by the courts against a boycott instituted on the part of the workers. It is a poor rule that does not work both ways. —Montreal Herald.

SPRINGVILLE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The cellar of Mr. Jas. Baptie's house was entered by some sneak thief, and Mrs. Baptie notes the loss of some half a dozen bottles of the delicacies of the season. The necessary danger of being detected on account of the entrance being by the summer kitchen would suggest familiarity with the premises on the part of the rogue.

Mr. George Raper and family were taken suddenly ill. The suddenness and generality of the attack suggested some general cause, and Dr. King was summoned; he pronounced the well water as being unfit for use. We are pleased to see Mr. Raper and family able to attend to their duties as usual.

Mrs. Samuel Grandy is quite ill.

Mr. D. V. Trew, in his ambition to keep pace with the spirit of advancement, has followed the example of the other business houses by placing a bell on his door. He reports the grocery trade as being especially brisk, he having a monopoly of the Green photo coupons.

Special services will be held in the Presbyterian church on June 7th, it being the anniversary of the induction of Rev. Mr. Yule. Further announcements will be made.

A Familiar Name.

In the homes of Canada and the United States there are few names more familiar and none more reverently spoken than that of Dr. A.W. Chase, the great physician and receipt book author. He is blessed for the suffering he has relieved and the diseases he has cured; his remedies are used and endorsed by the best people in the land; they are popular because they cure when others fail.

DISCOVERY OF THIEF AFTER SIX YEARS.

Superintendent of a Sunday School Flees From Justice.

How Houghton Dickenson was Discovered After he had go Over $8000.

All Norwich is ringing with the shame of Houghton Dickenson—last week the manager of the largest mercantile establishment in the town, Sunday school superintendent, and a prominent citizen—to-day a fugitive from justice and a confessed thief whose peculations extend over a period of six years.

Dickenson's fall and flight quickly followed the employment of a detective, less than a week being required to expose the man so fully that he needed but a chance to leave the country, and he got it.

For twelve years Houghton Dickenson had been a trusted employee in the large drygoods and furnishings store of J. C. Henderson. Born and raised in Norwich, of the best family and well educated; Houghton entered the store when but a boy under most promising circumstances. Six years ago he practically came in full control, because of his close attention to business. According to his own confession and his employer's calculations, his stealings commenced about that time. It was just 25 cents that he took first, and it is said that three thousand dollars would not cover his defalcation since that time. He said he thought he had stolen about $1,500, for he had been stealing about six years, and he seldom took more than a dollar a day. However, the week the detective was watching him he took $40. At least the detective was given marked money and bought things from the store through Dickenson's hands. Thirty dollars of the marked money was found in his possession, and the others did not find its way into the cash drawer. So Mr. Henderson is not sure just how much the thieving cost him.

A month ago Merchant Henderson grew suspicious. He knew he was losing money in some mysterious manner. Dickenson he could not suspect, since his life was such an open book, and withal such a good one. For ten years he had been a staunch member of the Baptist church. For the past three years he has been superintendent of the Sunday school and a pillar of the establishment. He was one of the best speakers on theological subjects in the congregation and carried on meetings in the absence of Rev. J. H. Cameron, with a devotion that brought upon him the ecomiums of the whole church-going population of Norwich. But his money was going, and going fast, so the merchant in desperation placed the case in the hands of the Dominion Detective Agency of Toronto.

About two weeks ago a quiet, modestly dressed young man dropped into Norwich. He was seen around the hotel on Saturday and Sunday evening.

For several days the sleuth put in his time examining from a secret recess the actions of the clerks of the store. He could look through a slit in the wall from his place of concealment and have a view of the whole store.

The expose came Monday of last week. The sleuth had reported to Henderson, and they knew where lay the guilt. The hour alone for the exposure remained to be named. That afternoon the detective "happened" into the Henderson emporium. Dickenson rushed forward with the glad hand and his best vestry smile. Yes, the stranger thought he wanted an umbrella, would Brother Dickenson recommend a line. He would and he did. That one for two dollars, marked down from $3.50, was real silk. The sleuth had a marked two-dollar bill left, so the price was very satisfactory. He walked out, and as he did so observed Dickenson flash his eye around and shove the money into his pocket. That was the end of the game. Mr. Henderson, from behind a paper, had been watching the transaction, and he called his man to one side. Asked for the money he had received for the umbrella, the clerk finally, under protest, produced two one-dollar bills. When told that the jig was up, he brought forth the marked two dollars and other paper money stolen during the week. When the mask was once brushed aside, the rest was easy, and a full confession followed.

With bowed head the exposed thief told between sobs the story of his betrayal, how he had taken twenty-five cents six years before for an emergency, intending to replace it. Then he took more and more. What he had done with it he could not tell. There remained $140 in the bank, and this was quickly turned over, with a horse and buggy, a piano and other valuables, all of which he confessed had been purchased with stolen money. Then Mr. Henderson sent the man home to tell the story of his shame to his young wife.

J. H. Muir, commonly known as the "Old Deacon," was sitting out on his lawn when a newspaper man called.

"Known him! Why, I have known Houghton so long, let me see—well, a very long time. If he ever had a fault I never heard of it. Houghton had full charge of our collections and everything was straight. Seems that he just naturally coveted that which was not his. Did he need it? No. He got a good wage—ten dollars a week and commissions on goods sold that increased his weekly earnings to $12. There were just three places that man lived—at home, the Baptist church, and the store. This is one of those cases that can't be explained; no, sir, just can't be explained," and the old deacon continued to shake his head, as he bowed the visitor from the place.

In the meantime, the fugitive is known to have gone to the States, where he has a sister, and no very energetic efforts are being made to secure his return.

Suffered Ten Years.

"I suffered for ten years with bronchitis and was unable to work for months at a time, then I used Angier's Petroleum Emulsion and it made me feel like a new man."—Robert Weir, Toronto, Canada. 12a

PORT HOPE WATER WORKS.

Interesting Statement by the Water Commissioners.

In a report of the Port Hope town council proceedings held on the 19th inst., the following appears from the Water Commissioners of that town:

"The reason for first thinking of a debenture issue was the sudden and large increase of pumping involved in the two contracts at present under consideration, the Ideal Sanitary Company, and the G.T.R., will be about ten millions gallons extra per year. With the rapid increase of consumers and this sudden expansion of business necessitates prompt measures to increase the ability to supply a demand which will add ten or twelve hundredd dollars a year to our revenue. Three hundred and fifteen dollars yearly is all that we require to pay this sum, principal and interest, in thirty years. And when we tell this council that since the commissioners have had control of the water works we have received in round numbers $23,000 from the town and have expended $27,- in extensions, steel water tower, capacity nearly 250,000 gallons, new pump—million gallons per day capacity—enlarging pump house, extra boilers, filtering basins and over 1 1-2 miles of main water pipe. We have also $1,200 worth of tools and appliances, and material required for repairs, showing a surplus over receipts in six years of $5,200, last year it was $1,700.

As a proof of how first class high grade water is appreciated, we can give the large number of new consumers constantly added for domestic use, but to retain our high reputation in that respect and encourage the rapid increase of consumers, the greatest care and constant watchfulness is required in the source of supply.

One thing we wish to expend quite an amount upon is meters. We feel that it is perhaps as important to carefully guard our water when pumped, as to increase the supply.

In 1898 we pumped.....15,000,000 gal
In 1899 we pumped.....14,000,000 gal
In 1900 we pumped.....19,000,000 gal
In 1902 we pumped.....32,000,000 gal

For the water pumped in 1902 the amount we received showed a large waste; at 20 cents per 1,000 gallons we should have had $6,400 instead of $4,300. The facts given for consideration are to show that our system is in a very prosperous condition, and we feel that in a few years there will be a very great increase in the number of consumers, and like any first class, well conducted business, we must look ahead and make provision for it. There is no doubt that in the near future it will be our most valuable asset and yield a handsome revenue to the town yearly. We have, as you will perceive, added over $5,080 to the completion and improvement of the plant in six years, out of surplus of earnings over expenditure, and it is only beginning the earnings. When we guard the purity of the water carefully when pumped it will again increase very largely the receipts. The commissioners feel certain that they can double the amount of supply this year if the council promptly attend to this."

THE OLD FAMILY CIRCLE.

Where is the home life that used to be? Where is the dad who sits in the circle and reads the paper to the family, and who is ready to discuss the style in hats or the price of corn in Egypt? He is a rare bird.

Where is the daughter Mary, who once was one of this family circle in the days of the used-to-be? Oh, Mary is upstairs getting ready to go to the opera. Her beau will be along in a minute.

Where is Tom, who used to be one of this happy circle that sat in the old-fashioned room before the wide-mouthed grate? Tom belongs to the Always Up and At 'Em Society, and is going out to-night to debate on the question, "Is it Right to Get Rich Quickly?"

And Jim?

Well, Jim, you see, is the wonderful master of the Ready to Aid Fraternal Association, and this is lodge night.

Then where is Bill?

Why, Bill is chief lamp-post holder of "The Stand On the Corner, Spit and Remark Club." This club meets nightly, and Bill is decorating the sidewalk.

But ma?

Oh, yes, mother is chief needle-keeper in "The Matrons Sew for the Shirtless Association," and ma is out at a meeting of the sewers.

But that rip in Bill's trousers? Hush! never a word.

Then what about pa?

Well, dad is a true, faithful, and consistent member of two bodies, "The Sit Up With the Sick Friend Society" and the "I Must Go Out to See a Man Club."

So the key is left under the mat, and the cat minds house listening to the ticking of the clock and keeping his eye peeled on the rat-hole by the sink.

Oh! for the days of the good old home life, when fathers and mothers, sisters and brothers, enjoyed the delights of the family circle; when the chairs were drawn about and the old man romped with the kids and made a monkey of himself for their sake.

Say, dad, do you ever play with the youngster now, or do you go home from work, light your pipe, grab a paper, and draw yourself into your shell, or do you hike upstairs, take a wash, put on a clean collar, and scoot?

Do you know your child or do you push him away when he comes up and pulls your paper? Do you growl when he asks you: "Say, pa, what did the teacher mean when she said the earth moved? It ain't moving now."

Get up and have a romp, and answer the kid. You would answer a stranger on the street. Unbend. Kings have done it. Don't mind if you bag your trousers; there are tailor's irons. Let them muss your collars and rumple your hair; there are laundries and brushes and combs and mirrors.

And then, when the years draw down and your footsteps are faltering near the brink, when the light is dim and the road uncertain, do not be surprised if your arm is held and your feet are guided by some son, some daughter you loved and romped with. Romping beats whipping.

"Yes, but don't I buy clothes and feed them?"

Yes, that is true. The farmer also feeds his pigs, blankets his horses. But you can't purchase a pound of fellowship or two pounds of love and romp at a store and send it home. You carry that, my friend, beneath your vest.

THE GAMEY ENQUIRY

his endorsation, but Mr. Gibson, writing to Mr. Flesher, said he would make the appointment, unless there was very strong objections.

From the 10th of September there was no break in the demands for patronage and no unfavorable replies. On December 24th Mr. Gamey wrote to Hon. Mr. Latchford, asking him to push through the road grants he was sending. On January 3rd Road Inspector Boyd wrote Mr. Latchford that, unless there was some decided advantage to the party, the grants should not be allowed. Like master, like man, observed Mr. Blake. On January 15th Gamey suggested the name of Pratt as marriage license issuer. On January 22nd McEachren's appointment was recommended.

The telegram of Sullivan to Gamey on January 27th, that it was most important that he should come to Toronto immediately was most important here because on the next day Hammond, The Globe reporter, was told that Gamey would be in town and would give an interview.

On January 31st Mr. Gamey wrote to Mr. Latchford, asking that all the grants be allowed, so as to satisy his constituents—a word of warning that the price must be paid. On February 25th Mr. Latchford wrote that the grants were a "pretty large order," but he would endeavor to get them placed in the estimates.

The X.Y.Z. Letter.

Gamey wrote to Mr. Stratton on February 7th that there was certainly a row on, and that a meeting of the Conservative Executive would be held. The answer was the X. Y.Z. letter, which Mr. Blake wanted the court to find was inspired by and emanated from Mr. Stratton. In every particular it specifically answered Mr. Gamey's letter. "A matter of plain common sense that letter, X. Y. Z., with the enclosure that so aptly answered the letter of February 7th, could not have come into existence unless with knowledge of the February 7th letter, to which it was a complete reply. My own idea is that it was a concoction of both Stratton and Sullivan, but it must be taken to be a reply through the instrumentality of the person securing the letter, because no other answer was sent, and because it was a crucial moment and Gamey was there expecting advice.

Taking up all the other letters sent by Frank Sullivan, counsel said they showed a perfect understanding between the writer and Mr. Stratton, since they dealt with details only ordinarily known to the Minister, and his Private Secretary. On Feb. 27 there was such a letter. The information contained therein could not have been obtained unless there were confidences between Mr. Stratton and Sullivan.

It had been testified by Mr. Conmee that he had told Mr. Stratton and Mr. Grant about Mr. Gamey's petition and his resolve to support the Government. This sawing off of petitions appeared to Mr. Blake to be very disreputable; but it was more disreputable to saw off the petition of a Government supporter against that of a man who is was secretly understood was pledged to become a Government supporter."

A Disreputable Practice.

The Chancellor said he quite agreed that this practice was disreputable, but, unfortunately, both parties indulged in it, and the Commissioners could not change the law.

Mr. Blake pointed out that Mr. Grant, Mr. Stratton and Mr. Aylesworth had every reason to believe that Gamey was to support the Government.

Mr. Blake said they simply had to deal with the facts as sworn to. Even if there had been no consideration but the withdrawal of the petition given for Mr. Gamey's support, their Lordships would still, he submitted, be compelled to find it a corrupt act.

Taking up The Globe interview, Mr. Blake pointed out that, when Mr. Stratton spoke to Mr. Hammond first as to the interview he was going to get from Mr. Gamey, the latter was not even in town, and did not arrive until the evening of that day. It was true that he was on the train, but why had the telegram, summoning him, been sent by Frank Sullivan?

Reviewing Mr. Hammond's evidence at some length, Mr. Blake suggested that one of the motives was to get a statement that would prevent Gamey from going into Centre Bruce and North York as he had into North Grey. Hammond was to get Gamey's signature for that purpose.

Mr. Blake's Strong Words.

Speaking of Hammond's testimony that Mr. Stratton had asked him to strike out the words Mr. Gamey had added to the interview when he signed it, Mr. Blake asked: "Would it have been forgery to alter that document signed by a man's own hand?

"I wonder whether that was the first lesson in perjury which Mr. Stratton had given?" he added. "Subordination of perjury!

"A Minister of the Crown, forsooth! We'd better send that statement to the King and let him know what kind of Ministers bear that name."

"He dare not deny it," he added, and continuing, asked if it were the practice to debauch the young men who entered the Parliament Buildings. Philip II. had been charged with educating men in assassination. "Was that very much worse than to educate them to kill truth and honesty?"

To summarise—it was surely established that the Government did make a bargain with a Conservative member, elected to oppose them, whom they were desirous of unseating, a bargain assuring him his seat, and that he would be given all the privileges of a Government supporter. Could anything be more corrupt, even if no money was paid? One man is to sell himself, his friends and his constituency that he remain the dishonored member for Manitoulin, and the other pay a consideration that they may remain the dishonored members of the Government. The documents and the acts done leave no doubt as to the correctness of the above conclusion.

Every member of the Government was as much culpable as the member put forward to bear the brunt of the exposure. They all knew about it, and deliberately left it to their colleague to carry out the details. The fact that they blinded their eyes or deadened their ears did not alter their responsibility. It was remarkable that not one of them had made denial of their knowledge of the facts.

Mr. Blake then entered upon the subject of the motives of Mr. Gamey. The latter had said that he was not in the market to be bought, but he had heard that the Government was prepared to make corrupt advances, and he had determined to sacrifice himself to see how far the Government was prepared to go. It was for the Commission to consider what Mr. Gamey's motive was, whether it was corrupt, or whether it was an attempt to put an end to corrupt practices. In pursuit of this he had been called a spy and an informer, and, indeed, a little lower than Judas himself. It was a most disagreeable position to be placed in but what would occasion great odium in one case would fail to do so in another.

In Mr. Gamey's mind if ever there was a case which justified his action it was the present. From his view a great evil was sapping honest government. It required heroic treatment, and he was willing to do and to suffer to accomplish his purpose.

It was easy to sit after the event and discuss the points which it would have been well to avoid. But they must consider what large sums were spent by the Governments of the world for this very purpose of investigation. What an example was set by the learned doctors of sophistry. Take Machiavelli's advice as to the conduct of a Prince towards his people. Dr. Paley himself had given instances where it was justifiable to tell a lie.

The Afternoon Proceedings.

Mr. Blake thought it only right to show the case as it was given by Mr. Gamey himself. Mr. Gamey was a novice at this sort of thing. As to the money his statement is corroborated by Mr. Strathy that he deposited the $1,500 and the $500 produced were the actual bills. If he were going to make up a story it would not be such a one as he tells. It was to be remembered that it was Frank Sullivan who brought Gamey and Stratton together. He was also in at the death, for the day before the House met he was in a posiion to say to Stratton, "I don't think that man Gamey is going to support you," Regarding the money he admitted that there was great difficulty in settling whether the payment was made on the 9th, 10th or 11th Sept.

He called the attention of the court to Frank Sullivan's extraordinary evidence that if anyone kept his eyes and ears open he could pick up in the departments information which by means of some of the legislators he could turn into money. It is evidence of a man absolutely reckless of truth. His absolute shamelessness in giving testimony was an outrage on decency. A bold, hardened sinner. He would not give the evidence as he did if the matter were only his own.

After referring to the Wilson episode, Mr. Gamey's politics, he passed on to submit to the Commissioners that Jones of Boston, Frank Sullivan and Cap. Sullivan were agents of the Government-Sullivan were agents of the Government, and that Mr. Gamey was justified from their words and letters in believing that they were the representatives of the Government as they represented themselves to him to be.

Mr. Blake dwelt at great length upon the sacred trust of a Minister of the Crown. In conclusion he paid a brilliant tribute to the splendid character of those composing the Commission and expressed the hope that posterity would profit as a result of the investigation just completed.

Mr. Johnston will begin the argument for the defence this morning.

MR. HORACE E. AYERS LEAVING PETERBOROUGH.

Has Accepted a Position in New York City—Leaves on July 1st.

Mr. Horace E. Ayers, Physical Director of the Y.M.C.A., has accepted a call to be Physical Director of the Boys' Department of the East Side Y.M.C.A., New York City, and at the monthly meeting of the Board of directors of the Association last night tendered his resignation, which will take effect on July 1st.

In presenting his resignation, Mr. Ayers referred to the regret he had in doing so, but this new position would give him an opportunity for a more scientific study of the work with the leading men of the world-wide movement.

Mr. Ayers will also make a special study of the medical side of the work in one of the colleges there.

He referred also with deep gratitude to the debt he owed to the Association—making special mention of the ex-president, Mr. Ackerman, President Madill, General Secretary Williamson and the other members of the Board.

The following resolution, accepting Mr. Ayers' resignation was moved by Mayor Roger, seconded by Mr. J. H. Connal:—

"That in accepting the resignation of Mr. Horace Ayers as Physical Director, this Board desires to acknowledge the faithful service to the Association and to the Master which Mr. Ayers has rendered during his incumbency of the office, and the great regret with which they now part with him, gratified only by the knowledge that the change will be a material advancement for himself and will afford to him a still larger field for service."

All the directors present and the General Secretary referred in terms of highest praise to Mr. Ayers' work in the Association, and expressed best wishes and earnest prayers for his future success.

Mr. Ayers became a member of the Association in 1899, shortly after his arrival in town. He was employed with the Times and Examiner as machine operator, and in January 1901, was called by the Board to be Secretary of the Boys' Department, which office he filled very acceptably until the summer of the same year when he became Physical Director of of the Association.

Mr. Ayers is a fair illustration of the work the Association is doing for the all-round development of men, and is one of five who entered official association work in nearly as many years from this Association.

As one of the Directors said last evening, Mr. Ayers promises to become one of the foremost leaders of Association work in America.

A VERY UNIQUE WINDOW DISPLAY.

A Scale Model of the Local Lift Lock on Exhibition.

In the large plate glass show window of Alderman Edgcumbe's grocery store on George street north may be seen a very unique and skilful representation of the Peterborough lift lock. This execution of so intricate and formidable a work is the handiwork of Mr. Jas. Dawson, who has developed quite a taste for expert window dressing. He devoted his spare hours in the evening to the elaboration of this design. So faithfully has the idea of the lift lock been carried out that the average person can grasp the modus operandi of its operation more quickly than by a visit to the lift lock itself. This typical design has been worked out to the scale and the whole scheme carried out in a highly creditable manner.

PETERBOROUGH OLD BOYS' ASSOCIATION.

Excursion Arrangements are Complete.

An Assembly in Victoria Park on July 27th—Ald. Rush's Communication.

Arrangements have been completed by the Peterborough Old Boys' Association for an excursion to the home County, extending over Saturday, Sunday and Monday, July 25th to 27th, 1903, when a special excursion train will leave the Union Station, Toronto, at 7.40 a.m. on 25th, via the Midland Division of the Grand Trunk Railway, stopping at Markham, Stouffville, Blackwater and Lindsay, arriving at Peterborough 11 a.m., where the greater number of the excursionists, no doubt, will leave the train to spend the interval until noon on Monday with friends in the town and over the county.

All members and friends will assemble at Victoria Park, Peterborough ,on Monday at 2 p.m., where they will be met by the Mayor accompanied by the Warden of the County, Aldermen, County Councillors and leading citizens from the town and municipalities, who will formally welcome them.

After a few short speeches by prominent citizens and members of the Association, a band concert will be given and the remainder of the afternoon spent in games between home and visiting teams, visiting, etc., leaving for Toronto at 7.30 p.m.

An elegant and artistic programme is being prepared which will contain historical information, biographical sketch s, list o. officers and members, specially written songs, with photo engravings of officers, Mayor of Peterborough and Aldermen, Warden and County Councillors, Parliamentary representatives and programme of proceedings. It will be printed in two or three colours on toned paper, finished in the finest style of the printer's art and be considered of sufficient historical value to preserve as a memento of the first home-going of the Peterborough Old Boys.

Alderman Harry Rush, secretary of the Home Committee, has received the following communication from Mr. Llewellyn Morrison, President of the Association:—

Dear Mr. Rush,—I duly received your letter and made the necessary changes in the circular. The printing matter is now all ready but the envelopes and we are to receive large ones to-morrow and the others on Friday. None are sent out yet, but we expect to send out between 500 and 1,000 this week. We will send you by express 1,000 full sets not later than Saturday. People in the town and vicinity can obtain them all ready for addressing and mailing from you and so save transcribing the names and sending them to us. We will also put in the box 5,000 "stickers" which you can scatter out over the town so that people may stick one on to each letter which they send abroad. If more circulars or stickers are desired let us know and we will forward promptly.

Yours faithfully,
L. A. MORRISON.

POLICE COURT.

Several Cases Disposed of by the Magistrate.

At the police court this morning before Police Magistrate Dumble, Margaret Kennedy was charged with being drunk and disorderly. Her penality was ten days imprisonment.

The case against landlord and tenant for unsanitary condition of a drain, which was enlarged till to-day, was again enlarged, this time, however for a week.

H. Metcalf was charged with throwing a stone on George street at a Chinese laundry window. He was fined $5.00.

The case against H. and K. Freeman, of perjury, which was enlarged, came up again in court to-day. After considerable evidence had been heard the accused were committed for trial. They were given bail on two securities of $250 each.

Persons who have not bought dog tags for their canines are warned that the costs of the court will have to be paid as well as the usual fine. It is understood that several sum-summonses for these offenders were issued to-day.

INSURANCES CHANGES AFFECTING LOCAL AGENCIES.

The Confederation Life to Have a New Central Office in Town.

Mr. H. P. Lindsay has severed his connection with the Imperial Life Assurance Co., having been appointed District Agent for the Confederation Life Association for Peterborough district.

His appointment in no way conflicts with the position of Mr. Rush, who continues to represent the Company with increased duties as cashier and local representative. The Confederation Life expects to secure new office premises in the near future, the Peterborough office now being a central office for the collection of premiums throughout the district. Until such new offices are secured Messrs. Rush and Lindsay will remain in those at present occupied by them.

The executors of the will of the late John Bailey are offering for sale by Public Auction on Saturday evening, 13th of June, at six p.m., on the grounds Two Quarter Acre Lots, on Bonacord street. The lots adjoin the residence property of Mayor Roger, and are very suitable for pleasant homes. See posters. 3d119

THE CANOE CLUB'S COMING REGATTA.

There Will be Big Doings on Victoria Day.

A large number of members were present at the meeting of the Trent Valley Canoe Club held in the Y.M.C.A. parlours last night, with Commodore Stock in the chair. The object of the meeting was for the purpose of making arrangements for the regatta, which will take place on Monday next at 2.30 o'clock.

After considerable discussion the following ten events were arranged:

Ladies' single.
Ladies' tandem.
Upset race.
Gentlemen's single.
Gentlemen's tandem.
Gentlemen's four.
Tub race.
Tilting tournament.
Paddling tub race.
Sailing Canoe race.
Combination ladies and gentlemen

It is understood that other races may also be arranged and it is rumoured that Mr. Horace Ayers has challenged Mr. N. Jolliffe, a member of the reportorial staff of the Review, to a paddle punt race.

The following officers were elected:—

Starter—Mr. Geo. Cochrane.
Judges—Messrs. E. B. Clegg, F. Clark and R. M. Roy.
Time keeper—Mr. R. F. McWilliams.

At eight o'clock in the evening there will be an illuminated parade for which each canoe must provide its own illuminations and fireworks. All persons having boats, whether members of the T.V.C.C. or not are asked to take part in this latter illumination parade.

METHODIST WOMAN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The Afternoon and Evening Sessions.

Three Very Interesting Addresses—Rev. Mr. Wilson's Oration.

At the afternoon session of the annual convention of the Bay of Quinte Branch, of the Woman's Missionary Society, of the Methodist churches of that branch, held in the Charlotte street church at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, there was a large attendance of delegates.

Two papers were read at this meeting, one by Mrs. Moore, of town, on "Our Work in the Northwest," and the other by Mrs. Dr. Harrison, of Keene, on "Mission Band Work."

The evening session, to which the public were invited, was not very largely attended. The meeting, over which Mrs. (Rev.) Kilgour presided, was opened with devotional exercises, after which Rev. J. P. Wilson delivered a short address. After expressing his pleasure at being present, the speaker said that women had always taken a first place in the work of Christ. The last century, he said, was considered the missionary century, and the church had realized that it was her duty to carry the Gospel into all the world. He said that the missionary thought was the great thought of the congregations of the world. In the course of his remarks, Mr. Wilson said that there were students, educated and refined, ready to go—will the church send them? He remarked that it was indeed a blessed day when the Woman's Missionary Society was organized in Hamilton some 21 years ago. The speaker then spoke on the West. He said that thousands of persons settled yearly in the western provinces, half of whom could not speak the English language. All of those must be looked after, which means the support of more missionaries each year. Mr. Wilson spoke of the good which can be derived from the circulation of literature. As an instance he related how the publication of a single book, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," had freed all the slaves in the United States. The speaker continued by saying that it was necessary to pray for our missionaries. We pray for the heathen, why not also for the missionaries? In conclusion he said: "There is a great work yet to be done, which, if women do not do, will never be done."

At the conclusion of Rev. Mr. Wilson's excellent address, Mr. and Mrs. Killin-Keough sang a duet entitled "The Lord is My Shepherd," which was followed by the secretary's report.

Mrs. (Rev.) A. R. Campbell then spoke on "The Home Department of the Woman's Missionary Society." Mrs. Campbell commenced by saying that work must be done at home, and moreover the work must proceed, for bricks, she said, cannot be made without straw, neither can missionaries work without support at home. The speaker said that those who were unable to go out into the world and preach the Gospel, were capable of doing quite as effective work at home by helping financially to support the missionaries. Mrs. Campbell said that although the W.M. Society had only been organized some 21 years ago, it had over 1,000 auxiliaries, bands and mission circles, and was carrying on work in China and Japan and amongst the Indians of Canada, besides missionary work in the city of Montreal. Mrs. Cameron concluded her address by showing the necessity of active workers at home.

Mr. and Mrs. Killin-Keough again favoured the congregation with a duet entitled "All Through the Night."

The last of the addresses was given by Mrs. G. D. Platt, president of the Bay of Quinte Branch of the Woman's Missionary Society.

Mrs. Platt commenced her address by discussing the question as to whether this generation would see the evangelization of the world, the speaker said that she thought there was every reason to believe that it would. Travelling was much easier, Bibles were now printed and translated into every language, and were sold at an exceptionally cheap price. The president followed up her introductory remarks by saying that if we want our families to be interested in any subject we must be devotedly interested ourselves.

Written questions had been handed in which the president answered one by one.

The meeting was then brought to a close by the singing of the Doxology.

A Business Whirl.

Our Shoe Sale Success.

The voice of the people has spoken, and in unmistakable tones, that the Big Store is pre-eminently the people's great shopping centre for Shoes, as it is for every want of man, youth and boy. Wednesday the Great Men's Store was crowded continuously from the moment the doors opened at 7 until closing time. Men, wives and their families answered to the attractions of our Dollar Shoe Bargains, and they did it splendidly. Thanks.

Just as surprising will be our Great Sale of Summer Suits for the balance of the week in preparation for

VICTORIA DAY.

Prices of SUMMER SUITS ought to make business fairly hum until the close of the store Saturday night.

The astonishing feature of this sale will be—

Men's Blue and Black Serge Suits for $4.95
Instead of $8.00, as elsewhere,

Light Fancy Worsted Suits for $5.90
Instead of $11.00 as elsewhere.

There certainly seems to be no limit to the aggressive policy of this Big Store. It would seem utterly impossible that Suits of such splendid make could be sold at such prices, no matter what the object or cause.

In addition to these phenomenal offerings in Summer Suits, we will also hold a great Holiday Sale of—

HATS AND CAPS
Come and share in the benefits. Men's $2.50 Hats, for $1.95. Men's $1.75 Hats, for $1.00. Outing Hats and Caps, 25c, 35c, 50c and 75c.

A HINT TO HOUSEHOLDERS.

How to Help Make the Town Look Beautiful.

As you walk along the street does it not please you, asks the Brantford Expositor, to see a well-kept, well-groomed lawn? If not, it was never intended that you should grow up. You are all a mistake. If you own a home, try and keep your lawn, even if it is but a foot square, looking well. People will say nice things about you, and to you; people will think that you are taking some interest in living. If there are bare spots where the grass will not grow, spade them, sow a little grass seed, or do a little sodding. You don't know the pleasure of it until you try.

LEATHER MAY GO UP.

An Advance in Prices Being Considered by the Tanners.

An advance in the price of leather was considered at a meeting of the Tanners' Section of the Board of Trade held in Toronto on Wednesday afternoon. The argument advanced was that in view of the advance in the cost of labour and material there would have to be a corresponding increase in leather prices. Nothing was done however, and it is probable that a general meeting of the tanners will be called to consider the situation.

The following committee was appointed to wait upon the Dominion Government with reference to certain clauses in the Inspection Act to which amendments are desired:—F. G. Daville, A. O. Beardmore, O. J. Miller, S. P. Wickett and J. C. Breithaupt.

THE PROVINCIAL COURT CATHOLIC FORESTERS

Will Meet in Peterborough Next Month.

The Provincial High Court of the Catholic Order of Foresters, will convene in Peterborough next month, and it is expected that this year's convention will be very largely attended.

The membership of the Catholic Order of Foresters in the Province is now 7,065, an increase of 1,400 in two years, since the Pembroke convention.

The convention to be held in Peterborough next month is expected to produce much valuable legislation, many of the delegates being leading professional men who take a keen interest in the order. The banquet, which is always a grand affair in connection with conventions, will this year be on strictly temperance lines, and takes place in Peterborough's well-known Temperance Hall.—Catholic Register.

BIRTHS.

McCLELLAN.—On Friday, May 15th, to Mr. and Mrs. A. J. McClellan, a son.

A MEMORIAL TO "FIGHTING MAC."

An Appeal to the British Empire for Funds.

At a public meeting of Scotsmen, resident in London, held in the Scots Corporation Hall, on the 17th of April, a committee entitled "The General Sir Hector Macdonald Memorial Committee" was formed, with power to add to its number, and the following resolution unanimously agreed to:

"That this general committee appoint an executive to draw up and issue an appeal for donations to establish a memorial in London to General Sir Hector Macdonald, with power to set aside any surplus funds in such manner as they may deem advisable."

The decision of the committee was that a permanent memorial should be established in London, as the capital of the Empire, in relation to whose military annals General Macdonald's name occupies such a brilliant and splendid position.

It is understood that the Duke of Argyll is president of the fund, Mr. Samuel Greenlees, chairman, Dr. Farquhar Matheson, J. P., and Mr. William Grant, Hon. Treasurers, Scots Corporation Hall, Crane Court, Fleet street, London, E.C., and that the appeal for funds will be made to the Empire at large.

Are You Fond of Tomatoes?

Most people are—and if you like them early, smooth, hard and almost seedless, plant "Spark's Earliana,"—earliest and most prolific tomato that comes on the Boston market. I am selling these famous seedlings, well started, at the rate of three boxes for a quarter. Cabbage plants—Henderson's Reliable, and other high bred garden plants—the most for your money at my greenhouses. Flowering plants, ready for transplanting, cheapest anywhere. Sample Cobb's Asters, a special variety, the best that grows. Jos. H. Cobb, Aylmer street greenhouses; phone 182.

TWO ICELANDERS DROWNED.

Talbot Centennial Celebration at St. Thomas Begun—Cattle From Buenos Ayres Suffering From Foot and Mouth Disease at Durban—John White Committed For Trial.

Port Arthur, May 22.— The dock employes of the C. N. R. went out on strike here yesterday.

Ottawa, May 22.—Russel Parker, a lad 12 years of age, was caught on a live wire on Somerset street and killed instantly.

Toronto, May 22.—Crushed in an elevator at Eaton's yesterday afternoon, five-year-old Arthur Buchler lies dead at St. Michael's Hospital.

New York, May 22.—The Liverpool correspondent of The Post says: Among the London clubs it is again reported that King Edward's health is far from satisfactory.

Ottawa, May 22.—John White, charged with setting fire to the lumber piles on Sunday, May 10, was committed for trial by Magistrate O'Keefe yesterday. The evidence is purely circumstantial.

Winnipeg, May 22.—Two Icelandic fishermen, named Johnson and Thorkenson, in the employ of H. Armstrong, M.P.P., were drowned in Lake Manitoba yesterday, while off St. Laurent mission. A squall capsized their sailboat.

Durban, Natal, May 22.—The British steamers Abbey Holme, Captain Brown, and Anglo Chilian, Captain Johnson, have arrived here from Buenos Ayres with foot and mouth disease prevailing among the cattle on board of them.

St. Thomas, May 22.—The much heralded Talbot Centennial celebration began yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, with the clanging of all the bells in the city, the blowing of whistles and a spirit of good-will towards everybody. A good many Old Boys and Old Girls have arrived.

Windsor, May 22.—Harry E. Little, a spare fireman in the employ of the street railway here, lay down on the wide belt of an engine to rest, and fell asleep. The engineer, unaware of his presence, started the ponderous machine. Little yelled, but it was too late, and he was terribly crushed. He cannot live.

New York, May 22.—The Nova Scotian schooner Britannia arrived in port yesterday from San Domingo City, showing many battle scars, having been caught April 1 between the fire of the Government and insurgent troops in the river near the custom house at San Domingo City. The mizzen mast and a number of blocks were perforated.

Ottawa, May 22.—In an accident in the lumber yards at Braeside yesterday Jerry Lebanc, an employe of Gillies Bros., lost his life. He was putting the brake on a box car when another car struck the one he was on, the sudden jolt throwing him on the track where the wheels of the car passed over his body. He leaves a widow and two children.

THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

The House Agrees Upon Better Payment of School Inspectors.

Toronto, May 22.—The Legislature sat for two hours and a half yesterday. A number of Government orders were attended to, including Mr. Harcourt's bill to amend the public schools act, under which discussion occurred relating to the salaries of inspectors. Both sides of the House agreed as to the insufficiency of the salaries, and Mr. Harcourt undertook to have a clause inserted in the bill dealing with the subject.

Mr. Ross stated that his Honor the Lieutenant-Governor would attend the House to-day to give assent to a number of bills that have received third readings.

Col. Gibson promised Mr. Downey that if he would give him the names of companies carrying on a class of fraudulent loan business to which he referred he would have them struck off the register or otherwise proceeded against. Mr. Downey referred to companies which accepted children's savings on a paid-up share principle, and confiscated the deposits if they ceased payment before the full amount was paid.

Mr. Ross' bill respecting taxation of circuses was passed through committee without amendment, and his bill respecting public highways was assented to. Mr. Whitney asked to have any railway resolutions there might be brought down early, and the House adjourned.

ALMOST A DYING WOMAN.
Mrs. Jassia L. Sellars Shouts Aloud her Praises of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets—Brought Her Almost From Death to Life.
I believe Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have made a sound cure of me after being for seven years almost a dying woman. Now, thank God, I am able to do my daily work as usual.
This is what Mrs. Jessie Louisa Sellars, of Western Bay, Newfoundland, writes, and she wants all the world to know it. She feelsa s all others do who have cast off the pains and despondency of Dyspepsia—who feel again that life is worth living.
"I cannot praise Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets too much," continues Mrs. Sellars. "They have brought me almost from death to life. You may use my name to recommend them. I am only too glad that I can do so."
It is cures like this that give Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets their popularity. They not only relieve but cure permanently Indigestion and Dyspepsia of all stages.

Attleboro, Mass.—An attempt to wreck the Colonial Express, from Washington for Boston, at a point between Skinner's Crossing and Mansfield Station, Wednesday, failed, and Michole Vinchto said to be responsible is under arrest. He piled railway ties on the track.

SCOTT'S EMULSION
makes pale, thin children fat and chubby. Overcomes wasting tendencies and brings back rosy cheeks and bright eyes.
It's surprising how quickly children respond to Scott's Emulsion. It contains just the element of nourishment their little bodies need. They thrive on it.

EXEMPTION FROM SURTAX.

Government Business Substantially Advanced in the Commons Wednesday—Adjourned Over King's Birthday.

Ottawa, May 21.—The Government business was substantially advanced at yesterday's sitting of the Commons, although the house adjourned early to allow members to take the night trains home for the holidays. Supply was the chief order of the day, the Justice Department estimates being under discussion.

Mr. German (Welland) introduced a bill to compel railways to provide perfect appliances for the prevention of sparks from locomotives.

Mr. Fitzpatrick presented an amendment to the statutes providing that printing for the Intercolonial Railway be done in the Maritime Provinces at a cost not exceeding fair commercial rates.

The Minister of Customs announced an extension of time for bringing in goods from Germany exempt from the new surtax from June 30 to September 30.

Col. Sam Hughes renewed his protest against practice of transporting prisoners in the Northwest in first-class cars. Mr. Fitzpatrick promised to see that the practice was stopped.

Mr. Borden objected to the condition of the Supreme Court library, and Mr. Fitzpatrick said the remedy was to erect an entirely new building for the Supreme Court. Mr. Sutherland promised to have the matter looked into and make a recommendation at an early date. Mr. Marcile advocated erecting a new building for Parliament, and using the present structure for departmental business only.

The Opposition criticized the expense of justice in the Yukon, and the Government speakers pointed out that living was very high there and quoted prices.

Service of Provincial Judges.

Ottawa, May 21.—The Minister of Justice has given notice of a new resolution respecting judges of provincial courts. It provides that a judge of 75 years, who has served on the bench for twenty years, or a judge 70 years of age who has served for twenty-five years, or a judge of 65 years of age who has served for thirty years, may retire on a pension equal to his full salary. Retirement is made compulsory at the age of 75.

Powerful Deputation.

Ottawa, May 21.—A very large and powerful delegation from the counties of Wellington, Perth and Grey, the townships and the towns and villages therein, was presented to the Minister of Railways yesterday morning by John Charlton, M.P., the object of the visit being to urge the granting of a Government subsidy to the extension of the Tilsonburg, Lake Erie and Pacific Railway from Ingersoll to Collingwood. Many speeches were made and the usual promise of consideration was given.

THE BEAUTIFUL.

Blizzard Rages in Crow's Nest Pass and Stock Suffers.

Blairmore, N.W.T., May 21.—The worst storm experienced in this section of the Northwest in many years is raging in the Crow's Nest Pass and on the prairie to the east. Snow has been falling constantly for seventy-two hours, with no indication as yet of a break. Yesterday a blizzard as fierce as was ever known here has been raging.

The snow is eighteen inches deep on the level here, while reports from the prairie as far east as Lethbridge are to the effect that it is from two to three feet deep.

Stock which has been on green grass for two weeks is reported to be suffering terribly, especially young animals, which are reported to be dying off by hundreds. The temperature has not been low, but has been falling for several hours, and the weather is now extremely cold. It is feared the blow to the live stock interests within the radius of the storm will be almost paralyzing.

Loss of $5,000,000 by Snow.

Great Falls, Mont., May 21.—The heaviest cattle and sheep loss in the history of Montana, which will reach $5,000,000, has been caused by snowstorms, which have been raging for the past three days.

Merrill, Mich.—Pearl and Edna Gill aged 3 and 5, orphans, lost their lives in a fire Thursday morning.

New York.—An explosion of five barrels of hydrcarbon in the N.Y.Q. railway yards killed one man and seriously hurt two others.

Bridgeport.—All the street railway lines but one are now in full operation with non-union men, and the guards have been withdrawn from most cars.

Victoria, B.C., May 22.—At the session of the Legislative Committee inquiry yesterday, C. McL. Brown was examined, but little information than that already published was elicited.

AUSTRALIA HAS ACCEPTED.

New Postage Rate For Whole Empire on Victoria Day.

Ottawa, May 20.—To-day Sir William Mulock received a communication from Premier Barton of Australia consenting, on behalf of the Commonwealth, to the penny rate per half ounce applying to all letters posted in Canada for Australia, that is, the six Australian States of Queensland, New South Wales, Victoria, South Australia, West Australia and Tasmania. This arrangement will accordingly go into effect on Victoria Day, Monday, the 25th, and that historic day will see the completion, so far as Canada is concerned of the penny rate system, one penny per half ounce prepaying letters from Canada to all parts of the British empire. This even marks the completion of Sir William's efforts, commencing in 1897, to establish a penny letter rate between Canada and every part of the British empire.

Steamer Pfohl Burned.

Goderich, May 21.—The steamer Pfohl, Capt. Symes, bound for Owen Sound, loaded with coal, was burned and sunk off this port yesterday; fire originated in the lower engine room by the explosion of a lamp about 11 in the morning. The crew worked until 8 last evening, when the boat was abandoned. The tug Seeking picked up boats with the crew all safe.

Serious Stomach Trouble Cured.
"I was troubled with a distress in my stomach, sour stomach and vomiting spells, and can truthfully say that Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets cured me," says Mrs. T. V. Williams, Laingsburg, Mich.
These Tablets are guaranteed to cure every case of stomach trouble of this character. If you are not satisfied after using them your dealer will refund you your money. Why not give them a trial and get well and stay well? 9c

TAPS FROM THE WIRES.

New York.—Two school children died on the street in Brooklyn Wednesday from the effect of the heat.

Alliston, Ont.—Thomas Connell, blacksmith of this town, while engaged shoeing a horse Wednesday evening, dropped dead.

Richmond, Mich.—Rev. Henry Storey was burned to death and his wife severely burned in the destruction of their home Wednesday.

Toronto.—The street cars are still running, and it looks as if the employes will get recognition of their union and drop other demands at present.

Montreal.—The representative of the International Union was present at the meeting of street car men Wednesday night, and as he would not sanction a strike, it was practically decided that there would be no strike.

Tampa, Florida.—Amos Randall, white, and Dan Kennedy and Henry Golden, negroes, were lynched at Mulberry, Polk County, 30 miles from here, early Wednesday morning, for the murder of Barney Brown, a white man.

Philadelphia.—The British barque Scoda reports that on April 20, 250 miles from Cape Charles, Jamaica, she passed through water covered for miles with oil. This confirms the supposed loss of the Luckenback, with a crew of 32 men.

Manila.—Two thousand native houses have been destroyed by fire in the Tondo district of Manila. About eight thousand persons are homeless, and are being fed and sheltered by the municipality. The damage is estimated at 2,000,000 pesos.

Lincoln, Neb.—The Brownell Block was gutted by fire Wednesday, at a loss of $125,000. The fire started by a clerk dropping a lighted lamp into a pile of straw. Fifteen firemen were overcome by smoke and heat, and had to be taken to the hospital. They will recover.

Tangier, May 21.—Tetuan is still threatened by hostile tribes. A thousand men belonging to the powerful Berber tribes of the Zimmuri, who were summoned to Fez to join the expedition against the pretender, and whose assistance as cavalry was very important to the Sultan, have mutinied.

Many Doctors Have Many Minds.
But No Doctor Can Deny the Extraordinary Restorative Powers of
Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.
This great food cure is composed of a number of the most potent blood builders and nerve restoratives that is known to medical science.
It is thoroughly scientific and prepared in such proportions as Dr. Chase found most effective after years of testing in his own extensive practice.
While doctors naturally prefer that you go to them for treatment, there is yet to be discovered a single case where a doctor when asked his opinion of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has not spoken of it in the highest terms of praise.
The evidence which is most satisfactory, however, is that of the persons who have been cured of such serious ailments as paralysis, locomotor ataxia, nervous prostration, nervous exhaustion and all the accompanying ailments by the use of this preparation.
When you find yourself losing energy and vigour, becoming easily tired, subject to headache, neuralgia, indigestion, faintness and dizziness, despondent, discouraged and unable to sleep or rest, it is time to be warned of approaching nervous collapse.
These are unmistakable indications that your nervous system is being undermined, and that you must seek such assistance as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food alone can give.
By noting your increase in weight while using this great system-builder you can prove that new, firm flesh and tissue is being added to your body. Fifty cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50. At all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. 4

Females of All Ages

CHAPTER XXVI.

It was all over; the two friends had met, and the meeting had been less terrible than Dolores had feared. It touched her greatly to see the difference that years had made in the stately figure and handsome face of Lady Fielden. Her hair was white as snow, and deep lines marked the fair face.

"I suffered much when my husband died," she said, "and it has changed me greatly; but you, Dolores—I expected to find you grown old. Why, my dear, you look as young as—oh, and far more beautiful than—when you left us sixteen years ago! Dolores, it was very cruel, because I loved you so.

"I could not remain," returned Dolores. "If I had not severed myself from everything and every one connected with the past, I must have died; and I had my two children for whom to live. I could not help it, Lady Fielden. I did not want any human being to see how I suffered. You must forgive me. I have always thought of you with faithful love and affection."

"I do forgive you; but it is time this unnatural state of things was ended. Your children must take their place in the world."

"But," said Dolores, "you forget that the shadow of their father's sin will rest upon them, no matter how beautiful or how good they are; people will point to my bright, beautiful Gertrude as the daughter of the man who deserted his wife and home."

"Do you suppose that the world will be so unjust as to visit the sins of the father on the children?"

"I know it will," answered Dolores.

"You must not take so disheartening a view of the matter," said her friend.

"Ah, Lady Fielden, you know I am right! Think of my Gertrude, so beautiful and high-spirited and proud! Suppose she went out into the world; men would admire her, but who would marry her, not knowing whether her father was living or dead, whether he was a disgrace to society or not?"

"Hundreds of men would love her for her own sweet sake, and marry her, notwithstanding the past," rejoined Lady Fielden, quietly. "Then there is Kathleen; what need to keep her in seclusion? So far as I can see, she has nothing whatever to do with the matter; no disgrace can in any way be reflected on her. It would be a most cruel injustice to keep her in ignorance of her real position."

"I have never intended to do so, believe me, Lady Fielden; I knew that when Kathleen came of age I must tell her the whole story."

"I consider," said Lady Fielden, "that ever since your mother's death, Dolores, I have been your best friend; and now, my dear, I tell you very plainly that all this must end. You must take your own place in society, and give the children theirs."

"I cannot," said Dolores. "You do not understand. I have had no life or energy, or spirit since he left me."

"Ah! Dolores, it was a mystery; for he loved you! We will talk more about it before we leave; we shall remain in Florence for a month at least, and I shall come every day to see you."

As time passed on, Lord and Lady Fielden seemed almost to live at the Villa Baira. Harry had his wish, and took the young girls, with his mother as chaperon, to see all the beauties of Florence. And very happy days they were, save in one respect—Gertrude appeared so frequently to be preoccupied. She was longing to begin what she had grown to consider the work of her life.

A month passed, and letters arrived recalling the young nobleman to England; business affairs on his estate required his attention and presence.

They were all together in the vine walk when Lord Fielden told them this. Dolores looked sad; she did not like the idea of losing the friends with whom she had been so happy. There was a short silence, broken only by the murmur of the river and the song of the birds. It was Gertrude who spoke at last. She stood up alone, a perfect picture, framed by the boughs of a luxuriant lemon-tree above her and purple violets at her feet.

"Mamma, I have something I wish to say. May I say it?" she asked.

Dolores looked up in surprise.

"Certainly, my dear," she replied; "say what you will."

"Dear mamma," Gertrude began, "I ought to beg your pardon for taking what Lord Fielden calls the floor of the house; but I want to say something to you, and I wish also to say it before our best friends."

Then the violet eyes shot a glance at Harry, which said:

"I am obliged by courtesy to include you; but do not think too much of that—it means nothing."

Harry interpreted the glance correctly, and turned away with another sigh.

"You must not think I am Quixotic," she continued. "Elizabeth of Siberia was not much older than I am when she began her long journey. Her father, for whom she undertook so much, was living; mine may be dead. She had his life to save; I have my father's memory at least to clear from stain, I have my mother to restore to happiness. No girl living could ask for a higher, nobler task. I shall devote myself to it, and think of nothing else."

Harry raised his handsome face despairingly to the bright sky when he heard that—it was a death-blow to his hopes; then his eyes turned to the fair, graceful figure standing before him.
